NEW TRACT.

We have just received a new tract of 24 pages, entitled, "The Coming Reign of Terror, or the Commune," by W. N. Pile. The writer shows that the "Reign of Terror" of 1792 was produced by the workings of Socialism, Spiritualism, Infidelity, Free-Love, and the Commune; and then reasons that as these elements are now at work everywhere, they must produce the same results. The tract treats of the living issues of the present, reveals the awful condition of society, and shows that we are on the verge of "the battle of that great day of God Almighty."

For sale at this office. Price, by mail, single copy, 7 cts.; five copies, 30 cts.; ten copies, 50 cts.; fifty copies, $2.00; one hundred copies, by express, $3.50. AG'T.

THE ADVENT OF CHRIST.

CLINTON COLGROVE.

O, Savior! who from Olivet
Ascended to the skies,
While with a fond and keen regret
Thy friends saw thee arise;

In these last days, a yearning few,
With expectation high,
To see thy form disclosed to view,
Uplift an eager eye.

With lofty faith inspired they wait,
And though by sinners scorned;
Yet scoffers of their fearful fate,
Their faithful words have warned.

Unmoved by all the stinging speech
Their humble faith provokes,
The truth they dare not cease to teach,
For sorrow, scorn or strokes.

O give thy waiting people grace,
Their trust and hope revive,
That when they see thy shining face,
They may arise and live.

O, may their wisdom come from thee,
With love and righteousness;
Truth may they gladly feel and see,
And hold in sweet embrace.

THE STRENGTH OF THE WEAK.

C. W. SARGENT.

According to the prophecy of Joel, a proclamation of war was to go forth to the Gentiles, prior to the judgment. After directing them to beat their plowshares into swords, and their pruning-hooks into spears, another peculiar direction is thus given—"Let the weak say, I am strong." For a better understanding, we will divide the subject thus: (1) Ascertain who are the weak; and (2), In what consists their strength?

1. Who are the weak? In European countries, society is divided into classes; first, the sovereigns, and titled nobility; second, the middle-class, or capitalists and business men; third, the peasantry, or workingmen. Which of these three classes could be called the weak? Evidently the third class—the peasantry, are the "weak," who will fulfill the prophecy and say, "I am strong."

Reasons. They are and ever have been kept in poverty by the upper classes; they have been deprived to a great extent of school privileges, of vested rights or ownership in real estate; of a voice in the government, and of the power of choice in regard to a disposal of themselves. They have been obliged to submit to burdensome taxation; to bear arms against their will, and often obliged to forfeit their lives for trivial offences against obnoxious laws. They have been used as tools to elevate men to power, who again used them as instruments for making war on each other. All this without any hope of redress, only what rested in a concerted rebellion, which, if begun, ended in favor of their oppressors, who then riveted their chains closer than before.

But are they always to be thus treated? If the following is of any consequence, it is because it answers the question, and shows us who are the weak.

Within the last six years, Europe has been made the field of operations of the "Internationale." This organization is a world-wide association in behalf of workingmen. It is organized by local sections, and controled by a supreme committee. The members recognize a relation existing between them which is stronger than that which binds them to their sovereigns. They have declared that henceforth their sovereigns shall not use them as instruments for making war on each other. It numbers to-day over one million members in France; and since the order was given for their suppression, they have begun reorganizing on a basis which they believe will defy all attack. One French writer says of them, "These Internationals are the worst of barbarians." No doubt they will prove themselves capable of fulfilling the expression—"Let the weak say, I am strong."

In England they number over one hundred and eighty-six thousand, of whom thirty thousand are in London. At a recent meeting in London, which was forbidden by the government, one of the speakers said to the thousands around him—"We are here to-night because the government has forbidden us to come." This sounds like saying—"I am strong," and all the more noticeable because it came from that lowest class of England's poor—the poor of London.

In many of the principal European nations this organization can now be found; it has branches in Australia, Egypt, and in the United States. In New York City it is assuming such proportions that its influence may yet be felt in the affairs of the city and the State.

2. In what does their strength consist?

Their merely organizing together for social improvement and advantages created but little alarm, and they were not interfered with by the local authorities; but as soon as they began to realize their power, they announced as follows—"That it is right to abolish the right of inheritance of all property whatever." They make common cause against all capitalists, against all governments, against all religions, against titled nobility, and against all existing laws. This would be but mere talk did they not proceed further. They are therefore preparing to carry out these principles by the force of arms. Here is the manifestation of their strength. The lower classes of Europe are arming in every conceivable way, exactly as the prophecy portrays. The expression—"Beat your plowshares into swords, and your pruning-hooks into spears," shows that those to whom it is addressed are brought into contact with armies otherwise equipped, and that agricultural implements must furnish these weak ones a means of defense; and as the lower classes of Europe have in other days used "pruning-hooks" in their rebellions, will it be anything strange to have the "Internationals" provide themselves with the same weapons? Not but what the latest inventions may be found in their ranks; but all the means that can be used to obtain the ends for which they are seeking will be at once brought into requisition.

And with this enemy in every village, town and city of Europe, how can they be effectually suppressed when they consider themselves bound to each other stronger than to their sovereigns, and when they refuse any longer to be used one against another by their rulers? Perfectly organized, they expect to be able to cope with the armies of their rulers. Hence, civil war will be the rule, and not the exception. When the results of the labor of perfecting this organization are realized, not a throne will be safe in the world. The miseries of the moneyed classes may then come upon them in the extreme, for the "Internationals" intend appropriating to themselves the hoarded-up wealth of ages. Joel's prophecy and that of the apostle James foreshadow this.

The organization which has been made the subject of this article proves itself one of the most prominent signs of our Lord's speedy return. Watch and pray, that we may be found of him in peace, without spot, and blameless.

SPIRITUALISM.

CLINTON COLGROVE.

We find in Woodhull & Claflin's Weekly, a brief paragraph on "The Descent of the Spirits." "From all parts of the world do we hear of the nearer approach to and the more intimate relations of the spirit world with our sphere." After referring to the spiritual manifestations in Moravia and Oswego and New York, as well as to the rappings and table tippings in Plymouth Church, the writer alludes to "the occupation of the time of test mediums by people from the religious flocks, plainly indicating the near approach of the time when we shall see as we are seen, and know as we are known, being face to face. There is a whole volume of teaching in that saying of Paul's; since for mortals to see as they are seen, and to know as they are known of the spirits, will be to revolutionize our present standard of morality and virtues, exposing to mortal gaze, what has until now been veiled. But to just that condition are things now making a near approach, and we shall hail the day when it is fully ushered in."

Thus we see how Scripture is unlawfully used even to serve the purposes of its most virulent enemies. And we shall, no doubt, have abundant occasion to observe an intimate sympathy between Spiritualists and the "Internationalists." Let this sympathy and intimacy be studied, for it has a meaning.

Permit me now to reproduce a testimony from the Spiritualists themselves in regard to the origin of the doctrine of the immortality of the soul. It is certainly a very significant and noteworthy admission. The quotation is from "A lecture by Mrs. Emma Hardinge, in Music Hall, Boston, Oct. 15th, 1871." This is the quotation—"The savage knew not of God, the soul's immortality, or any responsibility beyond that which the law of strength lays down; but from the dawning of the human intellect,—from the hour when man ate of the tree of knowledge of good and evil, (in accordance with the beautiful Indian allegory of Genesis which represents the wisdom of the serpent as tempting man to seek added light concerning the capabilities of his existence,) —from that hour, we find traces of man as an immortal being."—Banner of Light, Jan. 6th, 1872.

Again says Mrs. H.—"I need not remind you that the oldest religious writing of the earth, the Sanscrit,—is full of direct proofs of the belief of the ancient Hindoo in the immortality of the soul." But how much does the Hindoo's belief avail to establish the truth of the doctrine? Again she says—"So with the religious writings of the Egyptians; and the Jewish Bible, however subjected to interpolation and mistranslation, gives us the same witness." The Jewish Bible, we are sure does nothing of the kind. In closing, the speaker evinces her sense of the importance of seeking to magnify the notion of inherent immortality, thus—"I thank thee, O great Spirit, I thank thee more for the boon of the voices [what voices?] that have come to me, telling of the soul's immortality, than for all the creeds and systems of civilization." Aye; since spiritualism rests so absolutely upon the foundation of a "never-dying soul," it is obvious how essential it is to encourage the recognition of the doctrine, in order to exalt the superstructure. But of what avail were the most towering architecture reared on a million tons of earth thrown into an abyss, or resting on a sea of quicksands? She says again—"I know that God is; I know that man is immortal." A truth and an untruth, for God is, but man is not immortal. Says the Banner of Light—"Spiritualism itself, is simply a revelation of the immortal life; that is all."

A STORY OF GRACE.—No. 10.

E. S. WILLARD.

Divisions,—Who Responsible?—The Virgin Church—Reasons of Our Hope.

Some might question the propriety of the use of means that would bring about such a result as just related. That it were better to remain together in error than to separate upon the truth. But where, we ask, shall we draw the line?

Division followed upon Apostolic preaching; it followed upon the preaching of Luther, and has followed the footsteps of reformers in every age of the world. The great Reformer of the world said, concerning his mission, "Think not that I am come to send peace on earth; I came not to send peace, but a sword. For I am come to set a man at variance against his father, and the daughter against her mother . . . . . ; and a man's foes shall be they of his own household." Matt. 10: 34–6. Division marked the footsteps of Jesus, and it marks the footsteps of his faithful followers to this day.

It was the mission of the Apostles to introduce and unfold to the world a new dispensation, a new order of things altogether. How tenaciously did God's ancient people cling to Moses and his teachings. Hence arose division. Upon whom rests the responsibility? Again, when Luther came out with the question—"If the christian really finds all his salvation in a renewal through faith, what need has he of the prescriptions of Rome?" Mark the division. And upon whom rests the responsibility. Upon Luther? Could he hold his peace and let the blessed truth still be hid from the eyes of the faithful, that "the just shall live by faith," instead of by penance and absolution by the priest? So now in the case before us. God sent his servants to proclaim his long hidden truth to this people. Some of them believed and confessed it, while others believed not, and rejected it as error. Who is to blame? Upon whom rests the responsibility of this division? Certainly not upon those who preached, nor yet upon those who believed the truth of God.

As there was a necessity at the first Advent that the new wine be put into new bottles by the constitution of a new order of things— a new church, so when the new wine of the kingdom nigh at hand was proclaimed, there must be a new vessel to contain it. A faithful trial was made, as at the first Advent, to introduce this new wine into old bottles—the churches; but they could not contain it; they burst asunder; therefore a new church filled with this new wine—the wine of the coming kingdom, must of necessity be found.

The fullness of times had now come for the development of just such a body; and we look upon it as a dispensational movement, having the same relation to the second Advent that the preaching of John had to the first. It was a preparatory movement—a getting ready for the second Advent of our Lord from heaven. And is there not a necessity for such a preparation? Earth's King about to return,—and should he not have a people to welcome and escort him to the place of coronation? Yea, to "crown him Lord of all"?

As it is written—"Then shall the kingdom of heaven be likened unto ten virgins which took their lamps and went forth to meet the Bridegroom." Then, when? When all the lines of prophecy converge to show the kingdom of God nigh at hand. Not surer does the budding fig-tree betoken that summer is nigh, than do all these converging rays make plain to us that we are in the closing scenes of the gospel dispensation. Even now are they blending with those of the "dispensation of the fullness of times" in the closing up of the prophetic periods. Let us trace a few of these as made plain by God's faithful servants.

The four great kingdoms of the earth portrayed in prophecy have been retraced by the faithful historian. These kingdoms, with their greatest changes, are now in the past. Babylon, Persia, Greece and Rome, have for many centuries furnished the history that has thrilled and inspired the youth that would know of the things of the past. The predicted revolutions of the fourth Empire, symbolized by the legs of iron, and feet part of iron and part of clay, and even the ten kingdoms symbolized by the ten toes, are long since named on history's page. The prophetic declaration concerning these ten-toe-kingdoms reads thus —"In the days of these kings shall the God of heaven set up a kingdom which shall never be destroyed." Dan. 2: 44. Have we not then a reason to look now, in the days of these kings, for the fulfillment of this which God hath spoken by the mouth of his prophets?

Again, note the series of signs given by our Lord himself in these and similar words—"There shall be signs in the sun, and in the moon, and in the stars; and upon the earth distress of nations, with perplexity; the sea and the waves roaring; men's hearts failing them for fear, and for looking after the things that are coming upon the earth; for the powers of heaven shall be shaken. And then shall they see the Son of man coming in a cloud with power and great glory. And when these things begin to come to pass, then look up, and lift up your heads; for your redemption draweth nigh." Luke 21: 25–28. Nearly all these things are fulfilled, and recorded in history, where they may be found by any who are sufficiently interested to search for them. Hence are we justified as the believing children of God, in knowing that "it [or He] is near, even at the doors."

Again, the great apostasy, and the revelation of the man of sin—the son of perdition, which at the first Advent was in the future and must become history before "the great and notable day of the Lord," is now in the past. That "wicked" has been revealed "whom the Lord shall consume with the spirit of his mouth, and shall destroy with the brightness of his coming." 2 Thess. 2: 8. This, therefore, no longer stands in the way of that day at hand, but is rather a beacon of its proximity.

Then the rush to and fro, and the increase of knowledge which was to characterize the time of the end. Dan. 12: 4. This finds its fulfillment in the "chariots" with flaming torches that rage in our streets, and jostle one against another in our broad ways, that seem like torches and that run like the lightning. Nahum 2: 4. Also in the control of the electric fluid, and the multitude of inventions, the boast of our age; all contribute to stamp this as "the day of his preparation"—"the time of the end." Physically, morally, and religiously this age stands out in the light of revelation and history as "the time of the end."

Now are the famines, the pestilences, the earthquakes, the contending nations, angry and fierce for blood; the violence that fills the earth as in the days of Noah; now are the "lovers of pleasure more than the lovers of God," the "despisers of those that are good," the "disobedient to parents," the "form of godliness" with the denial of its power all combining to mark these, our times, the "perilous times" of "the last days." 2 Tim. 3: 1–5.

In all humility, we ask, who are the deluded ones of this generation? Is it fanaticism in the light of prophecy fulfilled, to believe and confess as on the day of Pentecost—this is that which was spoken by the prophets? Was it fanaticism at the first Advent to believe that Jesus was the Christ? Of such Jesus said—"Blessed are your eyes, for they see, and your ears, for they hear." So now do we, who have believed the great dispensational truth of this age—the kingdom of God nigh at hand—lift up our voices in the language of our Lord and say—"We thank thee, oh, Father, Lord of heaven and earth, in that thou hast hid these things from the wise and prudent, and hast revealed them unto babes. Even so, Father; for so it seemeth good in thy sight."

When God says know, then it is sin to be ignorant. It is God's command, God's revealed will, that gives efficacy to every thing in religion. And "to every purpose there is a time." There was a time to build the ark—a time to enter it; a time for the flood—a time to be saved from the flood; and a time to be drowned in it. It was simple obedience to God's command that wrought salvation, and simple disobedience that brought the retribution. It was said of this class—"They knew not until the flood came and took them all away." Why did they not know? Even because they would not believe the messenger whom God was pleased to send among them. This their ignorance was their sin, and this their sin proved their overthrow. Thus was it with the cities of the plain; thus with Jerusalem. Not that they had not been warned, but that they heeded not the warning.

"Surely the Lord God will do nothing but he revealeth his secret unto his servants the prophets." Amos 3: 7. Most certainly he has revealed to us the secret of our day, and shown us by prophecy and fulfillment, just where in the stream of time we are. And in the light of this fulfillment in the potent language of the prophet we can say, surely "The lion hath roared. Who will not fear? The Lord God hath spoken. Who can but prophesy?" Amos 3: 8. And we ask with melting heart, Who can but believe, and flee to Christ for refuge, ere he, as the "Lion of the tribe of Judah," shall seize his prey and there be none to deliver?

But, says one, you were mistaken in the time. Yes, beloved, we freely own there was a mistake; but "come now and let us reason together." But first let me tell you how grateful I am that the Lord counted me worthy in the Son of his love, to be one of these disappointed ones; one of these virgins that took their lamps and went out to meet the Bridegroom in fulfillment of Matt. 25: 1. And as a virgin separated unto Christ, suffer me to relate to you "the comfort wherewith I was comforted of God" upon the passing of that time.

My Bible was still "a lamp to my feet and a light to my path." Unto it I sought in this dark hour and I sought not in vain. I read of the disappointment of the disciples at the first Advent; how they had hoped that it "had been He which should have redeemed Israel." But now they knew not what to think. They had seen him, contrary to all their expectations, delivered to the power of his enemies, and by wicked hands crucified and slain. They had seen him taken down from the cross, wrapped in clean linen and laid in the sepulchre; a great stone rolled to its entrance, sealed, and a watch set.

All this these disciples witnessed as a death-knell to their fondest hopes. The Marys and their companions "beheld the sepulchre, and how his body was laid;" then left the sad scene and went to prepare spices to embalm the body of him whom they so tenderly loved. Lu. 23: 55, 56. Peter, to while away the sad hours, said to his companions—"I go a fishing. They say unto him, We also go with thee." Thus the gloom of midnight gathered over them; "For as yet they knew not the Scripture, that he must rise from the dead." John 20: 9.

As never before, I entered into this scene, and for the time was as one of them, and my tears flowed in mutual sorrow. At this moment came the Spirit's soft whisper—"Of just this nature is your disappointment; and it is as certainly a fulfillment of Scripture." Joy thrilled my heart. I was glad that I had looked for my Lord, and no longer sorrowed because of my disappointment. Then I remembered that it was written—"While the Bridegroom tarried they all slumbered and slept." Matt. 25: 6. Now I saw the fulfillment. The time must needs pass to bring the tarrying. We were on the track of prophecy, and therefore right. Praise the Lord!

Beloved, would you not have joyed to been in Mary's place when her risen Lord dried her tears and filled her soul with gladness, in the loving way in which he said—"Mary"? and in Peter's place when Jesus sent that loving message by Mary—"Go tell my disciples, and Peter, that I am risen from the dead?" Will you not also like to be among these disciples "when the Son of man shall come in his glory, and all the holy angels with him, and before him shall be gathered all nations; and he shall separate them one from another, as a shepherd divideth his sheep from the goats;" and these disappointed ones are invited to his right hand in these blessed words—"Come, ye blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world"? If so, remember that it is written, and the Scriptures cannot be broken—"If we suffer, we shall also reign with him; if we deny him, he also will deny us." 2 Tim. 2: 12.

As the first and second Advent both pertain to "this same Jesus," so the preaching at the first Advent and that in preparation for the second, were similar in their results. Not since the day of Pentecost unto the day of this same virgin church, was there re-produced its like. Such a giving up of the world; such a practical saying that naught of the things he possessed were his own; and such a feeling of having all things common, the history of the church does not produce. Therefore are we justified in believing that the preaching of the kingdom of God "nigh at hand," like the preaching of John, was "from heaven" and not of men; and we can say to those who saw and heard these things, and who are holding on, enduring unto the end, as Jesus said to those who believed in his day—"Blessed are your eyes, for they see; and your ears, for they hear. For verily I say unto you, that many prophets and righteous men have desired to see these things which ye see and have not seen them; and to hear the things which ye hear and have not heard them." Matt. 13: 16,17.

The work and position of this virgin church, we find pointed out by the prophets—"I will stand upon my watch, and set me upon my tower, and will watch to see what he will say unto me, and what I shall answer when I am reproved. And the Lord answered me and said, Write the vision and make it plain upon tables, that he may run that readeth it. For the vision is yet for an appointed time, but at the end it shall speak, and not lie; though it tarry, wait for it; because it will surely come, it will not tarry. Behold his soul that is lifted up is not upright in him; but the just shall live by his faith." Hab. 2: 1–4.

As children of the "little flock" of God, we felt that we were saved and separated to obey; that we had naught for which to live but for Him who died for us and rose again, whom we were expecting soon to see "coming in the clouds of heaven with power and great glory." We felt ourselves crucified to the world and the world to us; that we were strangers and pilgrims on the earth, looking for "a city which hath foundations, whose builder and maker is God." Truly we were made to esteem the reproach of Christ greater riches than the applause of men; for our eyes were fixed upon "the recompense of the reward." We felt we were the children of God looking daily and hourly to him for help to live, so as not to merit rebuke in this "crooked and perverse generation," among whom it was our blessed privilege "to shine as lights in the world;" and we paid the full price for this privilege. But we "endured as seeing Him who is invisible," expecting him soon to appear to plead the cause of his waiting people. Meanwhile, the words of Jesus were most precious to us, as we met from time to time in his name.

We opened our house to a segment of this little flock, and Jesus the Good Shepherd was in our midst. Never shall I forget his sensible presence in the "breaking of bread," the first time we commemorated that ordinance after our separation unto Christ. So striking was the contrast to all former occasions, it seemed to me I never had communed before; it was like a transfer to the "upper room;" and as I spread the table and placed the emblems thereon, all draped in white, I realized, as never before, the time when Joseph, the honorable counsellor who also waited for the kingdom of God, went in boldly unto Pilate, and craved the body of Jesus, and brought fine linen, and took him down, and wrapped him in the linen, and laid him in his own new tomb. I realized my Savior dead and laid upon the table before me; and it truly seemed the preparation in the house for a burial. But when we drew around the table and entered into the services, our eyes were turned from this sad scene to behold our "risen" Lord, who made himself known to us in the breaking of bread; and our hearts burned within us as we contemplated its speedy fulfillment in the kingdom of God. O, bless His name!

Thus as the sufferings of Christ abounded in us, so also our consolations abounded by Christ. 2 Cor. 1: 5. As we were crucified with Christ and thus became dead to the world, the more did we seem to live in him, and he in us. Weeks, months, and even years passed by in "the patient waiting for Christ," holding forth the word of life in the midst of discouragements and trials; but the Lord forsook us not amid our frequent mistakes, shortcomings, and sins.

Our greatest earthly boon was our minister —Elder S. A. Chaplin. Heat nor cold, wet nor dry, weariness nor rest, kept him from his post at the appointed time. We also learned something of what it is to love as brethren; to be pitiful; to be courteous; feeling that the eyes of the Lord are over the righteous, and his ears are open to their prayers. 1 Pet. 3.

A LIFE OF FAITH.

MRS. HOWARD.

By faith we tread life's devious way;
By faith we watch from day to day
The coming of our Lord.
By faith we rise above the earth,
And through our new regenerate birth
On angel pinions soar.

Drink from the fountain of God's love,
Live in an atmosphere above
The state our hearts deplore.
Communing with our Savior dear,
His sweet, low voice we often hear,
Within our wearied souls.

"These bodies shall his temple be";
Ah! what a holy joy to me,
To give him full control.
His temple once established there,
We need not seek a place for prayer,
We find our Lord within.

'Tis a soul-cheering, blessed thought,
Our precious Savior leaves us not,
Except shut out by sin;
And he will purify the heart,
If from all idols we will part,
And self-love crucify.

No other foe is half so great,
No tyrant so deserves our hate,
As self when on the throne.
Christ only can destroy this foe,
Eradicating all the woe
That makes our spirits moan.

O God, break every fetter off,
Help me to bear the jeer and scoff,
As an appointed cross;
Counting my life not even mine,
But merged entirely into thine,
All earthly things but dross.

For only then can Jesus reign
Chief ruler of our soul's domain,
When self and sin are dead;
Then our rebellious work is done,
And our rest has just begun,
When Christ's our living Head.

EXPERIENCE.

At the age of thirteen I sought and found the Lord precious. I saw myself lost and justly condemned. I saw the justice of God against me. I went to keeping the law. The harder I worked, the worse I felt. I felt that I was the worst creature on earth. I really thought I should die. I begged and prayed, but no relief. Then some old professors began to notice that something was the matter with me. Asked if I was sick. They soon told me to work away, I would come out all right; the Lord was at work with me; he would do his own work; they could not help me any. I thought, miserable comforters ye are. Some one asked me if I prayed. I said it did not do any good, but I tried; yet the justice of God was against me. How to get rid of that I could not tell. The Lord led me on, and to my great joy it struck my mind that Christ died and rose again for my justification. My load of guilt was gone. I could praise God. I was going to an evening meeting. When there I could hardly wait till the preacher got through. I got out on the floor before he sat down. I had been sitting by the side of my father. He took hold of my arm, and pulled me back. How grieved I was. The minister spoke and said, "Let the dear boy alone; he has found Jesus." "I guess not, for he has said nothing about it." Sobbing, I said the Lord while coming to meeting had met me in the way, and my load of guilt and fear was gone. I felt at peace, and why it was so I could not tell, but I felt resigned to the will of God.

The next October there came to my father's some young company. They beset me to join them in their play. I did not consent at first, but after awhile I gave way, and that instant I was in darkness. I shall never forget my feelings. I moaned, I wept. I thought I had sinned away the day of grace. So I lived for several years, between hope and fear. I prayed, but with so many doubts I did not realize any answer to prayer. Sometimes I would feel pretty well, and then my waywardness would knock me into darkness again, and my whole life was one of hope and fear.

Now this sore travail was while I was coming up through the slippery paths of youth, but in my riper years my travail of mind was of a different nature. Besides my own unlikeness to my Savior's example, the care and orderly walk of the church was on me; sometimes it seemed I had a load on my back, and if there was any difficulty there was my place, and that led me to study discipline.

All this time I had lived with the old-school Baptists. My being identified with the Advent people begins a new era. The church where I belonged dealt with me for being a heretic. It ran along for some months. The clerk asked what they could or should do with my case? I replied, Take your Bible, you could do nothing with me; but take your creed, and you will have to turn me out on to the common, which, I said, was good enough for me. So they excluded me for being a heretic. They waited for me about two months to come back. Twelve came out with me. It broke up the little church. The rest went into Spiritualism, with the exception of one or two.

Now I can see the Lord has led me thus far through the wilderness. I am trying for more holiness of heart. I find it is an every-day's work, a constant watching, and a good deal of praying for divine assistance. Our Savior said, "Without me ye can do nothing." How true that is. I feel that we are almost through this wilderness.

When I changed my relationship with the church, my Bible became a new book. I love it better every day of my life, and now I am waiting to come to the end of the thirteen hundred and thirty-five days.

OFFERING THE BEST.—The little child goes out to gather a boquet of flowers to present to his father; but he gathers weeds and fading flowers along with fair and fragrant ones. Bringing them to his mother she rejects all but the most beautiful, and binds them together, a lovely offering. So Christ casts out the weeds, the sin in our prayers, and presents only the flowers to his Father, as a sweet-smelling savor.—Ex.

FAITH is the blessed tree which produces the noble and the divine fruits of wisdom, virtue, and true felicity. But it is of so fine and delicate a nature, that it will not grow and thrive in the cold and barren soil of man's heart without his incessant care and industry.

THE ORANGE TREE.—"Right opposite to the window through which the morning sun is pouring, stands a stately orange tree, thirty feet high, with spreading, graceful top and varnished green leaves, full of golden fruit. These are the veritable golden apples of the Hesperides—the apples that Atlanta threw in the famous race; and they are good enough to be run after. The things that fill the New York market, called by courtesy, oranges—pithy, wilted, and sour—have not even a suggestion of what those golden balls are that weigh down the great glossy green branches of yonder tree. At the tree's foot, Aunt Katy does her weekly washing in the open air, the winter through. We have been putting our tape-measure about it and find it forty-three inches in girth, and for shapely beauty it has no equal. It gives one a sort of heart-thrill of possession to say of such beauty: 'it is mine.' No wonder the Scripture says, 'He that is so impoverished that he hath no oblation, chooseth a tree that will not rot.' The orange tree is, in our view, the best worthy to represent the Tree of Life of any that grows on our earth. It is the fairest, the noblest, the most generous; it is the most up-springing and abundant, of all trees which the Lord God caused to grow eastward in Eden. Its wood is white and hard and tough, fit to sustain the immense weight of its fruitage. Real good ripe oranges are very heavy, and the generosity of the tree inclines it to fruit in clusters. We counted, the other day, a cluster of eighteen, hanging low and weighing down the limb.

But this large orange tree and many larger than this, which are parts of one orchard, are the growth of only twenty years. In 1835, every one of them was killed even with the ground! Then they started up with the genuine pluck of a true-born orange tree, which never says die, and began to grow again. Nobody pruned them or helped them or cared much about them any way; and you can see trees that have grown up in four, five, and six trunks, just as the suckers sprung up from the roots. Then, when they had made some progress, came the orange insect and nearly killed them down again. The owners of the land, discouraged, broke down the fences and moved off; and, for a while, the land was left an open common, where wild cattle browsed and rubbed themselves on the trees. But still, in spite of all, they have held on their way rejoicing, till now they are the beautiful creatures they are. Truly, we may call them trees of sap and greenness; full of lessons of perseverance to us who get frosted down and cut off time and time again in our lives. Let us hope in the Lord, and be up and at it again."—Mrs. H. B. Stowe, in the Christian Union.

WHAT TO PREACH, AND HOW.—The preacher is not the lecturer, nor the philosopher, nor the critic, but the lifter up of the cross and the Savior. This is your work. Oh, if you fail here you miss your way. If there be any thing in your ministry that does not lead to Christ, it is a strange doctrine; God himself will destroy it. It is a blemish which disfigures the whole; it is but as the meteor of the marsh, which may beguile but cannot dissipate the darkness.—Wm. Morley Puncheon.

Gems.

— Christ's love is the church's fire; thither bring thy heart when it is cold, frozen and dead; meditate on his love, and pray until you can say, "He loved me, and gave himself for me."

— A good heart always makes the poor, the lame and the hunchback, good-looking. A good heart is good for both worlds. This is what God so much loves.

— A wise man looks upon men as he does upon horses; all their caparisons of title, wealth, and place, he considers but as harness.

— The man who knows his own weakness, is known to be strong.

— The blossom cannot tell what becomes of its odor, and no man can tell what becomes of his influence and example, that roll away from him and go beyond his ken on their perilous mission.

— The fewer the words, the better the prayer.

— On earth we have nothing to do with success or with results, but only being true to God and for God; for it is sincerity and not success which is the sweet savor before God.

— We must really get at the bottom of all that belongs to self, if we are to be the vessels of the Holy Ghost.

— Would you talk of religion securely—with true freedom and assurance, without any secret checks or faint-hearted misgivings? The rule is both short and infallible—Do what you say. Practice as much of religion as you talk; and then you have a full license to talk as much of it as you please.

— Wealth is not his who gets it, but his who enjoys it.

— Roll all thy guilt on the back, and weep thy sorrows out on the bosom, of the Savior.

— "Give us this day our daily bread." God does not mean that you shall steal or lie to get it.

— Science may raise us to eminence, but religion alone can guide us to felicity.

Hygiene.

"This is for your Health."

COLD PLUNGE BATHS—We agree with Good Health in the following remarks upon the indiscriminate and imperative use of the above baths by the patients of the Blind Institution in this city. By complaints which are now being entered, it would seem that they have been most unmercifully adhered to for years, to the great discomfort and unhappiness of these unfortunate youths.

"It does not require any medical knowledge to comprehend that cold baths in winter (for youths especially) are neither merciful, useful, nor healthful. This kind of education for the endurance of hardships, is like putting young lions into an ice-house, that they may the better endure menagerie life. For blind persons, who are naturally less robust than others, such harsh measures are doubly unwarrantable, and should meet with the severest censure and condemnation."

OVER-WORK.

The complaint is quite universal that in our American life we over-strain the muscle, over-wear the brain, and over-burden the heart. Prominent men drop suddenly here and there, when they are all aglow with perspiration, and dilated eye, and absorption of success. The epitaph is "died of over-work." It should be, "died of mismanaged work." That wheel on the car is not hot because it rolls faster than the other wheels, nor because it is weaker, or stronger; but because its journal was not packed as well—because some unusual friction has heated it. Here is a sewing-machine with which a woman has flung thread enough to baste the two hemispheres together at the equator, and reach to the north pole, and make a spool of it. And yet it has needed little repair as it has sung the dollars together with its monotonous buzz. Here is another that is returned, broken in pieces, and radically injured. Lack of lubrication, mis-feeding or guiding caused an injury, and then it has been up-hill work ever since, till it has become absolutely worthless.

Men are worked in precisely the same ways. A man cannot run his body, and leave his mind behind, without harm; nor his mind, and leave his body in the lurch; and neither, and fling his soul out to the dogs. False work, misjudged, and misguided work, is the crime of the day. No mechanic shall fail in muscle, nor in skill, if he will fertilize his mind as he goes along, and keep a window in his soul open to God. No business or professional man shall waste in body, or waver in mind if he well proportion his intellectual and physical toil, and not forget his religious obligations.—Rev. Wm. Alvin Bartlett in "The Chicago Pulpit."

INFLUENCE OF TOBACCO ON THE NERVES CENTRES.—M. Lefevre, of Louvains, thinks it indubitable that excessive smoking causes paralytic mania, because—1. Nicotine causes in animals, progressive enfeeblement of the muscles of motion up to paralysis, and congestion of the nerve-centres. 2. Analogous symptoms have been noticed in numbers of persons who abuse tobacco in smoking an chewing. 3. It has been found in all countries that there is a constant relation between the consumption of tobacco and the increase of general paralysis.—The Doctor.

HOW TO CURE A FELON.—Many persons suffer extremely from felons on the finger. These afflictions are not only very painful, but they frequently occasion the permanent crippling of the member affected. The following simple prescription is recommended as a cure for this distressing ailment: Take common rock salt, such as is used for salting down pork or beef, and mix it with spirits of turpentine in equal parts; put it on a rag, and wrap it around the affected part, and as it gets dry, put on more, and in twenty-four hours the felon will be dead.

CLEANLINESS.—Keep the body clean. The pores of the skin are the drains of the body; if these are choked by the dirt, perspiration, which is the waste of the body, is driven back, to the injury of health and spirits. Cold water is a good companion. "I go into the water and the water goes into me,"—be able to say that all the year round, and your health will be good.—Ex.

THE TEETH.—Mercurialization may loosen the teeth, long use may wear them out, but keep them clean, and they will never decay.

Shall scatter and be lost."

Little girls and boys, have you any brothers or sisters? If you have, love them a great deal, for you do not know how long you may be together. And even if you should live to be old men and women, do you not think it would make you very happy to remember when you were children you never quarrelled? And if you have lost a darling little brother, or a gentle, loving sister, there is nothing that makes you feel so sad as that sometimes you were unkind and angry.

"Children, do you love each other?
Are you always kind and true?
Do you always do to others
As you'd have them do to you?"

We heard of a brother and sister who loved one another very much. He was the older, and was taken ill and died. They laid him out on his own little bed, and his mother took his little sister to look at him. I cannot tell what she felt and thought as she stood and looked at his sweet face, as white and cold as marble; but she wept very much. At last she said:

"Mother, may I take hold of his hand?"

After a little time she placed it in hers, when the dear child, lifting it up and stroking it gently, said

"This little hand never struck me!"

Oh, how pleased she was to think of that! "Little children, love one another."

"Little children, love each other,
Never give another pain;
If your brother speak in anger,
Answer not in wrath again."

A MORNING SUNBEAM.

A nestling in the little crib,
A soft hand laid upon my head,
A gentle whisper in my ear—
"Mamma, I'm tomin' into bed!"

"O, no," I said, "'twill never do;
Now shut those little peepers tight,
And sleep and dream till morning breaks,
Then you may come—when comes the light."

Again a nestling in the crib,
As down to rest my birdie lay;
I listened, for I thought she spoke—
"Huddy up, light," I heard her say.

Then all was still. We slept again
Till dawn lit up the eastern sky;
Then sang my birdie, sweet and clear,
"Now light has 'tum, and so has I!"

A LITTLE COMFORTER.—A poor minister had part of his salary taken from him. Oh, dear! How was he to pay for his bread and butter, and the children's shoes, and ever so many other things?

"Write to them that you cannot live on nothing," said his wife; "write, by all means."

"What can I say?" he asked, much down-hearted by the sad state of things.

"I tell you, father," said his little girl. "Say, 'Give us this day our daily bread.'"

The "Crisis" is devoted to the exposition of all Bible truth; especially the doctrine of the immediate, personal coming and reign of Christ on the earth; holiness of heart; the unconscious state of the dead; their literal resurrection, and final destruction of the wicked.

"UNTIL HE COME."

"As often as ye eat th's bread, and drink this cup, ye do show the Lord's death till he come."

By Christ redeemed, in Christ restored,
We keep the memory adored,
And show the death of our dear Lord,
Until he come.

His body, broken in our stead,
Is here in this memorial bread;
And so our feeble love is fed,
Until he come.

His fearful drops of agony,
His life-blood shed for us we see;
The wine shall tell the mystery,
Until he come.

And thus that dark betrayal-night,
With the last Advent we unite—
The shame, the glory—by this rite,
Until he come.

Until the trump of God be heard,
Until the ancient graves be stirred,
And with the great, commanding word,
The Lord shall come.

O blessed hope! with this elate,
Let not our hearts be desolate,
But strong in faith, in patience wait
Until he come.

FUTURE RECOMPENSE.

O. R. FASSETT.

There is a plain statement of Scripture as to the final reward of both the righteous and the wicked. It is this—"Behold, the righteous shall be recompensed in the earth; much more the wicked and the sinner." Prov. 11: 31. This text must be in harmony with the Scriptures as a whole. Of course, then, all the Scriptures must teach the doctrine that future recompenses are upon this planet, earth. If this be so, the popular and prevailing religious theories and opinions respecting the place of future rewards, must be unscriptural, and without foundation in the word of God. It is maintained that the righteous are to be recompensed in "heaven above"—"a kingdom on high"—"above the starry sky"—"beyond the bounds of time and space"—"in a spirit land"—"in a spirit world"—"in ethereal spheres," ect., etc.

Let us compare these ideas, and this language, with the Scriptures, and see how they agree. If not in harmony, they must be false. It is maintained that the righteous are to be rewarded "in heaven above." The Bible says—"The righteous shall be recompensed in the earth." Again, that the righteous shall be rewarded "in a kingdom on high." But the Bible says—"The righteous shall be recompensed in the earth." Again, they shall be rewarded "above the starry sky." But the Bible says—"Recompensed in the earth"—"under the whole heaven." Still again—"Beyond the bounds of time and space." But the Bible—"In the earth." Furthermore, popular theology teaches that the righteous shall be rewarded "in a spirit land." The Bible says—"They shall be recompensed in the earth." Again, they shall be regarded "in a spirit world." The Bible says—"In the earth." "In ethereal spheres," or "ethereal regions," says modern theology. But says the Bible—"The righteous shall be recompensed in the earth." Which is true? Both cannot be true. Which is to be regarded as correct? The Bible does not teach both doctrines. One or the other opinion is to be be given up, and abandoned sooner or later. Which will it be? That of the Bible, or the prevailing opinion of the theological world, and the popular ideas of the world of mankind? Can there be any doubt as to which is correct, and will ultimately prevail and prove true? Will not the word of God abide forever? Yes. Then let us embrace its teaching, and abide by its revelation, if all the world, and the whole theological creed of Christendom be proved to be false. If opposed to the Scriptures, they must be in error. The Bible never.

Not only is the modern theory unbiblical, but it is unscientific as well. It ignores the science of astronomy, to say nothing of other sciences, as that of anatomy, physiology, human nature, mental science, and philosophy. Dr. Dick says—"The space between the earth and the sun is so vast that a cannon ball flying with a velocity of five hundred miles an hour, would not reach it in twenty years. Between the earth and the nearest fixed star, a space intervenes so vast and incomprehensible that the ball would not reach it in four million five hundred thousand years. These are considered the centre of a hundred worlds, as our sun is the centre of the solar system. Of these there are vast members. Eighty millions of them are visible by the telescope." Think, then, of a soul liberated from the body at death (as is conceived), flying through infinite space beyond the sun, which would take a cannon ball twenty years to reach, flying with a velocity of five hundred miles an hour, and still onward beyond "the nearest fixed star," which "a cannon ball would not reach in four million five hundred thousand years;" and still on, and on, and on, beyond the "eighty million" of these central suns of other systems of worlds, visible by the telescope, (and we know not how much further it would have to travel to reach its destination "beyond the starry sky"); and gaining this far distant home in "heaven above" instanter, or in no time! Then looking down from this "battlement of heaven" through all this incomprehensible distance upon surviving relatives in sorrow. And furthermore, revisiting them on the funeral occasion of its body (as we are told, "every man attends his own funeral" Credo); thus doubling this inconceivable distance within, at least, three or four days!

But more is to be believed. This adventurous soul journeys beyond even this remote region, "beyond the stars" to that designated as "beyond the bounds of time and space," which must be outside of the univere itself, for certainly space is illimitable and boundless. So this professedly orthodox doctrine, or that sustained by the evangelical churches of Christendom, fetches up in the annihilation of the righteous even! while they abhorrently reject the Scriptural doctrine of "the destruction of the wicked." Talk of the superstition and absurdities of heathendom respecting the future state; there cannot be found in the whole heathen world any thing more superstitious, inconsistent, or nonsensical, than this entertained in enlightened christian churches, and communities where the Bible is, and a knowledge of astronomy prevails.

The Scriptures speak of God rewarding men as men, not "the spirits of men" independent of the body; and that their "recompense" will be "in the earth," not in remote ideal regions, "a spirit land," a "spirit world." The Bible deals in realities, not in phantoms; in substance, not in shadows. "That I may cause those" (not the spirit of those) "that love me to inherit substance" (not immateriality.) "The righteous shall be recompensed in the earth." The Scriptures do not hold out ideal, or mere imaginative hopes to be realized in a fancied heaven, and thus cheat the righteous out of an actual reward.

EPOCH.

"The righteous shall be recompensed in the earth." "Recompense" signifies "compensation, reward for services rendered. An equivalent or return for any thing given, done, or suffered." Webster. "Shall be recompensed," implies in the future, and not in the present life or world. To make this apply to the present state in any sense whatever would be absurd, untrue, and would not harmonize with the Scriptures. See Heb. 11: 13, 14, 26, 33–40. No one can possibly maintain that these were recompensed in this world, or in this life. They await "the better resurrection" v. 35. And the Epoch is thus settled by our Lord—"Thou shalt be recompensed at the resurrection of the just." Luke 14: 14, Matt. 16: 27, Rev. 22: 12, Rev. 11: 18, Acts 17: 30, 31.

HARMONY OF SCRIPTURE.

The above Scripture is in harmony with the doctrine of the Restitution. Acts 3: 20, 21, Isaiah 35 and 65, 2 Pet. 3, Rev. 21 and 22. It is in harmony with the Abrahamic and new covenant promise concerning the inheritance. Rom. 4, Gal. 3, Heb. 11. It agrees with the Scriptures in general, of both the Old and New Testaments respecting the locality of future rewards. Ps. 37, Prov. 2: 21, 22, 10: 30, 11: 31, Matt. 5: 5, Rom. 8, Rev. 5: 9, 10. And finally agrees with our Lord's parables of "The Wheat and Tares," Matt. 13, and of the "Nobleman." Luke 19.

A SPECIOUS OBJECTION.

It is often urged that the earth is not large enough for the saints' abode. And it is inconsiderately said, that the redeemed would more than people it, and would be several tiers deep. But the following calculation will demonstrate the incorrectness of this wild statement. "Supposing there to have been six thousand years since the creation of man; and the same number of inhabitants to exist in all ages of the world; and allow three generations to each century; and then give each two square feet to stand upon; and all who are now alive, and all that have ever lived, could stand within eighty-one miles of any given point." Taking into account the above large estimate, and then the fact that "all the wicked will God destroy," and "cut off from the earth," and "they shall not inherit the earth;" and that in the renewal and regenesis of our planet the oceans will disappear, and its conformation be restored as in its Eden glory, and then

"Canaan sure is large enough
To give us all a home."

RECOMPENSE OF THE WICKED.

Concerning these it is maintained that they will be rewarded somewhere outside of this earth. Some imagine it will be in the moon or stars. At least in an endless burning hell of torments far from this earth somewhere. But the Scriptures affirm that "they shall be recompensed in the earth"; "much more the wicked and the sinner." Prov. 11: 31.

"Recompense" signifies also "requital; a return of evil, or suffering, or loss as an equivalent or punishment of evil doing." Webster. The Universalist endeavors to make it appear that this punishment is in this life; but fails. "Shall" is future tense, and cannot be proved to be now, during probation, any more than in the case of the righteous. That they are not requited, or punished for the evil of their doing in this life, is apparent from the following Scripture concerning the wicked rich—They "live, become old, yea, mighty in power, ... spend their days in wealth, and in a moment go down to the grave. Therefore they say unto God, Depart from us; for we desire not the knowledge of thy ways." Job 21: 7–15. And certainly they are not rewarded for the evil of their doings when they die, for—"One dieth in his full strength, being wholly at ease and quiet; . . . . . and another dieth in the bitterness of his soul, and never eateth in pleasure. They shall lie down alike in the dust, and the worms shall cover them." Job 21: 23–26. When shall they be recompensed? The Scriptures answer—"The wicked is reserved to the day of destruction; they shall be brought forth to the day of wrath." Job 21: 30. "The Lord knoweth how to reserve the unjust unto the day of judgment to be punished." 2 Peter 2: 9. "The heavens and the earth, which are now, by the same word, are kept in store, reserved unto fire against the day of judgment and perdition of ungodly men." 2 Peter 3: 7, Acts 17: 30. The Scriptures reveal the fact that the recompense of the wicked and sinner will consist in their utter destruction and extinction of being, so that "the wicked shall not be," "his place shall not be," "be not found," "no place found for them," "the wicked be no more;" as they are "destroyed together," and "into smoke they consume away," and are "ashes" under "the feet" of "the righteous." Ps. 37: 104, Dan. 2, Mal. 4, Matt. 3: 12, 10: 28, Rom. 6: 23, Rev. 11: 18, 20: 13–15, 21: 8.

Certainly, if both the righteous and wicked are to be "recompensed in the earth," and "the inheritance of the righteous shall be forever," "even forever and ever," the recompense of the wicked must be that "they shall be cut off" by "death," so that "the wicked shall not inhabit the earth." For it is perfectly inconsistent that the wicked should have an existence in everlasting conscious being "in the earth," while the righteous shall "possess the kingdom and dominion, and the greatness of the kingdom under the whole heaven." Dan. 7: 27. And "the whole earth be filled with his glory." Ps. 72: 19. As the Lord hath sworn—"As I live all the earth shall be full of my glory."

This is a consistent view, harmonizing apparent conflicting Scriptures; agreeing with the attributes of God's justice, holiness, and mercy; and a consummation devoutly to be wished by every holy, and good, and righteous being in the universe, the prayer of whom must be to the Most High—"Oh, let the wickedness of the wicked come to an end; but establish the just." Ps. 7: 9.

CONCLUSIONS.

The whole destiny of man is connected with the planet God made for him "in the beginning." Here man lives on this earth, is buried, when he died, in its soil, is here to be raised from the dead, and to be judged and rewarded by the coming of the Judge of the quick and dead. The wicked are to be judged, condemned, and "cut off" by "the second death"; executed after the judgment "at the last day"; and the righteous are to be endowed with immortality, and "exalted to inherit the earth," redeemed from the curse with themselves forever. This is a most consistent and reasonable conclusion, that man, if he exists in the future, should do so in connection with the planet in the universe God made as the place of his residence in the beginning. Mankind are not to be conveyed after death into other and unknown regions of the universe to be judged and recompensed. The Lord will come, and judge and reward every man according to his works.

There is no intermediate ante-chamber, where the spirits or souls of the dead go between death and the resurrection from the dead, to be rewarded, or receive partial recompense. There is no intermediate paradise or purgatory, heaven or hell. The living and the dead await the judgment, and the resurrection, and the restitution of all things for reward, "according to the Scriptures." There is now no horrible, burning hell of fire and brimstone in existence, into which the souls of the wicked plunge or fall at death, and are tortured, and wail in despair until the judgment and period of recompense "at the last day." And there never will be one of the description given in sermons of dead or living men, disagreeing with the Scriptures we have quoted, wherein the wicked will be forever alive, and tortured in untold agony and misery infinite and unending ages. This monstrous dogma of Romanism, adopted and baptized by orthodox Christendom, has had its day. "The dark ages" of superstition are passed, and "the true light shineth" through "the Scriptures of truth," given to the world, for common humanity to interpret according to common sense rules and language, without the perverted theology of priests, schooled in the traditions of the heathen world, through scholastic teachers and divines.

The recompense of each class, the righteous and wicked, is now set before us for our choice. Which will we seek? Which strive to attain? Which will finally be awarded us by the coming Judge of all the earth? "Say ye to the righteous, that it shall be well with him; for they shall eat the fruit of their doings. Woe unto the wicked, it shall be ill with him; for the reward of his hands shall be given him." Isa. 3: 10, 11.

MESSIAH, OR ROME: WHICH?

WHO CAUSED THE DAILY SACRIFICE TO CEASE?

"And it [the little horn] waxed great, even to the host of heaven. . . . Yea, he magnified himself even to the prince of the host, and by him the daily sacrifice was taken away. . . . And an host was given him against the daily sacrifice." Daniel 8: 10, 11. "And after threescore and two weeks shall Messiah be cut off. . . . And the people of the prince that shall come shall destroy the city and the sanctuary; . . . and he shall confirm the covenant with many for one week; and in the midst of the week he shall cause the sacrifice and oblation to cease." Dan. 9: 26, 27. How was the new covenant confirmed? By blood, or death. Paul says—"For where a testament [or covenant] is, there must also of a necessity be the death of the testator"; otherwise it is of no force. Death, then, confirmed the new covenant; and it did not take a week of years to kill Christ.

Did Christ take away the daily sacrifice? No. It continued till the destruction of the Jews and their city. Was there a host given Christ against the daily? No. That host attended the Roman prince. Did the Roman prince cause the daily sacrifice to cease? He did. When? In that dreadful week of destroying the city and the sanctuary.

Here is a note from Josephus by Wm. Whitson, A. M. "This was a remarkable day indeed, the seventeenth of Panemus (Tamur), A. D. 70, when, according to Daniel's prediction, six hundred and six years before, the Romans in half a week caused the sacrifice and oblation to cease. Dan. 9: 27." "'And he shall confirm the covenant with many for one week,' that is, of years. . . In the midst of this period, A. D. 70, all Jewish sacrifices ceased forever."—Cottage Bible. And may not Dan. 11: 31 be associated in this same connection? "And arms shall stand on his part, and they shall pollute the sanctuary of strength, and shall take away the daily sacrifice, and place the abomination that maketh desolate." It was not necessary to set up the abomination within thirty years, or five hundred, to fill the prophecy. Who then took away the daily sacrifice? Messiah, or Rome?

H. PRATT.

THE PROPHETIC PERIODS.—No. 1.

J. S. WHITE.

I stated in my reply to Bro. Daniel Churchill's questions, that I could not answer his questions relating to the 1290 days in Dan. 12, without noticing the time, times, and a half," and the 1335 days; but would do so, if requested. He has made the request, and my reply must involve the whole question of the prophetic periods, as I stated to him.

It has been generally supposed that prophetic time differs from all other time. Nearly all the expositors of the Bible that I have seen have taken this view of the subject. And so have all those expositors explained the Bible as if it taught the immortality of the soul of man in his present state; and one may be as correct as the other. The reason they have given for calling a day in prophecy a year, is found in Numbers 14: 34—"Forty days, each day for a year"; and in Ezek. 4: 6—"I have appointed thee each day for a year." Here we have two places in the Bible where a day is made to represent a year. Are we to suppose this to be a rule for understanding all time given in prophecy? It is not given in these places with the least intimation as a rule, but, on the other hand, as an exception to the rule. The fact that in these two places a day is made to represent a year without the least hint of its being a rule, goes to show that God made these cases an exception to the rule for understanding time in prophecy.

In fact, these cases can hardly come under the head of prophecy; but I have admitted they do. If these cases are given for a rule to understand the time given in prophecy, then are we not bound to abide by it, if God has not made an exception to the rule? Why not then say that the time given for the sojourn in Egypt was prophetic time, that is, each day of that time was to represent a year? And so of the seventy years of captivity in Babylon, and of the thousand years in Revelations. These periods are strictly prophetic time.

It may be said that two of these periods have been fulfilled in years. Very well, then they are exceptions to the rule that is claimed. Some say the thousand years are in the past, and have been fulfilled in so many years. If so, then we have another exception to the supposed rule. If a day in prophecy is to be taken for a year, how long is this year; three hundred and sixty or three hundred and sixty-five days? All nations have made their year three hundred and sixty-five days. If the Lord has made three hundred and sixty days to represent a year in prophecy, I find no intimation of it in his Word. But suppose he has, shall we add five days to each of his years when they come to be fulfilled? We have said that a day in prophecy means a year of three hundred and sixty days, and then claimed that this time was or is to be fulfilled in three hundred and sixty-five days. God has given us no such rule. If he means three hundred and sixty days for a year, then I must think he means to have it fulfilled in that time.

The reason given for calling three hundred and sixty days a year in prophecy is, that it is said the waters prevailed upon the earth an hundred and fifty days. Calling thirty days to a month, it would make five months. Gen. 7: 24. This time is not a prophecy. The time was not given to Noah before it was fulfilled. It was about one year from the time it began to rain before the earth was dry, as we find in chapters seven and eight. But here are one hundred and fifty days, which make five months, thirty days to a month. As twelve months, thirty days to a month, make three hundred and sixty days, therefore three hundred and sixty days make a year in prophecy, though the one hundred and fifty days are not a prophecy.

Though it is true that the Jews, and some other nations, in a portion of their time have reckoned thirty days to a month, it is not true that any nation has made twelve times thirty days represent a year. All people have kept their year with the sun as nearly as they could, and have not considered that any time short of three hundred and sixty-five days made a year. If the Jews had reckoned three hundred and sixty days for a year, as they were required to keep their passover once a year, in the spring, each year would have fallen back five days, and so in time it would come in the fall, and their jubilee would have fallen back from the fall to the spring; and so of all their feasts. They made one revolution of the earth around the sun a year, and thus kept all their feasts in the time of the year where God established them.

The Hebrews in the early part of their history had their months and years as in Egypt. Their year consisted of three hundred and sixty-five days. They had twelve months of thirty days each, except the last, which had thirty-five days. They, in the latter part of their history, adopted the Grecian mode of reckoning time, which was to have thirty days for one month, and twenty-nine for the next, and so on for the twelve. This made three hundred and fifty-four days. To bring their time with the sun, once in three years they added a month with days enough in it to make the three years three hundred and sixty-five days each. This number of days falls a little short of a solar year, so that in one hundred and twenty years the year would be about thirty days out of place. It is supposed that the Jews did, as other nations have done, after a long period, add more days to their year. They have always, as I have stated before, kept their year with the sun, as nearly as possible.

The first mention of a year is in Gen. 1: 14—"And God said, Let there be lights in the firmament of heaven to divide the day from the night; and let them be for signs, and for seasons, and for years." The sun marks the day by its rising and going down. It marks the year by leaving a point in the heavens, and coming to the same point again. To do this it must rise and set three hundred and sixty-five times each year. This would make a year as nearly as a day can make it. One revolution of the earth around the sun makes the year, and all people have so considered it since the Lord made the above statement. This is God's law for the year. He has given us no intimation of an exception to this law or rule. Why then say that he means by a year in prophecy three hundred and sixty days? and why say that a day in prophecy is three hundred and sixty days, but when it is fulfilled it is three hundred and sixty-five days? Where has He who made the sun to rule the year, given us any such liberty with his Word? Are we to suppose that when God made the forty days a symbol of forty years to Moses, he meant years of only three hundred and sixty days each? The year with Moses was, on an average, three hundred and sixty-five days from one passover to another. Moses could know nothing of any shorter year.

In the prophecy of Daniel a period of time is first noted in chap. 4: 25. Daniel said to the king—"And they shall make thee to eat grass as oxen, and they shall wet thee with the dew of heaven, and seven times shall pass over thee." That is, he would have seven seasons for eating grass, which would make seven years. This is prophetic time, but not symbolic time. Daniel saw this time fulfilled. This must have been seven years. As God moved Daniel in the forepart of his prophecy to speak of time literally, I cannot believe that he would move Daniel further on in his prophecy, to speak of time symbolically, without telling him so. When Daniel had his visions, as in the seventh and eighth chapters, he took the position, not as an interpreter, but as a learner, as one to be taught. After he had seen the vision of the eighth, he sought for the meaning. He heard a voice which said—"Gabriel, make this man to understand the vision." The vision was partially explained at that time, and the angel left him. In the ninth chapter we have the prayer of Daniel in behalf of his people. The seventy years captivity was on his mind, as we see when he began to pray. He said in his prayer—"Thy city, Jerusalem"; "thy holy mountain"; "thy sanctuary that is desolate"; "for thy people are called by thy name." While he was praying, Gabriel came to him to give him "skill and understanding." "Therefore understand the matter, and consider the vision." He commenced by saying—"Seventy weeks are determined upon thy people and upon thy holy city." Daniel's mind had been on the seventy years of captivity when he commenced praying, and on hearing the angel say seventy weeks, or seventy years, he would at once see that this time was seven times more than the seventy years about which he had been praying; hence it would be seventy sevens of years, i. e., four hundred and ninety years. This is not symbolic, but literal time. A week of years with Daniel was just as literal as a week of days.

The first time "week" is used in the Bible, it was seven years. Gen. 29: 27. It was not used there as a symbol of seven years, but it was seven years. So in Leviticus 25: 8—"And thou shalt number seven sabbaths of years unto thee, seven times seven years; and the space of the seven sabbaths of years shall be unto thee forty and nine years." A sabbath of days was literally seven days, or a week of days, and so was a sabbath of years literally seven years, or a week of years. So by the Lord's arrangement a week of years is as literal as a week of days. The seventy weeks, therefore, are not symbolic, but are literally seventy sabbaths, or seventy weeks of years. This is prophetic time, but it is not symbolic; it is not a less time taken to represent a greater. It is seventy weeks, which are literally four hundred and ninety years, as in Lev. 25 seven weeks were forty-nine years.

As in Daniel, the first time mentioned was literally seven years, so the first time named by Gabriel to Daniel was literally four hundred and ninety years. This is the way all prophecy is explained where God directs the explanation, unless he names it as an exception. How could Ezekiel have known that a day in his case was a symbol for a year? And how could Daniel have known when Gabriel said days, that they were symbols for years, without being told? It is to be borne in mind that Daniel, while Gabriel was before him, was not the teacher, but the pupil, the one to be taught by him who was told to make him understand the vision. If Gabriel had used symbols while making Daniel understand the vision, he must have explained the symbols to him, or Daniel could no more have known what Gabriel meant, than Ezekiel could have known what God meant by the days he was to lie on one side, if God had not said, "I have appointed thee each day for a year."

"Seventy weeks are determined upon thy people." This word in our Bible is by some laid aside, as if it were not the right word to sustain a weak argument, and the words "cut off" have been substituted. If I must go out of our translation to find words to sustain my position, I should think that I had a shaky position, and that it had better shake itself down. But inasmuch as this is done in this case, I shall take the liberty to refer to two or three among the most learned, critical scholars who have given us their criticisms on the book of Daniel.

I refer to Thomas Wintle, B. D., Rector of Brightwell, in Berkshire, and late Fellow of Pembroke College. His critical work on Daniel was printed in London, 1836. After noticing the original word for "determined," in its various bearings in Hebrew, Greek, and Latin, Mr. Wintle says—"In the Chald. Par. on Esther 4: 5, it is rendered decided, and in this sense it is used by the Jews." He further says—"In like view Mr. Godwin translates it cut out, and assigns this reason, because they numbered by cutting notches, which was probably the case in the more early and simple times." Here we have as good authority for "cut out," as we have for "cut off."

We notice that Mr. Wintle has given us the word "decided" for the literal translation, while in our Bible it is "determined." Prof. Stuart in his critical work on Daniel says—"The literal rendering is decided upon." Now what is the difference between decided and determined? They are different words, but they are the same in meaning.

Webster gives one word for the definition of the other in both cases, and makes them mean the same thing. So we gain nothing by substituting another word for "determined," for by the showing of some of the greatest critics, "determined" is the right word. "Seventy weeks are decided or determined upon thy people." As Daniel's people had been in bondage, and their city had lain waste for seventy years, so seven times seventy years were determined upon them and upon their city. In this time several events would take place. This time would begin with the going forth of the commandment to rebuild their city. Their city, and they as a people, would remain to the end of the seventy weeks, or until the people of the prince should destroy their city. This is plainly the import. There is no need of adding on another week, and so make seventy-one weeks, to help Gabriel out with his explanation. In the last week of the seventy, and in the midst of the week, the sacrifice and oblation would cease.

In the midst of the week. This does not mean in the middle of the week necessarily. "Moses went into the midst of the cloud." "Aaron ran into the midst of the congregation." Anywhere in the cloud, and at any point in the congregation would be in the midst. To lie in the midst of the sea might not be in the centre of the sea. So, if the daily sacrifice ceased two days before the week ended, it would be in the midst of the week.

Suppose it is admitted that the word "determined" should be "cut off," it would not follow that the seventy weeks are "cut off" of the 2300 days. This is assumed, not proved. Gabriel, who made Daniel understand the vision, did not say so. Nothing short of his saying so is proof. First prove that these weeks are cut off from the 2300 days, then it will be time to say that "we cannot cut off four hundred and ninety years from 2300 literal days, any more than we can cut off four hundred and ninety miles from two thousand three hundred inches." Suppose we should say that these miles must be cut off from these inches, then all we should have to do would be to say that these inches are miles, and then we could cut them off. First assume a thing, and then say it is a fact, and then argue from the fact that such must be the result. This is begging the question to reach a conclusion. It is assuming the thing that must be proved, before we can come to conclusions. Shall we say that Gabriel said, these weeks are "cut off" from these days, and then say that these days are years, so that they can be "cut off"? Had we not better wait until the Lord says the 2300 days are years, or until Gabriel says the four hundred and ninety years are "cut off" from these days, even though we cannot know all we would like to know without correcting the Lord in his word? If we say "cut off," or "cut out," or marked off from one point to another time that was to come, in which certain things were to be done, it would be strictly true, though no reference were made to the 2300 days.

The plain import of the statement is this—seventy weeks were "determined or decided" upon Daniel's people, and upon their holy city, for their continuance as a people or nation, and for the continuance of Jerusalem as the capital of their government from the time the order should be given for rebuilding the city.

THE AGE OF METHUSELAH.

L. T. CUNNINGHAM.

A correspondent intimates in writing to me that there is a mistake in the age of Methuselah, after reading my article in the Crisis for Feb. 21st, on Chronology. He might as well ask if there is not a mistake in the age of Adam, or Seth, and so on to Noah; and then how do we know that Noah was nine hundred and fifty years old when he died? His difficulty seems to be chiefly from the statement in Gen. 9: 28 that Noah lived three hundred and fifty years after the flood, therefore he could have been no more than six hundred years old at the end of the flood. I thought I made the matter plain enough in the article referred to, but we will repeat.

Gen. 6: 7—"And Noah was six hundred years old when the flood of waters was upon the earth." This language either means that Noah was six hundred years old at the commencement of the flood or at its termination. We understand this language refers to the commencement of the flood, and for proof we refer the brother to verse tenth—"And it came to pass after seven days [or on the seventh day, Mar.], that the waters of the flood were upon the earth." According to this explanation in the tenth verse, the waters were regarded as upon the earth the first day that it commenced to rain. And so the statement in Gen. 9: 28, that Noah lived three hundred and fifty years after the flood means three hundred and fifty years after it commenced to rain, and not three hundred and fifty years after the earth was dried.

It may again be asked why the seeming discrepancy between the sixth verse and the thirteenth? We do not think there is any real discrepancy. The original term "hundred" is translated between five and six hundred times in our version, and expresses the definite period of one hundred. So that when we read that Noah was six hundred years old, it means he was not any less than six hundred. And if our translators have used the term hundredth, it does not change the meaning of the Hebrew word, that never means less than a hundred, to make it mean ninety-nine.

I see some talk about fractions of years in the genealogy from Adam to the flood. But I do not see any chance for fractions of years. We read (Gen. 5: 3)—"And Adam lived one hundred and thirty years and begat a son . . . and called his name Seth." God reckons the life of men from the time they were begotten, and not from the time they are born into the world. From these considerations we see there can be no mistakes made in the ages of the patriarchs before the flood. Therefore there were 1656 years that elapsed from Adam to the flood.

THE GRACE THAT PINCHES.

The prevailing sin of the day is self-indulgence. It is eating like a canker into the life of many of our churches. It leaves Christ's ministers to address empty pews on unpleasant Sabbaths. It robs Christ's treasury to keep up a showy "turn-out." If it hangs a bough of profession over on the church-side of the dividing wall, yet its roots are deep down in the soil of the world. It is often ready to deny Christ—but seldom ready to deny itself.

The most unpopular doctrine to preach in these times, and the hardest one to practice, is the old-fashioned apostolic doctrine of self-denial. This is the grace that pinches. The daily battle of christian principle is with that artful, subtle, greedy sinner, self. And the highest victory of our religion is to follow Jesus over the rugged path of self-denial. This is mainly to be done in the little every-day acts of life. The great occasions that demand sublime sacrifice are few and rare.

The christian who suppresses a jest or a witticism, because it would burlesque his religion, practices self-denial. When he speaks out a bold but unpopular word for the right—in fashionable society—he is really taking up a cross for his Master. All genuine acts of philanthropy are born of the noble principle to deny self, and to honor Christ in the persons of those for whom Christ suffered.

The mission-school teacher who sallies off in the driving storm to carry his gospel loaf to a group of hungry children, is an example of this. "Why should I sit by the warm fire on my sofa to-day? Christ will look for me among my class." The seamstress who drops her hard-earned dollar into the memorial fund collection is really enthroning her Savior above herself. Those educated northern girls who went south to teach ragged freedmen their alphabet and the Bible, are truer ladies in God's sight than all the self-pampering belles who air their fineries on Fifth or Wabash Avenue.

We can not emphasize too strongly this grace which pinches selfishness. I care not how orthodox is a man's creed, or how eloquent may be his prayers in public, if he has never learned to say "no" to the demands of fashion, and pride, and luxury, he is but a sorry specimen of the Christ-man.

What a touching lesson of self-denial we behold in every crutch and in "every sleeve" of those heroes in blue whom we meet yet on all our public thoroughfares! These noble men counted not their limbs dear, if only the nation might be saved, and freedom might triumph. Yet there are thousands of professed christians who are unwilling to deny themselves the paltry gratification of a glass of wine or ale in order to help the sentiment of total abstinence to become popular, or to aid in saving the "weak brother who stumbleth." They know they are setting a bad example when they use or offer the poison cup. They know that they are throwing their influence on the side of the tipplers. Yet because it is "genteel" to partake of wine or punch, they do not hesitate to "take a drop" in the social circle. Perhaps they thrust the decanter before some weak, temptable friend, to his everlasting damnation! If the drunkard shall "not inherit the kingdom of heaven," what right has a professed christian to ask to be admitted to heaven if he has helped to make a drunkard of his neighbor? I fear that God will say to the "pious" tempter—"That man's blood will I require at thy hands." Paul acted with a truer spirit of Christ when he uttered the noble precept, "It is good not to drink wine whereby my brother stumbleth."

Brethren! Let us pray for the grace that pinches. If it "goes against the grain," all the better. If it wounds our pride, so much the better. If it makes us look "singular," let us remember that we are commanded to be a "peculiar people," and not to look like the votaries of Satan. Brave old Dr. Wisner was once the most singular man in the village of Ithaca. He dared to stand alone. He was ever ready to testify on the Lord's side, on which he had planted himself so valiantly.

Oh! for a new baptism of self-denial! Oh! for a new training in that lesson which our dying Master taught us—which apostles and martyrs echoed from the prison cells, and kindled stakes—the sublime lesson that,

"Not to ourselves alone,
Not to the flesh we'll live,
Not to the world henceforth shall we
Our strength and being give!"

— Places of difficulty prove man's weakness and want; but they are made great blessings when the Lord comes into them to supply all that is wanting in the riches of his great love.

The World's Crisis
AND
SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.
Boston, Wednesday, March 20, 1872.

☞ Please Remember!

☞ All remittances to this office, in the form of Drafts, Bank Checks, and Postal Money-Orders, should be made payable to the Business Agent, GEO. T. ADAMS.

☞ THOSE who send articles for the Crisis, should direct them to MILES GRANT, Boston, and not to the Business Agent.

"THE WORLD'S CRISIS."

REDUCTION OF ITS SUBSCRIPTION PRICE.

At a meeting of the Advent Christian Publication Society, held August 23d, 1872; it was voted as follows:—

"That at any time during the year, if in the judgment of the Editor, Editorial Committee, and Business Agent, they see fit to reduce the price of subscription for the World's Crisis, they be authorized to do so."

It was stated in our last annual report, that if our subscribers all paid up promptly, the Society would be able to reduce the price of "our paper" to $2.00 per year. Independent of the names on our free list, $2.00 from each subscriber would give us a larger sum than we have ever received in any one year for the Crisis. This would enable us to continue the paper, as before, to the worthy on our free list, and pay all our bills promptly. We have been making special efforts to collect the dues on the paper, and have met with some success, yet not so full as we ought.

In accordance with the above vote, we have now decided to reduce the subscription price of

THE WORLD'S CRISIS,
Commencing with Volume XXXV.,
April 3d, 1872, to
$2.00 PER YEAR, Payable in Advance.

In remitting, our subscribers will please send for what they are owing, at the rate of $2.50 per year, to April 3d; $2.00, and at the same rate, for less than a year for the issue from that time forward.

As our price will be less, our friends will see that in order for our receipts to hold good, the number of paying subscribers must be increased; while the number of non-paying ones is diminished. Now we hope this may be accomplished; first, by an earnest, united, successful effort on the part of the friends of the Crisis in procuring and sending to the Office the names of a large number of new subscribers. Second, that a large number whose names have been on our books for years—delinquents, who have not paid any thing for a long time, will now at once write us, remitting a part, at least, of what they are owing, and paying for a year in advance, and thus become paying subscribers in fact, while for a long time they have been only such in name; otherwise, if we do not hear from them, we shall be compelled to drop their names from our list.

In regard to our free list, we would say—We hope that our receipts may be kept good as above, so that the Society may be able to continue the paper to the worthy poor among us, many of whom are in very destitute circumstances, and who should receive the Crisis freely so long as published. Yet it may be that there are some on the free list who are able to pay something. We trust they will do as the Lord would have them, but let none of the poor distress themselves. We believe the friends will see that we have funds to continue the paper to you as heretofore. Now is a good time for those who remit for themselves to put in something for the "poor fund." Those who are free to remit $2.50, as usual, can do so, and we will place the extra 50 cents on the fund to send the Crisis to the poor, free.

We doubt not the reduction will please our friends everywhere, and we hope they will sustain us in the same by their efforts and prayers.

GEO. T. ADAMS,
Business Agent.

SAN FRANCISCO DISCUSSION.

Our discussion of the Sabbath question with Elder M. E. Cornell, in San Francisco, closed last evening (March 5th), after eight sessions of two hours each. We began Monday evening, Feb. 26th, and debated every evening excepting Sunday. The first two evenings we met in a Presbyterian house on Harrison street, but the place was found two small, and we removed to our chapel, on Mission street, between Fourth and Fifth streets, opposite the New Mint. Great interest was manifested in the discussion by intelligent audiences, made up of members of the various churches, and those who had not given their hearts to the Lord. During last summer, Elders Cornell, Loughborough, and Kellogg, held tent meetings for some months, and persuaded quite a number to keep the seventh-day Sabbath—our Saturday. They also taught that "the mark of the beast" (Rev. 14: 9) consisted in Sunday keeping. At one time a large portion of the church was on the point of accepting the views of these preachers; but they said some things that opened the eyes of many, and led them to think it best to be cautious about taking further steps; and after a careful examination of the subject, they came to the conclusion that the Lord did not wish them to go back to Moses, but to continue to follow Christ, and be his disciples. Others, equally sincere, continued to attend the meetings, and began to keep the seventh-day Sabbath; but, after a little experience, became satisfied that it was a self-imposed yoke of bondage, not required by Christ. They returned to observe the Lord's day, and were sweetly blest. Besides these, there were others just as sincere, who were fully persuaded that it was their duty to observe the seventh day as the Sabbath, and who still endeavor to keep that day. Of course this resulted in a very unfortunate division of the church. Much effort was made, by the circulation of tracts and conversation, to turn others into the observance of the day. Many were quite unsettled in their minds, and felt much perplexed about the matter. They wished to be right and do right in the sight of the Lord. Their condition of mind on this subject was quite unpleasant, and served to mar their christian peace.

On our arrival upon the Pacific coast, we found this state of things. Some urged us to preach on the subject, but we did not feel it to be duty then. We visited our Brn. and Srs. who had adopted the new views on the Sabbath question and received a kind greeting. Several of them attended our meetings, but their preacher desired them not to take a part in the exercises; but some disregarded his request, and were blest, besides affording efficient help to others. We had several private interviews with those who had fully adopted the seventh-day Sabbath, and gave them some reasons why we did not believe that day was binding upon those under the new covenant of grace. Some began to express a wish for a public discussion of the subject, that both sides might be heard and compared together. At length Eld. Cornell sent us the following note:—

Elder Miles Grant:—Dear Sir,—"After waiting several days to see if you would accept my verbal invitation to discuss the Sabbath question—supposing that my proposition was sufficiently bold and pointed—I now learn by statement of Eld. Johnston, of Santa Rosa, that you intimated to him that 'you had heard nothing about a discussion with me; also that some of your people have stated emphatically that 'Eld. Cornell dare not meet Bro. Grant on that question.' I am constrained to make my proposition in plain and unmistakable language. I do, therefore, now and hereby propose to meet you in oral debate, in this city, and to affirm the following proposition:—

Resolved, That the Sabbath of the fourth commandment of the decalogue is now binding upon mankind.

Our congregation this day voted unanimously in favor of the discussion.

Respectfully yours for the whole truth,
M. E. CORNELL."

After praying over the subject, we felt assured it was the Lord's will that we should accept the challenge, and announced accordingly. Some friends were grieved because we accepted, thinking no good results would follow. We were fully persuaded to the contrary, and do not know of one now who does not believe that the discussion has resulted in great good. The friends of the Lord's day are exceedingly jubilant over the results. We should feel paid for our trip to California if we saw no other fruits of our labors than what has resulted from our discussion. Some who had been perplexed with doubts on the subject are now most delightfully satisfied, and resting calmly in the blessings and seal of the New Covenant. The Lord gave us great help. To him be all the glory.

There are but few men, if any, who are so well prepared to discuss the subject as Elder Cornell. When he is not able to sustain the seventh-day Sabbath in debate, we think it would not be wise for others to make the attempt. He has made it a special subject of study for many years, has engaged in a large number of debates, and is perfectly familiar with the common objections to his positions. We found him fully and confidently prepared for this discussion. It was felt by all interested that the debate would be something more than boys' play. If, as he and his friends expected, he should succeed in convincing the people that all christians should keep the Sabbath of the Jewish church, then a large accession would be made to the seventh-day church, not only in San Francisco, but in other parts of the State. Several had been named who were partially convinced that the seventh-day Sabbath is now binding, whom it was expected would be brought into it fully by the debate; but instead of that, so far as we know, every one of them became fully settled in favor of the Lord's day.

Some of our leading points were the following: 1. The first covenant, the old covenant, and the decalogue, are one and the same. Eld. C. denied that the old covenant was the decalogue, and said if we could prove it "the question is settled." The following is some of our proof presented—"In that he saith, A new covenant, he hath made the first old." Heb. 8: 13. This passage proves that the "first" is the one that became the "old" one. The "first" implies a second; and as the "first" is the "old," the second must be the new. In Paul's letter to the Galatians, when speaking of "the two covenants," he says of the first, it was from the Mount Sinai, and "gendereth to bondage." Gal. 4: 24. We turn to Deut. 4: 13, and read—"He declared unto you his covenant, which he commanded you to perform, even ten commandments; and he wrote them upon two tables of stone." This first covenant was kept in the ark, called "the ark of the covenant." Deut. 10: 8. Turning to 1 Kings 8: 9, we read—"There was nothing in the ark save the two tables of stone, which Moses put there at Horeb, when the Lord made a covenant with the children of Israel, when they came out of Egypt." Again we read—"And the Lord said unto Moses, Write thou these words; for after the tenor of these words I have made a covenant with thee and with Israel. . . . And he wrote upon the tables the words of the covenant, the ten commandments." Ex. 34: 27, 28.

When referring to the decalogue in Deut. 5, Moses says—"These words the Lord spake unto all your assembly in the mount, out of the midst of the fire, of the cloud, and of the thick darkness, with a great voice; and he added no more. And he wrote them in two tables of stone, and delivered them unto me." Deut. 5: 22. With all this plain, positive testimony before him, Eld. C. was unwilling to admit the ten commandments were the old, or first covenant; but claimed the first covenant consisted in an agreement concerning the decalogue. He admitted in the early part of the debate that the old covenant was abolished; and then saw that if he acknowledged that the ten commandments constituted the old covenant, and was abolished, of course the Sabbath must be abolished, and is not binding now, unless found enjoined in the new covenant. As he could find no place in the new covenant, or testament, where we are required to keep the seventh-day Sabbath, of course he could not prove it is binding now but by claiming that the abolished covenant was not the decalogue. His attempt to sustain his position on this point was a most signal failure. The Bible stood against him as would the rock Gibraltar against a boy's pop-gun.

Paul says Christ was a "mediator of a better covenant, which was established upon better promises. For if that first covenant had been faultless, there should no place have been sought for the second." Heb. 8: 6, 7. We showed that the first covenant was only with the Hebrews, and related only to temporal things. One might keep the entire decalogue and be lost. This was admitted by Eld. C. It required no change of heart to receive the benefits of the old covenant; but no one could have the blessings of the new covenant without such a change. Paul says, "And for this cause he [Christ] is the Mediator of the new testament [covenant], that by means of death for the redemption of the transgressions that were under the first testament [covenant], they which are called might receive the promise of eternal life."—Heb. 9: 15. This and other passages show that the new covenant reached backward to those under the first, or old covenant, as well as forward to those who should live in other generations; but was not confirmed till the death of Christ.

The first covenant said nothing against pride, hatred, variance, wrath, strife, envy, witchcraft, heresy, drunkenness, revelry, sedition, impatience, backbiting, evil speaking, evil imaginations, and many other things forbidden in the new covenant. As the old covenant was a national one, of course it would not require what a moral man, in his natural state, could not perform. This first covenant was not binding on any nation but the Hebrews; therefore its Sabbath is not binding upon those under the new covenant, unless it is therein enjoined, which is not the case. As the Sabbath of the old covenant was one of the feast days, it could not be a moral precept. All feast days and ordinances connected with the old covenant expired at the Cross, when Christ confirmed the new covenant with his own blood.

In Lev. 23: 1–6, we read—"And the Lord spake unto Moses saying, Speak unto the children of Israel, and say unto them, Concerning the feasts of the Lord, which ye shall proclaim to be holy convocations, even these are my feasts. Six days shall work be done; but the seventh day is the Sabbath of rest, a holy convocation; ye shall do no work therein; it is the Sabbath of the Lord in all your dwellings. These are the feasts of the Lord, even holy convocations, which ye shall proclaim in their seasons. In the fourteenth day of the first month at even is the Lord's passover. And on the fifteenth day of the same month is the feast of unleavened bread unto the Lord; seven days ye must eat unleavened bread."

Here is positive proof that the seventh-day Sabbath, following the "six days" of labor, is one of "the feasts of the Lord"; but no more so than is the feast of the passover, the feast of Pentecost, and the feast of tabernacles. They were all "the feasts of the Lord." In the fifth chapter of Deuteronomy, after giving the commandment in relation to the Sabbath in verses 12–14, the Lord says in the fifteenth verse—"And remember that thou wast a servant in the land of Egypt, and that the Lord brought thee out thence through a mighty hand and by a stretched out arm; therefore the Lord thy God commanded thee to keep the Sabbath day." This reason could not apply to any other nation but the Hebrews; because no other nation was thus brought out of Egypt.

VALLEJO, CALIFORNIA.

The church in Vallejo is doing well under the labors of Bro. and Sr. Fassett. A new chapel is being built, which it is purposed to have ready for occupation in some three weeks. A good lot has been given on Capitol Hill, which will afford a pleasant location for the house. Persons outside of the church are manifesting considerable sympathy in favor of its success. The people begin to see the difference between theological opinions and the plain statements of the Bible. Some have finally discovered that when they supposed they were opposing the Scriptures, they were opposing theological dogmas not found in the Bible. They have been fed on the husks of fables till they became disgusted and turned away from every thing of a religious character, feeling sad at the seeming necessity for such a step; but now they begin to perceive that the fault was not in the Bible, but in the theology of those who assumed to tell what the Scriptures mean when they do not mean what they say.

We are more and more convinced that one great cause of the infidelity at the present time lies in the false theology that has been adopted and taught. We believe it is impossible to make it harmonize with the plain teachings of the Scriptures.

REMOVAL.—We see by the A. C. Times of March 12th, that its Office and the Western Publishing interests are hereafter to be located in Chicago. The next issue of the paper may be expected to hail from that city. The printing office will be located at Norwood Park, several miles out of the city, but of easy access to it; while the Business and Book and Tract Offices will be in Chicago proper. The Editor's address hereafter will be, Chicago, Ill.

"MAN NOT IMMORTAL: A Review of 'Rev.' N. D. George on Annihilation."

This is the title of a new work by Bro. Leonard C. Thorne, Editor of the Herald of Life. It contains 275 pp., and should be read by all who have read the work of which it is a review. It is written in a kind spirit, and we think it a successful effort.

CHRIST'S RESURRECTION.

The admission of Christ's resurrection, ultimates in the invalidation of the doctrine of reward at death; and the denial of his resurrection is equivalent to a denial of Christianity; so much depends upon the doctrine of Christ's resurrection.

I. THE ADMISSION. When it is admitted that Christ was literally raised from the dead, that admission involves (1) a future resurrection of the saints, "for if the dead rise not, then is not Christ raised"; (2) it involves a literal resurrection of the saints, as Christ "became the first fruits of them that slept," by his resurrection—that is, the sample; (3) while dead they are unjudged, for death must deliver up the dead to be "judged" (Rev. 20; 12, 13); and consequently as long as they remain dead they remain unjudged, or the judgment execution is not realized for weal or woe. And (4) while unjudged they are certainly unrewarded, for reason teaches us that reward is the result of judgment; and revelation teaches the same thing, for we are told that the sounding of the seventh trumpet will bring "the time of the dead that they should be judged, and that [God] should give reward unto his servants the prophets, and to the saints." Rev. 11; 18.

Here is a chain of successive links, beginning with the resurrection of Christ; and the admission of that as a literal event, involves the other links. If Christ was raised from the dead, so will the saints be; if his resurrection was literal so will theirs be; till they are raised they must remain unjudged, and while unjudged, they remain unrewarded; so the admission of Christ's resurrection invalidates the doctrine of reward at death, when carried from premise to conclusion.

II. THE DENIAL. The repudiation of the literal resurrection of Christ is disastrous in its results, for "if Christ be not raised, your faith is vain (1 Cor. 15: 17), and this resurrection cannot signify a spiritual resurrection without making Christ's death spiritual also, thus involving the blasphemous idea that Christ was once a sinner, or "dead in trespasses and sins"; and as certainly as Christ was literally dead, he was literally "raised" from the dead: so a denial of the literal resurrection of Christ involves a repudiation of Christianity—"your faith is vain"—and who can discard the resurrection of Christ at such a sacrifice? To deny it, is to deny Christianity; to own it is to give up the doctrine of reward at death. Which shall be given up by theologians—Christianity, or the long-cherished theory of a reward before the resurrection? Let theology go, and hold on to Christ and the resurrection.

W. S.

THE DEPARTED DEAD.

1. Where are they? The Old Testament scriptures represent them as being in sheol; and the New Testament scriptures represent them as being in hades, the Greek hades being identical with the Hebrew sheol.

2. Are they conscious there? "There is no work, nor device, nor knowledge, nor wisdom, in sheol" (Eccl. 9: 10); so whatever part of man enters sheol, whether soul or body, becomes unconscious, being deprived of "knowledge" and "wisdom." If sheol is really a realm for disembodied souls, as some contend, with one department for good souls, and another department for bad souls, instead of being the receptacle for material man when dead, regardless of character, then these souls must there be void of consciousness, involving the ludicrous idea of unconscious disembodied souls, or disembodied unconsciousness.

3. Are they rewarded there? No; for they are unjudged while there, and reward comes after judgment: "And death and hell [hades] delivered up the dead which were in them: and they were judged." Rev. 20: 13. Not only are they unjudged while in hades or sheol, but they are also "dead" while there; so if it is the receptical of disembodied souls they must be dead souls. And certainly souls that are unjudged and "dead," cannot be rewarded.

Hades, or sheol, must deliver up its inmates before they are judged; and after "the time of the dead that they should be judged" comes, then God will "give reward unto his servants the prophets, and the saints" (Rev. 11: 18), and not before. If the occupants of sheol are unrewarded, unjudged and unconscious, they cannot be in misery or happiness.

ARE WE AWAKE?

We profess to "see the day approaching"—the day of destiny for weal or woe—the day that shall usher the saints into their long-promised rest, and engulf the wicked in irretrievable perdition. The fulfillment of prophecy so clearly indicates our proximity to the day of judgment, we are forced to believe that the day of doom is dawning.

But in view of this solemn conclusion, we cannot refrain from inquiring—Are we awake to the responsibilities that devolve upon us? Are we doing all that God would have us do, to reach and arouse the perishing?

It will avail but little to set up the claim in self-justification, that we are doing more than other religious societies around us, who are destitute of this prophetic light; for instead of inquiring whether we are doing as much as others who are asleep or inactive, we ought rather to inquire, Are we doing all that God would be pleased to have us do? Are we doing all that we can—not all that we can in our own strength, but with the help of the Lord?

If we would work to God's glory, we must be wide awake to the truth of coming judgment. Are we awake? "Let us not sleep as do others," but sound the alarm faithfully, and "give the trumpet a certain sound"—a distinctive sound.

A SPIRITUAL KINGDOM.

Among the various efforts to prove the setting up of the kingdom of God at the first advent, the following proof is among the strongest adduced—"The kingdom of God is . . . righteousness, peace, and joy in the Holy Ghost." Rom. 14: 17. But this utterly fails to prove the doctrine; for this text simply gives the characteristics of the kingdom; it simply affirms that the divine kingdom is a kingdom of righteousness, peace, and joy; but it does not affirm that righteousness, peace, and joy is itself the kingdom.

When we read "God is love," should we regard that statement as proof that love is God, and forthwith affirm that love is all the God there is? No; the simple thought is this; love is a characteristic of God; so when we read that the kingdom is "righteousness, peace, and joy," we simply have the characteristic of the kingdom given; and it is just as foolish to insist that this characteristic is itself the veritable kingdom, as to insist that love is itself the very God.

We must here possess the characteristic of the kingdom in order to enjoy it hereafter. But even if "righteousness, peace, and joy" were recognized as the kingdom itself, instead of a characteristic of it, the text would not prove the setting up of the kingdom at the first advent, for these elements existed in the hearts of the saints long before Christ came. This proves too much for our friends.

THE TRACT FUND.

The Advent Christian Publication Society, at a meeting on Springfield Camp-ground, August 23d, 1871, voted to raise Two Thousand Dollars for the free distribution of Tracts the ensuing year; and they invite the help and co-operation of all lovers of the Lord and of his truth, in the furtherance of the good cause. The times are ominous of coming events, and admonish us to diligence in the Master's work. The Lord is at the door, and what we do must be done quickly. Let the contributions be prompt, hearty, and liberal. The Lord will reward the liberal giver.

SECOND REPORT.

Brn. of the A. A. Mission Society:—In making this my second report of the Mission, I would just state that I have been somewhat hindered in my work in consequence of the long and intensely cold winter (we have had nothing like it for many years in this State); notwithstanding, I try to preach every Sunday somewhere, and visit from house to house, talking and praying with the people, and distributing tracts and papers, all on religious subjects; and, glory to Jesus! I see the fruit unto holiness springing up all around. O may it culminate in eternal life! Amen.

During the past quarter fourteen have cast in their lot among us. We now number on this Mission sixty-five members, as substantial men and women as this county affords, all of whom have renounced the heathen dogma of immortal-soulism, and believe our life here, and immortality at a literal resurrection hereafter, depend entirely on the redemption which is in Christ Jesus our Lord. I have had many pressing calls to visit distant points in the State, which I hope Providence will open my way to respond to at no distant day; I have sent a number of our works on the life and death question to Georgia, Alabama, and Arkansas, and I have constant applications for them throughout this entire section. I hope the Board and private friends will continue to furnish me with these publications, from time to time, as they may be able, and so much the more as they see the day of our Lord approaching; for we may have very little time left us for this godly work. Who will supply this field with a goodly number of Constable's work?

I sincerely desire an interest in the prayers of all the Lord's people, that I may have constant peace and love in my soul, and that the rest of my days may be devoted to preaching the gospel of this kingdom. Your brother in Christ Jesus,

PEYTON G. BOWMAN,
Lydia, S. C., Mar. 4th, 1872. Missionary.

WORKING AND WATCHING.

I. C. WELLCOME.

While we are obliged to wait the Lord's time to give the crown of life to his people, there is an abundance to do in his cause, which, if heartily done, will keep us from sleeping. Those who "slumber and sleep" in these days, must be sick or "drugged." Since returning from the West we find the calls for preaching on the increase, and new doors constantly opening; yet far more good can be accomplished in the West than in the East, we think.

We have spent several Sundays in Lewiston, Me., and find the few who are always at work for the Lord, wide awake, although evils exist which have almost disheartened some, and perplexed others; but light and truth spread among the people, greatly against the will of the devil and his servants.

We have spent several Sundays in Bath. There the cause is onward; though few in numbers, they are not asleep, nor discouraged. They are confident Jesus is coming soon, and their influence is felt for good in all the city. New strength is given them by members of other churches who have embraced the hope, and aid in the work of publishing it. They are making a move to build a larger house of worship; they need it, and the Lord will bless them in this work also.

Spent two evenings in Brewer, and preached the word to a living company of those who love Jesus and are watching for his return. They have had trials, but the Lord is blessing them and adding faithful ones to their company.

At Levant we had an excellent conference. The Lord blessed the effort, and his people fed upon the bread of life and rejoiced in the Lord and in the hope of his soon coming. Some were brought back from their wanderings, and great solemnity rested on the unconverted. Other denominations came in and worked. Bro. Tozier was with us, filled with the gospel of the kingdom, which he preached. Bro. F. A. Baker resides here, and preaches to the community half the time, and is highly esteemed by them; even the enemies of the truth he preaches claim that he is a faithful christian man. But we find in several parts of the State the devil's "black-mail" has been carried round, and cheap gossip delivered in some places where it did not take. The mail carrier gets no fee there again.

One evening at Belgrade, preached the word to an attentive congregation; but few here who look for the Lord. One brother had been trying to preach the law—the old covenant—several evenings to that people, apparently without any success. The gospel of Christ will do better. Spent one Sunday in Rome. It was a very cold day, and the house not fit to occupy; but few out to hear. Bro. and Sr. Martin were yet alive in the cause of Christ, and their youngest daughter has found the Lord.

At Vienna (Brick Chapel) where Bro. H. B. Sevey resides, preached four evenings to good ears, and some good hearts. It was a joyous time among the saints. Several in the place look for Jesus soon. They are awake and watching. Some who have been asleep are awaking. Bro. Sevey was with us, and worked.

At Manchester, N. H., the cause of Christ has taken a new and healthful start. We spent one Sunday with them, and the Lord gave us a good time in his work. At Lawrence, Mass., we spent one Sunday, and found it easy preaching to a full house. Some are awake and at work. We spent two evenings in So. Livermore. Here some are at work and keep awake. Went to Hartford (Town Hall), with Bro. E. M. Haggett; a new congregation, nearly all unconverted. They had asked us to come, and wanted to hear what we preached. The Lord gave us a free time and the ears of the community, while we gave them five discourses—the best portions of the gospel for these times. Great seriousness and solemnity prevailed. One spiritualist doctor took great exceptions to our allusions to his ancestors (the witches and necromancers of former days), and challenged discussion; but we had better work to do.

Spent two evenings with the little church at East Hartford, and one in Sumner. These brethren and sisters are working, and consequently are awake; working for the Lord, I mean. We found them glad to hear the Word, and ready to witness to it. Several of them came four and five miles to help us in our new field, and then gave us enough to pay our expenses while we were preaching to those who could not be expected to give "in the regions beyond."

Stark is like Athens in the days of Paul. See Acts 17: 21. Bro. Haggett took me there with some doubt about getting a hearing, as the roads were bad, deep snow, cold weather. But notwithstanding two sects seemed to do what they could to empty the village by carrying the people off to other towns, we had a large and very attentive congregation to whom we preached, as in every place, the last day message. There are some in that place who love it and are at work for the Lord; others hate it, and are asleep and dreaming of the world's conversion.

Visited Kennebunkport and spent one Sunday. Found a few who have re-considered, and decided they must work or sleep, and, with Bro. W. H. Mitchell's help, who is always at work, decided to begin meetings once more. Some are active. May the Lord awaken others.

One Sunday in Portland. Had a good day. There are many who watch for the Lord. Some faithful working ones, others asleep. At noon attended the funeral services of Bro. Geo. Colly's youngest child, who was cut down in its infancy. Death visits us all.

THE COVENANT.

M. E. GREEN.

"And he shall confirm the covenant with many for one week." Dan. 9: 27.

What covenant is here referred to? It is assumed that it refers to a covenant made with the Israelites in Deuteronomy eleventh and twenty-ninth chapters. In the first verse of the twenty-ninth chapter we read—"These are the words of the covenant which the Lord commanded Moses to make with the children of Israel in the land of Moab, besides the covenant which he made with them in Horeb." We find that this covenant was confirmed the very day it was made. He gathered all Israel together and said—"That thou shouldest enter into covenant with the Lord thy God and into his oath which the Lord thy God maketh with thee this day, that he establish thee to-day for a people unto himself." We see from this that this covenant was confirmed by an oath by God and the Israelites. Paul says in speaking of a covenant—"For men verily swear by the greater, and an oath for confirmation is to them an end of all strife." Surely, when God who cannot lie takes an oath it should be an "end of all strife," and therefore we should not look farther for any confirmation of this covenant. For God to confirm his word is not confirming a covenant, as we read in Daniel 9: 12—"And he hath confirmed his words which he spake against us."

Moses told them that they would break the covenant which he made with them (chap. 31: 16). Suppose we admit that God confirmed this covenant by fulfilling the promises. Was it not equally confirmed by bringing them into the land and blessing them, as it would be to curse them and bring the calamities upon them? God blessed them abundantly. Please read Ezek. 16, and see what glory God bestowed upon them. The Israelites were seven times taken into captivity, including the captivity under the Romans. God said he would punish them seven times. Leviticus 26: 24. If that is confirming the covenant, then the covenant was confirmed seven times, and not only once, by being made desolate by the Romans.

It may be said that this war was more severe than any other. This is certainly a mistake. When they were besieged by the Babylonians their sacrifices ceased and their straits were greater in the seige. They ate their sons and daughters, and friends. See Jer. 19 and 20. Even before that they ate their sons in a seige See 2 Kings 6: 28, 29. They did no more in the seige by the Romans, as we learn by Josephus. One woman only killed and roasted her son, and ate the half of him. I am aware that Josephus says "no history" relates such a thing before. It is evident that he was not posted in history or he would not have made the assertion. If he had consulted Jeremiah or the history of the Kings, as recorded in the Bible, he would have been informed.

If confirming a covenant is to fulfill it, then neither Abraham, Isaac, nor Jacob, will be sure that God will fulfill his covenant, until they are raised from the dead and brought into the promised inheritance. The argument is untenable that supposes that God fulfilling his word or "confirming his word" is confirming the covenant which was confirmed by an oath before by Him that cannot lie.

There is one point yet to be examined. "And he [the Roman prince] shall confirm the covenant with many for one week." The word "confirm" is not rightly translated. According to Prof. Pick, the Hebrew word govar, here translated "confirm," is "overpower." It occurs about twenty-three times in the Bible, and is rendered in Job 36: 9—"Exceeded," and in Zech. 10: 6, 12—"strength." In 2 Samuel 1: 23—"stranger;" in Jer. 9: 3, "valiant;" and sixteen times it is translated "prevail," or "prevailed." It is nowhere translated (except in Daniel 9: 27) confirmed. The word "confirmed" as given by Pick is koom, and is the same word that is translated in Daniel 9: 12, "confirmed." This is not the first word in this chapter that is translated wrong.

In the twenty-fourth verse the word "determined" when properly translated means "cut off," or "cut asunder." In the revision of King James' translation, by biblical scholars in 1842, it reads—"And he shall make a firm covenant with many for one week." Anthony Purver, in his translation of the Bible, renders it "strong." I will give his translation of the twenty-fifth verse to the end of the chapter—"So thou art to know and consider that from the coming out of the commission to restore and build Jerusalem, to Messiah the ruler, will be seven sevens and sixty-two sevens; the streets and ditches will be restored and built also in the shortest of the time. After those sixty-two sevens the Messiah will be cut off, though not for himself (and the ruler's people that shall come, will destroy the city and sanctuary, whose end will be with a flood; and till the end of the war there will be what is determined of desolations.) However he will make the covenant strong to many in the one seven, in the half of which he will abolish the sacrifice and offering, making desolate afterward by reason of the overspreading of the abominations, even till the consummation and that which is determined is poured out upon the desolate."

One thing to be noticed in this translation is, that from the cutting off of the Messiah to the making of the covenant is put in parenthesis, which shows that the "he will make the covenant strong to many in the one seven," was the Messiah that was cut off. I could give many translations which render the word "confirm" in keeping with the rendering of Prof. Pick. In fact, all that I have consulted render it the same in purport. There is no other rendering that can be given, if the original meaning of the word govar is properly rendered. Instead of "confirming the covenant," it is making a "firm" or "strong covenant with many for one week; a covenant that cannot be altered, because the testator is dead after it is made; as Paul says—"A testament is of force after men are dead, otherwise it is of no strength at all while the testator liveth." Heb. 9: 17.

We see that instead of confirming the covenant it is making a covenant so "strong" or "firm" it cannot be broken. Of such a covenant ever made by the Roman prince "with many for one week," we have no knowledge. To what conclusion then must we come?

1. That Jesus the Messiah is the testator of the new covenant, and by his death it became unalterable.

2. That after he rose from the dead and ascended to his Father, he sent the Holy Spirit on the day of Pentecost, and the disciples went forth to proclaim the glad news of salvation through the new covenant, "God also bearing them witness both with signs and wonders and with divers miracles and gifts of the Holy Ghost according to his own will." Heb. 2.

I do not write thus for the purpose of opposing the time of the Lord's coming; far be it from me, for I like to know all about it; but let us have the truth, and not fiction, that we may not be disappointed in our expectations. Criticism is what we want on every thing we believe, that the truth may be made to shine more and more until the perfect day. May the good Lord give us an earnest and christian spirit to examine and believe all truth, and to be found giving meat in due season to the household when Jesus comes.

THE FIRST PASSOVER ON THURSDAY.

WM. HOBBS.

That the first passover in Egypt fell on Thursday, we have the following proof—1. "They departed from Rameses in the first month, on the fifteenth day of the first month: on the morrow after the passover the children of Israel went out with a high hand in the sight of all the Egyptians." Num. 33: 3, 2. Thirty days after, the manna fell for six days, and then ceased on the seventh day, because it was their Sabbath; that is, Saturday. Exodus 16: 1–23. The thirtieth day, therefore, was Saturday; and dividing this by seven, we find just four weeks and two days, so that the first of the two falls on Friday, as the day on which they departed from Rameses. And as they departed on the fifteenth day of the first month, on the morrow after the passover, the passover was on Thursday.

That it was thirty days from their departure to the fall of the manna, is proved from Exodus 16: 1–23; the first verse of which reads as follows—"And they took their journey from Elim, and all the congregation of the children of Israel came into the wilderness of Sin . . . on the fifteenth day of the second month after their departing out of the land of Egypt." The Israelites, as is well known, reckoned their months from the moon's age, and as the length of a lunation is twenty-nine and one-half days, they had to reckon their months alternately twenty-nine and thirty days; for twelve lunations are just three hundred and fifty-four days. Now as they departed from Rameses on the fifteenth day of the first month, and that consisting of twenty-nine days, we have just fifteen days to the beginning of the second month; and as they came to the wilderness of Sin on the fifteenth day of the second month, this would be the thirtieth day of their departure. And this is confirmed by the testimony of Josephus (Antiq., Book III. chap. 1, sec. 3), for he gives the interval as "thirty days." On the morning after the thirtieth day of their departure the manna fell for six days, as may be seen by careful reading of the twenty-three verses of this sixteenth chapter of Exodus. But on the seventh day it ceased, for it was their seventh-day Sabbath; which proves that the thirtieth day of their departure was the seventh day.

Now since the first passover fell on Thursday, that rule cited by Sir Isaac Newton, by which the Jews are said to have moved their month one day ahead, whenever the third day of the month Nisan fell on Sunday, Wednesday, or Friday, to avoid having an annual and seventh-day Sabbath succeed one another, is contrary to the Scriptures. By this rule, if the third day of the first month fell on Friday, the fourteenth would fall on Thursday; and as the fifteenth was an annual Sabbath, and Saturday was the seventh-day Sabbath, it would, in this case, be inconvenient to keep two Sabbaths, and so the fourteenth was transferred to the fifteenth for convenience' sake. Such a transfer would be an actual transgression of the law, which required the Israelites to sacrifice the passover on the fourteenth day of the moon's age. To call the fifteenth day the fourteenth would not make it so, and so such a rule could not have obtained while Christ was here, for he kept the Jewish feasts; which he would not have done had they been wrongly appointed on other days.

The fact that the first passover in Egypt fell on a Thursday, and the evidence that our Savior was crucified on the passover, and on Thursday, proves that rule to have been invented since the last of these periods.

RUTLAND CONFERENCE.

Fewer attended this conference from the west side of the mountain than we had hoped. Our friends of that section of Vermont had so long desired help that we expected a manifestation of interest which would open the way for future labors. The weather was severe and the traveling bad, but not so unfavorable but that one preacher could ride in open sleigh eighty miles from the east side to attend the meeting.

Although not long, the meetings were good, and one soul sought and, we trust, found the Lord. She was formerly a Romanist, but from confessing to a priest she turned to confess to Christ, our great High Priest, who has power on earth to forgive sins. Several reports from churches by letter and by preachers were cheering. If every church knew how cheering it is to hear from them, they would always send letters. Please do so, brethren, at our next conference, or send a delegate. Our next conference will probably be at West Fairlee, in connection with a tent meeting, the first of June next.

Preaching brethren present at this meeting—Bro. S. G. Mathewson, A. A. Hoyt, C. H. Leverton, H. F. Carpenter. H. F. C.

CORRECTION.—In the Report of the Worcester Convention, I am made to say some things I did not intend to say; viz., that the seventy weeks of Dan. 9, ended A. D. 70, the remaining 1810 years beginning at this point, thus ending them in 1880.

Instead of which, I stated that history told us that in the year 70, vulgar era, the destruction of Jerusalem took place; but the Julian period led us to place it at 65. Therefore 65 is my starting point. Now 425, before Christ, and 65 to the desolation, and 1810 to the end of the 2300, make them end in the year 1875.

ORION GREEN.

Correspondence.

From Bro. I. Fancher.

BRO. GRANT:—In 1842, I embraced the time of Christ's coming to this earth about 1843, then in 1844, then in 1847, then in 1849, then in 1868, then in 1869, and now 1873; and I would say in all the time that I have lived (sixty-nine years), that the time when I supposed I was within one year of Jesus' advent, has been the happiest of my life. And now as the best historical time, according to my judgment, to commence the 1335 days or years as I understand them to be is A. D. 538, when the Justinian decree went into full power; the two periods added together make 1873, when Daniel will stand in his lot, and all that are saved with him. For God's word declares that he will reward every man as his work shall be at his appearing and kingdom. And according to the Bible, God is more willing to give the Holy Spirit to them that ask him, than earthly parents are to give good gifts to their children. O, how willing, then, God is that we should be saved! For in Romans 8: 11, it reads—"But if the Spirit of Him that raised up Jesus from the dead [which all can have] dwell in you, he [God the Father] that raised up Christ from the dead shall also quicken your mortal bodies by his Spirit that dwell sin you." Now, my dear brethren and sisters, "Beloved, seeing that ye look for such things, be diligent, that ye may be found of him in peace, without spot and blameless."

Extracts from Letters.

BRO. H. MUNGER writes from West Troy: "We are trying to rally the few scattered sheep that have been holding on ever since their chapel was burned by a mob twenty-eight years ago. Sabbath, March 3d, at the first meeting, there was a general rally from six towns, and the sheep all took hold well and hearty. Monday evening more out, and good attention; so much so, they requested another meeting Tuesday evening. The weather being very cold, fifteen degrees below zero, but few were out. One year ago to-day, March 7th, the New York steamboat arrived in Albany. Now the ice is twenty-eight inches thick. One of the ice-boats capsized under great speed, wounding two men and killing another. These sailing sleds, with a good wind, will pass the Express train of cars that runs on the east bank of the Hudson river. Our meeting the second Sabbath was very interesting. The brethren will again sustain Second Advent meetings at West Troy, and wish preachers, recognized by the Conference, to give them a call. Those sending appointments for Sabbaths, will correspond with James Douglas, West Troy, N. Y., 61 Broad St. All evenings but Wednesday."

SR. R. B. NORTHUP writes:—"The Crisis is all the preacher I have, and it gives me great comfort to read it. I never cut up or allow one of my Crisis papers to be destroyed, any more than I would a Bible leaf. When I have read them, I send them abroad, that the truth and light so much needed at the present day may go forth over the land. I wish I had a hundred dollars to send to you to-day. When I read of the destitution of so many that the Crisis tells of, I feel pained and distressed to think I cannot reach out the helping hand to them in the good work of the Lord. I try to pray for the prosperity of the Crisis. I do not know of any paper that gives us so much Bible truth so plainly, and so fearless of persecution; and that suits me. I hate to have God's truth hid for fear of the Pharisees."

ANOTHER WAR CLOUD.—From late cable despatches it would seem that Prussia is tired of the peace she has been enjoying for the last few months, and is itching to do something to keep her hand in. This time it is Switzerland who is to be dealt with. It is confidently stated that Prussia has remonstrated in plain terms with Switzerland for allowing the conferences held by the members of the International within her borders.

There are, it seems, at Geneva large numbers of Internationalists who have been driven out of Prussia and the German States, and who, under the more liberal government of the land of Tell, have been indulging in unwonted liberty of speech. Prussia avers that they are conspiring together for evil purposes and must be crushed. This she calls upon Switzerland to do. That government must, therefore, make quick decision, under threat of military occupation. Those best familiar with the history and spirit of the Helvetian Republic will have no doubt as to the answer which will be given.

The Swiss residents of Paris, of whom there are 70,000, have taken the alarm and with true patriotic instinct are girding up their loins for what is looked upon by them as inevitable. Lists have been put in circulation for signing by Swiss subjects, who engage, in case of war, to return home and take up arms in defense of their fatherland. The entire military strength of Switzerland, including the Reserve and Landwehr, is 201,782 effective men. Add to this the Swiss in France and other countries who would rally round the old standard at the first blast of the trumpet, and an available force of at least 250,000 might be reckoned upon. This, among the mountain fastnesses of Switzerland, would be no mean force for even Prussia to encounter, and we believe that Bismarck will think twice before he makes the signal for even a bloodier and more bitterly contested struggle than the one just ended.—Daily Globe.

WEBSTER'S UNABRIDGED ILLUSTRATED.—"Viewed as a whole, we are confident that no other living language has a dictionary that so fully and faithfully sets forth its present condition, as this last edition of Webster does that of our written and spoken English tongue."—Harper's Magazine.

FRANCE.

INTERNATIONALS.

PARIS, March 14. In the Assembly to-day, a bill was passed, making it a penal offence to be a member of, or in any manner associated with, the International society.

Pere Jungua, a priest of Bordeaux, having been prosecuted for writings against religion, has addressed a letter to Monsigneur Donnet, Cardinal Archbishop of Bordeaux, in defence of his orthodoxy. He declares that those who accept the doctrine of Papal infallibility no longer belong to the true church, and maintains that he and other priests who reject that doctrine are depositaries of traditions of the primitive universal church. Pere Jungua is organizing a committee of action, corresponding with similar committees in France and foreign countries, and intends to make a direct appeal to the people of Bordeaux.

THIERS ON THE ROMAN QUESTION.

President Thiers at the reception yesterday spoke on the Roman question, and maintained that Catholicism is a tradition and element of strength to France.

THE INTERNATIONALS.

The bill recently passed by the French National Assembly, making it a penal offence to be connected in any manner with the International society, causes intense excitement among the members of the society. In retaliation, the society now proposes to combine every element of strength within their organization, to effect the complete overthrow of the present government of France.

ITALY.

HONOR TO MAZZINI.

ROME, March 17. The demonstration in honor of Joseph Mazzini to-day was a great success. An immense procession, including all the workingmen's societies, with banners, flags and bands of music, carried a bust of the deceased patriot through the principal streets to the capitol, where it was deposited with imposing ceremonies and eulogistic speeches. Good order was maintained throughout.

GREAT BRITAIN.

RUPTURE WITH URUGUAY.

LONDON, March 16. It is reported that England and Uruguay have come to an open rupture, and that all friendly relations between the two countries have ceased.

FREE DISCUSSION IN ROME.—It will be necessary to use once more the old phrase, "the world moves." Free discussion has been inaugurated under the very shadow of the Vatican. Nay, the Pope himself has specially authorized a debate between leading Catholics and Protestants, on the remote, to be sure, but still important question, "Was St. Peter ever at Rome?" involving, of course, the Apostolic founding of the Roman Catholic Church. Four Presidents or umpires were chosen, consisting of two Romish dignitaries and a Methodist preacher and a missionary to the Jews. The disputants were three on each side, the Catholics being represented by three priests, one of them eminent for his learning and controversial powers. Of the Protestant champions one was Signor Sciarelli, a Methodist Italian minister in Rome, and another the famous Father Gavazzi. The latter is said—by a Protestant correspondent—to have outdone himself and to have borne off the chief laurels of the contest. As most often happens, however, in all public discussions, religious or political, that we ever heard of, both parties professed to be completely satisfied with the result. The greatest courtesy prevailed throughout, and the whole terminated, we are told, "in a very demonstrative shaking of hands on the part of presidents and disputants."—Journal.

REVIVAL AMONG GIPSIES.—A correspondent of the Christian World gives an interesting account of a religious meeting held by gipsies in the very heart of Epping Forest, near London. The work among them was commenced by two men who went from tent to tent and from cart to cart reading the Bible. They then gathered a few together in a cottage; the interest increased, union prayer meetings were held with other bands, and the work became one of wonderful power. At a great meeting held in London seventeen hundred gipsies were present. As a result a remarkable change has come over the character and conduct of the gipsies, who have given up thieving, fortune telling and intemperance, and are living honestly and purely. They have built a tabernacle in the forest, in which the meetings are held. This is a structure of tarpaulin. On the evening in question there were gathered in it a number of gipsies, some neatly dressed, and others unwashed with unkempt hair. Two small lamps were suspended from the roof. The meeting was opened with singing the revival hymn commencing—

"Hast thou just begun to pray?
Never give up!
Press along the heavenly way—
Never give up!
Though an edict should be passed,
Though thou be to lions cast,
Hold thou thy profession fast;—
Never give up!"

There were several addresses by speakers from without, and the gipsies themselves, both men and women, offered most touching and earnest prayers. The work among this strange people has been every way very successful, and is full of promise as to future results. Their wild, nomadic life is slowly becoming permeated with the gentle principles of the gospel, and the converts already made among them evince deep religious feeling and an unfeignedly spiritual life.—Journal.

ALEXIS.—There is a rumor that the Grand Duke Alexis is to be made Viceroy of that part of Poland now owned by Russia, and that Polish autonomy will be recognized. The assertion that negotiations are now in progress in London between Russians and Poles to that end is doubtless true, since it has been a part of Russia's policy for a year past to secure, as much as possible, the forgiveness of Poland for the wrongs she has done her. In case of a war with Prussia the Russians would find it immensely to their advantage to possess Poland and the friendship of the Poles. Prussia will use her utmost endeavors for the next twelve months to prevent any unification of the country in whose partition she had such a shameful part; but she will find the Russians resolved to carry out their plans.

CURIOUS SHOWER OF WORMS.—During the snow storm on Friday, there are said to have fallen with the flakes, in Somerville, thousands of greenish-brown worms, about an inch in length and an eighth of an inch in diameter. When they fell they were curled up into a ball shape, but were alive and very active. Specimens were sent to the Museum of comparative Zoology for examination and classification. The report from there will be looked for with interest, as the occurrence is a most singular one.

THE WORKINGMEN.—A general movement among the mechanics and laborers of New York is reported for a strike, to take place on the 1st of April, the object being a vigorous enforcement of the eight-hour law. Many of the members of the trades unions are inimical to the movement, but they are powerless in the hands of the leaders, who seem determined to push matters to the utmost. If a general strike is inaugurated, as it probably will be, the result will be a total stagnation of business, and a season of poverty, distress and crime, such as our country has not known for years.

COMMUNISM means villany and murder, and Internationalism anarchy and ruin. It were well that we looked after the serpent that is beginning to rear its head in our midst, and be prepared to crush it when it threatens to spring. This Communism is an exotic parasite, and should not be allowed to attach itself to our institutions to undermine their strength and sap their growth.—Boston Globe.

Notices.

THE ANNUAL MEETING of the Mass. Second Advent Conference for the choice of officers, will commence in Chelsea, Mass., at the Second Advent Chapel on Heard Street, Tuesday evening, April 2nd, continuing day and evening, and over the following Sunday. The church of Christ worshiping at the Advent Chapel send greeting, and invite their brethren far and near to come up to this meeting and enjoy the freedom of the gospel in praying, singing, preaching, and exhorting one another, and so much the more as you see the day approaching. Let all the Advent churches in the State be represented at this meeting.

C. E. BARNES, Secretary.

We purpose this Conference to take the place of conferences occasionally held in Boston, which have been so profitable and successful in bringing together the lovers of the Savior's return from all parts of the country. We do not intend the business shall interfere more than possible with the time and spirit of worship. We earnestly invite all to come to this feast. We shall do our best to take care of and make you comfortable.

We expect to get a reduction of fares on the railroads coming to the city, which will be published in due time. J. COUCH, Pastor.

THE SECOND quarterly session of the Hoosick Valley Conference will be held at Sandy Hill, N. Y., commencing April 18th, 1872, and hold over the following Sabbath. Let there be a general rally of the friends of Jesus and his kingdom in all this region of country to this feast. Make this meeting a subject of earnest prayer, that God may greatly bless this gathering of his people. And first, consecrate thyself to God—have all upon the altar before you come; and then come filled with the Spirit, prepared to work for God. Come to admonish the saint and warn the sinner. Come in the name of our soon coming King to make one more charge upon the enemy's host previous to its being announced from the eternal throne, "It is done." Provisions will be made for all who come. A. W. SIBLEY, President.

A. P. BUMP, Secretary.

THE THIRD Quarterly Session of the New Hampshire State Conference will be held at Goffstown, commencing Thursday evening, March 28th, to hold over Sunday, March 31st. As this is a new place, and as some business of importance is to come before the conference, it is hoped our preaching brethren will make an effort to be present. An invitation is extended to all.

NEW TRACT.

We have just received a new tract of 24 pages, entitled, "The Coming Reign of Terror, or the Commune," by W. N. Pile. The writer shows that the "Reign of Terror" of 1792 was produced by the workings of Socialism, Spiritualism, Infidelity, Free-Love, and the Commune; and then reasons that as these elements are now at work everywhere, they must produce the same results. The tract treats of the living issues of the present, reveals the awful condition of society, and shows that we are on the verge of "the battle of that great day of God Almighty."

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY.

Strength for the day! At early dawn I stand,
Helpless and weak, and with unrested eyes,
Watching for day. Before its portal lies
A low black cloud—a heavy iron band:
Slowly the mist is lifted from the land,
And pearl and amber gleam across the skies,
Gladdening my upward gaze with sweet surprise!
I own the sign: I know that He whose hand
Hath fringed those sombre clouds with ruby ray,
And changed that iron bar to molten gold,
Will to my wandering steps be guide and stay—
Breathe o'er my wavering heart his rest for aye,
And give my waiting, folded palms to hold
His blessed morning boon—strength for the day!

THE INTERNATIONALE.

CLINTON COLEGROVE.

The readers of the Crisis may be interested in some account of this new and growing organization. Its name in full is—"The International Workingmen's Association; (initials I. W. A.) Out of nine articles in the platform, we select a few for notice, premising that "the various Congresses held by the Association of Geneva, Lausanne, Brussels, and Basle," have adopted them to "form the programme of the Internationale."

1. The total abolition of all class rule and all class privileges. 2. Complete political and social equality for both sexes. 3. Nationalization of the land, and all the instruments of production. 6. Religion to be ignored, as being a speculative subject concerning the individuals. No religious differences or creed to be recognized. 9. The adoption of the principle of associative production, with a view to the complete supercession of the present system of capitalist production.

We have scarcely time now for comment on the meaning of these proposed changes. Consider carefully the magnitude and significance of political and social transformations involved in these articles. It is evident enough that the programme is radical and revolutionary, menacing a prodigious innovation on the present order of affairs. To make our record complete, we will subjoin the remaining four, which may be regarded as the least (apparently) objectionable of the nine.

4. A reduction of the hours of labor so as to allow more time for improvement and recreation. 5. Education to be undertaken by the State—to be obligatory, gratuitous and secular. 7. The substitution of a direct system of taxation based upon property, instead of the present system of levying taxation upon industry; the taxation to be progressive. 8. The abolition of the standing army, as being a provocative to war.

We omit for the present an account of the origin of this society, which may be dated in 1862, and pass to the organization, which "as finally settled consists of (1) A General Council. (2) Federal Councils. (3) Sections. It is a federation of groups, each group being composed of the several sections, and affiliated members of the same kind of industry." "The Federal Council is composed of delegates elected by the various sections comprised in one federation, and is the intermediate body between the Sections and the General or Central Council. The sovereign legislative body of the association is the Congress which should be held every year. The General Council is merely the executive. Up to the present time there have beed four Congresses, viz: at Geneva, Lausanne, Brussels, and Basle, early in September, in the years 1866, 1867, 1868, and 1869, respectively. Last year, owing to the disturbed state of Europe, there was no Congress, but a private conference was held in London."

The Congress appoints the time and place for the meeting of the next Congress, and appoints the seat and elects the members of the General Council annually. But the General Council may convoke the General Congress before the regular yearly term in cases of emergency. We give nearly in full the sixth of thirteen rules of the I. W. A.

"The General Council shall form an international agency between the different national and local groups of the association, so that the workingmen in one country be constantly informed of the movements of their class in every other country; that an inquiry into the social state of the different countries of Europe be made simultaneously and under a common direction; that the questions of general interest mooted in one society be ventilated by all, and that when immediate practical steps should be needed, as, for instance, in case of international quarrels, the action of the associated societies be simultaneous and uniform. To facilitate the communications, the General Council shall publish periodical reports." We quote from Rule 7.—"Since the success of the workingmen's movement in each country cannot be secured but by the power of union and combination, the members of the International Association shall use their utmost efforts to combine the disconnected workingmen's societies of their respective countries into national bodies, represented by central national organs."

From the Regulations we learn that every member of the I. W. A. is eligible as a delegate to the General Congress, and every branch may send a delegate. The General Council is charged with the organization of each Congress and shall in due time, through the medium of the Federal Councils or Committees, bring the Congress programme to the cognizance of the branches.—The General Council is simply the Central Council of the I. W. A. The Federal Councils are the Central Councils of the different countries. The General Council is bound to execute the Congress resolutions. As often as its means may permit, the G. C. shall publish a bulletin or report, embracing everything of interest to the I. W. A., which in several languages is to be sent to the F. Councils, and all their branches. There are to be reprints in English, French, and German, of the general rules and regulations, from official texts by the G. C. There shall be an annual contribution of one penny per member. No branches will be allowed to designate themselves by sectarian names, such as Positivists, Mutualists, Collectivists, Communists, etc., or to form separatist bodies pretending to accomplish special missions distinct from the common purposes of the association. The formation of female branches is recommended. Notice, that "wherever attacks against the Internationale are published, the nearest branch or committee is held to send at once a copy of such publication to the General Council." Again, "Every local branch is bound to appoint a special committee of statistics, so as to be ready, within the limits of its means, to answer any question which may be put to it by the Federal Council or Committee of its country, or by the General Council." This latter requisition is placed under the head of "General Statistics of Labor." The materials thus collected are to be transmitted to the G. C., Aug. 1st of each year, and then reported to the Congress in September. "By initiating so great a work (of statistical inquiry) the workingmen will prove their ability to take their own fate into their own hands."

We have thus supplied a few of the more prominent features of the policy and plan of this organization. Let them be thoughtfully pondered. The question arises, what relation has this new fabric to any expected prophetic phenomenon or evolution of our time? Mark with careful attention the following circumstances: (1) The widely distributed and various components of the I. W. A., embracing the workingmen and women of Europe (and America also.) All the laboring classes, of whatever nation or employment, are invited to a membership. We thus catch the scope and magnitude of the body, which is a grand composite of peoples. (2) The thorough organization and vast preparation, by which a constant and vigilant cognizance of its capacities and opportunities is maintained. The close and mutual relation of the executive and legislative departments is obvious at a glance, and all the different divisions and societies, component or incidental, integral and lateral, are bound together in a great compact of common interest and agreement. (3) The policy and aim of the association, which is the complete abolition of all personal ownership in land and implements of labor, complete equality, social and political, of both sexes, and in short a great upheaval of the present social and political structure. Capital is everywhere to be opposed, monopolised, divided, distributed,—in other words, "nationalized." This great fabric is seen to be then a grand composite, a consolidated union of races and populations, on a basis of alleged equality, and with a common ownership of every thing. Every thing belongs to the body. We inquire again, what relation has this new order to certain panoramic figures in prophecy? Let the wise discern!

In immediate connection with this subject, permit me to quote from a lecture in Horticultural Hall, Boston, by Rev. David A. Wasson, as reported in the N. Y. Tribune, on the plans of the Internationale. The quotation is worthy of perusal. "Equality," say Communists and Internationals, "is a fact in nature; we are about to make it one in civilization. Think no longer to put us off with mere ballot-box equality; that little game is played out. You got up for us a special formal equality at the polls, as an expedient to cheat us out of the real thing. All men are equal of right; we have sworn that they shall be so in fact. They can be so in fact when conditions are equal, and conditions will be made equal, only when the Collectivity, centered in an efficient head, shall own every thing, dispose of every thing, prescribe every thing,—take the weakling from the cradle, put the defunct into the grave, and between cradle and grave, appoint the man his place, function, provender, and all the rest."

The lesson of this language is for the wise. And it is a lesson worthy to be learned in the light of revelation. What prodigy may we not see coming forth from the sea of popular tumults and commotions, a universal uneasiness of unsanctified humankind! But it is a prodigy with no brain, a body with no head.

While on this subject, we venture some quotations in point, from Woodhull and Claflin's Weekly, a paper prominently in sympathy with the aims of the I. W. A. An editorial with the caption of "The Coming Revolution," has the following—"Let it for a moment be supposed that all the wealth of the world was distributed among those who produced it, what a changed condition there would be! If the wealthy would be wise, they would anticipate its coming (the so-called 'age of justice') by rendering up accounts of their stewardships, and having their settlements ready to present for acceptance when demand is made. They should come forward and show their willingness to render justice. By these means only can we hope to escape the gathering tide of neglected, down-trodden humanity, everywhere straining its nerves for better conditions; everywhere demanding redress for its grievances; everywhere coming into the recognition that it has been robbed of its own. The wealth of the world cannot afford to ignore these efforts, be deaf to these demands, or indifferent to this knowledge. Its own safety depends upon immediate action, which has been already too long delayed, perhaps too long to escape the vengeance of the outraged and neglected ties of a common brotherhood."

Again—"In nature there is no escaping exact compensation. Everybody knows that. But almost everybody is foolish enough to imagine that in humanity there may be some escape, even if it be by so small a one as repentance, forgiveness, and substitution."

In another editorial—"It is to be expected that the favored few will rebel against all their propositions, that their organs of the press will utter anxious howls of disapprobation, and designate the Internationale as a revolutionary society. Well, it is revolutionary in the extreme sense. Its first and last purpose is to revolutionize the present construction of government and society."

In reference to the funeral procession in New York, in honor of Rossel—"Though the telegraph reporting it to the country endeavored to make it as small as possible, the papers were obliged to speak something approaching the truth, and through them the country has been informed of the first faint rumblings of the coming storm which will rain down upon the heads of those who will not take warning from the initial notes already sounded." Again, "A form of government which requires to be amended to meet every new condition that arises within its jurisdiction, as has been the case with ours, ought to be supplanted by one so grand and comprehensive as to be equal to all emergencies, contingencies, and evolutions that can possibly arise in humanity."

Again says the "Weekly"—The International Association is the Holy Church of the future, and the Commune the repository of about all the religion there is in France. Jesus Christ, if he had lived in Paris, would have been behind the barricades with La Commune, just as he is said to have driven the bankers and brokers out of the temple." On the last page is a likeness of Carl Marx, with a brief biographical sketch, in which he is styled "the heart and soul of the International Society, which has gained ground rapidly, and now embraces several million members."

But we must pause. Let us await events, watchful, sober, God-defended, and God-instructed. How pregnant is this epoch! "Why do the heathen rage and the people imagine a vain thing?" God has said—"Yet have I set my king upon my holy hill of Zion. . . Thou shalt break them with a rod of iron, thou shalt dash them in pieces like a potter's vessel."

The solution of all the perplexity and problems of our time is the kingdom of Jesus. Meanwhile "evil men wax worse." There may be some new phase in affairs before the end of March. At all events, we think it will not be long.

Finally, may we not consider the time at hand, when there will be visible a more marked fulfillment than ever of the heart failing for fear among men? How will property-holders regard the bold demands of the I. W. A.? What consolations must the prospect afford to the rich? And what emotions will capitalists experience when the organization is complete through the super-position of a head, imparting direction and receiving authority; infusing energy, and perfecting unity and consolidation to the body?

RESPONSE TO BRO. A. P. MOORE.

Reading in the Crisis Bro. Moore's yearly labors in the Western field; his journeyings, his weariness, his salary, with his many blessings; his little home place, his horse, cow, chickens, corn, potatoes and apples, to live on through the winter; he closes by saying, "I preached six times to one congregation, and received only two dollars and eighty-five cents, yet the Lord blessed his truth;" then asks, "How many of your Eastern preachers would preach on that salary long?" I would like to say to Bro. Moore, that the Lord's Eastern preachers will labor as long on this salary as they will in New York, or any other Western field. I have been on this track for the last twenty-nine years in the East, and have been through closer spots, with less means; and still my way is onward, with no disposition to change my course. I once with a brother of like precious faith, went further East to hold a protracted meeting. Spent three or more dollars to get there; labored, preached, prayed, sang, and visited. Meetings five days. The people came to hear; many were interested; gave away two or three dollars worth of tracts, and when we left, all the salary we got in the shape of money for labor was twenty-five cents, and an earnest request to come again.

Another visit and labor of days among some brethren and Baptist people, with others in a village in Mass. The word had the effect to bring some in love with it, and we had a blessed good time. I left, with sixty cents salary, for my home, more than forty miles. The old enemy met me on the way, with deep solicitude for my wife and children, and said, You had better give it up, and preach no more a free gospel, for you'll starve, or come to the poor-house. Under these circumstances I had to stand up for Jesus and his word; so I stopped my horse, and told him right there if he did not stop his lying tongue, I would turn right about and go back and preach for them another week for the same price. Then he left me, and I rode on quietly homeward, feeling the blessed assurance that I was in the path of duty, not knowing how my wife and children would come out, but had no doubt the Lord would provide.

Riding on in deep meditation, I felt a desire to call upon an isolated family at the forks of the road. My horse turned out of the main road, and soon I was welcomed, and enjoyed a refreshing season of prayer and thanksgiving; and when all ready to start, the good woman said,—

"Don't you need something to supply your needs? I have been thinking of you and your family for the last two or three days, and here are three dollars of the Lord's money; and it is for you."

Thanking the Lord, I took courage, and rode home in good cheer. This is only a specimen of how the Lord takes care of those he calls to the work, who do not make merchandize of the gospel.

I could relate a multitude of like incidents, showing the promises of God reliable; but trials, troubles, unbeliefs and discouragements attend the missionary life and labor, in which none can sympathize but those who have passed through them. But, dear Bro. Moore, this has been the way of my pilgrimage since I have been doing the work of an Evangelist, not knowing what I should get, or what would befall me, saving reproaches, side looks, and the cold shoulder of formalists and world-lovers, with the haters of Jesus. This is the legacy. But the Lord has been my helper, and he has cared for me; and when I could trust him to direct my paths, and comply with his orders, it has worked well. I have lacked no good thing; neither do I expect to. And some of us at the East are ready still to labor on with cheerful minds for the same salary, if we live till Jesus comes.

God bless you, my dearly beloved brother; we sympathize with you, but we have the sweet of it. It is the best way I know of. Blessings are sure. The fountain is never dry. None that have left all for Christ's and this gospel's sake but shall have an hundred-fold in this time, with trials and tribulation; but in the world to come life eternal. Now, my brother, I have no wish to retract my steps, and here is my heart and my hand to divide hardships, sacrifices, trials, blessings, salary, reproach, and the best of the field, with you till the Master calls us to leave and come down from the walls to give an account of our stewardship. Thy brother for Christ and his Word,

L. BOUTELL.

HARDENING THE HEART.

F. BURR.

We read that the Lord God hardened Pharaoh's heart, and many have thought that it was hardly right for him to do thus. God should have softened his heart, not hardened it.

But he did soften it. When the judgments came at first Pharaoh was softened, and made many promises for good. Taking away these judgments was what hardened his heart at first, until at last he became so angry that the judgments themselves had a hardening effect.

But Pharaoh was no better when his heart or feelings were soft than when hardened. There was no virtue in his tenderness. It was all through fear. Many an infidel has been softened the same way. Fearing God's judgments men have prayed who never prayed before, but when the danger was over they were as hard-hearted as ever, and many a man has, like Pharaoh, become perfectly reckless through constant exposure. What difference in such men whether soft or hard-hearted? "Bray a fool in a mortar with a pestle, and yet will not his foolishness depart from him." But won't he be soft? Very likely, but a soft heart is not necessarily a virtuous one. The infidel who cries to God for mercy when in danger of drowning, is no more virtuous than when an hour before he was cursing God, and when the danger is passed he will curse again. It is but the result of fear, and true virtue drives out this feeling.

Love is the motive power in true christianity. And so whether Pharaoh's heart was hardened or softened, he was still the same wicked, ungodly man, a "vessel of wrath fitted for destruction." And the only way God hardened his heart was in taking away his judgments, which certainly was not wrong.

Softened affections are more impressible with the love of God than a hardened heart, but there is no more virtue in the one case than the other, unless so impressed. The proud, haughty spirit must be subdued, but unless the pride is also rooted out and true humility finds an abode there, the fruit will yet be disobedience. We may cower before the lash, but this is only slavish fear. Thousands have done this only to revolt more and more. And when at last all appear in judgment before God, no accusation can be laid against Him who has sought by his judgments and mercies to save all that would put their trust in him, even though those judgments and mercies may have hardened the hearts of many who have rejected alike the warnings and invitations of the heavenly Father. On whom he will he has mercy, and whom he will he hardens. But the means are the same in each case. The one class turn it into a blessing, the other into a curse, and God does no wrong. Let us be glad and rejoice before him.

FOUR QUESTIONS.

A. FLAVELL.

BRO. GRANT:—Allow me to ask those brethren to settle a few important questions, who believe that Ezra and Nehemiah lived under the reign of Ahasuerus the husband of Queen Esther. The questions I consider of vital importance, both to their chronology, and to the view which they hold respecting the 2300 days.

1. The first point is, that Josephus in Book 11, chapters 1–5, gives a full account of the restoring of Jerusalem under the reigns of Cyrus, Darius and Xerxes, and speaks of Ezra and Nehemiah both dying at an old age under the reign of Xerxes. We should suppose every school boy would know in the days of Josephus, who gave the command to build Jerusalem.

2. The second point is the testimony of the angel of God to Daniel when he came to him for the last time to show him the truth. Dan. 11: 2—"Behold there shall stand up yet three kings in Persia, and the fourth shall be far richer than they all, and by his strength through his riches he shall stir up all against the realm of Grecia." Cyrus was then reigning, and the first after him was his son Cambyses, the second Smerdis, the third Darius, and the fourth Xerxes. Here the angel drops the Persian kings, and passes to Greece, without ever noticing Ahasuerus, the king upon whom our brethren depend for the starting point of the 2300 days. We see so far the testimonies of Josephus and the angel Gabriel agree.

3. The third point is the book of Esther, in which there is not one word about two such important men as Ezra and Nehemiah, who were both attendants upon the king, and both of Queen Esther's own nation. Neither is there one word in this book that Ahasuerus gave any command towards the restoring of Jerusalem.

4. The fourth point is the books of Ezra and Nehemiah, which do not mention one word about Queen Esther, who is one of their own nation; neither is there a word in these books of a decree to kill all the Jewish people, nor are there any of those names mentioned who figured in this narrative in which the writers of these books would have been as much involved had they lived at that time as all the rest of the Jews.

On this question it seems to me that Josephus, the angel Gabriel, the book of Queen Esther, and the books of Ezra and Nehemiah, all harmonize. Will some of the brethren please answer?

— The inquiring love of truth should go along with the devoted love of goodness.

— Can Christ ever fail to satisfy? Does he not satisfy the heart of God? Does he not fill all heaven with his glory? Is he not the one grand subject of everlasting counsels and purposes? Doth not the history of his ways overlap eternity?

— Our religion is to be estimated, not by a few intensities, but by a vital and generous glow throughout our whole life. We are not to mourn because we do not feel; but if, having feeling, we find no expression for that feeling in life, we may well mourn.

— The victory of fallen man lies not in innocence, but in tried virtue. "Blessed is he that overcometh."

— A grasp of the hand, a smile, a word even, is often enough in God's hand to change the entire course of life, to save a soul from death.

GODLESS AND RIGHTEOUS CHURCH-GOERS.—A Swiss pastor, receiving a visit from a brother in the ministry, complained to him that the members of his congregation had adopted the evil habit of continually leaving the church before he had finished his sermon. "That would not do for me," replied the friend, in a very confident tone. The pastor, well knowing that his friend was not a Cicero, offered to lay him a wager that the hearers would treat the preaching of his guest as they treated his own. The latter immediately accepted it, and commenced the next Sunday his preaching with the following introduction: "Brethren in Christ, my discourse contains two divisions; the first is for the godless, the second for the righteous. Let us begin with the first part." This was very brief, and concluded with the following apostrophe: "Now, ye stupid sinners, ye who blaspheme Christ and make a mock at his holy teaching, ye who are full of vice and far from repentance, I have done with you! Arise, and take yourselves off from the Lord's house, for the second part of my discourse is devoted to those amongst you who are of a clean heart!" Not one of the congregation arose until the Amen was uttered—they were all of a clean heart.

SIR WALTER SCOTT wrote—"The race of mankind would perish did we cease to help each other. From the time that the mother binds the child's head till the moment some kind assistant wipes the dew of death from the brow of the dying, we cannot exist without mutual help."

AN IMPORTANT QUESTION.

A. P. MOORE.

Does God call men to preach the gospel? O yes! you are ready to exclaim. Then it follows as a consequence that he calls the church to take care of them, and not to see them or their families half fed or half clad.

If there is a class of people in the world that ought to be cared for and sustained, it is Advent preachers. Men that give up position, reputation, and everything else to go forth and preach the unpopular truth of the end at hand and its kindred truths, ought not to be pinched for the necessary comforts of life. They cannot live on "God bless you, come again." Yet some do not seem to think that they need money to come and go on the cars, and that their families live by eating just like other people, and that what they eat they have to buy unless it is given to them.

Men professing to love the "blessed hope," having plenty of this world's goods, cannot show how much they love it better than by their liberality toward those who give up all to go forth and proclaim it to the world. Some seem to think they have done all that is required of them when they go to meeting and get "shouting happy" hearing the glories of the coming kingdom portrayed, if when the collection is taken they manage to put in a ten-cent scrip, no matter if it is a little mutilated. It takes a good many such ten-cent scrips to amount to much.

This taking of collections, and giving them to the preacher, is a source of great evil. There is a great temptation for the preacher to preach to please those who give liberally if the preaching suits them, and nothing if it does not. They think of their expenses, and their families, and if they see an existing evil, they dare not preach against it for fear of their small collections. Let them obey God and preach his word, if the collection is so small that they will have to foot it home, and God will take care of them. A revolution is greatly needed.

Some think if they give five or ten dollars a year for preaching that they make a great sacrifice. Ten dollars a year seems to be a monstrous sum to them. What is the income of such a man? Perhaps interest and all it may be fifteen hundred or two thousand dollars a year, and he gives ten dollars to the Lord's cause. Is not that robbing God? A man with an income of two thousand dollars, ought to give at least one tenth or two hundred dollors a year to the Lord.

Many ministers who are now sounding forth the tidings of speedy redemption, gave up positions bringing in an income of from ten to fifteen hundred dollars a year, and went out depending on the free-will offerings of the people, yet receive perhaps one-fourth of what their income was formerly. Do they not sacrifice the other three-fourths? Who makes the sacrifice? It is a shame that some of God's worthy ministers are so poorly cared for by those who listen to them; and if a person hints at such things he is accused of being after money.

Men are heaping treasures together for the fires of the last day, the "rust" of which will be a "witness against them in that day." Men act as though they expected to take their money with them if the Lord comes, or else that they very much doubt his coming speedily. If they will allow Jesus Christ's ministers to be pinched and subjected to hard fare, they would Christ if he were here; but they do not remember that he said—"Inasmuch as ye did it not unto one of the least of these, ye did it not unto me." Men will be held responsible for their stewardship.

There is no danger of men giving too much. If men must live on potatoes and salt to preach the coming of Jesus, they will do it, but God will hold those responsible who allow them to do it. The Lord is at hand. Let us be ready.

Hygiene.

"This is for your Health."

OPIUM AS A STIMULANT.—Opium eating is said by competent authorities to be on the increase in this state, and throughout the country. The State Board of Health have deemed this pernicious habit so alarming that in their recent report they publish an article by Dr. F. E. Oliver, which gives many interesting facts. The opium eaters in the United States are computed to number between eighty and one hundred thousand, and Massachusetts has probably a fair per centage of the population who use the drug as a stimulant. From 1840, the importation of the drug shows an increase from 24,000 pounds to 154,841 in 1870, and there was a large increase in 1871. The habit once acquired is with the greatest difficulty controlled. If less marked in its immediate effects than alcohol, it is far more sure of its victim. A man of twenty who takes opium seldom lives beyond the age of thirty or thirty-six. It has been estimated that about one in six of those addicted to alcohol reforms, while among opium eaters success in such an attempt is extremely rare. Many who have abandoned alcoholic drinks take to opium, and a Boston druggist states that a noted temperance lecturer is one of his regular customers for this drug. In an adjacent town there is a man who takes two ounces of laudanum daily. It is a singular fact that its use in the country is greater than in the large cities. One Boston druggist states that the sale of opium preparations to the country is out of all proportion to that of other drugs. Thousands who are addicted to this terrible habit acquired it by taking medicines which were largely composed of opium. Women constitute the larger proportion of opium takers.—Boston Journal.

A WORD FOR THE BABIES.—The season that tries children's souls—and bodies—is at hand. The cold, damp season of early spring, with its penetrating breezes that chill the entire system and generate incipient croup, is already here, and it behooves every anxious parent to be on the alert if danger, and perhaps death, would be averted. Too many parents find their children's lives cut off by the want of a little care. Croup always originates in a cold, and in most cases the cold is caused from exposure to dampness, either of the clothing or of the atmosphere. In many cases the primary cause is insufficient or improper clothing. Especially is this so with little girls. On this point a great responsibility lies with the mothers, and when a child loses its parent on the wilful following of a fashion that leads to that result, what is it but inviting death? Let mothers become strong in common sense and resolve to raise their children, not bury them. Let them remember, also, that though sickness may sometimes be called "sent from God" in the true sense, that which is forced upon a helpless child is nothing but a crime.—Boston Globe.

CHANGE OF CLOTHING.—It would be a great deal better to wear the entire winter suits through March, and even to the middle of April; and even then, until the first week in May, to make no change in the outer clothing, nor any in the inner garments, except to a less heavy woolen next the skin, for it is only for the three hours embracing one o'clock in the afternoon that winter clothing is at all oppressive; while the very warmth of noonday makes the raw dampness of the morning and late afternoons specially felt. All changes to lighter garments should be made at dressing in the morning, and if in any case the change leaves the body chilly, or if, soon after it is made, the weather changes to be much cooler, by all means promptly, without half an hour's delay, resume the full winter dress. The old, the young, the invalid, in short, all persons of feeble constitutions, of small vitality, should be especially careful to heed these suggestions; inattention to which gives rise to the very frequent announcements in the morning papers, in the early spring, "Died suddenly, yesterday, ——, of pneumonia,"—often, the very friend whom we had met in the street, or at church, within a week, apparently as well and as hearty as ever before.—Journal of Health.

THE APPLE AS DIET.—The importance of apples as food has not hitherto been sufficiently estimated or understood. Besides contributing a large proportion of sugar, mucilage, and other nutritious compounds in the form of food, they contain such a fine combination of vegetable acids, extractive substances and aromatic principles as to act powerfully in the capacity of refrigerants, tonics and antiseptics; and when freely used at the season of ripeness, by rural laborers and others, probably maintain and strengthen the power of productive labor.—Liebig.

LITTLE CHILDREN.

"What can little children do?
Little preachers of the Word,
Can those tiny dimpled hands
Labor for the blessed Lord?
Little hearts can beat for him,
Thinking how he blessed them;
Took them in his arms of love,
And smiled as he carried them.
Little lips can speak for him,
Careful that no naughty word
And no harsh and angry tones,
Only loving ones be heard.
Little feet can run for him,
Carrying comforts to his poor:
Gentle messengers of love,
How they 'll bless you o'er and o'er!
Little children, love the Savior,
Strive his blessed work to do;
Then among the 'many mansions,'
One he will prepare for you."

SOUTHERN PALMETTOS.

Dear Children:—I must tell you about the palmettos on the coast of Georgia. I think there are more than two hundred varieties of palms. The palmetto is found usually in warm climates, and on low, sandy loam, and in close proximity to salt water. They abound along the coast of Georgia, and I am told in South Carolina. I have seen beautiful groves of them when going south from Savannah. They grow from fifteen to forty-five feet high, and from five to fifteen inches in diameter. Straight trunks, free from limbs till near the top, covered with a dry, scaly bark, and from the top a large cluster of leaves shoots out tightly bound together.

The warm rains swell the cluster, and it slowly breaks apart, and as the leaves grow they hang downwards forming a graceful parachute in nature. They wear a lovely green crown, making them look queenly. I am told every year a new cluster is formed, making, in a few years, a number of tiers of leaves one above the other. When the clusters are forming they are soft and good for food, which is called cabbage, and it is very palatable, being cooked in a variety of ways. Removing this cluster causes death to the tree, and very many were destroyed by the soldiers in this way.

You remember David says in the 92d Psalm—"The righteous shall flourish like a palm-tree." They are a very long-lived tree.

The leaves are from three to seven feet long, and five or six inches in width, and shaped some like a heart; they are very valuable for a variety of uses; baskets and hats as well as many other things are made from them. The wood is also valuable for ship purposes, as it is never attacked by ship-worms, nor injured by sea water. The wood is spongy, yet tough and strong.

I have seen leaves of the ground-palm large enough for six men to stand on; they are nearly round, and are found further from the coast. You must be good if you would flourish as do these rich, green palmettos.

Your friend, A. L. ADAMS.

NELLIE'S SERMON.

I was staying in the country with a friend whose charming children more than compensated me for the gayeties of the city I had left. The snow lay deep over fields and mountains out of doors, and within the curtains were drawn close, and a huge wooden fire made a beautiful blaze, round which we gathered, young and old, and beguiled the time with a fairy-tale of my telling.

"Another story, Ridy; just one more," said a feminine cupid enthroned upon my knee. Another was told, and then the clock struck the children's bed-time.

There were sober looks, but mamma was firm, and the good-night kisses were given.

"Then Ridy must put Nellie to bed," said the cupid on my lap.

I could not refuse, rather enjoying the idea of making a native cupid of the pretty creature, and soon, in the character of a wild horse, I was galloping up-stairs, with Nellie on my back.

The undressing was done before the nursery fire, and with some unwillingness I covered my cupid with her little white night-gown. Assuming a sudden sweet gravity, she knelt down at my knee, and closed her eyes, and placed her little palms together, and began:

"God b'ess dear papa and mamma, and all my dear b'others and sisters, and all my dear f'ends; and God b'ess Nelly and make her good child." She paused a moment, and added: "And God b'ess Ridy, and make her good child, for Jesus' sake—Amen."

The little prayer for me and the form of it were so unexpected that they surprised me into a few tears, to Nellie's infinite astonishment, who climbed upon my knee, and laid her soft arms around my neck and a tender little cheek against mine. Never, I think, did I hear any sermon half so effective, and often the child's prayer has come back to me with its touching simplicity: "And God b'ess Ridy, and make her good child."—Hearth and Home.

A LONG SERMON.—A lady took her son, of some five years, to church. After the minister had been preaching about half an hour, the little fellow grew sleepy and began to nod. The mother roused him into attention several times by pinching, but as it seemed a hopeless case, she concluded to let him sleep undisturbed. After the little fellow had his nap out, he awoke, and saw the minister still holding forth. He looked up in his mother's face, and innocently asked, "Mother, is it this Sunday night, or is it next Sunday night?"

THE CARPENTER.

I.
O, Lord, at Joseph's humble bench,
Thy hands did handle saw and plane;
Thy hammer nails did drive and clench,—
Avoiding knot and humoring grain.

II.
That thou didst seem, thou wast indeed;
In sport thy tools thou didst not use;
Nor, helping hind's or fisher's need,
The laborer's hire, too nice, refuse.

III.
Lord, might I be but as a saw,
A plane, a chisel, in thy hand!—
No, Lord! I take it back in awe—
Such prayer for me is far too grand.

IV.
I pray, O Master, let me lie,
As on thy bench the favored wood;
Thy saw, thy plane, thy chisel ply,
And work me into something good.

V.
No, no; ambition, holy-high,
Urges for more than both to pray:
Come in, O gracious Force, I cry—
O workman, share my shed of clay.

VI.
Then I, at bench, or desk, or oar,
With last or needle, net or pen,
As thou in Nazareth of yore,
Shall do the Father's will again.

THE PROPHETIC PERIODS.—No. 2.

J. S. WHITE.

I now come to the periods in the twelfth chapter, as proposed. I shall notice them in the order in which they are placed. While Gabriel was explaining the vision, and as he was about to leave, Daniel said—"I looked, and behold, there stood other two, the one on this side of the bank of the river, and one on that side of the bank of the river. And one said to the man clothed in linen, which was upon the waters of the river, How long shall it be to the end of these wonders?" Daniel heard the answer—"It shall be for a time, times, and a half; and when he shall have accomplished to scatter the power of the holy people, all these things shall be finished." Daniel said he heard, but did not understand; and then said—"O my Lord, what shall be the end of these things?" The angel told him to go his way, for the words were closed up and sealed till the time of the end. This was as much as to say to Daniel, Ask no more questions, for my commission was to make you understand the vision you had before I was sent to you, and not to explain any vision you might have afterwards.

This vision of the twelfth chapter is entirely separate from the vision the angel was told to make Daniel understand; hence, when Daniel asked him about it, he was told to go his way. Are we to suppose that after saying this he called Daniel back and went on to explain this vision? I think not. He left Daniel without giving him any information on this vision. After Daniel had seen this, and heard the reply, the angel went on and finished what he was told to make him understand.

I do not think that the 1290 and 1335 days have anything to do with the "time, times, and an half." There was something about this vision Daniel did not understand, and which he wanted to know, but was not told. Daniel's previous vision was so explained to him that he understood it, and he did not intimate to the contrary after the angel told him he had come to give him skill and understanding. There were some things in this vision Daniel could understand, and some things he could not without being told. For this reason he said—"I heard, but I understood not."

After the angel had explained to him a part of the vision in the eighth chapter, and had left him, Daniel said—"None understood it." Why? Because it was not all explained at that time. So in the vision of the twelfth. From the form of the question and answer which Daniel heard, he could know that the "time, times, and an half" would end when the wonders should end. "How long to the end of these wonders?" This is a plain question, and the answer is equally so. One of the wonders was the resurrection. Hence he could see that this time would not end till the resurrection should take place.

But another part of the answer was—"When he shall have accomplished to scatter the power of the holy people, all these things shall be finished." This scattering is not what must take place after this time ends. There is a parallel case in Luke 21—"Jerusalem shall be trodden down of the Gentiles, until the times [or years] of the Gentiles be fulfilled. And there shall be signs in the sun, and in the moon, and in the stars; and upon the earth distress of nations with perplexity." These signs do not come in after the times of the Gentiles are fulfilled. These form another chain of events which take place during the times of the Gentiles. So in the case before us, the "time, times, and an half," will reach to the end of the wonders, to the resurrection; and the scattering is another line of prophecy which may have commenced a long time before these times begin, and is to continue until these times end. Hence Daniel could readily see that these times would reach to the resurrection, as sworn to by the man on the waters of the river.

Another thing Daniel could understand. He could tell how long these times were. He had said to the king of Babylon, that he should eat grass, until seven times passed over him. He saw this fulfilled. Although this was prophetic time, it was literal time. He could understand that these times were one time, two times, and a half of a time. This was just half of the time of seven years, which he had seen fulfilled. How could he understand anything else, without being told? and how can we? This would be three years and a half. We cannot make a year less than three hundred and sixty-five days. God made the sun a rule for the year. In the laws of Moses this rule is carried out. This was the rule for the years of Israel in Egypt, and in Babylon, and for the first time named in the book of Daniel. There are no three hundred and sixty days for a year in all the history of the Jews. How could Daniel know of any such year? The angel did not tell him of any.

We have heard so much said of 1260 days and 1260 years in Daniel, that one might suppose he could read it there. But it is not there. It is supposed that "time, times, and a half," mean three years and a half of three hundred and sixty days each, and that each day is a year, and that these are fulfilled in Roman time, three hundred and sixty-five days to a year. Thus supposing God meant three hundred and sixty days for a year in the prophecy, and three hundred and sixty-five days in its fulfillment; and every fourth year in its fulfillment there are three hundred and sixty-six days, to keep the year within a day of the sun. I think a year in prophecy is just what it would be in its fulfillment. God's rule for days and years being the sun, he would have the years kept with the sun, as nearly as possible, in all his word, as the Jews and all other nations have always done. If so, then if the "times" in the twelfth chapter are three years and a half, they are half of Daniel's seven years; and if not, then neither Daniel or any one else could or can tell how long this time is.

There is one thing about this vision that Daniel did not and could not understand without being told. He did not know when these times would commence. He was told definitely enough when they would end, but not when they would begin. This he might wish to know. But the angel told him to go his way, and did not mark the beginning of this time. He did tell him that the "wise shall understand." I believe they will, but I do not believe they have understood yet. Some event just before us will mark that time. If not understood before, I believe it will be when the "the sign of the Son of man" is seen in heaven.

"And from the time that the daily sacrifice shall be taken away, and the abomination that maketh desolate set up, there shall be a thousand two hundred and ninety days." What is the "daily"? This word is used about forty times in the Bible. We are told that this word is nowhere used as a proper name except in Daniel. I did not know before that it ever was or could be a proper name. Proper and common names belong to nouns. Daily is not a noun. It has no meaning in itself, only as it is connected with something; and then it is either an adjective or an adverb. It is said that "sacrifice" is a supplied word, and that it does not belong there. A writer wants to know "if the translators could find no word in the Hebrew agreeing to the English word sacrifice." But this writer says the "daily" is continual transgression. Why does he use the word transgression? Is it because there is no word in the Hebrew in this place to answer to the English word "transgression"? The translation reads—"Daily sacrifice, and the transgression of desolation." Does he find in the Hebrew the word transgression where the translators have placed sacrifice? The translators found no word for sacrifice in that place, and they have told us so. But the writer, though he can find no word in the Hebrew for transgression, does not tell us so, and gives us the words "daily transgression" for the meaning of the word "daily." As the word sacrifice is not there, so the word transgression is not there. But admitting his definition is "continual transgression," he makes "daily" an adjective qualifying the common noun, "transgression." Then what becomes of the statement that "daily" is used in Daniel as a proper noun? The angel did not tell Daniel what the daily was; neither did he tell him what the city, sanctuary and desolation were, although he used all these terms while talking with him. Daniel knew what these meant without being told. If he did not know what the daily was, as the angel did not explain it, then he did not make Daniel understand the vision. Daniel's people had a "daily" sacrifice, a "continual" sacrifice, a "daily oblation." This was to be offered "day by day," continually, perpetually.

This sacrifice was to be offered daily in the city, and in the sanctuary. As Daniel knew what the city and sanctuary were, he knew what was done daily in the sanctuary. The priests offered a daily sacrifice. This is what Paul says—"Who needeth not daily, as those high priests, to offer up sacrifice." Heb. 7: 27. Daniel had this sacrifice, or oblation, on his mind when the angel came to him, while he was praying. He said—"Gabriel, whom I had seen in the vision at the beginning, being caused to fly swiftly, touched me about the time of the evening oblation." This was the daily oblation. The Jews offered "the daily meat offering." Numbers 4: 16. "After this manner ye shall offer daily, throughout the seven days the meat of the sacrifice made by fire, of a sweet savor unto the Lord; it shall be offered beside the con*tinual* burnt offering." Num. 28: 24. "Beside the burnt offering, and his meat offering, and the daily burnt offering." Num. 29: 6. "The daily burnt offerings by number, according to the custom, as the duty of every day required."

The word continual is not applied to transgression in the Bible; but it is applied to the daily sacrifices and oblations of the Jews. We are told that "the daily," or, in other words, "the continual transgression" (that is, paganism), was taken away in A. D. 508, in opposition to historical fact; that paganism was made to cease troubling the church under the reign of Constantine, and that it did become extinct throughout the Roman empire under the reign of Theodosius, before A. D. 395. Now to say, in view of the facts before us, that the angel intended that Daniel should understand the "daily" to be paganism, and that he did so understand it, is to me one of those absurdities to which men resort to sustain a theory that cannot stand on its own merits.

Dan. 9: 26, 27—"And the people of the prince that shall come shall destroy the city and the sanctuary; and the end thereof shall be with a flood, and unto the end of the war desolations are determined. And he shall confirm the covenant with many for one week; and in the midst of the week he shall cause the sacrifice and the oblation to cease, and for the overspreading of abominations he shall make it desolate; even until that determined shall be poured upon the desolate."

Things here are so plainly stated, Jesus could well say, "When ye see the abomination of desolation, spoken of by Daniel the prophet, standing in the holy place, whoso readeth let him understand." Understand what? Understand that the people of the prince have come, and that they will destroy the city and the sanctuary; that there will be war, and desolations will follow the war. And so Jesus said, "Let them that be in Judea flee unto the mountains." For they would understand that they could have no place in the city, as it was to be destroyed, and desolation would spread over the land; and the people of the prince would cause the sacrifice and the oblation to cease. The sacrifice was offered daily by the Jews, Daniel's people. This is "the daily" that was to be taken away. In Num. 29: 6, it is called "the daily burnt offering." How is it possible that Daniel could by the instructions of the angel understand the daily to be anything aside from the daily sacrifices, or oblations, which were offered in the city and in the sanctuary, which were to be destroyed, and in which the sacrifice and oblation were to cease? And how any one can understand otherwise, who reads Daniel as directed by the Savior, is a problem that I cannot comprehend.

"And from the time that the daily sacrifice shall be taken away, to set up the abomination that maketh desolate, there shall be a thousand two hundred and ninety days." See margin, Dan. 12: 11. As the Lord sent Gabriel to make him understand the vision, are we at liberty to alter the explanation, and so make him say or mean what he did not say? Would Ezekiel or any one else have been at liberty to say that a day in his case represented a year, if the Lord had not told him so? Nor have we a right to say that Gabriel meant by these days so many years, without his saying so. He neither said or intimated this. Daniel knew that the seven times were literally seven years, and that the seventy weeks were literally four hundred and ninety years. How then could he suppose that these days were so many years, in the absence of any information to that effect? I think he could not, neither should we. We should take God's interpretation of his own word, as he has given it to us, without correcting him by taking from or adding to it. If we may correct God in this place, why not correct him in other places where he explained his word? Why not correct the Savior in his explanation of his parables? Gabriel said "days," not years, and he did not say that he meant years. It may be said, If we call these days literal, we cannot make them come out right. The plain import of this is, We cannot make them support our theory, which must be supported, even though we have to say that God meant what he did not say.

What event marked the end of the 1290 days? I do not know of any event that has come down to us in history that marks the end of these days; neither is it necessary that we should know. The beginning of them is marked, and the length of them—"From the time that the daily sacrifice was taken away, to set up the abomination that maketh desolate." The daily was taken away by the people that came to destroy the city and the sanctuary. In that siege "the sacrifice and oblation ceased." From that time there shall be 1290 days to the setting up of the abomination of desolation. Setting up the abomination I understand to be the establishing of false worship in Jerusalem, the place where God had ordered and regulated his true worship. It must have required some time, after the city was taken, to prepare for the regular pagan worship to be established. When this was done the 1290 days ended. When paganism was removed from the Roman empire, it did not remove false worship, or anti-gospel worship, from Jerusalem. The worship there was in another form. The Mahometans have held that place for their worship for nearly seven hundred years. It will be a place for a kind of worship of God, until the times of the Gentiles are fulfilled, and until the consummation, and "that determined shall be poured upon the desolator."

Some, of late, make these days end in 1828. But what do they find at that date? They find Mr. Miller studying the prophecies, which resulted in the conclusion that the advent of our Savior would take place "about" 1843. Mr. Miller began to make his views public in 1831. He had fifteen ways by which he thought he proved his position. When his arguments had proved a failure, Mr. Miller at once acknowledged and confessed his mistake as publicly as he had advocated it. And he said to individuals, that he believed it would be forty years before the Lord would come, answering to the forty years of the sojourn of Israel in the wilderness. He said it would be of no benefit to say that publicly, for the brethren would think he was crazy. I think some of them would have said he was "backslidden," had "given up the faith," "become worldly-minded," "wanted to be popular." For this is what some now say of those who do not endorse their elastic arguments, and believe in every point of time to which they are pleased to stretch them. It is will in an error, and not faith in the truth, that prompts a man to proscribe those who do not embrace the error.

"Blessed is he that waiteth and cometh to the 1335 days. But go thou thy way till the end be; for thou shalt rest, and stand in thy lot at the end of the days." This period is as definitely marked at the beginning and end as are the seventy weeks. The seventy weeks began at the going forth of the commandment to rebuild Jerusalem, and they ended at the destruction of the city, and at the breaking up of the nation. So the 1335 days will begin when Daniel and all the saints shall be raised from the dead. Said Christ—"Ye shall be recompensed at the resurrection of the just." Blessed is he that waiteth and cometh to these days. Coming to them may not be coming to the end of them. We come to the year 1872 before we come to the end of it.

These days will commence when Christ comes and raises the dead, and clothes them with immortality. Then they will be blessed. Daniel will rest, and stand in his lot at the end of these days. This rest is not in the grave. It is the rest which God has promised to his people. "There remaineth a rest to the people of God." Daniel will be in his lot—the land of rest, of which Canaan into which Joshua brought the people was a type. Something must be done after Daniel is raised from the dead, before he will be in the land promised to Christ and to his people. The sanctuary must be cleansed. This will be done at the end of the days. Daniel knew what it was to stand in his lot. His people had the land of Canaan divided unto them by lot. Joshua did this; but he did not give them the land, and the rest of which that was a type. Before Christ will bring his people into the land to rest, he will prepare the land, the place of rest. Gabriel had told Daniel of the resurrection, so he could readily see what the angel meant by being blessed when he should come to these days; and he could as easily see what was meant by standing in his lot at the end of them.

"The 1335 days." The word "the" seems to give these days a significance distinct from any other days the angel had named. All the other times named in making Daniel understand the vision were to be fulfilled before or at the resurrection. But this time begins at the resurrection, and ends when the sanctuary is cleansed, and Daniel is in his lot. The land of Canaan is called the sanctuary. Gen. 15; 17; Ps. 78: 54.

This is my view of the prophetic periods. I do not know that I am right in every thing that pertains to them. "If, after some thirty years of experience . . . we should have made some progress in our understanding and knowledge of prophecy," it may be we do not yet know all that may be known. Hence there may be a chance for us to learn something more. I have not learned so much of the Hebrew and Chaldee languages, in which Daniel wrote his prophecies, as to be able to say, without any qualification, that the word "determined," in chapter ninth, "should be rendered 'cut off.'" I have learned that where God has ordered an explanation of his word, as in the case of Gabriel to Daniel, not to change his word into something entirely different from what he said. This is not "belittleing" God's word. I think we shall know more about prophecy than any of us now know, before the end comes.

While I believe the coming of the Lord is very near, I do not believe that, when he does come, he will find his people in the state they are now in. His people will understand. They will be of one heart and of one mind, the world over. They will not be found arguing, or disputing about time, nor any other subject. They will be in the exercise of the faith that works by love. This faith seeks for the truth, with a willingness that the Lord's word should teach one thing, as another. The man of faith has no will aside from the Lord's. He will not, neither can he, morally speaking, make his opinions a test for others. When one is controled by will, in teaching an error, he will be very likely to drive his error, at all hazards, and every one must be thrown one side who does not embrace his doctrine. We have not so learned Christ. "Sanctify them through thy truth; thy word is truth." When Jesus comes he will find all his people in a state of sanctification. The Bride will have made herself ready.

Here is an extract from a torn out leaf of an old printed sermon—whose we know not—and which shows the style of preaching one hundred and fifty years ago, "Oh! look but down into the bottomless pit; seest thou how the smoke of their torment ascendeth forever and ever?—How black are the fiends! How furious are their tormentors! 'Tis their only music to hear their miserable patients roar, to hear their bones crack! 'Tis their meat and drink to see how the flesh frieth, and their fat droppeth; to drench them with burning metal, and to rip open their bodies and to pour in fierce, burning brass into their bowels, and the recesses and ventricles of their hearts." Not exactly modern.

TWO DISTINCT RESURRECTIONS.

T. M. PREBLE.

Whenever the resurrection of the righteous is mentioned in the Bible in the same connection with that of the wicked, the righteous are always named first; both as it respects the time and the order of their resurrection, as the following will show:—

1. We will take two examples as it respects the order. Let it be remembered that in connection with the resurrection, if the term life, or damnation, or condemnation is named, the one unto life is always mentioned first; as in Dan. 12: 2—"Some to everlasting life, and some to shame and everlasting contempt." Also in John 5: 23—"They that have done good, unto the resurrection of life, and they that have done evil, unto the resurrection of damnation."

2. The following passages have respect to the time of their resurrection—"Christ the first fruits; afterwards they that are Christ's at his coming." 1 Cor. 15: 23. "Blessed and holy is he that hath part in the first resurrection." Rev. 20: 6. This word "first" is from the Greek protos, which signifies order of time, as its primary meaning. Hence, we see that there are two distinct resurrections taught in the Scriptures; first, the resurrection of the righteous; and, second, the resurrection of the wicked. This doctrine is most clearly taught in the New Testament, as the following additional Scriptures will prove:—

(1). In Luke 14: 14, two resurrections are taught, the same as in the passages just quoted above from Rev. 20: 5, 6, as it would be absurd to say—"at the resurrection of the just," if the "unjust" are to be raised at the same time. For if the righteous and the wicked are to be raised at the same time, then the idea would be clearly expressed by saying—"Thou shalt be recompensed at the resurrection"; for it would be needless to add, "of the just," if both classes are to be raised at the same time.

(2). Again, in Luke 20: 35, 36, Christ taught two resurrections in the following language—"And they which shall be accounted worthy to obtain that world, and the resurrection from the dead" (that is, from the dead ones), "they are equal unto the angels; and are the children of God, being the children of the resurrection." What resurrection? Answer. The first, for none come forth in this resurrection except those who are "worthy to obtain that world"; and consequently they are "the children of God, being the children of the resurrection"; "neither can they die any more"; clearly implying that those who are not worthy to obtain that world, can die, and will die again, because they are not the children of God, as they do not attain unto the first resurrection (Rev. 20: 6); and consequently they will die "the second death" at the end of "the thousand years."

(3). Again, in John 5: 28, 29, two resurrections are positively taught. The first is called "the resurrection of life," and the second "the resurrection of damnation." Now if Christ here taught but one resurrection, then the text should read—"All that are in the graves shall hear his voice, and shall come forth; they that have done good," and "they that have done evil," "unto the resurrection." But instead of this, our Savior definitely names the two distinct resurrections by saying—"unto the resurrection of life," and "unto the resurrection of damnation." But if a part of those who are to come forth in one and the same resurrection are to be damned, then it cannot be called a resurrection of life. And if a part are to come forth unto life, then it cannot be a resurrection of damnation. In such a case, it would be a mixed resurrection, and called simply the resurrection. But Christ did here teach positively two distinct resurrections; the first unto life, and the second unto damnation, or condemnation, as will appear if we particularly notice the phrases unto life, and unto damnation. For it would be a very great absurdity for us to say that any one could come forth "unto the resurrection of damnation," if there is never to be any such thing. This would be impossible, for no one can ever come unto a thing which does not exist. But Christ here states explicitly that some, those who have done evil, shall "come forth unto the resurrection of damnation." And such will be "hurt of the second death" (Rev. 2: 11), at the end of "the thousand years," as is proved by Rev. 20: 1-9.

(4). And again, in John 11: 24, where Martha in speaking of her brother said—"I know that he shall rise again in the resurrection at the last day." She well knew that her brother would have his resurrection with the just, at "the resurrection of life," or what is called in Rev. 20: 6 the "first resurrection," "at the last day." But why did she say "at the last day," if all, righteous and wicked, have their resurrection at that time? The righteous only have their resurrection then. See John 6: 39, 40, 44, 54. Two resurrections are plainly implied here; the first at the last day, and the second afterwards, when death and hell (hades) will deliver "up the dead which were in them," at the end of "the thousand years," as seen by Rev. 20: 5-9, and 13.

(5). This doctrine of two distinct resurrections is also taught in Heb. 11: 35, where the first is stated to be "a better resurrection." But better than what? Why, the first will be far better than the second, as the first will be "unto" life; and the second will be "unto" "the second death."

(6). Also in Phil. 3: 11, two resurrections are taught, where the apostle Paul tells us how he labored that he "might attain unto the resurrection of the dead," or "out from the dead ones."—Diaglott. What did the apostle mean when he said—"If by any means I might attain unto the resurrection of the dead"? If he was a believer in but one resurrection, was he afraid that he would not be raised then? What nonsense must be attached to the great apostle's language, if he did not believe in two distinct resurrections? If we take what Christ said in Luke 14: 14—"Thou shalt be recompensed at the resurrection of the just"—in connection with Acts 24: 15—"There shall be a resurrection of the dead, both of the just and unjust"—we can understand why Paul was determined to "attain unto the resurrection" "at the last day," "the first resurrection." And this proves the apostle sound in the faith of two resurrections; and why he was determined "by any means" to attain unto the resurrection of life; for he well knew that, if he did not attain unto the first, the "better" resurrection, then he would have to "come forth" unto the resurrection of condemnation, and "be hurt of the second death."

It may be said that there are other passages which will conflict with this view of two resurrections. But where are such passages to be found? If for an answer we are referred to Matt. 13: 37-42; Matt. 25: 31-46; 2 Thess. 1: 7-10, etc.; we reply that such Scriptures by no means contradict the idea of two resurrections. The only way these passages are made to disprove the doctrine, is, by drawing an unscriptural inference from them. The inference is drawn from the words "when," "then," etc., in these passages, which are supposed to teach that at the particular point of time of Christ's second appearing, he will then do all that is said shall be done "when," or after he comes. But when we attempt to expound such portions of the word of God as referred to above, we must not overlook the great fact that Christ is spoken of as making two advents to this world. And when he came the first time, it took him between thirty and forty years to accomplish all he did at his first coming. And so when he comes the second time, all that he does after he comes, we may properly say will be done "when he shall be revealed from heaven, . . . taking vengeance on them that know not God"; and "when he shall come to be glorified in his saints"; although it will take a much longer period of time for him to do all this, than it took to do all he did when he came the first time.

But it will be asked, how the wicked can see Christ, "when he cometh with clouds," if they are not then raised from the dead? We reply, there is no such passage to be found in the Bible. When Rev. 1: 4-7, is taken altogether, it will explain this. It says that Christ "is to come," who is "the first begotten of the dead," and "the prince of the kings of the earth"; and that he will make "us kings and priests unto God and his Father"; and to him is promised "glory and dominion forever and ever." And so "when," or after, he comes "with clouds," every eye shall see him in possession of his "glory and dominion," even those who "pierced him; and all kindreds of the earth shall wail because of him," when they see him thus in his "glory and dominion." And this they—the wicked—will see after they are raised from the dead at the end of "the thousand years." For they are to "see Abraham, and Isaac, and Jacob, and all the prophets, in the kingdom of God," and they themselves "thrust out." Luke 13: 28. And we must bear in mind that when he comes into possession of his glory and dominion, it will last "forever and ever." Thus we see that such a "when" as this, has quite a long period attached to it; and the wicked can and will "see" this "glory," although they will not "behold" it until a "thousand years" after it begins. With this view agrees Matt. 25: 31-46—For "when the Son of man shall come in his glory, . . . then shall he sit upon the throne of his glory." And "when" or while he shall thus sit upon the throne of his glory, "before him shall be gathered all nations; and he shall separate them one from another." But how long will the Son of man "sit upon the throne of his glory"? As long as he possesses "glory and dominion"; and this will be "forever and ever." And hence, when or while he sits upon the throne of his glory, executing his authority in his dominion, he will "separate" the righteous from the wicked; the saints, then being made immortal, will inherit the kingdom; and the wicked will be made to depart, or "go away into everlasting punishment." And so all is made plain; as when or after Christ comes with clouds, and takes the throne of his glory, he, in the majesty of his glory and dominion, will finally separate the righteous from the wicked, because the Father has "given him authority to execute judgment also, because he is the Son of man." John 5: 27.

Again, if it is claimed that the passage in Matt. 13: 37-42, militates against the idea of two resurrections, because some understand that the wicked are to be punished upon this earth, before it is made to pass through its change; we have to say that the wicked are to be first "gathered out" of the "field," which is this world (kosmos), and after this they are to be cast into a "furnace of fire." And this will be done by the authority of the Son of man at the end of the thousand years; for the wicked must first "see Abraham, and Isaac, and Jacob, and all the prophets in the kingdom of God; and after this they must be thrust out." Luke 13: 28. And surely, no one can ever be thrust out of a place they never were in. Again, it must be noticed that the wicked are to "go away" from the place they before occupied "into" another place to receive their final punishment. And when the Scriptures are carefully examined, and correctly understood, it will be found that there are to be two distinct resurrections: the first, of the righteous at the beginning of "the thousand years" of Rev. 20; and the second, of the wicked at the end of those years.

If the objection should be raised against this that "the wicked must then be burned up twice;" we reply, so will the wicked be burned up twice who have died their first death by being consumed by fire in steamboats, in dwelling houses, and in many other ways. For an example, let us take the terrible fires which have destroyed so many lives in the States of Ill., Wis., and Mich., within the last few months. No doubt many sinners perished in those fires. And must we conclude that because they thus died by being burned up, they will, therefore, be excluded from a resurrection? Who can believe this? If we can rely upon the reports, many who perished in those late fires really felt as though the day of judgment had come; and we may well conclude that such felt, and suffered, the same as sinners will feel in that day "that shall burn as an oven." Mal. 4: 1. And for aught they knew, the whole world might have been on fire, for they could not see beyond its limits. But these scenes bear but a faint resemblance to what will take place in that great day which is just at hand.

In Malachi's burning day, which will "burn as an oven," the living wicked will be made to die their first death. But the fire which will "devour" all the wicked who shall be raised from the dead at the end of "the thousand years," will "come down from God out of heaven." Rev. 20: 9. And if we only bear in mind that the fire that was sent upon Sodom and Gomorrah was "rained" down "from the Lord out of heaven" (Gen. 13: 24); and also that, "turning the cities of Sodom and Gomorrah into ashes;" thus "making them an ensample unto those that after should live ungodly" (2 Pet. 2: 6); then we shall learn that the fire which will put a final end to all the wicked will also "come down from God out of heaven." For "upon the wicked he shall rain snares [quick burning coals—margin], fire and brimstone, and an horrible tempest, [or a burning tempest—margin]: this shall be the portion of their cup." Ps. 11: 6. This agrees also with Rev. 20: 14, 15; and 21: 8, where it is declared that "the fearful, and unbelieving, and the abominable, and murderers, and whoremongers, and sorcerers, and idolaters, and all liars, shall have their part in the lake which burneth with fire and brimstone; which is the second death."

Some reject this view of the matter, because of the seeming inconsistency, or, as some say, the impossibility of the wicked thus being burned up while encompassing "the camp of the saints about, and the beloved city." Rev. 20: 9. But when such persons can tell how God could preserve the "three men" in the "burning fiery furnace," "upon whose bodies the fire had no power, nor was an hair of their head singed;" or how God could make man's brains and eyes of the dust of the ground; or how he can raise men from their death state in the "dust of the earth;" and ten thousand other things which infidels say are impossible for God to do; then it will be time for them to talk about impossibilities in regard to the time when, the place where, and the manner how, God will put a final end to the wicked. "Blessed and holy is he that hath part in the first resurrection; on such the second death hath no power."—Bible Banner.

FOREVER WITH JESUS.

J. W. THOMAS.

"So shall we be ever with the Lord."—1 Thess. 4: 17.

Beyond this world of sorrow there is a realm of peaceful blessedness where all tears shall be wiped away, and the weary pilgrims find their long-sought home. No tongue can describe the glories or pen delineate the beauties of that place. It will have many attractions. There will be the holy city, with its splendor and magnificence. Its streets of gold, gates of pearl, walls of precious stones, mansions of rich adorning; the crystal river, the tree of life, flowers of brilliant hues, and all the fadeless drapery and resplendent glory that will adorn that garden of delight. There will be songs of joy, psalms of victory, robes of purity, crowns of glory, such as mortals have never seen or heard. It is the home of God and of angels; the meeting-place of the holy and blest of every age. There husbands shall meet wives, and wives husbands; the mother greet the child she lost in infancy, the father the son; friend shall greet friend, and ties snapped asunder here shall there be knit in eternal bonds.

The saints scattered through every age and in every land will there meet in one happy, immortal family, and the garland of eternal joy shall weave itself around their glowing hearts. Sorrow will be forgotten, and the light and glory of God hallow all the scene. Earth will be disrobed of the curse, and illuminated with the unsullied radiance of the Divine presence. Its hills and vales and groves will be clothed with eternal verdure, and no winds or storms will mar its beauty or deform its loveliness again:

"Mine ear hath heard, mine eye hath seen,
The glories of that home of song;
Though stormy billows roll between,
I go to join the angel throng.
But of the joys beyond the tide,
The welcome on that golden strand,
The best will be from Him, who died
To bring me to that shining land.

Yes, this will make our joys complete. Jesus will be there. This is the best of it all. Heaven would lose its richest beauty, its brightest glory, and its sweetest joy, if Jesus were not there. But Jesus will be there. His throne shall be in the city, and his glory fill the place. His presence will be the joy of the saved. We shall be forever with the Lord,—in his immediate presence, to see his face, and hear his voice. His praise will be our song.

Round the throne ten thousand times ten thousand voices will strike the chorus, saying—"Thou art worthy, for thou wast slain, and hast redeemed us to God by thy blood, out of every kindred, and nation, and tongue, and people, under heaven, and hast made us kings and priests unto our God, and we shall reign on the earth." Will it not be blessed to be there? Who can conceive the glory and unspeakable delight of that heavenly world? All tears will be wiped from our eyes, and "there shall be no more death, neither sorrow nor crying; neither shall there be any more pain; for the former things are passed away." There

"Peace shall wave her sceptre high,
And love's fair banner greet the eye,
Proclaiming victory."

But the best of all is, Jesus, our own dear Savior will be King, and we shall be forever happy in his presence, and safe under his protection.

The World's Crisis
AND
SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

Boston, Wednesday, March 27, 1872.

☞ Please Remember!

☞ All remittances to this office, in the form of Drafts, Bank Checks, and Postal Money-Orders, should be made payable to the Business Agent, GEO. T. ADAMS.

☞ THOSE who send articles for the Crisis, should direct them to MILES GRANT, Boston, and not to the Business Agent.

"THE WORLD'S CRISIS."

REDUCTION OF ITS SUBSCRIPTION PRICE.

At a meeting of the Advent Christian Publication Society, held August 23d, 1871, it was voted as follows:—

"That at any time during the year, if in the judgment of the Editor, Editorial Committee, and Business Agent, they see fit to reduce the price of subscription for the World's Crisis, they be authorized to do so."

It was stated in our last annual report, that if our subscribers all paid up promptly, the Society would be able to reduce the price of "our paper" to $2.00 per year. Independent of the names on our free list, $2.00 from each subscriber would give us a larger sum than we have ever received in any one year the Crisis. This would enable us to continue the paper, as before, to the worthy on our free list, and pay all our bills promptly. We have been making special efforts to collect the dues on the paper, and have met with some success, yet not so full as we ought.

In accordance with the above vote, we have now decided to reduce the subscription price of

THE WORLD'S CRISIS,
Commencing with Volume XXXV.,
April 3d, 1872, to
$2.00 per year, Payable in Advance.

In remitting, our subscribers will please send for what they are owing, at the rate of $2.50 per year, to April 3d; $2.00, and at the same rate, for less than a year for the issue from that time forward.

As our price will be less, our friends will see that in order for our receipts to hold good, the number of paying subscribers must be increased; while the number of non-paying ones is diminished. Now we hope this may be accomplished; first, by an earnest, united, successful effort on the part of the friends of the Crisis in procuring and sending to the Office the names of a large number of new subscribers. Second, that a large number whose names have been on our books for years—delinquents, who have not paid any thing for a long time, will now at once write us, remitting a part, at least, of what they are owing, and paying for a year in advance, and thus become paying subscribers in fact, while for a long time they have been only such in name; otherwise, if we do not hear from them, we shall be compelled to drop their names from our list.

In regard to our free list, we would say—We hope that our receipts may be kept good as above, so that the Society may be able to continue the paper to the worthy poor among us, many of whom are in very destitute circumstances, and who should receive the Crisis freely so long as published. Yet it may be that there are some on the free list who are able to pay something. We trust they will do as the Lord would have them, but let none of the poor distress themselves. We believe the friends will see that we have funds to continue the paper to you as heretofore. Now is a good time for those who remit for themselves to put in something for the "poor fund." Those who are free to remit $2.50, as usual, can do so, and we will place the extra 50 cents on the fund to send the Crisis to the poor, free.

We doubt not the reduction will please our friends everywhere, and we hope they will sustain us in the same by their efforts and prayers. GEO. T. ADAMS,
Business Agent.

THE SABBATH DISCUSSION.

We see and hear of special good fruits from our late discussion of the Sabbath question with Eld. M. E. Cornell. Those who were before perplexed and unsettled on the subject, are now at rest, and rejoicing in the Lord more than ever. They see the beautiful harmony of the Scriptures in clearer light and greater simplicity, and read them with new delight and satisfaction. We have much reason to thank the Lord for the results of the discussion in San Francisco.

During the discussion there was considerable talk about the ordinances. Elder C. claimed they were abolished, but not the covenant with which they were connected. We found Paul saying—"Then verily the first covenant had also ordinances of divine service, and a worldly sanctuary." Heb. 9: 1. In the preceding verse he says—"In that he saith, A new covenant, he hath made the first old. Now that which decayeth and waxeth old is ready to vanish away." These scriptures show that "the first" covenant is the one that became "old" and "had also ordinances." Did the "ordinances" have the "ordinances"? No, "the first covenant had also ordinances of divine service." It is sometimes said "the first covenant consisted in ordinances"; but Paul said it had—possessed—"ordinances of divine service, and a worldly sanctuary." The "ordinances" and the "sanctuary" were inseparably connected with "the first covenant." It was not a covenant of "ordinances," but one that ended with them. This covenant was the "first," the one made at Mt. Sinai, that became "old," which in a former article we showed consisted of the ten commandments, and nothing more.

Let us now look at the "worldly sanctuary" connected with this "first covenant." Says Paul—"For there was a tabernacle made; the first [part] wherein was the candlestick, and the table, and the shew-bread; which is called the sanctuary. And after the second vail, the tabernacle which is called the holiest of all; which had the golden censer, and the ark of the covenant overlaid round about with gold, wherein were . . . the tables of the covenant." Heb. 9: 2–4. We will now let Paul tell us about the "ordinances of divine service" connected with this first covenant. He says—

"Now when these things were first ordained, the priests went always into the first [part of the] tabernacle, accomplishing the service of God. But into the second [part] went the high priest alone once every year, not without blood, which he offered for himself, and for the errors of the people; the Holy Ghost this signifying, that the way into the holiest of all was not yet made manifest, while as the first tabernacle was yet standing; which was a figure for the time then present, in which were offered both gifts and sacrifices, that could not make him that did the service perfect, as pertaining to the conscience; which stood only in meats and drinks, and divers washings, and carnal ordinances, imposed on them until the time of reformation." Heb. 9: 6–10.

Here we have the "divine service" attached to the "first covenant." Is that "divine service" abolished? Certainly. Why? Because the "first covenant" is abolished that required that "service." The one could not exist without the other, because they were constituted to go together. To say the "divine service" is abolished which was essential to the keeping of the covenant, and that the covenant continues in force, would be very unreasonable and inconsistent. It would not be right to abolish the "divine service" so long as the "first covenant" was binding upon a single person.

We have heard it said there should be some formal proclamation declaring that the first covenant is abolished, as plainly as it was first announced. The confirmation of the New Covenant, by Christ, was the act that abolished the old. When a new constitution of a State is ratified, or confirmed, it annuls the old one. No other proclamation is needed. When the new covenant, or constitution, is confirmed, everything in the old is null and void that is not incorporated into the new. The "feast day"—the seventh-day Sabbath—of the old covenant, enjoined upon the Hebrews to commemorate their deliverance out of Egypt, and placed in the heart of that covenant, is not enjoined in the new covenant; therefore, it is not now binding. Whoever attempts to keep it, should consider himself under the old covenant, and attend to the "ordinances of divine service." But if he should attempt to do so, where is his "worldly sanctuary" and "the ark of the covenant"? and where are his "priests" to offer his sacrifices and burnt offerings? And should he have them all arranged and in operation, what would he be saying of Christ? Why—why—I—I have left him and the new covenant, and gone back to the old, so as to observe the seventh-day Sabbath. Will that save you? If you are under the new covenant, why seek salvation through that which is abolished?

Says Paul—"He [Christ] is the mediator of a better covenant, which was established upon better promises. For if that first covenant had been faultless, then should no place have been found for the second." Heb. 8: 6, 7. Does the first covenant run beyond the second? Certainly not. The first covenant consisted of the ten commandments, and had "ordinances of divine service." The first covenant became the old one, and was abolished with its ordinances. As its "feast day" is not in the new covenant, it is abolished.

Let us hear Paul again—"Blotting out the handwriting of ordinances that was against us, which was contrary to us, and took it out of the way, nailing it to his cross." What next? "Let no man therefore judge you . . . in respect of an holy day, or of the new moon, or the Sabbath days; which are a shadow of things to come; but the body is of Christ." Col. 2: 14, 16, 17. The word days, following the word Sabbath, is not in the original. A shadow never passes on to the bright side of the object that casts the shadow. It stops when we get to the body. The Sabbath of the seventh day was among the shadows that only reached to Christ; then he becomes our perpetual rest. Let us continue to rest wholly in him, and not in the law; "for if righteousness come by the law, then Christ is dead in vain." Gal. 2: 21. "Christ is become of no effect unto you, whosoever of you are justified by the law; ye are fallen from grace." Gal. 5: 4.

CALIFORNIA SOCIETY.

The society in California has some peculiarities not seen in other places. There is less respect paid to sacred things, and more to pleasure; less attention to standard literature; and more to light reading and amusement, than in the States east of the Mississippi river.

On the Lord's day, a large proportion of groceries, shops, stores, and other places of business are open the same as on week days. It is a day of special amusements. In San Francisco, at Woodward's Gardens, large crowds assemble to witness circus performances, exhibitions of a menagerie, skating on rollers, and other scenes of amusement. Each does what seems right in his own eyes. It may be truly said, "their wickedness is great." A truly religious person is looked upon as a deluded person, and to be pitied for his ignorance. Intemperance has a strong hold upon many prominent men; and not a few women use stimulating drink freely. Nearly all the men use tobacco. Voluptuousness prevails alarmingly. Satan controls the main springs of society more fully than in any other place we have ever been acquainted. It requires great effort to get one away from under all these seducing influences. A large number have lost their confidence in christianity, because so many professors of religion live like the world. The popular ministers are bending to the worldly current in order to keep the sympathy of those who lead in society; thus aiding to weaken the power of vital godliness. Pure christianity is scarce; yet there are members of the various churches whose eyes are being opened to the sad state of things. They feel discouraged on account of the coldness and indifference of the great body of church members. We see no prospect of any improvement; but we do see the opposite. The broad road to destruction is crowded; while the path to eternal life has but here and there a traveler. Let us, dear reader, be with the humble few, who shall inherit everlasting life.

The people in San Francisco are living fast. They believe in the saying:—"A short life and a merry one." Apparently, they seem to take things quite easily. The bill-poster goes with his horse and buggy; so does the mail distributor, and the knife-grinder. We have not seen that extreme poverty so common in cities of this size; yet there are many poor people. Money has been obtained easily, and spent freely, especially for self-gratification. This is a natural result. It is in harmony with the laws that govern unregenerated human nature. There are a large number of mere wrecks of humanity on the Pacific coast. Among them are some noble noble specimens of men, so far as physical constitution, generous hearts, and strong mental powers are concerned. There are many here who do their own thinking. If they could be brought to Christ, they would make earnest christians. They have no confidence in the fashionable religion now so common.

WHAT OTHERS THINK.—In the Boston Investigator, the advocate of Atheism, we find the following: "A western correspondent wishes to know who Elder Grant is? He is the Editor of the World's Crisis, a Second Advent paper, which has been saying for the last thirty-three years, 'Behold I come quickly,' meaning that Jesus may come at any moment to burn up the world. The Elder is a crack preacher of this nonsense; makes a good living out of it, and is not yet in an insane asylum."

"ANNIHILATIONISM."

Under the above heading a four-paged tract was circulated at Sacramento during our meetings in that city. We understand it was prepared for the occasion, by the few Plymouth brethren in that city, as a warning against the influence of our preaching. We quote from the tract as follows:—

ANNIHILATIONISM.

"Prove all things. Hold fast that which is good."—1 THESS. 5: 21.

"There were false prophets among the people, even as there shall be false teachers among you, who privily shall bring in damnable heresies, even denying the Lord that bought them."—2 Pet. 2: 1.

Who and where are these false teachers? "Also of your own selves" (saith the Spirit of God through the apostle Paul to the Christians at Ephesus) "shall men arise, speaking perverse things, to draw away disciples after them. Acts 20: 30.

Dear reader, if you are indeed a believer in Jesus, it is well that you should not be led away with the errors of the wicked; but ever remember that you are saved, not only unto an eternal weight of glory, but that you have also been saved from the eternal flames of hell, where their worm dieth not and the fire is not quenched, by the grace of God through the changeless efficacy of the blood of Jesus. If you, reader, are a rejecter of Christ, be assured that God will bring every work into judgment; for he hath appointed a day in the which he will judge the world in righteousness—shall judge the secrets of men by Jesus Christ; then the wicked shall be turned into hell and all the nations that forget God, who is able to destroy both soul and body in hell.

There are some false teachers now, who say that man does not possess an immortal soul; that the soul of man and the soul of the beast (yes, even the soul of an insect, if they would but speak plain), comes to the same end. As regards that which is seen by the natural eye, under the sun, it is written of them, "All have one breath." But these false teachers have not the honesty to add, "who knoweth the spirit of man that goeth upward?" They deny that which is written—that the spirit shall return unto God who gave it. Eccl. 12: 7.

For it is also written: "And Elijah said, Oh Lord, my God, I pray thee, let this child's soul come into him again. And the Lord heard the voice of Elijah, and the soul of the child came into him again, and he revived." 1 Kings 17: 21, 22. Be it remembered that when God created man in his own image, he formed (literally builded) man out of the dust of the ground, and God breathed into man's nostrils the breath of life, and man became a living soul. When God created the beast of the earth and every living creature after his kind, cattle and creeping thing after their kind, he did so by his word, at will. He said—"Let the earth bring forth," and it was so. He spake, and it was done. But in creating man God breathed into man's nostrils the breath of life from himself, and man became a living soul. And although man by transgression—by disobedience—became mortal as to his body, and death passed upon him by sin, as God said unto him—"In the day that thou eatest of the tree of knowledge of good and evil, thou shalt surely die." "Dying thou shalt die." See margin, Gen. 2: 17. Death reigned by sin, and man entered that condition in which also every unbelieving sinner is before God (morally) dead in trespasses and sins, yet he is physically alive to the world and its pleasures.

Concerning man it is also written that he is the offspring of God. "For in him [God] we live and move and have our being." In the third chapter of the gospel by Luke, Adam is called the Son of God as distinctly as Isaac is called the son of Abraham. We read the words of the Lord Jesus in the twentieth chapter of the same gospel that "God is not a God of the dead, but of the living, for all live unto him." For as the Lord Jesus plainly tells us in Matt. 10: 28, that man cannot kill the soul, man can only kill the body. Therefore, when man has passed from this world, he is still alive unto God. For all live unto him, and he only who breathed into man's nostrils the breath of life, can destroy that living (and consequently immortal) soul in hell—gehenna. And therefore, reader, be assured that no amount of false reasoning can gainsay these solemn truths, or deliver man from the responsibility of the possession of a never dying soul.

There is nothing new under the sun, for the doctrine of the non-immortality of the soul and its end—annihilation—which is proclaimed by some of the false teachers of the present century, was also taught by the Jewish Mystics and Cabalists and the Gnostics of the second and third centuries, and they were divided into two classes, differing, as annihilationists do now; that is, some hold that the soul dies with the body, and others hold that the soul will be cast into hell-fire afterwards on being judged, and then consumed or annihilated.

Now mark, dear reader, the damnable heresies of these false teachers—the way in which they deny the blessed person and work of the Lord Jesus, whom they profess to believe has bought them. For they say that in Scripture "death means a ceasing to exist." Therefore (according to this doctrine) it follows that when the blessed Lord Jesus died upon the cross "he ceased to exist;" and so it needed a new creation to bring Christ into existence again; and consequently the Christ who is now on the right hand of God is not the same Christ who died upon the cross for sinners. What blasphemy and denial of the Son of God! . . .

These false teachers claim to base their doctrines upon a multitude of passages of Scripture in the Old Testament (as many in the New,) of which the two following may be taken as an illustration—"The wicked shall be cut off, root and branch;" and "the soul that sinneth, it shall die." The careful and honest-minded reader of such portions will readily see and acknowledge that these and other like passages refer only to the taking away of the life of the body because of the sin of the soul, and therein no reference is made to futurity—not even to judgment after death. . . .

Oh, rejecters and gainsayers of the word, of God, remember that when the dead, small and great, stand before his great white throne, at that last judgment day; that when the sea gives up the dead which are in it, and when death gives up the body, and hell (hades) gives up the soul, that from before the face of Him who sits upon that throne the earth and the heaven thereof shall flee away, and no place shall be found for them. And thus man's day and earth's season and periods shall have passed away with them. . . .

Some annihilationists may hereafter be heard saying—"Lord, Lord! have we not prophesied in thy name?" And some Spiritualists may hereafter say (for some of them also now dare to say it)—"Lord, Lord! have we not in thy name done many wonderful works?" But both shall hear, from the Son of God, those solemn words—"I know you not." "Depart from me, ye workers of iniquity."

All false teachers who shall be alive upon the earth when the righteous judgments are poured out upon it, shall in that day cease to trifle with the words of the Lord God Almighty. By their denial of His word now, and their now holding the truth in unrighteousness, they are fitting themselves for destruction; fitting themselves to worship the anti-Christ, the beast and his image, and to receive his mark in their forehead or in their hand; and they shall drink of the wine of the wrath of God which is poured out without mixture into the cup of his indignation."

These brethren would not come to hear; and would not shake hands with us at the close of a private interview. Those who did hear knew the tract put us in a false light; which only served to increase the confidence of the people who were honestly seeking after truth.

MASS. ANNUAL CONFERENCE AT CHELSEA, April 2nd.—We have not succeeded in obtaining a reduction of fare on the various railroads, for those who would attend this meeting next week. It is possible that something may be done on the Eastern road; if so, we will inform the brethren on that line, so far as we can. G. T. A.

PREACHING CHRIST.

Much is involved in preaching Christ. To fully preach Christ, we must preach him in all his official relations to the plan of salvation, past, present, and future, which involves a promulgation of many important truths, some of which we will specify:—

1. In preaching Christ, we must preach him as the sacrificial "Lamb of God which taketh away the sin of the world"; preach that "Christ died for our sins"—"the just for the unjust"—that "the Lord laid on him the iniquity of us all"—that "we are reconciled to God by the death of his Son"; thus involving the irrefutable fact that as Christ saves us by dying for our sins, and by a literal death, his death does not procure salvation for a race of deathless sinners, but simply for a class of sinners who had incurred literal death by transgression. Christ meets the claims of a broken law, by dying for us, and thus exempts us from the penalty incurred by sin, provided we will accept pardon at his hands on his own terms; otherwise the penalty will fall upon the sinner as really as though Christ had never died. Now as Christ's literal death exempts sinners from the penalty incurred by sin, it is evident (1) that the penalty must be literal death, instead of endless misery, for Christ did not experience endless misery; and (2) that as Christ saves men from the death that their sins have called for, by dying for them, and thus meeting the penalty for their sins by a literal death, that his death cannot save deathless sinners, even if such sinners exist, for such sinners could not be exposed to literal death, and Christ died no other death. Christ's death does not ward off temporal death from the believer, as that is only a calamity death, and not the result of the judgment decision against the sinner for his sins; but it wards off another death just as literal—a death of the same literal nature that "Christ died for our sins". This being the case, how can the death of Christ save immortal souls?

2. In preaching Christ, we must preach him as the "first fruits" of a resurrection to immortality; and this involves the preaching of a resurrection of the same nature for all the sleeping saints—"Christ the first fruits; afterward they that are Christ's at his coming." 1 Cor. 15: 23. To deny the literality of the future resurrection of the saints, is to repudiate the literal resurrection of Christ in the past, and thereby blot out the foundation of the gospel hope; "for if the dead rise not, then is not Christ raised; and if Christ be not raised, your faith is vain." 1 Cor. 15: 16, 17. Christ is the resurrected sample of immortalized humanity; "Christ being raised from the dead dieth no more; death hath no more dominion over him." Rom. 6: 9. Of the resurrected saints it is affirmed—"Neither can they die any more." Luke 20: 36. So the resurrection here spoken of, both in the case of Christ and the saints, relates to a release from the power of death, of that part which had once died, which cannot be reconciled with the modern theory of a spiritual resurrection, consisting in a release of a deathless soul from a dying body; for death never had dominion over immortality; nor could it be consistently said of immortal beings—"Neither can they die any more." As Christ's literal resurrection is the "first fruits" of the resurrection of the just, the preaching of this truth is involved in the preaching of Christ as "the first born from the dead."

3. In preaching Christ, we must preach him as our "mediator," or high priest; thus negating the theory of his present Kingship in heaven; for a "mediator" stands between the offenders and the offended, to make reconciliation, being distinct from the two parties. Christ now stands "between" God and man; and as Joseph had all power given into his hands to carry out a plan to keep the people from perishing in a famine, and that, too, without becoming king, so Christ has "all power in heaven and earth" given into his hands for the carrying out of the remedial scheme, without being constituted King. Though he is the honored guest of the Father, upon his throne, he is there as our "mediator," to present his own blood as high priest, thus furnishing a satisfactory basis of settlement, which the Father accepts, and which we, too, must accept in order to a reconciliation. If we refuse to accept, the reconciliation is not effected, and we must perish at last. Thus in preaching Christ as a present "mediator" or High Priest, we repudiate the popular theory of the past establishment of his kingdom—"There is one God, and one mediator between God and man, the man Christ Jesus"; and as a king cannot be a mediator between himself and those who have revolted against him, it is certain that Christ is not King yet.

4. In preaching Christ, we must preach him as a future judge of the race, for he "shall judge the quick and the dead at his appearing." 2 Tim. 4: 1. And this fact not only denies a past judgment at death, but as strongly repudiates a past reward; for unjudged men will neither be received into glory, nor be driven into misery. Indeed, if one man could enter glory in an unjudged state, so could every man do the same; and that would make the future world as bad as the present. If, however, a decision should be made and carried into effect in favor of the righteous at death, that would be the judgment itself; and this would either involve a repudiation of a subsequent judgment, or make Christ repudiate his own work, and do it over again. Our Judge will do his work at the right time, and will not need to do it a second time; and the right time for judgment is expressed by the Savior in these words—"Shall judge him in the last day." Thus it is impossible to fully preach Christ, without preaching him as a future judge, thereby negating past rewards; agreeing with the ancient prophecy of Enoch—"Behold the Lord cometh . . . to execute judgment upon all" (Jude 1: 14, 15); and also harmonizing with the statement of Christ—"For the Son of man shall come in the glory of his Father with his angels; and then he shall reward every man according to his works." Matt. 16: 27. "Behold, I come quickly; and my reward is with me to give to every man according as his works shall be." Rev. 22: 12.

5. In order to fully preach Christ, we must preach him as a coming king to reign on David's throne, instead of preaching him a present king on the throne of heaven; for Gabriel informed Daniel that he should be "Messiah the Prince," or heir to some throne; and the same Gabriel subsequently affirmed—"The Lord God shall give unto him the throne of his Father David." At the first advent, Christ did not receive that throne; but, as the Divine Nobleman, he "went into a far country to receive for himself a kingdom, and to return," leaving behind him enemies who "sent a message after him, saying—We will not have this man to reign over us." But, by-and-by, he will return, "having received for himself the kingdom;" and then he will say—"Those, mine enemies that would not that I should reign over them, bring hither, and slay them before me." Luke 19: 12, 15, 27. He has not yet returned from the far country to overthrow his enemies, and begin his reign; but he will return, and be elevated to his throne in unparalleled grandeur—"When the Son of man shall come in his glory, and all the holy angels with him, then shall he sit upon the throne of his glory: and before him shall be gathered all nations: and he shall separate them one from another, as a shepherd divideth his sheep from the goats: and he shall set the sheep on the right hand, but the goats on the left. Then shall the King say unto them on his right hand, Come, ye blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world." Matt. 25: 31–34. Here he receives the throne of his glory—the glorious throne of his father, David—and begins his reign on earth renewed. It will then be said—"The kingdoms of this world are become the kingdoms of our Lord, and of his Christ: and he shall reign forever and ever." Rev. 11: 15. Then the angel's statement to Daniel will be verified—"The saints of the Most High shall take the kingdom, and possess the kingdom forever, even forever and ever. . . . . And the kingdom and dominion, and the greatness of the kingdom under the whole heaven, shall be given to the people of the saints of the Most High, whose kingdom is an everlasting kingdom, and all dominions shall serve and obey him." Dan. 7: 18, 27. Then Jehovah "shall have put down all rule and all authority and power." Then "Messiah the Prince" shall become earth's great ruler, and "the government shall be upon his shoulder." Then it shall be said—"Behold, the tabernacle of God is with men, and he will dwell with them, and they shall be his people, and God himself shall be with them, and be their God. And God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes; and there shall be no more death, neither sorrow nor crying, neither shall their be any more pain: for the former things are passed away." Rev. 21: 3, 4.

To preach Christ simply as a sufferer upon the cross, is not to preach him fully. To preach him in all the relations which he sustains to the plan of salvation, past, present, and future, is to preach a message differing, in many respects, from what now passes current for gospel. The true "gospel of the kingdom" recognizes Christ as a future king on David's throne, after the resurrection and judgment. It never presents a kingdom of unjudged, disembodied men, but of resurrected subjects—"But they which shall be accounted worthy to obtain that world. . . . . neither can they die any more." Luke 20: 35, 36. The physical man who could once die, is to become deathless, and enter the world to come, instead of an immaterial shadow that never could die. And that kingdom will be on this globe, after sin is exterminated—"Thy kingdom come; thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven." Then the meek "shall inherit the earth." And then will be fulfilled Jehovah's promise—"As truly as I live, all the earth shall be filled with the glory of the Lord." Over such subjects, and in such a realm, will Christ reign, when he shall have "returned, having received for himself the kingdom. W. S.

WHEN BEGOTTEN.

"BRO. SHELDON:—I write you a few lines in regard to a passage of Scripture found in the thirteenth of Acts, last clause of the thirty-third verse—'Thou art my Son, this day have I begotten thee'. Now the question is, when did he become the begotten Son, as brought to view in that verse?" R. P. S.

REPLY.

1. Reference is here made to the initiation of Christ's humanity into the relation of Divine Sonship, at his resurrection, as the context shows—"God hath fulfilled the same unto their children, in that he hath raised up Jesus again; as it is also written in the second Psalm—Thou art my Son, this day have I begotten thee. And as concerning that he raised him up from the dead, now no more to return to corruption," etc. Paul tells us that Christ "was made of the seed of David according to the flesh; and declared to be the Son of God with power, according to the spirit of holiness, by the resurrection from the dead" (Rom. 1: 3, 4), and John affirms, that he is "the first begotten of the dead." Rev. 1: 5.

2. But other Scriptures represent Christ, in his divinity, as being the Son of God before his resurrection. "I am the Son of God." "God sent his Son into the world." In his divinity he was the "only begotten" of the Father before he came into the world. In his humanity, he was "the first begotten of the dead," thus being "the first born among many brethren," or "first born from the dead," to a state of immortality. W. S.

DEFINITE TIME.

O. R. FASSETT.

BELOVED BRETHREN:—I see by the Crisis that a new movement is being inaugurated on this the most uncertain, and but a fractional part of our faith; calculated, I fear, to do the cause we so much love, and for which we are willing to make any sacrifice, much injury.

Let me, your brother "in the kingdom and patience of Jesus Christ," and the sufferings and reproaches "for the word of God, and for the testimony of Jesus Christ," give a kind word of advice. We know, "beloved," that the preaching and publishing of definite time has done evil in the past, and has caused much scandal on the part of the unbelieving by the errors, injudiciousness, as well as honest presentation of the subject. This none of us can deny.

I do not mean to be understood as saying, that the preaching of time has done no good, nor that it was not in the order of the Lord, who overrules all the affairs of his church, that it should have been preached and disseminated abroad; for I believe otherwise. And I cannot reconcile certain scriptures which I now see fulfilled, without a disappointment, and "tarry" of "the Bridegroom," and of "the vision" pertaining to the coming of our Lord, beyond some definite point of expectation. I can say all this, I think, without charging upon God human frailties and mistakes. The church could not well do otherwise than publish to the world the earliest data chronology would warrant for the termination of the prophetic periods, especially as human dates, given us by the ablest chronologers, both dead and living, had as yet been untried; and we did almost believe that divine Providence had guarded these as he had divine revelation; but now we have learned a different lesson, and should be more cautious in the future.

The passing of the times of expectation for the advent of the Redeemer, too, has tried the believers, and given such a public test of it, in not "casting away their confidence" after such serious disappointments and long continued expectation, as the world has scarcely ever witnessed since the beginning. While this unparalleled faith amid scoffing and jeers will entitle those who still hold on to become, with the faithful worthies, "heirs of the righteousness which is by faith," it is calculated to ensnare an unbelieving world, who neither can refute the Scriptures nor arguments upon which our hopes are based, or explain the phenomena of such persistent belief, and therefore heed not the continual warning of the approaching consummation.

All this, I say, may be in the order of an all-wise Providence, who led Israel in the wilderness forty years to humble, to prove, and to know what was in their hearts, and whether they would keep his commandments or no (Deut. 8: 2); yet, my beloved brethren, when we have said all, and justified all that we can consistently in our eventful history, we must confess that injury has been done by the imprudent publication of the set times; and the day which will "try every man's work," and reveal "the hay, wood, and stubble," will declare the evil connected with these movements,—and how much!

Can we forget that some who were once with us, honest and sincere in faith, and joyful in hope, have received such a shock of disappointment as never to recover confidence again, and may not until the Bridegroom comes? And do we not know that the passing of these set times has had a most damaging effect upon our influence as a people, and has in the past, and to-day deters thousands, both in the Christian church and out, from an investigation of the ground of our faith in the near and speedy coming of our Lord, and the doctrine, as a whole, that we hold so dear? Can we shut our eyes to these facts? And can we, in view of them, again run the risk of casting this stumbling-block in the way of the best of causes, and which we esteem above all others? Shall we, any of us, present the most objectionable feature of our faith, in the most objectionable way; and the most unreliable part of our faith (I mean definite time) in a manner to prejudice; and keep up the public prejudice against us, to debar the influence we might otherwise have, to present before them all the great cardinal truths which make up our faith and hope? These are questions I beg of my brethren, who are disposed to make prominent time, and definite time, prayerfully to consider.

I would not, by any means, underrate the evidences now being presented, by certain brethren I love and esteem, for the coming of the Lord at the dates they fix upon. Nor is it my purpose to review their arguments, or try to disprove them. I have another purpose, to guard against the disaster following the injudicious fixing and publication of set times, before we have more demonstrative proof than has as yet been revealed as to the definite period of expectation. Nor would I have the church cease the study of the prophetic periods, and give all the light that can be given upon their termination. But let us be more careful, more judicious, in doing this; less dogmatical, less sensitive, and a good deal more charitable; and by no means press this question of time to the distraction and division of the body of Advent believers, and the disgust of all intelligent, calculating men. Let us "in understanding be men." We should certainly learn by experience. If we do not, we deserve divine censure, and may merit divine judgment.

It is too bad to have a cause of such inestimable value and vast moment to the church and world, brought into ridicule and contempt by our own imprudence and indiscretion. Let us learn wisdom from the past, for if we do not, the Lord will be displeased with us for marring his beautiful truth and work.

THE TRACT FUND.

The Advent Christian Publication Society, at a meeting on Springfield Camp-ground, August 23d, 1871, voted to raise Two Thousand Dollars for the free distribution of Tracts the ensuing year; and they invite the help and co-operation of all lovers of the Lord and of his truth, in the furtherance of the good cause. The times are ominous of coming events, and admonish us to diligence in the Master's work. The Lord is at the door, and what we do must be done quickly. Let the contributions be prompt, hearty, and liberal. The Lord will reward the liberal giver.

MEMORY OF THE DEAD.

Almost every body has the praise of men after he is still in death. If he has not been true to all the principles of justice, righteousness, or true manhood, still in death the veil is drawn, and nothing can be seen but his virtues; his good deeds are abundant, with blessing to his ashes.

Those I shall mention are like the tree bringing forth good fruit; no veil is needed. In looking over the past, while I have been expecting the heavens to reveal the Son of man, to give the saints eternal life, many dear ones in Christ, who hoped never to die, have fallen asleep in Christ, and their memory is sacred to many still living.

In turning my eye to Conn., the field of my former labors, many vacancies are deeply lamented. In Litchfield Co., Bro. Benjamin Moore, a man of God for many years, consistent, faithful, and influential for Christ. Hearing the news of the Savior's return, he fell in love with it, and its kindred doctrines, and they were sweet to him in after life. While suffering extremely the last of his days, he was not known to murmur, but was calm, confident, joyful, giving glory to God; and thus he fell asleep in Jesus, to wait the call of the last trump. Mother Scoville, a "mother in Israel," at whose house many Advent meetings were held; for it was not only the home of the pilgrims, but a meeting-house, where many meetings have been specially favored with the revival work; and many will date their conversion and returning to Christ from that sacred spot. This was the place where many heard for the first time of Jesus' coming, and embraced its joyful sound. But she has fallen in death, and has been buried with the fathers. Her flesh rests in hope. Her daughter, also, who loved Jesus' coming, was victorious in death. She sleeps. And these are not all. Gilbert Humphreville, that promising young disciple, converted in his youth, Christ-like in all his deportment, easy to believe, and ready to confess what he believed, anywhere and everywhere. He was the delight of his family, and of all the good; it was only to know him to love him. He bade fair to be a great help to the cause of Christ and speedy redemption. But death had marked his victim, and suddenly he was cut down, causing many to mourn in sackcloth; and tears could only be stayed by the "blessed hope" of a resurrection to life.

Elder H. H. Dickinson, of Hartford, that able defender of the word of life, and consistent disciple of Jesus, who was ever ready to give the reasons of his hope. Also Bro. Williams, a loving believer in Christ's soon coming. They were strong in faith, living epistles. They made their mark by living for the good of others, faithfully holding up the light of the gospel relating to the signs of the present times, indicating the second advent of Christ, with its corresponding doctrines. They have ceased from their labors, and their works do follow them. "These all died in faith, not having received the promises," but saw them (not afar off) very near, and "were persuaded of them, and embraced them, and confessed that they were pilgrims and strangers on the earth," looking for "a better country, that is, an heavenly."

Correspondence.

From Bro. P. S. W. Deyo.

BRO. GRANT:—It has been a long time since I wrote to you about the mission work of Iowa. But I have not been idle quite all of the time. I visited Belle Plain, Tama city, in October, and attended the dedication of the Chapel in Floyd in Nov. The meeting in connection with it lasted from Nov. 17th to Dec. 28th. Bro. C. C. Ramsey baptized four, and some more were added to the church. I also visited Chickasaw; spent about two weeks; left the people reading their Bibles. It seemed as though my way was hedged up. I had calls enough, but I was without means to comply. I finally went out to labor with the church of Christ on the little Cedar, about ten miles from this city, Feb. 13th. Bro. A. A. Wilber was with me part of the time. Bro. C. C. Ramsey preached three times. The best of all, the Lord was with us to overrule to his glory. I gave a course of lectures on the prophecies, then followed with appropriate sermons. The Lord blessed his truth. The main work began with heads of families, and the interest kept increasing. I did not design to stay but about ten days, but the Lord ordered otherwise. The result was as is often with me when I preach from the chart, and hardly ever fail. The meeting closed last night. I baptized twenty-nine; seven more will follow soon.

I meet with strong opposition from the "Disciple" church, but there were some noble exceptions. One Bro. Baker, who most of the time built fires and lighted up the house, was a deacon in that church. He set a good example of christian liberty worthy of imitation. Sr. Palmer of the M. E. church, who was teaching school in the next district, went to the Lord in prayer as an evidence of her acceptance with God, that the neighborhood of her school might be blessed. She told me she did not ask that they might be Methodists, or any other sect, but blessed of the Lord. Ten were of the number from that district. Such work the Lord will bless, and put them in a large place. They engaged me to preach to them a part of the time the coming year. Brn., pray for us in the West.'

Charles City, Iowa.

Sister M. Walker writes:—Having witnessed the power of God in saving sinners, under the labors of Brn. John G. Hook and M. W. Lutz of Philadelphia, in Phœnix Hall, Concord, N. H., I thought that the saints scattered abroad would rejoice to hear the glad story. The meeting commenced on the 17th inst., and has gradually increased in interest until the present. Sectarian walls are broken down; ministers and members of the various sects unite with them to save the perishing. The hall, with seating capacity for fifteen hundred, is crowded nightly, while the morning and afternoon meetings are well attended. These, especially the morning prayer-meetings, are seasons of refreshing from the Lord. Sinners arise for prayers in every meeting. Thursday morning at least twenty came forward, and on Friday nearly as many more. Many have found peace in Jesus. Deep solemnity pervades the audience while in view of a rapidly approaching judgment they are exhorted to seek Jesus while he may be found. Thursday evening Bro. Lutz gave a lecture on 'Temperance,' illustrating it from his own experience, and pointed the deeply interested and weeping audience to the antidote that saved him from a drunkard's grave—Jesus Christ, the only one able to take a man from the miry pit, in a two-fold sense, and place his feet on a rock, and establish his goings. It had an effect on the audience never felt under an ordinary temperance lecture. The meeting still continues, and will probably hold over Wednesday next, the 27th."

HELP A POOR WIDOW.

I understand Sister Herron is left a widow, with poor health, and no money or husband to help her support her children. While Bro. Herron edited the Young Pilgrim, they got a good, plain living; but he sleeps, and his widow is needy. Who will help, without a long article? I know some will right off. Hiram Munger.

Mrs. Herron's Needs.

Bro. Munger has handed me the above note in regard to Sr. Herron, and from some things that have been said to me, and to others, I have thought that perhaps a few words additional might be of value.

Few are aware of her actual condition. She is not only an invalid, but has been confined to her bed for seven years, is unable to sit up a moment, and at the present time has not been lifted from her bed for nine weeks. Her life has been one of constant pain, since her earliest recollection, aggravated and intensified by poverty, hardship, and care. Her disease is an aggravated form of spinal disease, and a great part of the time she suffers the most intense pain.

As a result of all this, she is not only utterly unable to do anything for her own support, but absolutely needs care and attention from others,—more than her daughters in their youth and inexperience can possibly give. Her case, though very doubtful, is not hopeless. But her physician demands for her, as a necessary condition, proper care, quiet, and freedom from all anxiety. This she has not had since her husband's death, owing largely to lack of means. If these conditions can be secured, it is hoped she may obtain a better degree of health; otherwise, there is little hope, but almost a certainty that she will continue to fail.

She has no means of support, and no prospect of any, except as christian friends remember her. During the past she has been terribly straitened;—at one time there were ten days during which she had only fifteen cents in the house, and rent $3.00 per week. And as the months go by, the certainty of expense, and the uncertainty of means, make a combination very unfavorable for her chances of recovery.

Some have thought that the destitute condition in which the family is left, is largely the result of improvidence on the part of Bro. Herron. The facts show very clearly the cause. Since their marriage, nineteen years ago, he has had a constant succession of reverses and failures. Four years on a farm in Wisconsin brought nothing but disaster; the fifth year, after he left his farm, was one of unwonted plenty. Since then, it has been constant change and disappointment in business. I have heard from his own lips, years ago, a part of the story of his weary pilgrimage; how he had repeatedly been obliged to break up housekeeping, and wander through the streets in search of work,—how more than once he asked of strangers a meal of food, with no money to pay, and only the hope of paying when he could find work. And since the time when we worked together in the Crisis Office, he has seen days just as dark. For six months, or more at one time, since he left the Office, he had nothing to live on except his salary as Editor of the Young Pilgrim—$20 per month—and his rent and car fare amounted to $19. During all this time he ran heavily in debt for hired help, medicine for his sick wife, and all the necessaries and comforts of life.

And this brings me to another point. A good friend, to whom I spoke of this case, though I received assurance of a willingness to assist, to my surprise made mention of a report that Bro. H. had left the Adventists and gone among the Orthodox. To any who may feel thus I give these facts. After having been out of employ two-thirds of the time after leaving the Office, and losing by fraud some hundreds of dollars of what he did earn, he got a chance to work in the office of the Congregationalist, and of course accepted it. After a year's trial, part on commission, part on salary, just as he had settled up all the debts of the past, and the place had become a permanent one, he died, after a sickness of ten weeks. Is there much chance there for laying by money for a rainy day? But his interest in the "cause" never flagged. I know, and there are many who can bear witness to this, that he had a constant, lively interest in Christ's coming and reign; and though his ways were quiet, and his words few, he has done his work.

And now, in the name of the Master, I call upon those who can, to take hold and help raise funds sufficient to give this afflicted family a chance for one year, at least, to use the means which are necessary for the recovery of health. Our brother has done his work, and his family are left to the mercy of the world, and no family friends who are able to provide for them. Will you respond?

I have started a monthly subscription list, as an easier and quicker method than any other. Many who could pay fifty cents a month, cannot pay $6.00 at once. And it is hoped that names enough may be secured at once to obtain the result desired. If not willing to pay monthly, send what you feel able, and help the matter along thus. I have printed a circular and subscription list, which I will send to any one who desires, stating what is needed and desired. And to start the matter, myself and family agree to pay $1.60 per month, and more if needed, and make no charge for the trouble and expense involved. Who will help to feed and clothe the Lord Jesus in the person of his little ones?

Names, or money, or both, may be sent to Mrs. Mary I. Herron, East Somerville, Mass., or to George T. Adams, Crisis Office, Boston; and letters requesting further information, or for any purpose, may be addressed to me as below. Your brother in Christ, Maplewood, Mass. E. P. Woodward.

Obituaries.

Wellcome. Died in Shelbyville, Minn., Feb. 8th, my father, Timothy Wellcome, aged eighty-two years.

He was a native of Maine, and for many years a strong advocate of Universalism, and a ready supporter of all the publications of that sect in former years. The christian profession and prayers and church ordinances were very offensive to him. His children, six in number, were all converted; this afflicted him, but God made use of it for his good, and their prayers and influence constantly tended to awaken his heart. In later years infirmities of age led him to re-examination, and to give up Universalism, to attend prayer and other meetings, until he loved the association of christians and their worship, and during the last four years gave evidence of a radical change of heart. In his last illness he prayed for help to endure his great distress with patience, and finally fell asleep in peace and in hope. This is the first death that has occurred in his family in over fifty years, leaving our mother and six children to mourn their loss. But we all look for Jesus to come soon to give eternal life to his saints. I. C. Wellcome.

Allen. Died at Melvin Village, N. H., March 10th, 1872, Mrs. Lucy Allen, widow of Eld. Robert Allen, in the seventy-ninth year of her age.

Our dear mother gave her heart to the Savior when quite young, and for many years patiently endured the trials and hardships which none but a minister's wife can know. During her widowhood of about twenty-five years, she has lived with the writer's family. God bless ministers' wives. We sorrow, but not without hope. Words of comfort and cheer were spoken on the occasion by Bro. C. H. Shattuck. T. W. Piper.

Marden. Died at Rye, N. H., March 6th, Eva A., daughter of David and Eunice A. Marden, aged seventeen years and seven months.

Eva professed faith in Christ and was baptized some two years since, and has lived a consistent christian, and died in hope of a better resurrection. She sleeps in Jesus. Words of hope and comfort were spoken at the funeral by the writer, from Ps. 16: 9. J. W. White.

GREAT BRITAIN.

MIDNIGHT DARKNESS IN LONDON.

London, March 21. A driving snow storm, the first in fourteen months, has prevailed here all the morning. The city is enveloped in a dense fog, and at this hour (1.30 p. m.) the day is as dark as midnight.

GERMANY.

DUSSELDORF ART GALLERY DESTROYED.

Dusseldorf, March 20. A conflagration attended with the most disastrous results occurred last night. The Town Council Hall and world-famed Academy of Art were burned, and a large number of the most valuable paintings in the latter building were destroyed.

CATHOLIC CONFERENCE.

Berlin, March 24. A conference of the Roman Catholic Bishops of Germany will be held during April, for the purpose of establishing common attitude towards the Government.

FRANCE.

THE ROMAN CATHOLIC QUESTION BEFORE THE ASSEMBLY.

Versailles, March 22. The galleries of the Assembly were crowded with spectators this afternoon in expectation of a debate on the Catholic petitions, which had been postponed until to-day.

Dupanloup, Bishop of Orleans, rose to open the discussion, but yielded the tribune to Thiers, who proceeded to address the Chamber. His speech was a plea for further postponement of the debate. He deprecated the discussion, which he declared could not by any possibility serve the interests of the Holy See.

He assured the Deputies that the policy of the Government on the Roman question, as announced last year, was unchanged. The independence of the Holy See was dear to France, who had always defended and would continue to defend it. But any discussion now of petitions before the Chamber would seriously embarrass the Government, while it would not benefit the Holy Father.

Dupanloup said he would not insist on speaking after the appeal made by the President. Easily reconciling the feelings of the Bishop with the feelings of a Frenchman, he comprehended the respect due to the misfortunes of France. The policy which had proved fatal to France had also been fatal to the See of Rome.

ITALY.

DEFENSIVE ALLIANCE BETWEEN ITALY AND GERMANY.

Rome, March 20. It is rumored that Herr Von Arnim, who recently arrived here from Berlin, is the bearer of a proposition for a treaty of defensive alliance between Italy and Germany, whereby the possession of Lorraine and Alsace is guaranteed to Germany and Rome to Italy, and both parties are to unite their armies in case of war.

SPAIN.

Madrid, March 24. There having been much said of late respecting the intended abdication of the Spanish throne, by Amadeus, his Majesty has seen fit to express his views upon the subject. He declares he will never abdicate the throne so long as he has the confidence and support of his subjects, but will to the last extremity energetically and zealously defend the Spanish crown against any and all attempts upon its integrity and honor.

March 25. It is reported that the frigates Genoa and Arapites, now in the West Indies, have been ordered to Venezuela to demand satisfaction for an insult offered the Spanish Consul.

It is apprehended that the Internationals will attempt to interfere with the elections in Catalonia.

DOMESTIC.

THE INTERNATIONALS.

New York, March 25. A meeting of the Internationals was held in Prince street yesterday. A letter from Switzerland was read, stating that two hundred and fifty-seven glass blowers had been discharged at Monthez because they were members of the Internationals. Letters from Italy, France and England stated that aid would be sent to their brethren in Switzerland. It is also stated that the employers throughout Switzerland have formed a league, agreeing not to employ any Internationals. A member of this city stated that he was discharged last Wednesday because he took a prominent part in the International banquet here last Monday night, and that the men over whom he was foreman in a lithographic establishment had quit work because of his discharge.

A letter was received from printers of Toronto, Canada, asking the privilege of becoming members of the Internationals, and requesting aid in the forthcoming strike.

Remarkable Revival in Kansas.—We made mention some weeks ago of the extraordinary religous movement in Leavenworth, Kansas, the interest being so deep and general that the churches were thronged, and more than five hundred conversions had occurred. At Lawrence a work equally wide-spread and radical is in progress. A complete change is said to have come over the city; and all classes have been reached. The saloon keepers complain that they have lost fifty per cent. of their custom since the meetings began. Two "dramatic associations" were broken up by the conversion of some of their members, and a general falling off of patronage. Skeptics and infidels, gamblers and counterfeiters are numbered among the converts. A very large number of young men are also included among them. The different churches in the city have cordially cooperated in the work, discarding all minor differences of opinion. It has been decided to hold a special meeting simultaneously in all the churches to receive applications for membership, and efforts to persuade the converts to join any particular church will be carefully avoided. The work is still in progress, and crowded union prayer meetings are held, morning and evening. Over seven hundred persons have signed a covenant expressive of a hope in Christ, and pledging a life service to him. Mr. Hammond, under whose management the meetings at Leavenworth and Lawrence have been held, is now at Topeka.—Journal.

Action of the International Society.—The International Society has, according to the Eastern Budget, determined to put every difficulty in the way of the promoters of the International Exhibition which is to be opened at Vienna next year. They regard this undertaking, like others of a similar kind, as only bringing advantage to the capitalist, while the workman, who is the real producer of the goods exhibited, only has to pay higher prices for the necessaries of life owing to the influx of visitors attracted by the exhibition, and does not gain any advantage at all. As a first step against the exhibition, the Geneva section of the International is collecting funds for a simultaneous strike of the workmen of all nations, who during the time would be maintained out of the sums so collected.

Snow Blockade.—The expensive and very trying snow blockade experienced on the western plains by the Pacific Railway has been duplicated in the northeast. I seems that in northern Maine the "oldest inhabitant" has been once more astonished, and all precedent exceeded. The European and North American Railroad Company has been unable to make the through trip for some ten days, to the great annoyance and distress of their passengers. The Woodstock and St. Stephens portion of the road has been closed for a fortnight. It is now being relieved.

CENTRAL AMERICA.

THE MARCH OF CIVILIZATION.

New York, March 25. The Pact of the Central American Union, composed of the States of Costa Rica, Honduras, Guatemala and Salvador, signed on the 17th of Feb., contains an engagement to preserve in tact the autonomy and integrity of the Central American territory; provides that other than a republican form of government never be established; that disputes between members be settled by the mediation of others; that rebellion in either country is treason against all; that the duration of the presidential term in all the Republics be uniform without immediate re-election; that no one can be a slave within the Central American territory, and a Central American can becoming the owner of slaves in another country loses his nationality and protection of the laws; that citizens of either Republic acquire the rights of citizenship in all others by a mere expression of his wish before any Government authority, and that the right of asylum is recognized for emigrants or practical exiles from any part of the world. The construction of telegraphs and national highways, the establishment of mail steamers and the excavation of an inter-oceanic canal through Nicaragua, and the National Congress, which meets May 17th at La Union, in Salvador, are provided for, and the death penalty for political crimes is abolished.

The Ex-Emperor Napoleon.—According to the Paris correspondent of the London Telegraph, Bonapartist journalists who recently visited the ex-Emperor at Chiselhurst profess to have been much struck by his physical and mental vigor. He expounded to them a fully elaborated programme, embracing compulsory instruction and obligatory military service; income tax to be levied on the bourgeoise, whom he regarded as the authors of his downfall. He emphatically said that in the event of his restoration he would return to his old policy.

In Brief.

—— Canada is enjoying a winter of extraordinary severity. There has been four months of continuous frost and snow, and a great scarcity of water is the result.——The largest rope in the world has been completed in Birmingham. It is about six miles long, five and a quarter inches in circumference, and weighs over sixty tons.——Eighty-nine thousand rations were issued last week, many to laborers who went to Chicago to secure work. The weekly expenditure is $140,000, and $600,000 are left in the hands of the Aid Society, which will only last till May, if the cold weather continues.——The present month has thus far been the coldest March in Boston for many years.——Some idea of the huge proportions of the Coliseum can be obtained by seeing the arch as it lies on the ground, its semi-circle sweeping over an area of upwards of 50,000 square feet.——The Rev. Peter Cartwright has recovered from his recent illness, and it is thought will be be able to preach again.——The President has signed an act granting pre-emption rights to settlers in California.——Nearly sixteen thousand children attend the primary schools of this city at present.——The Japanese embassy will be in Washington about one month longer, and then they will go to England——It is just one hundred and seventy years since the first daily paper in England started. This was the Daily Courant, begun in February, 1702. It was edited by a lady.——Seven thousand women belong to the German Internationale.——A tree which was cut down recently in Kansas contained two bushels of bees and three hundred pounds of beautiful honey.——Animal magnetism is no new discovery, but was practised with not a little eclat at Vienna about 1774, and was wonderfully successful in France and England for a considerable period about the year 1788.——The Hunter's Point Bible war has been renewed.——The Eastern snow blockade is being broken.——The ladies of the Quincy, Ill., Methodist church have inaugurated a work of practical christianity by dividing the city into fifteen districts, and appointing a committee over each, whose duty it is to visit all the sick and distressed, and minister to their wants.——The English revisers of the New Testament are said to have reached the second chapter of Luke.——Sir Charles Dilke, the English Republican leader, is represented to be a very quiet, courteous, and unpretending young man, twenty-eight years of age.——The University of Cambridge, England, has made a donation to Chicago of the valuable series of books published by the Pitt press, or University printing office.——The population of Great Britain is placed at 31,000,000.——The Jews have been permitted to erect a synagogue in the city of St. Petersburg, which is a token of religious freedom in Russia, almost as significant of progress as the freedom of her serfs.——The Emperor of Russia is imperative that Russians shall be taught in the Polish schools. A ukase was sometime since promulgated to this effect, and it is now reiterated with emphasis.——A well informed correspondent at Salt Lake City says the seeming acquiescence of the Mormons in the obliteration of polygamy, in order to secure admission into the Union as a State, is a subterfuge. He says in their frantic and over-zealous haste to free themselves from the hated bonds of Federal rule, the Mormon leaders would willingly make any concessions and give any promises. But they would never be observed, even outwardly and formally, far less in their spirit and intent.

Notices.

The Annual Meeting of the Mass. Second Advent Conference for the choice of officers, will commence in Chelsea, Mass., at the Second Advent Chapel on Heard Street, Tuesday evening, April 2nd, continuing day and evening, and over the following Sunday. The church of Christ worshiping at the Advent Chapel send greeting, and invite their brethren far and near to come up to this meeting and enjoy the freedom of the gospel in praying, singing, preaching, and exhorting one another, and so much the more as you see the day approaching. Let all the Advent churches in the State be represented at this meeting.

C. E. Barnes, Secretary.

We purpose this Conference to take the place of conferences occasionally held in Boston, which have been so profitable and successful in bringing together the lovers of the Savior's return from all parts of the country. We do not intend the business shall interfere more than possible with the time and spirit of worship. We earnestly invite all to come to this feast. We shall do our best to take care of and make you comfortable.

J. Couch.

Friends going from Boston to the above meeting, can take the steam cars at the Eastern depot on Causeway Street. Trains leave at 7.50, 8.25, 9.16, 10.30, 11, 11.25, a. m. At 12.58, 3.03, 4.54, 5.28, 6.42, 8.14, p. m. Cars stop near the Chapel. Those taking the horse cars, which leave Scollay's Square every fifteen minutes, will take the "Washington Avenue" cars, and stop at Heard Street, Chelsea.

The "Banner" and the "Crisis."

We will send the Banner six months free to new subscribers to the Crisis, and to old subscribers mentioning this offer when remitting for 1872; but we make one condition; viz., that before the close of the six months, they must either notify us to discontinue, or remit for the future as soon as convenient.

We expect hereafter to present a large, fine engraving in every number of the Bible Banner, illustrating and adding interest to Bible truth, making the offer of "One Year Free" very acceptable to many ministers of the gospel, whose attention would not otherwise be arrested. The series of engravings has already begun to appear. Send ten cents for three sample numbers. Address H. A. King, 14 Murray Street, New York. The World's Crisis and the Bible Banner one year, with free book, for $2.75, or without book, for $2.50. Address Geo. T. Adams, 160 Hanover Street, Boston, Mass.

The "Bible Banner" Free.

We desire to call the attention of the readers of the Crisis to our offer in the Bible Banner, to send it One Year Free to ministers of the gospel of any denomination, who send us their address, or otherwise signify their desire to receive it. We ask the readers of the Crisis to aid us in getting this offer before such ministers as they know to be devoted men of God, and who would be likely to accept the offer, and be benefitted thereby. Do not urgently press any one to accept, for we have not the means to send the paper free to a great many; but we trust the Lord will provide enough to send it where it should go, to prepare the way for weekly papers, and stir up the watchmen to sound the alarm to a guilty world. A copy of the Banner from one with whom the minister is acquainted, is worth a dozen copies sent from the office of publication.

To the Brethren.

I am engaged in preparing a work designed especially for the ministry, on the importance and necessity of preaching the second coming of Christ as an event nigh at hand. My object is, in cooperation with the brethren, to have a copy placed in the hands of every minister in the United States. All can see the importance of such an enterprise. If one out of five hundred could be induced to give the trumpet a certain sound, it would pay for the labor and outlay. Of course it will not be expected that those for whom the work is designed will purchase it; this will be the work of our brethren all over the country, to see that a copy is placed in the hands of every preacher of the gospel. We propose, then, to request pledges and subscriptions from the brethren in order to secure its publication; the amount subscribed to be repaid in books, if required. The nature of the work may be gleaned from the following outlines:—

The Christian Minister a Watchman—The Duties of a Watchman—A Christian Watchman—Watchman, What of the Night?—Time of the End—Signs of the Times—Fulfillment of Prophecy—Prophecy in relation to the first Advent—Prophecy in relation to the second Advent—Signs of the second Advent—Celestial, Terrestial, Moral, National—The Papacy—Spiritualism—Time—Tarrying Time,—etc., etc., etc.

I would also state that the work will be useful to all for a reference, as it will be largely interspersed with Scripture quotations. Any who may feel disposed to aid in this enterprise may address Brn. Grant, or Adams, Crisis Office, Bro. Himes, Times Office, Chicago, Ills., or myself, at Arena, Iowa Co., Wis. Geo. Thomson.

The second quarterly session of the Hoosick Valley Conference will be held at Sandy Hill, N. Y., commencing April 18th, 1872, and hold over the following Sabbath. Let there be a general rally of the friends of Jesus and his kingdom in all this region of country to this feast. Make this meeting a subject of earnest prayer, that God may greatly bless this gathering of his people. And first, consecrate thyself to God—have all upon the altar before you come; and then come filled with the Spirit, prepared to work for God. Come to admonish the saint and warn the sinner. Come in the name of our soon coming King to make one more charge upon the enemy's host previous to its being announced from the eternal throne, "It is done." Provisions will be made for all who come. A. W. Sibley, President.

A. P. Bump, Secretary.

The Third Quarterly Session of the New Hampshire State Conference will be held at Goffstown, commencing Thursday evening, March 28th, to hold over Sunday, March 31st. As this is a new place, and as some business of importance is to come before the conference, it is hoped our preaching brethren will make an effort to be present. An invitation is extended to all.

T. W. Piper.
J. G. Smith.
C. H. Fletcher.

The Advent Christian Conference of Eastern Maine and New Brunswick, will convene with the church in Milltown, Me., March 28th, 1872, and continue over the next Lord's day. Come praying, and unite for the salvation of sinners. Brn. A. Ross, J. M. Tozier, and others, are expected to be present to preach the word.

M. W. Corliss.

Having been divinely blessed in preaching the blessed gospel of Christ in different places, I feel desirous of occupying my time more fully in this heavenly calling, and so would notify any who would be willing to assist me in appointments, to address me by letter, or otherwise. Wm. Hobbs, Cambridgeport, Mass.

Eld. John Couch is pastor of the Second Advent Church in Chelsea, Mass., and all communications relative to supplying the desk must be directed to him hereafter.

The Second Quarterly Meeting of the A. C. Church in Honeoye, Ontario Co., N. Y., will commence April 6th, and continue over Sunday. The brethren and sisters in adjoining towns are cordially invited to attend. H. H. Brown.

O. B. Brown.

Ohio Conference.—The A. C. Church of Ohio will hold its semi-annual conference at Fairfield, Huron Co., Ohio, commencing Thursday, April 18th, continuing over Sunday. We cordially invite all the churches and organizations of the State to send delegates to this meeting. We hope all that love the appearing of Jesus will feel interested, and be present. We do not wish to divide, but to become all the more united. Conveyance from Greenwich Station on the C. C. C. and I. R. R. will be in attendance. H. F. Jefferson, Sec.

A Voice from R. I.—The second quarterly session of the R. I. and Eastern Conn. Conference of Reformers will be held at Wyoming, R. I., commencing Wednesday, April 3d, at two o'clock p. m., and continue over Friday. It is earnestly hoped that all preachers and delegates who can, will come, and that every church failing to send delegates will not fail to send letters. Come! N. A. Angell, Clerk.

Acknowledgment.—Not having been able for several weeks to notice the good gifts from the kind brothers and sisters, with many thanks I acknowledge the following:—S. G. Low, $2; "A Sister," $1; Jerusha Knight, $1; "A Friend," $5; Isaac Small, $1; Emily L. Marsh, $1; Mrs. T. F. Sargent, $2. Mary I. Herron.

Preaching brethren wishing to preach in Rochester Village, will please correspond with Edwin B. Wells before sending their appointments to the Crisis.

"I AM THE LORD'S."

S. M. H.

I am learning of the Master;
I give myself to him,
That he may dwell within me,
And cleanse me from all sin.
I know I am unworthy,
But Jesus died for all;
I'm weak, but he is mighty,
He will not let me fall.

I'm trusting in the Master,
And learning every day
To cast on him my burdens,
To him commit my way;
I trust his gracious promise,
I know he cares for me,
And while his hand I'm clasping,
No evil shall I see.

I'm looking to the Master,
And resting in his love;
Peace in my heart is ruling,
His blessing from above.
Though many times I've grieved him,
He freely all forgave;
I'll trust him for the future
From sin and death to save.

I'm waiting for the Master,
To come to earth again,
To come and reign in glory,
And banish tears and pain;
The hope of His appearing
Is very dear to me;
My heart is filled with longing
That glorious day to see.

I'll witness for the Master,
And tell what he has done;
I'll praise him for his goodness,
His mercies to me shown.
I'll tell the wondrous story
Of Jesus' love and power,
My only boast and glory—
"I'm his forevermore."

East Boston, Mass.

HOLINESS.

G. H. MERRILL.

Much has been written upon holiness, sanctification, rest of faith, higher life, christian perfection, etc., etc. I have selected holiness as a caption to write under, and I hope with Divine assistance to be able to write the truth, and nothing but the truth. If what I write should be the means of helping any out into the liberty and to a higher life in Christ, I shall have accomplished the object (in the main) I have in view in writing upon this subject.

Doubtless there are none but what believe that the Bible teaches holiness, and that we are commanded to be holy. Nevertheless, I want to prove in the first place, from the word of God, that he has commanded his children to be holy and perfect. Not perfect Gods, nor perfect angels, but perfect men and women in Christ Jesus.

1. Has God commanded us to be holy? He has. He commanded the children of Israel (and the same will apply to us) to be holy. Let us read the command—"Speak unto all the congregation of the children of Israel, and say unto them, Ye shall be holy; for I the Lord your God am holy." Lev. 19: 2. Again (1 Pet. 1: 15, 16)—"As he which hath called you is holy, so be ye holy in all manner of conversation; because it is written, Be ye holy, for I am holy." The first and second verses of this chapter show that this calling is to those elected unto obedience. "God has not called us unto uncleanness, but unto holiness." 1 Thess. 4: 7. "Follow peace with all men, and holiness, without which no man shall see the Lord." Heb. 12: 14. Again Paul says (Rom. 12: 1, 2)—"I beseech you, therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God, that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service; and be not conformed to this world, but be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind, that ye may prove what is that good, and acceptable, and perfect, will of God." "This is the will of God, even your sanctification." God commands this—"I am the Almighty God; walk before me and be thou perfect." Gen. 17: 1. "Thou shalt be perfect with the Lord thy God." Deut. 18: 13. "Be ye therefore perfect, even as your Father in heaven is perfect." Matt. 5: 48.

I think it unnecessary to quote any further to prove that we are commanded to be holy. The Old and New Testaments seem to be one imperative command. If so, let us obey.

2. What is holiness? Is it not religious goodness? Is it not being dedicated to the service of God? I believe it is. It is a state where all the powers of our being are given up to God through Christ. It is as the apostle says, to be "cleansed," or to "cleanse ourselves from all filthiness of the flesh." It is to feel reconciled to God and his providences, and satisfied with his promises; without condemnation, calmly trusting in God; yes, resting in him. It is being wholly the Lord's.

"All for Jesus, all my being's ransomed powers,
All my thoughts, and words, and doings,
All my days, and all my hours,
All for Jesus, all for Jesus."

3. Is this holy, perfect state attainable in this life? In answering this question I will quote a few of a large class of scriptures in the form of statements, prayers, etc., which show that this state has been and can be attained. "There was a man in the land of Uz, whose name was Job; and that man was perfect and upright." Job 1: 1. "Mark the perfect man, and behold the upright; for the end of that man is peace." Ps. 37: 37. So we see there must be perfect men, or they could not be beheld and marked. "That they may shoot in secret at the perfect." Ps. 64: 4. There must be perfect ones, or the wicked could not shoot at them. I think enough has been said to convince every candid mind that God has commanded and called us to be holy; also that this holy, perfect state has and can be attained in this life. Do we believe that we here may be "pure in heart," even as he is pure? Do we believe that he is able to establish our hearts unblamable in holiness? If so, "let us cleanse ourselves from all filthiness of the flesh and spirit, perfecting holiness in the fear of God."

4. How to be holy. Doubtless there are many of God's dear children, who are seeking for christian purity, or holiness. They really feel that all is consecrated to God. They believe that God is able and willing to save them fully. They seem to believe with all the faith they have, but do not realize any special joy or peace, more than what they have experienced in the past.

Now the way to holiness is through Jesus. Come to him and submit all you have to him, and believe that he accepts the offering, and that he does it now,—not that he will do it at some future time, but now. But you say (as I once did), How can I believe that God accepts and purifies my heart, without the evidence? Let me say, God's word is its own evidence. The conditions are, that you separate yourself from the world, and lay all upon the altar of God. Having complied with the conditions, God has promised to receive you. God says—"I will receive you." When? Now. He says—"He that believeth not maketh God a liar." Believe, then, and according to your faith be it done unto you. Take the shield of faith, whereby ye shall be able to quench all the fiery darts of Satan. When you have given all to Jesus, do not doubt, but keep trusting, feeling or no feeling, and you will soon realize the fact (for it will be a fact) that God has accepted the offering. You will be conscious that there is a keeping power outside of yourself.

We may try to keep ourselves, but we fail to do so. Resolves are made, but as many times broken, having no power within ourselves to keep them. Dear brethren and sisters beloved, there is a better way to live. It is in the King's "highway of holiness." It is to be "filled with all the fulness of Jesus." It is to be in Christ, and have him in us the hope of glory. He when on earth "was in all points tempted like as we are, yet without sin." Therefore "he is able to succor those that are tempted."

Then let us submit all to him. Let him keep us, and we shall be kept from sinning, kept from all unhallowed things. Some think they cannot live without sinning, and so they are sinning and repenting every day. In this better way it is not so. Submit all to Jesus, and let him keep you, and he will keep you from all this. Will you do it? Seems to me I hear some say—"I will." Then do it, and you will say and feel that "there is a fulness in Christ." Also with the poet you will exclaim—

"I am trusting, Lord, in thee,
Dear Lamb of Calvary."

Thus trusting God, you will be able to say that he "saves me, and saves me now."

5. When to be holy. The time to be holy is now. Now, dear reader, now is the time. God waits to bless, to sanctify, and make you holy. Come now. Come at once into this holy way, and be saved from all sin and uncleanness. Come, enter "the valley of blessing so sweet."

"Oh, come to this valley of blessing so sweet,
There Jesus will fullness bestow;
And believe, and receive, and confess,
That all his salvation may know.

There is peace in the valley of blessing so sweet,
And plenty the land doth impart;
And there is rest for the weary-worn traveler's feet,
And joy for the sorrowing heart.

There is love in the valley of blessing so sweet,
Such as none but the blood-washed may feel;
There heaven comes down redeeming souls to greet,
And Christ sets his covenant seal.

There's a song in the valley of blessing so sweet,
That angels would fain join the strain,
As, with rapturous praises, we bow at his feet,
Crying, Worthy the Lamb that was slain."

I hope some who read this may be persuaded to "enter the valley of blessing so sweet," then you can say in the language of the first verse of this beautiful hymn—

"I have entered the valley of blessing so sweet,
And Jesus abides with me there;
And his Spirit and blood make my cleansing complete,
And his perfect love casteth out fear."

The Lord bless, sanctify, and make us holy, so that we may be found without spot and blameless at the appearing of the great God and our Savior Jesus Christ. Amen.

Fatherly Chastenings—Depressing influence of Error—God an unchanging Friend—Removal East—Home privileges and blessing.

As the tender mother watches day and night over her little one, who has learned to his great joy that he has two little feet that can carry him to any given point in the circle of his vision, and who dashes to this object or that, as it happens to strike his fancy, whether cold or hot, clean or soiled, sharp or dull, and then with his soiled or cut or burned hand runs to his mother, or by his cries brings her quickly to his relief;—so is the eye of our God upon his wayward children, extricating them from their foolish dashings here and there, and letting them learn therefrom profitable lessons of experience. And also like this loving mother God wearies not of his charge, nor casts aside his erring, suffering child, but binds him closer to his bosom and soothes away the tears and heartaches, and sets him again upon his feet in the "narrow way" and bids him to take heed for the future.

Thus did my husband in his desire to gather still more of this sinking world's treasures, seize a hot iron that caused him to let go suddenly his hold upon this world, and cry out in anguish of spirit to his God to deliver him from its sad consequences. This our God was pleased to do; but the many months of mutual suffering that succeeded added as many years to his age in his changed visage. A partnership with a bad man brought about a partial financial crash in our affairs, and made it needful that we change our location from Oswego to Warsaw, the county seat, six miles south, as a more eligible place for the disposal of a large stock of dry goods thrown upon his hands as assets, in the dissolution of partnership.

A twelve years growth in a rich soil had caused strong roots and a spreading top, that invited many under its shade; and immense care was the result, endangering our eternal interests; but God in mercy cut us up, root and branch, and set us out in a meagre soil to humble and purify and make us meet for his blessed service. He again heard "the groaning of the prisoner," and brought relief.

There were none of "like precious faith with us" in Warsaw, but we found communion in spiritual things in the house of an aged disciple by the name of Gordon. He with his infirm companion were members of the "Disciple" church, and he a speaker among them. He broke bread in his house with a few who met with them "on the first day of the week." Having acquainted him with our sentiments he cordially extended to us the right hand of christian fellowship, and invited Elder Chaplin to preach in his house, which invitation he was pleased to accept. This served in many respects as a very pleasant introduction into this new field; for our aged brother was very liberal in his views, and seemed to love the appearing of Jesus; yet it served to continue the damper that rested upon my personal religious enjoyment. Indeed, I am constrained here to record that I look upon the seven years spent in this place as the unhappy seven years of my christian life. Not that I loved Jesus less or was more indifferent to his claims, or had slackened my zeal in his blessed service; but his comforts did not delight my soul as formerly; and why? Had He changed? was he unmindful of a work of faith, and labor of love, and patience of hope toward his name? No, in no wise; for we read—"Jesus Christ the same yesterday, to-day, and forever." Neither had I meant to change, yet there was a change wrought upon me. And this change was in reference to the office and immediate work of the Holy Spirit upon the heart of the christian. This subject was introduced among us in the following manner.

While in Oswego a little company of us were deeply interested in the study of the Scriptures. One evening after spending some time together in this exercise we seemed to come suddenly to a stand, not knowing what next to do. Whereupon I proposed that a few minutes be spent in prayer for the guidance of the Holy Spirit. But as we were about to kneel, a brother who had been for years among the "Disciples" objected, saying he did not so understand the Scriptures; he did not think the Holy Spirit was now given in answer to prayer; that it had once been given on the day of Pentecost, and for the inspiration of those who wrote the Scriptures; and now we must not look for its direct communication but to the written word as our only guide.

There was no prayer offered, and we soon dispersed with an agreement to meet the next week at the house of this brother to discuss this subject. The very proposition brought a feeling of sadness to my soul, akin to the one to discuss the evidences of the decease of the dearest friend I had on earth. The succeeding days I searched and placed upon paper many texts in both the Old and New Testaments to the point. This search clearly manifested to me that the Spirit of God is the power in both Testaments, to will and to do of his good pleasure. When we met, this brother and wife took the lead, and so positive was their manner that any attempt to present Scripture to the contrary seemed futile. Discussion was forestalled, and I sat silent and witnessed in their theory the decease and burial of the "Comforter," and with him went the Bible class and all my comfort. Desolation of soul was mine as that interview closed, and I hastened home to there fall upon my face and cry to God to have mercy once more and show me his truth; and he did; for there I found the living Comforter as these words came to me with power—"Praying always with all prayer and supplication in the Spirit." Eph. 6: 18. This was the "Rabboni" to my soul. I clasped it to my bosom and went out from that room light in the Lord, for I saw that the Spirit was yet mine.

But in the succeeding social meetings, knowing the mind of this brother and sister, I avoided any direct appeal; but when impressed to pray for the aid of the Spirit, would so vary my language as to leave out the mention of the Spirit, my object being peace, but in so doing I grieved and quenched this blessed Comforter until he could not abide with me as formerly. Yet was I unconscious of my sin until my eyes were open to see my departure from sound words; and indeed to discover that this heresy had crept into our own ranks and even taken possession of our paper, and was being dealt out to us in small doses, until we were more or less under its influence. Thus I had not only suffered negatively by the absence of the true doctrine, but was now suffering positively from the introduction of the false.

Notwithstanding this error and its depressing influence, very many were the tokens of my Father's love. He still owned me as his child; still permitted me to labor as well as suffer in his cause; to go about doing good; to speak words of comfort to the sick and dying, and cheer the hearts of the poor and needy; to comfort the mourner and to guide the ignorant into the way of his testimonies. Our house was the home of the saints, and oftimes an heavenly place in Christ Jesus as they met from week to week in his name. As at Oswego and vicinity through the agency of Elder Chaplin and others, by conferences, by aid of books, visits and conversations, the word of the Lord was sounded out to all who had ears to hear; so in our sojourn in Warsaw by the same agencies did that community hear the Word as they were disposed to accept the oft-repeated invitations to Court-House, school-house, church, or private houses, and ever and anon our ears were saluted with the glad sound—"Come, all ye that fear God, and I will tell you what he hath done for my soul." Then the baptismal waters were stirred to the joy of us all.

But "whom the Lord loveth he chasteneth, and scourgeth every son whom he receiveth." A darling babe was given us after coming to this place. This was our second, and now our only, daughter whom we dearly loved. She grew fair and promising, and was the pride of the household. Hers was the first kiss as her little brothers hurried from school, and hers the last before leaving home in the morning. But the blow was even then pending, and soon it fell. The child was sick. When I saw the deadly nature of that sickness, I went to my heavenly Father and told him with all my heart, if it was not for our good and the good of the child, and for his glory that it live, I did not ask it. If otherwise, that he would in mercy spare its life. Thus I endeavored to commit it all to God. But he was not pleased to stay the disease, and in a few days the child was dead. "Have pity upon me, have pity upon me, oh ye my friends! for the hand of God hath touched me"—was the language of my heart, as the little angelic form was attired in its white robe for its coffin bed.

I was tempted to think, had we done this or that, or had we not done thus and so, she might have lived. So forgetful was I of my prayers and trust. But my Father forgave this my weakness, and gave me this view from his word. When it was God's will to spare Moses, Pharaoh and all Egypt could not kill him; on the other hand, when it pleased God that David's child should die, David and all Israel could not save him alive. So I was given to see and believe, to the comfort of my bleeding heart, that the most simple means could have been blessed to the restoration of the child had it pleased the Lord. And I could say—"Thy will and not mine be done." Jacob had his "oak of weeping" and his pillar upon "Rachel's grave," but he could not tarry to weep there, but must journey on; so we in our pilgrimage to the heavenly Canaan leave the monuments of our grief in the way.

Again we were tried in the severe sickness of our eldest son, who was attacked with fever while at school, eighteen miles distant. A messenger was sent for his father, who on arriving found he had been sick nearly a week with typhoid fever. He immediately procured a convenient vehicle and started at once for home. As they lifted him from the sleigh I was shocked to see his head fall as if he were dead, and hastened to support it. As we laid him down, his first words were—"O, mother! I am almost dead! a little further would have finished me." One glance at his tongue revealed the dreadful truth that the deadly disease through which we were attending so many of our neighbors was an inmate of our own house. Like Joseph I would fain have sought where to weep, but now was the time for action, and not for despair; and hoping in God as my stronghold, I was ready for duty. The succeeding night his sufferings were extreme. It was now that he remembered his God and asked that prayer might be offered.

This son had been savingly affected by grace as we hoped, when less than eight years of age, and had been baptized, together with a little friend about the same age. He had been carefully instructed in Bible truth from a child, and knew the holy Scriptures, which were able to make him wise unto salvation. If the marks of grace did not keep pace with his developing years, when affliction came he knew where to turn for relief. The Bible and the God of his parents were now his only hope. With great earnestness he requested that we send for Bro. Chaplin to anoint him, in accordance with the injunction of James. Jas. 5: 14, 15. A signal blessing followed this act of obedience. The first remission of the fever and a good night's rest ensued, and the morning finding him comfortable we fondly hoped for a speedy recovery. But our faith was yet to be severely tested. He was very sick during the third week, and when the fever left him, he was as one dead, insomuch that his father saw no hope. But we administered restoratives, and he revived and ultimately recovered. May it be for the glory of God. I now, by prayer and supplication besought the Lord that this disease be not permitted to go through the family, as was not an unfrequent occurrence at that time. In this we believe we were also accepted in Jesus' name, as only a slight fever of a few days rested upon the next son.

Throughout the last year of our residence here, my heart was going up in prayer to God that he would take us from this place. The welfare of our children called loudly for a removal, and I fondly hoped that a change would break the spell that bound me and give me liberty in the service of God, that it would banish this man-fearing spirit and the liberty of the Holy Spirit be given me. My physical condition also loudly called for change. Long exposure to this miasmatic region had overcome my naturally slender constitution, and I was an invalid. Husband was of the same mind with myself in this matter.

One evening in autumn as I was setting the table for tea, husband's brother read from our County paper, a notice of the lands at Hammonton, N. J. I became interested, and seating myself beside him said—"Uncle, what have you found?" "Just the place for you," was the reply. I laughingly related the circumstance to my husband and handed him the paper. A correspondence at once commenced, and in Jan. 1860, he set out with our eldest son to visit the place. He finally left our son, and himself returned to make preparations for our removal, provided Providence should still seem to favor us by opening our way. The place of his choice was at length secured by our son and the way seemed clear to go forward. Friends were kind, and foes also; for every thing worked to thrust us out; and never were bondsmen more ready to go. The morning of the second day's journey found us in Phil., and at four o'clock P. M. we took cars for Hammonton, where we arrived May 24th, 1860. Then, like Abraham, we built an altar unto the Lord, and called upon his name; and with thanksgivings for our safe arrival and pleasing reception, we dedicated our all to God, praying him to be gracious unto us in this strange land and help us to do all his pleasure in our coming. This privilege was the crowning blessing.

As the fused lead feels its way around every type, stereotyping the whole, so did this heavenly influence tend to cement our household for God. As darkness without light, as cold without heat, as the world without the sun; so is a household without God, a life without Jesus. He is the sunlight of the household, the sunlight of the heart. Yea, and will be the sunlight of the ages to come. "The Lamb which is in the midst of the throne shall feed them, and shall lead them to living fountains of waters; and God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes." "O the depth of the riches, both of the wisdom and knowledge of God! . . . . . For of him and through him, and to him are all things; to whom be glory forever. Amen."

The conviction had long rested upon my mind that if I was faithful to God in this my new home, I should live and recover my health. This, by his grace, I had vowed to do. And now as God had graciously heard our prayers and given us all our sons to be yet subject to us under the paternal roof, freed from those adverse influences that had worked the ruin of many, I was stimulated to untiring efforts in their behalf. But a herculean task, it seemed, to work the needful change and cause them to be contented. From the bustle of town life to what was almost a Selkirk silence; from the delicate office work to the hot sun in the common farmer's lot, even for one season, was a change that required no small amount of moral courage to endure patiently. But our hope was in God. To him we looked to accomplish what we could not do, and things did move on surprisingly even to us. It was also apparent that if we had religious privileges, we must make them. And we resolved in the Lord's strength not to live without them. Consequently on the second Lord's day we called the family together in the form of a Bible class, and thus spent the forenoon, closing with prayer. A young man whom we had taken into the family, joined us, and seemed interested. In the afternoon we broke bread in remembrance of Jesus. Thus with family worship, Bible class, and supper, and the blessing of God in it all, we felt when night came that we had gone a Sabbath day's journey.

Oh! we do praise the Lord, for he did appear to us in this desolate place, and we were blessed as Elijah under the juniper tree. How good it is to learn by experience that it is God who makes all our privileges; that he is the fountain to which all must come if truly blessed. Fine houses, high steeples, and all the paraphernalia of worship is but the outer court; the soul to be blessed must pass all these, and, like Queen Esther, come in humility and fear into the presence of the King, and for itself touch the golden sceptre held out in the person of our Lord Jesus Christ. Then, and not till then, is it made whole. And if thus it is that we are made whole; it is thus, and only thus, that we can be kept whole. "As ye have therefore received Christ Jesus the Lord, so walk ye in him."

Thus weeks were being numbered with the past while lumber was gathered, stone quarried and drawn, the well dug, and materials brought together for a new house in our beautiful oak grove, situated a little more than a mile from Hammonton Station, directly on the line of the Camden and Atlantic railroad, and a mile post just at the foot of the hill indicating thirty-one miles one way and twenty-nine the other. This site is the summit level between the two cities—Camden and Atlantic. The grove itself was quite an item of interest, as timber is so scarce in this region. We were taken quite by surprise as we rode out for the first time, to see the site for the house. Its retirement was just that for which I had long been sighing. Now it was mine in its perfection, and it filled the aching void. I needed just such an isolation from society that I might gather strength. Oh, to walk out and be alone! no human eye to see me. What a luxury! to walk and commune with nature, and nature's God, uninterrupted! How inexpressible the pleasure! It was as pleasing as it was new and strange; never before having enjoyed the privilege. Here I found leisure time for reading and meditation. I feasted on the "Voice of the Church," by D. T. Taylor, and committed to memory those rich extracts from the gifted Charlotte Elizabeth, Cowper, and others, on the coming of our Lord. How sweet such companionship! How I appreciated as never before the labors of our brother in that work. I kept the voice of God—the Bible, and the "Voice of the Church," on my table together; the latter but an echo of the former. We enjoyed a little world of our own in such communings with the worthies of the past and present day, and this without any of the wear and tear incident to living reciprocities.

Meanwhile my heart was seeking opportunities to do good by the distribution of tracts, and conversations with the few with whom we came in contact. One little boy came every Lord's day morning to be taught the alphabet, and to learn of Jesus. There was no work too small to do for Jesus. My vow was upon me, and I constantly remembered it by holding myself in readiness to do with my might what my hands found to do.

In course of time the fruits of industry began to appear in a house rising amid the green foliage of the grove. So rapidly did the work progress, that in August it was thought practicable to move in. The family altar was equally precious here, and the shady grove supplied to us a place of meditation.

WHERE IS REST?

E. E. BOYDEN.

TUNE.—"Home, sweet home."

I am lonely and weary, my soul is oppressed,
O where shall I go for sweet comfort and rest?
To whom shall I carry my trials and gain,
A solace for grief, a relief from my pain?
CHORUS.—Rest, rest, sweet, sweet rest,
O where shall I find a sweet, heavenly rest?

In vain do I wander this wicked world o'er,
My burden grows heavy, my heart faint and sore;
In none do I find the sweet rest which I seek,
For all like myself are dependent and weak.

I have read of a promise made long, long ago,
'Twas given by Jesus while living below,—
"O come unto me, weary one, and find rest,"—
I know it is sure that sweet promise so blest.

'Twas given by Him who has died for us all,
To give us a hope who were lost in the fall;
And now he's preparing a home bright and fair;
My weary heart cries—How I long to be there!

He has gone, but I know he will quickly return,
To take all his weary and waiting ones home;
O! there in that land so delightful and blest,
I know I shall find a sweet, heavenly rest.
Rest, rest, sweet, sweet rest,
'Tis there I shall find a sweet, heavenly rest.

CHRIST OUR EXAMPLE.

C. MENDENHALL.

There is perhaps no one living who has not some influence, however humble his sphere, or lowly his surroundings in social position. All of us are more or less disposed to take some one as a sort of pattern or guide for our course in life, having some favorite for our example, who is our ideal of goodness and greatness.

However good our patterns may be, they have their imperfections, and we who copy will come far short of the original; yet we would not condemn any one for striving to do better, for it is the duty of all to look up, and endeavor to struggle with all unfavorable circumstances, pushing aside whatever may obstruct the pathway onward and upward. Excelsior should ever be our motto in all things that are pure and refining in their influence. We should ever press toward the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus.

The best model for all mankind is Jesus Christ, and he who would approach unto perfection must do so by following Him who knew no sin; one who alone is infallible, making no false steps or blunders. If we strive to follow him in a proper manner, we have the promise of divine assistance to keep us in the narrow way, for we need constant watchfulness and much help in order to keep in sight of our great Exemplar. Christ says—"Take my yoke upon you, and learn of me; for I am meek and lowly in heart; and ye shall find rest unto your souls. For my yoke is easy, and my burden is light." Matt. 11: 29, 30.

Thus it is we are encouraged by him to struggle on with depraved nature, having the Spirit to help our infirmities, and his promise to make the burden light, with an assurance that we shall find rest for our souls. Again we read—"Let this mind be in you, which was also in Christ Jesus," the "author and finisher of our faith;" "looking unto Jesus, who for the joy that was set before him endured the cross, despised the shame, and is set down at the right hand of the throne of God." Heb. 12: 2. It is Jesus only to whom we are to look, bearing in remembrance his sufferings, which ought to prevent us from becoming wearied and faint in our minds; for none of us will ever be called to suffer as he did, nor will our pathway ever be so hedged in by dangers and difficulties as was his. He has left us an example to follow, yet in his infinite goodness we are placed in much more favorable circumstances. "Hereby perceive we the love of God, because he laid down his life for us," and by him all that believe are justified from all things. We cannot become perfect in this life; our carnal natures will at times gain the ascendancy; we will again and again make crooked paths, and perhaps like Lot's wife we will look back; but we are not to be discouraged by these things; rather let such failures set us on the look out, that we may not again be overtaken. We have no perfect goodness, no entire freedom from sin; but if we are true believing followers of Christ, his righteousness is imputed unto us. "For he hath made him to be sin for us, who knew no sin, that we might be made the righteousness of God in him." 2 Cor. 5: 21.

Though we are sinful and corrupt, and our hearts are deceitful and desperately wicked, through faith in the atoning sacrifice on Calvary we are cleansed from all sin, and counted the sons of God. It is not our goodness, but Christ's; and though at best we are poor copies of the original author of righteousness, and, alas! often make errors and blots, it is removed by the blood of Christ, through repentance, with confession and faith. "For if the blood of bulls and of goats, and the ashes of a heifer sprinkling the unclean, sanctifieth to the purifying of the flesh; how much more shall the blood of Christ, who through the eternal Spirit offered himself without spot to God, purge your conscience from dead works to serve the living God?" Heb. 9: 13, 14.

Luther says—"Every christian who feels true repentance for his sins has perfect remission from the punishment and from the sin." If we confess our sins, Christ has promised to forgive our sins and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness. The plan of salvation is plain; it is repentance, confession, faith, and then following after Jesus. God grant that we all may ever be watchful of our footsteps, becoming day by day more like him who is our guide to future reward and endless joy.

May we so conduct ourselves that our influence may always be for the good of others, and may our example lead none astray; then when Jesus shall come in all his glory, we may still follow him through the gates of the eternal city, the New Jerusalem, to forever inhabit the renewed earth, Eden restored, where we shall dwell with him, "in whom we have redemption through his blood, the forgiveness of sins, according to the riches of his grace." Eph. 1: 7.

— Keep at some work of usefulness. Active christians are seldom troubled with the blues. Work for Christ brings heart-health.

To be resigned when ills betide,
Patient when favors are denied,
And pleased with favors given;
Dear mortal, this is wisdom's part—
This is that incense of the heart
Whose fragrance swells to heaven.

"If good people would make their goodness agreeable, and smile instead of frowning in their virtue, how many would they win to the good cause," said Archbishop Usher.

— Learning may come with its records of the past and its prophecies of the coming events; eloquence may sweep the harp of the soul, rousing its sleeping thought; but it is Christ who is the power of God and the wisdom of God. He is the real power.

— Any one can drift; but it takes prayer, religious principle, earnestness of purpose, constant watching, to resist the evil of this world, to struggle against the tide.

— As a shoemaker makes shoes, and a tailor coats, so should a christian pray. Prayer is the christian's business.

— Men plant prayers and endeavors, and go the next day looking to see if they have borne graces. Now God does not send graces as he sends light and rain, but they are wrought in us through long days of discipline and growth. Acorns and graces sprout quickly, but grow long before ripening.

SYDNEY SMITH cut the following from a newspaper, and preserved it for himself—"When you rise in the morning, form a resolution to make the day a happy one to a fellow-creature. It is easily done; a left-off garment to the man who needs it, a kind word to the sorrowful, an encouraging expression to the striving—trifles in themselves light as air—will do at least for the twenty-four hours.

And if you are young, depend upon it it will tell when you are old; and if you are old, rest assured it will send you gently down the stream of time to eternity. By the most simple arithmetical sum, look at the result. If you send one person, only one, happily through each day, that is three hundred and sixty-five in the course of the year. And supposing you live forty years only after you commence that course of medicine, you have made 14,600 beings happy; at all events, for a time.

Hygiene.

"This is for your Health."

CONSUMPTION.

HOW IT IS SOMETIMES INDUCED.

First among hygienic or health-preserving agencies may be placed right mental conditions. It is quite evident that a cheerful spirit and contented mind have much influence over health, and that strong mental emotions are a fruitful cause of disease, especially on some temperaments, causing liver complaint and dyspepsia, with their train of evils. Therefore it will be well for those feeling unpleasant sensations, and pain locating in various parts of the body, to take heed to it, and trace its cause, and seek to obviate the difficulty if possible before there are serious results impending.

There is truth in the adage—"An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure." Pain in a part is an admonition of something wrong in the system. It is not always the case that the part where most pain is experienced is the primary seat of disease. The cause of the trouble may arise quite remote from it. Pain in the side, though slight at first, and perhaps only occasional, may run on and increase till it terminates fatally in consumption. The disease which proved destructive to life, of which the pain was a symptom, originated in care and anxiety of mind, and sorrow of heart. Immoderate grief and mourning affects the function of respiration perceptibly. Often we see those who are grieving catch for breath, sigh, or draw a long breath. This is the language of the lungs asking for air, saying, We are not well supplied. Sometimes children, when crying and sobbing, lose their breath and nearly suffocate, and, if left to themselves, would die. This is interrupting the function of respiration in an extreme degree. Less interruption of the process of breathing will show less immediate effects; perhaps not enough to be discerned by the external senses, still cause is producing its legitimate results.

Engaged in severe mental exercise, of either intense thought or feeling, we breathe insufficiently. If this is carried to excess, or permitted moderately to be prolonged, it surely undermines health, and insures sickness. The rapidity with which vital power will decline will be in proportion to the strength and vigor of the constitution, and intensity and concentration of the exercise. When we breathe insufficiently, the blood is not decarbonized. In expiration, impure matters are depurated by the lungs. The life-principle is imparted to the blood by the inspiration of pure air. Should these processes of inspiration and expiration (or taken together respiration) be less than the requirements of the body, the blood retains poisonous, obstructing material in it. These morbid elements circulate through the various parts of the body. The weaker portions will be most readily affected by it. This continued for a time will more or less affect all the functions. Those organs associated with the lungs in depurating waste matter will especially perceive the failure of the lungs to accomplish their part of the work of depuration. At the same time these organs are not supplied with nourishment which comes to them from the air through the blood. Thus while the ability to act is decreased, more work is thrown upon them to do.

This in a constitution where there is inherited or acquired tendency to liver derangement, the liver will be the first organ to be overburdened, and manifest disease. Pain will usually be felt in one or both sides, or in the shoulders. The pain may not be severe nor alarming; for, like other structures, the nerves derive their peculiar property of sensation from the air, through the medium of the arterial blood. Without receiving it, they are not qualified for duty, and give only feeble warning of danger. This is why consumption is called such a flattering disease. And the reason why consumptives are usually so hopeful, is because sensation is impaired from the imperfect aeration of the blood. The appetite will become capricious, digestion impaired, there is slight emaciation, and a sense of weariness and fatigue comes on in attempting to exercise. Daily labor may be performed, but what was once delightful is now viewed as a task. There is little cough, and scanty expectoration, not enough to be thought worthy of notice or mention except to the skillful observer.

Things in the system progress from bad to worse, till from extra labor, the skin and kidneys are overtasked, the liver is exhausted and torpid. Cough increases, the chief burden of depuration is thrown upon the lungs, night sweats and chills and hectic flush supervene. From this stage of the disease there is little hope of recovery.

This is a brief history of many consumptives. They are frequently hopelessly its victims before their friends or themselves arouse to a sense of the critical condition, and a precious life is sacrificed that might have enjoyed many years of usefulness.—Dr. P. M. Lamson, in Health Reformer.

GRAHAM PUDDING.—How do you make Graham pudding and what do you eat on it? So asks one of our readers. Sift from one hand and stir, using a spoon, with the other, unbolted wheat flour into boiling water, until it is of the consistency of a thin hasty pudding, or so it will readily pour from a spoon. Leave it to boil ten or fifteen minutes where it cannot burn, and ladle it out into a pudding dish. The flour should be prepared from well cleaned, good wheat, and be well ground, having the bran or hull of the grain as well cut up as the berry. Some prefer it ground fine as for bread, and some prefer it rather coarse, in which case it needs a few minutes' longer cooking. It is eaten with some kind of stewed or baked fruit, or with cream, or milk, or syrup, or honey, or any simple dressing used for other puddings, and can be recommended as an excellent dish for its nourishing properties, its easy digestion and delicious taste.—Laws of Life.

LIGHT, air and cleanliness are the three greatest disinfectants known among medical men. With these and no medicine it is said that small-pox was most successfully treated in Philadelphia this winter.

A TRUE HERO.

A boy about nine years old was bathing one day, when, by some mischance, he got into deep water and began to sink. His elder brother saw him and ran to save him, but, lacking strength or skill, he also sank to the bottom of the river. As the two drowning brothers rose to the surface for the last time they saw a third brother, the youngest of the family, running down the bank for the purpose of trying to save them. Then it was that the dying nine-year-old acted the part of a hero. Struggling as he was with death, he gathered all his strength, and cried to his brother on the shore, "Don't come in, or father will lose all his boys at once."

Noble little fellow! Though dying, he forgot himself, and thought only of his father's grief. He was a genuine hero. His brother obeyed his dying command, and was spared to comfort his father when his two dead sons were taken from the river clasped in each other's arms.

Boys, you are not called to be heroes in this way, but you are called to consider the feelings of your parents, and to study how to avoid giving them pain. The best way to do this is to love them dearly. Love will not only keep you from hurting their feelings, but it will make you sources of great joy to their hearts. Blessed are those children whose words and deeds make sweet music in their parents' souls!—Watchman and Reflector.

THE "SILVER RULE"—PASTE IT UP.—You all know the Golden Rule—"Do unto others as you would wish them to do unto you." Here is a rule which is almost a part of the Golden Rule, but which we will put by itself, and, because of its value, call it the "Silver Rule": "Think and say all you can of the good qualities of others; forget and keep silent concerning their bad qualities." You cannot conceive how much such a course will lighten your own happiness, and raise you in the esteem of your companions. Did you ever think any more of a boy or girl because he or she found fault with others? Never call your schoolmates or playmates ugly or cross to their faces or behind their backs. If they are ugly, or stingy, or cross, it does not make them better for you to talk or think about it, while it makes you love to dwell upon the faults of others, and causes your own soul to grow smaller, and to become like the foul bird that prefers carrion for food. Rather tell all the good you can, and try to think of some good quality of your mates.—Youth's Companion.

THINK FIRST.—That distinguished teacher, Dr. Arnold, of Rugby, once spoke sharply to a dull boy, who replied—

"Why do you speak angrily, sir? Indeed I am doing the best I can."

Dr. Arnold said he never so felt a rebuke in his life.

GLANCES AT PROPHECY.—No. 1.

J. WHITECAR.

The apostle Peter tells us that we "have also a more sure word of prophecy, whereunto ye do well that ye take heed, as unto a light that shineth in a dark place, until the day dawn, and the day-star arise in your hearts." 2 Pet. 1: 19. Let us now for a while take heed to the prophet Daniel (see second chapter), as one of the several lights by which the pilgrim may know where he is in the history of this world; for, says Daniel, "But there is a God in heaven that revealeth secrets, and maketh known to the king Nebuchadnezzar what shall be in the latter days." Dan. 2: 28–45. He then proceeds to tell the dream, with the interpretation. There were to be four kingdoms, or governments, that were to have universal sway in this world, represented by an image in four metallic parts, the form being terrible; beginning with Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, capital of the Chaldeans, and ending with Rome, the fourth universal government, when she becomes weak and in a divided state; when the God of heaven sets up a kingdom, represented by the stone smiting the image on the feet. We will confine ourselves to the dream, commencing at the 31st verse—"Thou, O king, sawest, and behold a great image. This great image, whose brightness was excellent, stood before thee, and the form thereof was terrible. This image's head was of fine gold, his breast and his arms of silver, his belly and his thighs of brass, his legs of iron, his feet part of iron and part of clay. Thou sawest till that a stone was cut out without hands, which smote the image upon his feet that were of iron and clay, and brake them to pieces. Then was the iron, the clay, the brass, the silver, and the gold, broken to pieces together, and became like the chaff of the summer threshing-floors; and the wind carried them away, that no place was found for them; and the stone that smote the image became a great mountain, and filled the whole earth."

It was said to Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon—"Thou art this head of gold." Babylon was the capital of the first universal kingdom.—The breast and arms of silver represent Media and Persia, which are the second universal kingdom. See Daniel 5: 28–30. The belly and the thighs are the third kingdom of brass, which shall bear rule over all the earth. Dan. 2: 19. This is Grecia.—Daniel 8: 5, 21. The legs of iron represent Rome in her strength, being the fourth universal kingdom. Dan. 2: 40. Cæsar Augustus, emperor of Rome, taxes all the world at the birth of Christ. Luke 2: 1. The feet and toes of the image represent the divided state of the fourth kingdom; for, says Daniel—"As the toes and feet were part of iron and part of clay, as the kingdom shall be partly strong and partly broken." 2: 42.

The fifth kingdom (34th verse) is symbolized by the stone that smites the image on the feet when in a weak and divided state, which was not the case in the days of Christ, but is in a weak and divided condition to-day; and we may reasonably expect a speedy smiting of the image by the stone on the feet, that stone being the kingdom of God, which stands forever; or, as John the Revelator says—"And a mighty angel took up a stone like a great mill-stone, and cast it into the sea, saying, Thus with violence shall that great city Babylon be thrown down, and shall be found no more at all" (Rev. 18: 20, 21); when it shall be said that all heaven will rejoice, for which the true church has been a long time praying—"Thy kingdom come, thy will be done in earth as it is in heaven." Matt. 6: 10. Dan. 2: 36—"This is the dream, and we will tell the interpretation thereof before the king. Thou, O king, art a king of kings; for the God of heaven hath given thee a kingdom, power, strength, and glory. And wheresoever the children of men dwell, the beasts of the field, and the fowls of the heaven, hath he given into thine hand, and hath made thee ruler over them all. Thou art this head of gold." Thus Babylon, capital of the Chaldeans, over which Nebuchadnezzar reigned, is here represented by the head of gold, as the first to extend its conquest over the then known world, and it fell about B. C. 491. Thus one link in the chain of kingdoms was completed. "And after thee shall arise another kingdom inferior to thee." But in this dream Daniel does not tell us what kingdom it was that subdued and succeeded the Babylonian kingdom, but by turning to chapter 5: 18, 19, you will observe that when Belshazzar reigned in his father Nebuchadnezzar's stead, and while in a state of drunken revelry, he saw a hand writing on the wall of his palace—"Mene, mene, tekel, upharsin"; and Daniel in his interpretation tells the king—"God hath numbered thy kingdom and finished it"; and that this kingdom is divided and given to the Medes and Persians; and that in that night was Belshazzar the king of the Chaldeans slain; and "Darius the Median took the kingdom."

The Medes and Persians must have been the second universal kingdom, represented by the breast and arms of silver of the metallic image. It lost its power about B. C. 332. Then Daniel says in his interpretation of the image, respecting the third kingdom (39th verse), "And another third kingdom of brass, which shall bear rule over all the earth."

I wish to show what power it was that subverted and followed the breast and arms of silver, or the Medo-Persian kingdom; which we assert to be the Grecian power, under Alexander the Great and his successors. By turning to chapter 8: 3, 4, the following information is found—"A ram pushing westward, northward, and southward," to the four quarters, "so that no beast might stand before him." 20th verse—"The ram which thou sawest having two horns are the kings of Media and Persia," which the reader will still bear in mind are the breast and arms of silver, or a second kingdom. Then in verses following we observe an he-goat comes from the west, having a notable horn between his eyes, and he comes close to the ram and smites the ram and breaks his two horns; and there was no power in the ram to stand before him; but he cast him to the ground, and stamped upon him; and there was none that could deliver the ram out of his hands; and it is said that "the rough goat is the king of Grecia, and the great horn that is between his eyes, is the first king." Then Grecia under Alexander the Great, being the power that subverted the Medo-Persian kingdom, must be the third kingdom, represented by the belly and thighs of brass. Then again, speaking of the image—"And the fourth kingdom shall be as strong as iron; forasmuch as iron breaketh in pieces and subdueth all things, and as iron that breaketh all these shall it break in pieces and bruise."

Bear with me while I make a few remarks in respect to the great horn, that is between the eyes of the Grecian goat. Says the prophet, (8: 22)—"That being broken, whereas four stood up for it, four kingdoms shall stand up out of the nation, but not in his power." It is a historical fact that Alexander reigned but a short time and died, and after his death (about B. C. 301) four confederate princes divided his empire among themselves. Thus was the empire of Alexander divided into four kingdoms. Ptolemy had Egypt, Libya, Arabia, Cœlo-Syria, and Palestine; Cassander had Macedonia and Greece; Lysimachus had Thrace, Bithynia, and some other provinces beyond the Hellespont and the Bosphorus; and Seleucus, all the rest of Asia to the other side of the Euphrates, and so far as the river Indus. At last we see all these swallowed up by the all-absorbing power of Rome. Then Rome must be the fourth universal kingdom, represented by the iron legs of the image, as only four were to bear rule. Let us turn to Luke 2, and see if Rome did bear rule over the then known world. And at that time "there went out a decree from Cæsar Augustus [Emperor of Rome] that all the world should be taxed. . . . And Joseph also went up . . . to be taxed, with Mary, his espoused wife, being great with child. . . . And she brought forth her first-born son." And the angels said to the shepherds—"Unto you is born this day in the city of David a Savior, which is Christ the Lord." Then at the birth of our Lord, Cæsar Augustus, Emperor of Rome, taxed the world. And Rome maintains her iron strength as far down, at least, as between the first and second centuries after Christ; for, says Millman's Gibbon's History of Rome, vol. 1, chap. 3, p. 99—"The empire of the Romans filled the world. And when that empire fell into the hands of a single person, the world became a safe and dreary prison for his enemies, the slave of imperial despotism. Whether he was condemned to drag his gilded chain in Rome and the senate, or to wear out a life of exile on the barren rock of Seriphus, or the frozen banks of the Danube, he expected his fate in silent despair. To resist was fatal, and it was impossible to fly. Dependent kings would gladly purchase the Emperor's protection by the sacrifice of an obnoxious fugitive. Wherever you are, said Cicero to the exile Marcellus, remember that you are equally within the power of the conqueror."

Let us now look at the weak and divided state of the fourth or Roman kingdom. Dan. 2: 41—"And whereas thou sawest the feet and toes part of potter's clay and part of iron, the kingdom shall be divided; but there shall be in it of the strength of the iron, forasmuch as thou sawest the iron mixed with miry clay; and as the toes of the feet were part of iron and part of clay, so the kingdom shall be partly strong and partly broken." Thus while the feet and toes represent the divided state of the fourth or Roman kingdom, these, being composed of iron and clay, show that the division would be partly strong and partly broken, or weak. Is not Rome in this condition to-day? Yes, the eagle's eyes are watching to prey upon the carcass; the fire is kindled in her own bosom to consume her. Hark! hear the groaning at the Vatican of Rome, because of the fulfilling of prophecy. Dan. 7. After speaking of the fourth universal kingdom, represented by the fourth beast, he speaks of a king, different from other kings, that should arise out of the fourth kingdom. "And they shall take away his dominion to consume and destroy it unto the end." Is not this the cry of the pope to-day? and are they not taking away his temporal dominion? Then what can we look for next? Daniel says in his interpretation of the stone smiting the image on the feet, when in its weak and divided state—"And in the days of these kings shall the God of heaven set up a kingdom which shall never be destroyed; and the kingdom shall not be left to other people [or to the pope], but it shall break in pieces and consume all these kingdoms, and it shall stand forever."

We are certainly occupying the extreme verge of the fourth kingdom on earth. The stone must soon smite the image on its feet. The Son of God must soon come, the kingdoms of the world pass away, and the kingdom of heaven be set up on earth; the holy city, New Jerusalem, the capital of the kingdom of God, the city of the great King, descend from heaven to occupy its appointed place on the holy hill, Zion. Then is the prayer of the true church answered—"Thy kingdom come, thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven." Again says Daniel—"Forasmuch as thou sawest that the stone was cut out of the mountain without hands, and that it break in pieces the iron, the brass, the clay, the silver, the gold; the great God hath made known to the king what shall come to pass hereafter; and the dream is certain, and the interpretation thereof sure."

But, says one, Is not that stone Christ; and was not his kingdom set up at his first advent?" Yes, that stone is Christ; but his kingdom was not set up at his first advent. Jesus is that stone in the same sense that Daniel said to Nebuchadnezzar—"Thou art this head of gold," because he was a king of a literal, universal kingdom. So with Jesus; he was born to be a king (John 18: 37); and so says the angel to Mary—"And behold, thou shalt conceive in thy womb and bring forth a son, and shalt call his name Jesus; he shall be great, and shall be called the Son of the Highest; and the Lord God shall give unto him the throne of his father David, and he shall reign over the house of Jacob forever, and of his kingdom there shall be no end." Luke 1: 31–33.

When Jesus went up to Jerusalem, did they put him on the throne of his father David (for that was what he was born for), or did they put him on the cross? We also read that "he came to his own, and his own received him not." Again he is called "the stone which the builders rejected." Jesus gave them a parable of a beautiful vineyard (Matt. 21: 33–38) which his father planted, and "had let it out to husbandmen, and went into a far country; and when the time of the fruit drew near, he sent his servants . . . . . to receive the fruits of it." And the husbandmen ill-treated the servants. "But last of all he sent unto them his son, saying, They will reverence my son. But when the husbandmen saw the son, they said among themselves, This is the heir; come, let us kill him; and let us seize on his inheritance. [The heir to David's throne.] And they caught him and cast him out of the vineyard, and slew him." "But his citizens hated him, and sent a message after him saying, We will not have this man to reign over us." Luke 19: 14.

When Jesus was brought before Pilate, he asked the Jews, saying—"Shall I crucify your king? The chief priests answered, We have no king but Cæsar." And the superscription that was placed over his head was "Jesus of Nazareth, the King of the Jews." John 19: 13–22.

All understood that the Messiah would come, and was to be David's literal seed, and was just as literally to sit on David's throne; but they mistook the person and the time; and he told them of the destruction of the city and their dispersion, because they knew not the time of their visitation. Luke 19: 41–45. Had they been as wise as they professed to be, they might have understood from Daniel that "from the going forth of the commandment to restore and build Jerusalem, unto Messiah the Prince, shall be seven weeks and threescore and two weeks." Dan. 9: 24–27. So says the Apostle to the Galatians (4: 4)—"But when the fullness of the time was come, God sent forth his Son." But those in authority, the teachers in Israel, to whom the people looked for light, the same as to-day, were the principal ones to reject him. Let us turn again to the parable of the vineyard. "When the lord of the vineyard cometh, what will he do to those husbandmen? They say unto him, He will miserably destroy those wicked men, and will let out his vineyard to other husbandmen, which shall render him the fruits in their seasons. Jesus saith unto them, Did ye never read in the Scriptures, The stone which the builders rejected, the same is become the head of the corner; this is the Lord's doings, and it is marvellous in our eyes? Therefore say I unto you, The kingdom of God shall be taken from you, and given to a nation bringing forth the fruits thereof." The vineyard is called the kingdom of God, and Jesus being the Son of David, and the Son of God, gave him a double right to the throne; and he is still represented as a stone, being a king. "And whosoever shall fall on this stone shall be broken, but on whomsoever it shall fall it will grind him to powder."

Here the reader may see are three positions the "stone" occupies at its first advent. It is on the ground that it might be fallen upon, which they did, and crucified him, and as a nation broken and scattered, and must remain so until the times of the Gentiles be fulfilled. (Luke 21: 24), which is the time allotted to the fourth universal or Gentile government of the metallic image. The second position of the stone is an elevated one, so as to fall. Now that Jesus has been rejected as their king, he as a nobleman has gone into a far country to receive for himself a kingdom, and to return. And when he was taken up from the earth into heaven, two shining ones were left to console the disciples with these words—"This same Jesus, which is taken up from you into heaven, shall so come in like manner as ye have seen him go into heaven." Acts 1: 9–11. The stone has ascended and will come again, yet the heavens must receive him until the times of the restitution of all things (Acts 3: 21), or the times of the Gentiles are fulfilled; then the stone will be in its third position. Matt. 21: 44—"But on whomsoever it shall fall, it will grind him to powder." Then it is to occupy the position of a millstone, to grind to powder whomsoever it shall fall on. John the revelator says (18: 21—"And a mighty angel took up a stone like a great millstone, and cast it into the sea, saying, Thus with violence [or smote the image on the feet] shall that great city, Babylon, be thrown down, and shall be found no more at all." By turning to Rev. 17, we may learn what city this is; and it is here represented by a woman sitting on a scarlet-colored beast, and upon her forehead the name written—"Mystery, Babylon, the Great"; not literal Babylon, but mystical. Then the angel comes to explain the mystery. He says—"The woman which thou sawest, is that great city which reigneth over the kings of the earth." This did Rome. Then the angel says in the ninth verse—"The seven heads are seven mountains on which the woman sitteth." Was not Rome built on seven hills? She was.

Has that stone so thrown down or ground to powder Rome, that she cannot be found? You know that it has not, for Rome still stands, but stands only in a weak and divided state, as it was to stand when the stone is to smite the great metallic image on the feet, as Daniel says (2: 35)—"Then is the iron, the clay, the brass, the silver, and the gold broken to pieces together, and become like the chaff of the summer's threshing-floor; and the wind carried them away that no place was found for them"; or, (Rev. 18: 21)—"And shall be found no more at all."

THE SEVENTY WEEKS.

N. H. BARBOUR.

Seventy weeks are determined upon thy people, and upon thy holy [koh-desh] sanctuary." Dan. 9: 24. The same word occurs in Dan. 8: 14. "Then shall the koh-desh be cleansed." These seventy weeks were evidently given to measure the remnant of, the Jewish dispensation. Most Bible students think they ended at, or about the time of the crucifixion; while some recent writers extend them to the destruction of Jerusalem. Objections to both views have been raised by those who take opposite sides. If the former be true, the balance of the 2300 days, from which these seventy weeks were cut off, must have ended 1810 years after the crucifixion, or about A. D. 1843. The objection to this application is with the ending of the longer period of 2300 days, and not with the seventy weeks themselves. If the latter view be taken, there are objections to the ending of the seventy weeks, and also that of the longer period. Those who believe they ended in A. D. 65, divide the 2300 days thus; seventy weeks or 490 years, "determined," or cut off on the Jews, and the 1810 measure "the time of the Gentiles."

OBJECTIONS TO THIS VIEW.

If the seventy weeks which were "determined" on that people ended at A. D. 65, it follows that their nationality and organization must have continued until that time; for when the organization which constituted them a peculiar people ended, they must have ceased to be "thy people," in every sense in which they are not "thy people" to-day. Hence the "seventy weeks" must have been the measure of their dispensation, probation, or organization. The affirmative on this question, say their nationality, priesthood, sacrifices and organization did continue until A. D. 65. And this is in a certain sense correct. Hence they are right in making this assertion as they do, unsupported by Bible evidence; the burden of proof lying with the negative. Romanists assert that the bread is the body of Christ. "Take eat, this is my body." This is correct in letter. Protestants affirm that it represents his body. This is true in spirit. The affirmative on the question before us, are correct in letter, and therefore have a plausible position. But we shall show they are not correct in spirit. "The letter killeth, but the spirit maketh alive." Hence, whatever is based on the letter alone, is worthless.

Paul teaches that Christ made an end of sacrifice. The affirmative declare that Titus made an end of sacrifice. Both are correct in a certain sense. But which is true? It is not a handsome application of prophecy alone, but the true application, for which we are in search. "For the priesthood being changed, there is made of necessity a change of the law." Here we perceive the law was changed from Moses to Christ with the priesthood. The Aaronic priesthood ended when Christ, who was of the tribe of Judah, took the office of Priest upon himself, is the teaching of Paul. The Aaronic priesthood did not end until Jerusalem was destroyed, say they. "The law was until John, says Christ. The law was until Titus, say they. The partition wall which made the distinction between Jew and Gentile, was broken down and removed by the gospel, is the teaching of Paul. The partition wall which made that people distinct, was not broken down, say they, until A. D. 65. Paul teaches that "Jerusalem which now is, and is in bondage with her children, stood for Agar," and hence was rejected when the true seed came. They teach that the old Hagar continued to be "thy holy sanctuary, or city," until A. D. 65, notwithstanding our Lord said "their house was left unto them desolate."

Under the gospel dispensation, Paul teaches that they that were Jews outwardly had ceased to be Jews. The outward Jew continued to be "thy people" until A. D. 65, say they. If nothing else, certainly their nationality continued until A. D. 65, say the affirmative. (From their stand point, I should say it continued until A. D. 70; but this would be five years too long.) The simple fact of their having a city, did not make or mar their nationality. They were a nation before they had a city. See Deut. 26: 5. They were "a royal priesthood, a holy nation," so called of God. And the two characters were one and inseparable. When their priesthood ended and the kingdom of God was taken from them, they ceased to be a nation, in the true sense of the language of Inspiration. For under the gospel dispensation "we are a royal priesthood; we are a holy nation," says the Apostle. Did God have two royal priesthoods, two holy nations, two dispensations, two doors to the kingdom, at one and the same time? He did if that old Hagar and her children continued to be "thy people and thy holy city" until A. D. 65, in any sense in which they are not his to-day.

"They shall take away the daily, and they shall place the abomination that maketh desolate" (Dan. 11: 31), doubtless refers to the Romans. And the Romans did stop the burning of sheep and oxen. But when they took away that "daily," it was not a sacrifice. A sacrifice means an offering made to God, by his own appointed ministers, says Cruden. As the priesthood had been changed to Christ, there was no priest or minister among that God-forsaken people to offer a sacrifice. Hence, the prophet calls it "the daily" simply; but not sacrifice, as our translators have. I should have called it "abomination." They—the Romans—took away the daily abomination, to please the one that "maketh desolate." Let no man deceive you, however plausible his theory may appear, when it is opposed by the whole spirit and teaching of the gospel, as this one is. That dispensation, covenant, law, priesthood, nationality and organization ended with the introduction of a new order of things; when Christ became the minister of a better covenant. "And he shall confirm the covenant with many for one week." Dan. 9: 27. This "he" cannot refer to the prince of the preceding verse, for it is "the people of the prince" who accomplish the destruction. Hence if it is the work of destruction which confirms the covenant, as some of our brethren assert, it should have been, "they shall confirm the covenant," not "he." There is, to my mind, far more propriety in referring this "he" to "the Messiah." But to make an application of a prophecy as dark as this one is conceded to be, and with such a variety of renderings, hinge on the supposed application of a pronoun, as given in this one rendering, would be very unsatisfactory to me, unless it were supported by other evidence. A covenant, testament, or agreement, is an obligation or contract between two or more parties, and must be confirmed by the party who obligate themselves to accomplish or bring about certain results, and not by a third party who have no interest in it.

Again. A covenant, or testament (synonymous terms), must be confirmed before it comes into operation; not after it has expired. See Heb. 9: 16, 18. "The first covenant had ordinances of divine service, and a worldly sanctuary." This "first covenant," referred to by Paul, was evidently the Jewish covenant, and could not have continued after "the seventy weeks" determined on that people had ended. The seventy weeks ended, as our brethren say, at A. D. 65. Hence, by this theory of application, the Jewish covenant was confirmed after it had expired; and by Titus, who had no connection with it. All of which is opposed to Scripture and reason. Moses was the mediator of the first covenant, Christ of the second. The first covenant was confirmed by the shedding of blood; so was the second,—but not the blood of Titus. "If that first covenant had been faultless, then should no place have been sought for the second." Heb. 8: 7. "In that he saith, A new covenant, he hath made the first old; now that which decayeth and waxeth old is ready to vanish away." Heb. 8: 13. "Then saith he, Lo, I come to do thy will, O God. He taketh away the first, that he may establish the second." Heb. 10: 9. It was "he," the Messiah, and not Titus, who came "to do thy will, O God," and "took away the first, that he might establish the second." The whole tenor of Paul's reasoning, and of the gospel itself, teaches, beyond all question, that the first covenant was taken away to make place for a better one, long before Jerusalem was destroyed.

The "he" that confirms the covenant (ver. 26) is the same "he" that causes the sacrifice and oblation to cease. And if Paul's testimony can be received, Messiah made the sacrifice and oblation to cease, "nailing them to his cross." The fact that the "one week" is mentioned after the destruction of the city, certainly does not prove that its chronological place is during its destruction. Events are often mentioned in prophecy without regard to their chronology. In Micah 5: 1, 2, for instance, they are said to "smite the judge of Israel on the cheek" in the first verse; after which his birth is mentioned in the second. In Zech. 9: 9–11, the everlasting kingdom and gospel dispensation are strangely mingled, as also in many other places.

This stretching of the seventy weeks to the destruction of Jerusalem, does great injustice to the unity of the prophecy, as well as to its language. "Seventy weeks are determined upon thy people, and upon thy holy city," to accomplish certain definitely specified things, all of which were accomplished at and by the death of Christ, as we can prove from the New Testament. "Know therefore"—in consequence of these seventy weeks being determined on thy people, that it shall be divided so and so—"from the going forth of the commandment to restore and to build Jerusalem, unto the Messiah the Prince, shall be seven weeks and threescore and two weeks." This ended when Christ began his ministry, after John the forerunner had fulfilled his course. For as the Messiah, or Anointed, he did not come until after John had baptized. Acts 13: 24. "And after threescore and two weeks [those just mentioned, not a new period] shall Messiah be cut off." Whether it was three and a half years after, or seven, we can never know, for Inspiration and history are alike silent on that point. "And he shall confirm the covenant with many for one week." Whether Christ confirmed it in his own person, during the whole week, or a portion of the time through those who heard him, we cannot tell; doubtless the latter; for as he causes "the sacrifice and oblation to cease in the midst of the week," and this occurs when he offers himself on the cross, it is probable that he preached only three and a half years.

By destroying the unity of this prophecy, and separating the seven weeks, and threescore and two weeks, and one week, into periods having no relation to each other, or to the seventy, of which it is so clearly implied they are a part, our brethren make them cover seventy-nine weeks. Sixty-nine weeks reach to the birth of our Lord, say they; while the one week, by some wonderful arrangement, is made to reach to A. D. 70, or ten weeks further on. Hence there were really seventy-nine weeks determined on that people, it would appear.

It seems to me enough has been said to show that this whole theory is based on the one fact that Jerusalem was not destroyed for some thirty or forty years after God had given it up, and it had ceased to be "the holy city," and without one atom of Scripture support, but in the face of a perfect avalanche of inspired testimony against such application.

"The times of the Gentiles" must refer to Gentile dominion, or Gentile probation; there is nothing else to which they can refer. If to the first, they began with Babylon, the first universal Gentile kingdom. If they refer to their probation, they began when the gospel was first preached to the Gentiles. In either case the balance of the 2300 days, or 1810 years, is too short to cover "the times of the Gentiles." And to say that they began at A. D. 65, is like all the rest of this application, founded on pure assertion, entirely unsupported by Scripture. God had given them up long before that; and Christ had told them that by and by an army should come and destroy the old Hagar and her children.

OBJECTIONS TO THE 2300 DAYS ENDING IN 1843.

The evidence that the Jewish covenant, law, ordinances, seventy weeks, and all that pertained to that dispensation ended with the last, or "one week," during which our Lord takes away the old, and confirms the new covenant, and "causes the sacrifice and oblation to cease," by instituting a better sacrifice and a "better covenant," is beyond all question. Therefore, it follows that the balance of the 2300 days must have ended 1810 years after the termination of that "one week," or at about 1843. But as we have clearly shown these 1810 years are not long enough to cover "the times of the Gentiles," we are forced to the conclusion that Gentile times extend beyond the 2300. And there is nothing in the language of Dan. 8: 14, which forbids it. "Unto two thousand and three hundred days, then shall the sanctuary be cleansed," certainly does not imply that it had been cleansed before the days ended, nor does it imply that it must be accomplished instantly at the end of the days. When 2300 days have ended, there was something in the future, something still to be done. "Then" implies time, and means the next event. You go to England, then to China. "How long the voyage from the time you leave the shores of England, until you pass the last inch of water, and plant your feet on the soil of China? And he said unto me, until 2300 days, then shall the passengers go ashore." The question in the vision, like this question, covers the whole time, "even to the last end of the indignation;" but the answer is indefinite. You might go ashore in a few minutes, or, if night had come on, not until morning. In the case before us, night did come on. The vision tarried at the end of the 2300 days; "and while the bridegroom tarried they all slumbered and slept." A similar case occurs in the twelfth chapter. A question which covers the whole time down to the resurrection, is asked—"How long shall it be to the end of these wonders?" The answer is, that it shall be for a "time, times and a half;" then something was to be done which the time given in the answer does not cover. Daniel then asks, "What shall be the end of these things?" and is informed that "there shall be a thousand two hundred and ninety days." And even this period does not cover it all; for after these days end, there is something still future—a waiting time—"Blessed is he that waiteth and cometh to the month and a half added thereto"; as some old translations read.

None of these periods so far given in the book of Daniel, reach to the end; for there is a positive declaration, that after each one of them there was something as yet unaccomplished. And whether that something would be accomplished in five minutes or fifty years, there is not the slightest hint, until the last period is given. Here, with "the thousand three hundred and five and thirty days," is the final and complete answer, to which God, the angels, and the prophet have been gradually bringing us, through all these past visions, questions, and answers. This final answer is clear and positive. Of this period it is said—"Thou shalt rest, and stand in thy lot, AT THE END OF THE DAYS."

This makes the book of Daniel a unit, not broken fragments, independent of each other. The vision of the second chapter was a mere outline; the seventh adds new features; the eighth still more, and finally, with the last words that fall from the lips of the "man clothed in linen," we reach the solution of the great problem. The book was then "closed up and sealed, even to the time of the end." "Behold I will make thee to know what shall be in the last end of the indignation, for at the time appointed the end shall be." Verse 19. From this to the twenty-fifth verse the angel shows him what shall be, even to the last end, where the "fourth beast" is "broken without hands." This was the time God had appointed in the second chapter for the end, when the stone cut out "without hands" should smite the image. Two prophetic periods had been mentioned prior to this—"the time, times and a half" of the seventh chapter, and the 2300 days of this vision; but it does not necessarily follow that either of these periods was the time God had appointed for the end. God speaks of things that are not as though they were; and though he had declared the end from the beginning, he did not reveal it to Daniel until the last sentence of his communications was completed.

God appointed the time long before Daniel's day. He says to David, in the 102d Psalm—"When the Lord shall build up Zion, he shall appear in his glory"—just what we are looking for at the end of the days—"Thou shalt arise and have mercy upon Zion; for the time to favor her, yea, the set time is come."

The Bible is a unit; and the plan of salvation, stretching from the garden of Eden till the "last trump" shall call the sleeping millions from the dust, is one progressive and unbroken work. A word uttered in some dark corner by an ancient seer, echoes down the centuries until the stream is caught by other lips, and used as if the language had but just burst forth from their own inspiration. "Let us then take heed unto the sure word of prophecy, as unto a light shining in a dark place,....knowing this first, that no prophecy is given of any private interpretation;.... but holy men of God spake as they were moved by the Holy Ghost," and their words are linked together in one great comprehensive plan. The several parts not perfect in themselves, or containing the whole truth; but like stones built up by the Master builder, each one dependent on, and perfect only in connection with, its fellows. The 1260 days reach to "the time of the end"—1798. The 2300 days reach to the tarrying time—1843. The 1290 days reach to the waiting time, or to where the Advent movement began—1828. The 1335 days reach to the time when Daniel will stand in his lot—1873.

The different phases of the Advent movement, like all of God's work, are consistent in themselves, and form a united whole. The first "going out to meet the bridegroom," began at the end of the 1290 days, and reached to 1843. Then came the disappointment, just as our Lord had said—"And while the bridegroom tarried, they all slumbered and slept." This accounts for the divisions and mistakes of this phase of the movement. "At midnight," viz., the middle of this tarrying, or sleeping time, from 1843 to 1873, there was a cry—the true one—to be made. The 1873 cry began in the middle of this thirty years of tarrying, just where our Lord said it would begin. And now at that cry the virgins are waking up, and trimming their lamps by hundreds and by thousands, and still the cry goes on. But in order to preach 1873 time, we must go back to the platform occupied by "the virgins" before they went to sleep. Bro. Miller's dream is coming true. During this sleeping time the virgins have taken those "jewels," or prophetic periods which God gave to him, and scattering them to the four winds, have put counterfeit ones in their place. But these lost jewels are being found and reset, and are indeed "shining brighter than before."

There are many overwhelming evidences for 1873. Some of our brethren see one of these, the 1335 days, and are preaching it; others see more; but just so far as they are preaching 1873 time, they are on the old 1843 platform. And when they get completely back into the position occupied before they went to sleep, they will get such a blaze of light from the sure word of prophecy as will make their hearts glad, and their words powerful. Seen from this high eminence, all the disappointments and strange history of the Advent people come out in strong relief; and what has hitherto appeared like confusion, is seen to take its place as a part of a systematic plan through which God designed to lead us to our deliverance. And as the beginning, or first movement, was based in truth, we shall find a good tree will bring forth good fruit, notwithstanding the unripe fruit has been bitter.

Convince me that the 1843 movement was based in falsehood, and that the past has been only confusion and error, and I will admit, with the world, that the chances are a hundred to one that this 1873 movement will be of a like nature, and end in disappointment. But as its foundation was laid in truth, depend upon it, at the end "the vision will speak and not lie."

THE religion of the gospel demands from its votaries the active exertion of their different powers in promoting the glory of God and the welfare of man. The Lord Jesus represents his disciples as servants, whose Master entrusts them with a portion of his property, which during his absence they are to improve. While some have five talents, others have two; but they who have the least have one. Yet these talents are not their own. They all belong to the Master. They are lent to you. Important motive for faithfulness. Impressively important, when it is considered how rich a regard heavenly love will bestow where even one talent has been sedulously improved; and how the mere neglect of improving even one renders him to whom it was lent a wicked and slothful servant. Be active, be zealous, for the time is short. "Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it with thy might," for "the night cometh in which no man can work." "They that be wise shall shine as the brightness of the firmament."—J. G. Pike.

The World's Crisis AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

Boston, Wednesday, April 3, 1872.

Take Notice!

All subscriptions for the "Crisis" issued from this time forward are at the rate of $2.00 a year, payable IN ADVANCE.

Please Remember!

All remittances to this office, in the form of Drafts, Bank Checks, and Postal Money-Orders, should be made payable to the Business Agent, GEO. T. ADAMS.

THOSE who send articles for the "Crisis," should direct them to MILES GRANT, Boston, Mass., and not to the Business Agent.

"THE WORLD'S CRISIS."

REDUCTION OF ITS SUBSCRIPTION PRICE.

At a meeting of the Advent Christian Publication Society, held August 23d, 1871, it was voted as follows:—

"That at any time during the year, if in the judgment of the Editor, Editorial Committee, and Business Agent, they see fit to reduce the price of subscription for the World's Crisis, they be authorized to do so."

It was stated in our last annual report, that if our subscribers all paid up promptly, the Society would be able to reduce the price of "our paper" to $2.00 per year. Independent of the names on our free list, $2.00 from each subscriber would give us a larger sum than we have ever received in any one year for the Crisis. This would enable us to continue the paper, as before, to the worthy on our free list, and pay all our bills promptly. We have been making special efforts to collect the dues on the paper, and have met with some success, yet not so full as we ought.

In accordance with the above vote, we have now decided to reduce the subscription price of

THE WORLD'S CRISIS,
Commencing with Volume XXXV.,
April 3d, 1872, to
$2.00 per year, Payable in Advance.

In remitting, our subscribers will please send for what they are owing, at the rate of $2.50 per year, to April 3d; $2.00, and at the same rate, for less than a year for the issue from that time forward.

As our price will be less, our friends will see that in order for our receipts to hold good, the number of paying subscribers must be increased; while the number of non-paying ones is diminished. Now we hope this may be accomplished; first, by an earnest, united, successful effort on the part of the friends of the Crisis in procuring and sending to the Office the names of a large number of new subscribers. Second, that a large number whose names have been on our books for years—delinquents, who have not paid any thing for a long time, will now at once write us, remitting a part, at least, of what they are owing, and paying for a year in advance, and thus become paying subscribers in fact, while for a long time they have been only such in name; otherwise, if we do not hear from them, we shall be compelled to drop their names from our list.

In regard to our free list, we would say—We hope that our receipts may be kept good as above, so that the Society may be able to continue the paper to the worthy poor among us, many of whom are in very destitute circumstances, and who should receive the Crisis freely so long as published. Yet it may be that there are some on the free list who are able to pay something. We trust they will do as the Lord would have them, but let none of the poor distress themselves. We believe the friends will see that we have funds to continue the paper to you as heretofore. Now is a good time for those who remit for themselves to put in something for the "poor fund." Those who are free to remit $2.50, as usual, can do so, and we will place the extra 50 cents on the fund to send the Crisis to the poor, free.

We doubt not the reduction will please our friends everywhere, and we hope they will sustain us in the same by their efforts and prayers.

GEO. T. ADAMS,
Business Agent.

DISCUSSION OF SPIRITUALISM.

Saturday, evening, March 16th, we closed an interesting debate which had continued six evenings. We had the following as the basis of the discussion—"RESOLVED, That the phenomena of Spiritualism proceed from demons." Our opponent was a young German Spiritualist lecturer, by the name of C. A. Lohmueller, possessing fine talent, and of gentlemanly demeanor. He was evidently honest in his position, having been led into Spiritualism by the bad examples of professors of religion, and the inconsistencies of the doctrines held by theologians at the present day. In early life he had been a Methodist. He is a ready speaker, and fair in debate. Much interest was felt in the investigation of the subject. Our chapel was crowded every night with an intelligent and very attentive audience. A large number of the leading men and women in San Francisco are Spiritualists. We have been in no other place where Spiritualism had so strong hold as it had here when we made our first visit to this coast. It is confessed by Spiritualists that those holding our views are their only real opponents. They have no trouble with any others. After hearing, several have given it up, and now look upon it with disgust. One of the most prominent Spiritualists in the city is now under deep conviction for sin, and is seeking rest in Christ. If he becomes a christian, he will probably become an able minister of the New Testament.

The discussion has accomplished much good. Many who heard had not understood the character of Spiritualism before. They had had but a faint idea of its terribly blasphemous nature. When the veil was taken off, and the system unmasked, they were shocked at the sight, and some were so horrified that they left the house rather than to hear any more of our opponent's attacks upon the Bible and its Author. We did not need to say anything to show that the spirits are most bitterly opposed to everything the christian holds sacred. While Christianity is the religion of Christ, Spiritualism is the religion of the devil.

Our opponent said if demons and wicked men had a devilish nature, they must have inherited it from God. He made several earnest but unsuccessful attempts to impeach the Bible, showing each time that he had not been a careful reader of its sacred pages. We believe this to be true of a large number of those who reject the Bible. After various fruitless attempts to break the Scriptures, and to find therein evidence against our position, he remarked that he would say no more about the Bible. He then said that the only sure evidence of man's immortal nature was that presented to clairvoyants. We repeatedly urged him to present that evidence, but it was not given; hence we are unable to tell the reader in what it consists.

He said his God was the God of nature, and was the one who cared for us. We inquired if his God took better care of us than the God of the Bible? No answer. We inquired if his God of nature was a personal, intelligent being? and reminded him that if he was not, he could have no care for us. We received no response to give us any light on the subject. We also called his attention to his statement that if the God of the Bible created man, then he inherited his evil nature from his Creator; and said to him, Suppose, as he claimed, that his God of nature made man, instead of the God of the Bible; then would it not follow, if his premises were true, that man inherited his evil nature from his "God of nature"? No answer. We then said to him that he could not prefer a charge against the God of the Bible that would not rest with equal weight against his God of nature. After careful thought, he did not venture to deny this fact. We inquired how he knew that the God of nature was not the God of the Bible? We received no answer.

In the further investigation of Spiritualism, we took the position that the mediums never see our real friends, but only mental pictures of them, which are produced in the mind of the demon who controls the medium. As all the spirits and intelligent Spiritualists, so far as we know, affirm that the mediums are controled in the same way as in mesmerism, we have only to know how a person under mesmeric influence can see objects, to understand how mediums see our friends. There is but one solution of the whole matter. In mesmerism, the operator forms a mental picture of whatever he wishes to present to the one under his control, when that picture becomes a real object to his medium, but to no one else. The person seen by the medium is no more present than is the one seen in our dreams. In response to this, our opponent inquired with what eyes we see in dreams? claiming that the sight is produced by the eyes of a spirit-body that exists in each individual during their natural life, and that at death this spirit-body leaves the earthly one and becomes the spirit-body that returns to communicate through mediums. This was our opponent's last and main position.

In response we inquired, With what feet does the dreamer walk? with what hands does he handle objects? with what organs of speech does he talk, when lying silent in the bed? with what feet does the friend walk whom the dreamer visits in his dream, in a distant land? and with what hands does he shake the hand of this dreamer, when the friend himself may be busily at work in the field, while the other is dreaming about him? And in what kind of chairs does the dreamer sit down to eat with his friend? What kind of food do they eat? On what kind of a table do they place their food? What are their organs of mastication and digestion, with which to dispose of the food taken by the dreamer? Of course there is but one answer to these inquiries—The whole affair is imaginary on the part of the dreamer. The involuntary action of the brain, in connection with the senses, while the will power is asleep, produces these mental pictures before the dreamer, which appear to him in that state as realities; but when awakened he knows that it was all imaginary. He would be thought insane, if he should claim that when he dreamed of walking, talking, and eating with a friend, he did it actually, literally. So, all the talk about a spirit-body inside of our material organisms, which has spirit-hands, feet, eyes, ears, mouth, organs of speech, etc., is talk about that which exists only in imagination. Therefore no communications can come from any such imaginary existences. Our opponent saw the point thus presented, and dropped the subject, without further notice.

Very happy results have already appeared as the fruits of the debate. The eyes of the people are more fully opened than ever to the hideous deformity of the system of Spiritualism. They had no idea before that it was so bad, and so blasphemous in its character. Now the hypocritical covering is taken off, so that they can see its awful corruption, they turn away with disgust, as from a loathsome, putrid carcass. Those who love to feed on carrion, delighting in all that is opposed to Christ, holiness, and Christianity, still hold fast to the abomination, and persist in their bitter opposition to the God of the Bible, and all who stand up in its defense. Spiritualism is the worst enemy to the true welfare of man that is now in the field; and it is gaining power rapidly.

SACRAMENTO.

We are now (March 20th) holding meetings again in this city, with a very encouraging prospect for good results. We commenced the 18th instant, and have held two meetings. We found some warm-hearted friends anxiously waiting our return. Eight rose for prayers last evening. The Spirit of the Lord was present to produce heavenly results. Several members of other churches took a part in the meeting, and are seeing the truth on the nature of man, the destruction of the wicked, the inheritance of the saints, and the coming of Christ; which leads them to love the Bible better than ever, because they can now understand its meaning. We purpose to remain here several days, and hope to see a good church established.

LAST DAY TOKENS.

That we are near the end of the present dispensation we have no doubt. If desired to say how near, we cannot speak with the same confidence, but our expectations are strong that we shall see Jesus within less than ten years; perhaps in less than half that time. We do not yet see evidence to cause us to speak with positiveness in relation to a definite year for the coming of Christ. As soon as certain events transpire, which we think must be very near at hand, then we may be able to understand how long it will be to the glad day when Jesus will appear in his glory to set up his kingdom. This is the hour when all should watch with great care lest they become spotted by the flesh or the devil.

The tokens that indicate we are near the great day of the Lord are overwhelming and unmistakable. Many sincere christian men and women are now becoming much interested in the evidences that indicate the immediate coming of Christ. Till within a brief period, they had had no expectation of living to see the day; but now they are looking at the signs of the times with fond hopes of living till the second coming of Christ. They have just awakened from a slumbering condition caused by theological opiates, administered by unfaithful watchmen, teaching the conversion of the world, or that the study of the prophecies of Daniel and John were unprofitable.

We have reason to rejoice in the fact that many ministers are also waking up to an examination of this all-important subject, and are beginning to sound a faithful alarm to the worldly professors, who have been living in a careless manner, unprepared to meet Christ in peace. We expect many more noble souls will soon begin to proclaim the good news that our Savior is about to return to raise the dead, and greet his loving bride, crowning her with honor, glory and immortality.

Before twelve months pass, we may expect more tokens indicating the end is at hand, provided we are as near it as the present signs indicate. We would not be over positive about unfulfilled prophecies, and the events that must transpire between the present hour and appearing of our divine Savior; but all things seem to speak harmoniously and plainly, that we shall not have to wait very long, before we shall see the "Lamb of God" coming with his holy angels, in great glory. We believe the unprepared will soon find it too late. The Lord has waited long for them to repent and be converted. We think it is certain that the time is at hand, when the saints will take the kingdom to possess it "forever, even for ever and ever." Let us all be ready to enter that happy home, where sorrow and pain will be for ever unknown.

IMPORTANT DISCOVERY.

It is well known that Geologists have been very bold in asserting that the Mosaic account of creation is not true, especially if it is claimed that the six days of creation were literal days of twenty-four hours each. We have ever believed that they were, and that there are no geological facts to the contrary. We are aware that there are many opinions and speculative theories to the contrary among different geologists. One of their strong points has been that certain specimens of marine animals have been found fossilized in such situations as showed they must have been extinct for hundreds of thousands of years, thus showing that the earth has existed for nearly a million of years, instead of about six thousand, as shown by the Bible. Skeptics have been bold against the Mosaic record in consequence of these discoveries, but their tower of Babel falls to the ground before the following facts:

AGASSIZ' DISCOVERIES.—Geologists will, no doubt, be highly gratified with the intelligence from the Agassiz expedition that that eminent scientist has on his present scientific excursion already succeeded in discovering living specimens of marine animals, the remains of which have hitherto only been found as fossils in distant geological eras. Here is a series of rare bones of contention for the geologists, for if creatures whom they have pronounced extinct some hundreds of thousands of centuries ago are to be found alive and flourishing at this time, the startling deductions hitherto arrived at and enthusiastically promulgated by the most devoted of our geologists receive a rude shock from these unexpected discoveries by a man of science who has supported the seemingly well-established theories of the most advanced of modern geologists, who, by means of the very fossil animals which Agassiz has found in a living state, proved this earth of ours to be at the least one million years old."

Prof. Agassiz is very high authority; and he has formerly supported the popular gealogical ideas of the great age of the world.

A TERRIBLE THREAT.

The plans and purposes of the Communists are terrible, as may be seen by the following:—

"The editor of the 'Commune' newspaper published in London thus ends an article: 'Beware, citizens of Paris, of the year 1872! This will be the year of the great revenge! We need thirty thousand heads, and we shall have them!'"

It is understood that the Communists and the Internationals are but two names for the same organization. The governments of Europe are alarmed at the rapidly growing strength of these associations, and are taking measures to suppress them. It will not be found a very easy task. A terrible struggle is apparently at hand.

The following is from the Boston Daily Globe (a new paper, the largest, and the most ably conducted in the city):

"Europe is to-day little less than one vast camp, with about six millions of trained men ready to spring to arms at the bugle's call, and to set vigorously to work at cutting each others' throats. Even Italy, supposed to be the least 'exposed' of nations, just at the present time, has a 'peace establishment' of over half a million men under arms. Of course the German people are simply all soldiers, and a figure representing her army would signify nothing, while France is carefully and surely calculating her revenge upon her late enemy in every political movement, yet fulfilling to the very letter each provision of the extorted terms of treaty. Even England has at length woke up from her lethargic condition, and in the midst of peace is preparing for war, aiming to organize an effective, if not an imposing army."

Earth's closing scenes are upon us. The morning of bright glory is about to dawn. Let us all be ready to give Jesus a hearty welcome when he comes. Scoffers are growing bold in their mockery as in the days of Noah and Lot. The true christian is looked upon with pity or contempt. It is high time to come out from the world and be separate. Let every heart be clean that expects to be ready to meet Jesus. None but holy ones can enter the city of the Great King. If hatred, variance, or other wicked things are in the heart, it is sure evidence that such a one is not filled with the Holy Spirit; and therefore not prepared for a home in the coming kingdom. Dear reader, are you ready?

"THE IMMORTALITY OF ANIMALS AND MAN."—A correspondent in Washington sends us the following, under the above caption, taken from the London Spectator.

"There seems room for a word, if you can find space for it, in reply to 'Philozooist,' not so much in the way of argument as of history, in reference to opinion on immortality. Your correspondent says, 'if man's immortality be accepted as proven,' certain consequences will follow favorable to the survival of the higher animals. But what if it be not 'accepted as proven?' There is no small company of our contempararies who think that the phenomena of animal intelligence and moral feeling, taken in connection with animal death, throw more doubt on the natural eternal immortality of mankind as proven, and then extending a similar hope to the 'higher animals.' Under any theory of evolution, we seem to be compelled either to abandon the doctrine of man's immortality, or to extend the expectation of eternal survival to all living creatures.

"In this difficulty it is not to be wondered at that an ancient belief is reviving with immense force over all Christendom, (held, as I understand, among others, by the late illustrious Rothe,) that the notion of man's absolute immortality under a sinful condition is a mistake, that it is the very object of the incarnation of the Divine life to communicate immortality to mankind, but that its enjoyment will be restricted to 'regenerate' and curable men, the evil residue of the human race which may resist all present or future redemptive methods, lasting long enough only to receive 'the due reward of their deeds,' in a judgment usually described as 'death,' perishing,' and 'destruction.' It is evident that under this view of conditional immortality, communicated by supernatural grace, the Christian faith of many may be preserved who at present feel themselves compelled to reject in toto a revelation supposed to base itself on an immortality in man which comparative science, both physical and metaphysical, does not seem to support by evidence."

FRANCE.—The Boston Daily Globe says of the state of things in France—"The situation of France to-day is a grave one. . . . . The ashes of a forced peace but thinly overlie the embers of anarchy, and a chance breath may at any time kindle a flame which will set all Europe ablaze."

And of suicide and insanity there—"It is impossible, says the Pall Mall Gazette, not to be struck, in reading the faits divers of French journals, with the perpetual suicides which are daily recorded by the press. The Morgue is too small to contain the bodies found in the Seine, and not a day passes without the announcement of deaths by charcoal in the lower quarters of the capital, and even in the more aristocratic parts of the town. The yearly records show also that the lunatic asylums are over-crowded, and that their inmates have more than doubled in the course of the last year. In fact, the Paris maisons de sante, taking into account the private establishments conducted by medical men, are barely sufficient to accommodate the overwhelming number of lunatics. Several distinguished mad doctors have been so struck by this increase of madness and suicide, that an inquiry has been instituted, and most of these savants express the opinion that the greater portion of the lunatics under their examination have become deranged by the strain of the political misfortunes which have afflicted France. This tendency to insanity is especially remarkable among the Communist prisoners at Brest, Cherbourg, Lorient, and elsewhere. Two per cent. of these have become lunatics since their imprisonment."

A CHRISTIAN BOARDING HOUSE.—Those who may visit New York city, and wish for a quiet resting place in a Christian home, will do well to call at Bro. D. F. Newton's, 303 West 20th Street. At Bro. Newton's, persons can obtain board and rooms by the day, week, month, or year, at moderate prices.

REMISSION OF SINS IN BAPTISM.

Did Peter teach that sins are pardoned in the act of baptism? "Then Peter said unto them, Repent, and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins." Acts 2: 38. Does he here present baptism as a pre-requisite to pardon, thus precluding pardon before baptism? No; he simply presents baptism as a pre-requisite to "remission of sins," instead of the pardon of sins. The term "remission" here employed is from aphesis, which primarily indicates release, or deliverance, as applicable to a criminal under arrest, awaiting execution. Pardon is a step preparatory to release, and precedes it. "Remission of sins," or the release from the penalty incurred by sin, is the result of pardon and obedience, and is experienced at the judgment. Pardon comes at conversion, but the result of pardon and obedience comes when the books are opened; then release, or "remission," is experienced by all who have here repented and obeyed,—baptism being one important act of obedience which expresses our faith in the death of Christ to meet the penalty for our sins, and his resurrection for our justification.

In the next chapter Peter presents the same sentiment, on the same subject—"Repent ye, therefore, and be converted, that your sins may be blotted out, when the times of refreshing shall come from the presence of the Lord; and he shall send Christ." Acts 3: 19, 20. Pardon is a pre-requisite to conversion, but the result is the blotting out of sins when the Judge comes; or "remission," or release, which exempts us from the penalty incurred by sin, we having made Christ's death available in our behalf through repentance and obedience. This is the rule by which pardon is obtained—"If we confess our sins, he is faithful and just to forgive us our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness." Earnest confession brings pardon, and in due time pardon and obedience will bring release from the incurred penalty, or bring the remission of sins.

The term "remission" is sometimes used to indicate forgiveness, as there can be no remission without forgiveness; but the primary meaning of the word here rendered "remission" is release, the result of pardon, due at the judgment. Baptism is a pre-requisite to this kind of "remission," but not a pre-requisite to forgiveness. Repentance brings pardon, but it takes both repentance and obedience to secure remission,—the first step in the road of obedience being baptism. Pardon for the past without obedience for the future will not save us.

AN EXTERMINATED RACE.

Many discoveries indicate the existence of a race of men on this continent, many centuries ago, entirely unlike the Indian tribes that were found here by Columbus. What renders the matters more mysterious in their case than in that of the Indians, is the fact that though they appear from numerous monumental proofs to have been very numerous and wide-spread, covering nearly the whole continent, they are all extinct. Not one descendant of the race survives. The Indians have no tradition concerning the extermination of such a race by warfare. Nearly every year adds some new discovery, to confirm the already strong conviction that such a race once inhabited this continent entirely different from the Indians. Who were they? when did they live here? and how were they exterminated?

We cannot speak with absolute positiveness concerning a matter that is neither revealed, nor recorded in history; but strong probabilities indicate that they might have been a part of the antediluvian race. These points are suggestive:

1. Many of the monumental proofs point to thousands of years in the past as the time of their occupancy of this land, which carries us back to the days of the antediluvians.

2. This being the case, they could easily have settled here before the "fountains of the great deep were broken up," thus causing the great ocean which now separates the two continents.

3. Not only is it possible that a part of the antediluvians might have settled in this land before the intervening sea prevented such emigration, but when we consider that 1656 years elapsed before the flood, and that people then lived to a vast age, leading some to estimate that there must have been about eight hundred millions of people on the earth when the flood came, it would be a wonder if a part of them had not found their way to this land. Doubtless they did, centuries before the flood, it being all one country at the time.

4. With this understanding, it is easy to see how the race was exterminated by the flood, and the ocean formed by the breaking up of the "fountains of the great deep," leaving this country disconnected from the old. Subsequent colonies may have crossed before or after the Indians, leaving tracks of later date.

TO TRACT DISTRIBUTERS.—Tracts are often scattered with no reference to economy, or to the probability of their doing good. It is not wise, in this matter, to knowingly cast pearls before swine. My attention was called to this matter anew a few days since, at a depot. In a promiscuous crowd tracts were lavishly laid upon the seats in the waiting rooms. On one seat near me nine were laid out. I took one, and watched the disposal of the rest, and found every one was destroyed on the spot by a rowdy class; then another lot were dealt out to share the same fate. It may be that out of a hundred or two tracts thus dealt out some one might fall into the hands of a reader. But could they not be more economically dealt out, especially when funds to publish them are not flush?

The object should not be to see how many tracts we can scatter, but how many we can get into the hands of readers who will read them. Tracts given where we know there is a willingness to read, is the most economical principle to act upon; and unless we have large quantities of tracts to scatter, and unlimited funds to supply the demand, it is better to make the most judicious disposal of what we have.

INTEREST IN THE SOUTH.—I am glad to report a growing interest in various parts of the South. I am receiving news of a cheering nature from different localities, both from ministers and members. Thank the Lord for the encouraging prospect. Persecution and prosperity often go hand in hand. If we are only persecuted for holding up God's truth, God will surely hold us up. Southern brethren, be kind, but always firm. Press the battle.

WISCONSIN ITEM.—Bro. Slocum, a Methodist minister in Wisconsin, has recently accepted the truth, and publicly declared himself an Adventist. A goodly number have taken a stand with him, and have given their names as members with us. Bro. S. had just had a revival meeting, in which some thirty had come out; and at the close of this meeting he declared his independence, and proclaimed his affinity to the Advent brethren and faith. It has produced quite a commotion.

A RUDE ÆOLIAN HARP.—While visiting a friend a few days ago, we were charmed with the sweet music of an Æolian harp. The instrument was of the simplest construction, and not worth as many cents as we shall take lines to write about it. But God's wind played on it, and as we listened to the strange weird melodies, and bathed our souls in its sweet undertones, we took in the lessons it taught us. Do we do thus with our souls? Do we place ourselves where God can bring out all the music there is in us? If my little instrument could have spoken, it would doubtless have said:—"I cannot give you music. I am only a little strip of wood, with a few strings of sewing-silk drawn across me. If I was a grand piano, or an organ, or indeed any other instrument than what I am—but what can I do?" Nothing, my little harp! All you have to do, is to let me put you in this window, and God's wind will do all the rest.

Alas, how many instruments God has in his church that give the weary world no music! And yet there is not one in all God's church from whom the Holy Ghost could not bring sweet music. Not one; but if they lie passively in his hands, the soft breath of his Spirit playing upon them would make sweet music to his name. Thank God for the grand instruments that thrill and inspire us. But who will be an Æolian harp for God?

"The soul alone, like a neglected harp,
Grows out of tune, and needs that hand divine;
Dwell thou within it, tune and touch the chords,
Till every note and string shall answer thine."

Times of Refreshing.

THE TRACT FUND.

The Advent Christian Publication Society, at a meeting on Springfield Camp-ground, August 23d, 1871, voted to raise Two Thousand Dollars for the free distribution of Tracts the ensuing year; and they invite the help and co-operation of all lovers of the Lord and of his truth, in the furtherance of the good cause. The times are ominous of coming events, and admonish us to diligence in the Master's work. The Lord is at the door, and what we do must be done quickly. Let the contributions be prompt, hearty, and liberal. The Lord will reward the liberal giver.

TO BRO. BOUTELL.

I was somewhat surprised at seeing your response in the Crisis. I did not think of drawing out a response from any one. I said "I preached six Sundays to one congregation, and only received $2.85"; and then asked how many of the Eastern preachers would preach long on that salary. Not that the preachers east have not as much of the spirit of sacrifice, but I thought of the better system of paying preachers there than here, and knew many were sure of their $10 a Sunday, and the difference between $2.85 and $60 was so great that they could not stand it long and support their families at that rate. I have preached in Me., N. H., Mass., Conn., and R. I., before coming here, and I am persuaded that all of those States sustain their Advent preachers better than the great "Empire State." I know of one preacher who preached every night and Sundays for six weeks, between Syracuse and Buffalo, and all the money he received was twenty-five cents.

I could relate some things in my own experience. I went once forty-two miles, paid about three dollars car fare, and preached over Sunday, and received a little paper of popped corn for my children as a widow's mite. Yet I went home feeling to praise the Lord. Another time I went nearly fifty miles and preached the best I could, and several confessed they were blessed, and when I left received a "God bless you; send us another appointment as soon as you can." It is a blessed way after all, but men ought to know, before they start out and meet with some such experience and get discouraged and back out, that they will not get rich preaching the Advent faith.

I think the past year has been the most peaceful of my christian experience. I never ventured on faith in God as I have the past winter, and never realized the Lord's faithful care as I have of late. Truly his promises are reliable. Have no disposition to give up or seek a better or easier way. Truly, if this "gospel of the kingdom" is to be "preached in all the world for a witness unto all nations" before the end comes, some one must venture out into new places; and I do not know but it might as well be you and me, Bro. Boutell, as any one else. I know if we are in the path of duty, "the Lord will provide"; and we will continue to trust in him.

I made up my mind to preach a free gospel just as long as I possibly could, and when I could not do that any longer, I would go to work with my hands until I made up what was lacking, and then go at it again. So here's my heart and hand for a good strong pull yet. There is much to be done. The end is at hand, and the Lord at the door; and what is done must be done quickly. I do want to hear the "Well done" when He does come.

The past has too well proved your great heart of sympathy, as you have lived out your "good living religion" while we were neighbors, for me to doubt your sympathy; and should we never be permitted to behold each other face to face before the Lord comes, I shall expect to grasp your immortal hand in the "kingdom of God." Pray that the good Lord may make me instrumental in winning a bride for my Master. The wedding must be full; the highways furnish the guests.

Yours in the highways, A. P. MOORE.

"THE GUIDING HAND."

DEAR CRISIS:—I found on my table the other day a copy of the above book. I had not seen it before; perhaps some of your readers have not seen it. I would like to tell them something of it, because it is a good book.

The "Guiding Hand" is a collection of "records" of a "providential direction," of which the author says in his preface, they "are offered as facts. It is true that some of them are given anonymously, having been gathered up during many years of desultory reading; and sometimes it has been impossible to authenticate a statement or ascertain the authorship of a particular account. But a considerable portion of these instances have occurred within the experience of the writer, or within that of his personal friends."

There are some one hundred and twelve incidents related in the volume, for over thirty of which the author vouches. These interesting sketches of the Divine guidance and keeping make up a volume of nearly three hundred and fifty pages, well printed and neatly bound. It is just the little book to have handy, to catch up for a leisure moment. The sketches are brief, and pertinent for all times; and will instruct, comfort, or warn, the thoughtful reader. I hope other volumes will succeed this one, and that your readers will supply themselves and friends.

To any who may not know where to send for the above book, allow me to say it is published at 19 Lindall St., Boston, at the office of the Christian.

The pen is a powerful force for good or ill; and what a pity it is that when so much good in some directions can be done by its simple, unadorned use, men will appropriate it for the weaving of bewildering and useless, if not ultimately wicked theories, to the destruction of the believers, and the souring of that sweet spirit by which the Lamb's followers are everywhere known. Is it not a pity that the simplicity of gospel precepts and promises should be lost sight of in this giddy seeking after "some new thing"? The grace of divine truth is one thing, the form of man-made theory quite another.

CONSTANT READER.

Correspondence.

From Bro. S. A. Chaplin.

BRO. GRANT:—God is reviving his work among us. There is more engagedness manifested by the brotherhood than in time past. The church is beginning to realize that there is a work for all in the vineyard. Our social meetings are becoming quite interesting. The direction of the apostle to "exhort one another, and so much the more as ye see the day approaching," is no longer regarded as an unimportant command, and the Word has not lost its power. Some are yielding the obedience of faith. On the second Lord's day of the present month (March 10th), I had the privilege of baptizing three persons into Christ. It seems from the different effects produced by the preaching of the gospel, and particularly by proclaiming the soon coming of our Lord, that our work will soon be done. Indeed, it is my solemn conviction that the world is receiving its last warning. The signs of the times demonstrate the correctness of our position. The feeling is taking a deep hold on the minds of many of our brethren, that the Lord is at the door.

The question of time has had but little influence on my mind since the solemn and ever memorable movement—termed the "seventh-month" movement—in the autumn of 1844. Never can I forget the deep and overwhelming impressions the certain expectation of seeing Jesus coming in power and great glory at that time, made upon my mind; and I have never lost my confidence in the belief of that movement being of God. Such deadness to all things earthly; such consecration to God; such a careful obedience to the least commands of God as well as the greater; such self-abasement and humiliation; such confessions of every wrong; such love for the word of God and such a fear of offending our heavenly Father were never more fully manifested in any period of the history of the Church.

And I have always believed that if history could demonstrate the fulfillment of any part of prophecy, it conclusively proves that the 1260 years of papal supremacy commenced in 538, and ended in 1798. Since the last date the dominion of the "little horn" has been consuming away till its temporal power is gone. Commencing the 1290 at the same time, their termination brings us to the "drying up of the Euphrates," or to the decadence of Mohammedan power by the "Gog" power of the North—Russia. How, then, is the conclusion to be evaded that the 1335 prophetical days, which commence at the same time, end in 1873? Is it not a strong indication that such is the fact, that the Lord is waking up christians to a renewed consecration of themselves to him and his cause? And how exactly this arrangement not only adjusts itself to the political events of history, but as well to the facts of the Advent movement.

The fulfillment of prophecy in any great crisis of human affairs in times past, has always given the generation to be affected by its fulfillment ample time for preparation. As men lived longer in Noah's time, one hundred and twenty years were allowed for warning the world. Still judgment came on the very people that were warned. After Christ had been rejected by the Jews, he foretold what should come on them in that generation.—Matt. 23: 36. Before forty years were expired, the awful calamities experienced at the destruction of Jerusalem verified our Savior's words. In equally explicit terms has he said that the generation that would witness the Advent movement, would not pass away till he should come and gather his saints form earth's remotest bounds. We are now living in the last years of this generation. Wm. Miller delivered his first public discourse on Prophecy in 1832. But we could hardly fairly date the commencement of the Advent movement earlier than 1840, when the press was brought into requisition, and five thousand copies of "Miller's Lectures" were sold, and over fifty thousand copies of the "Signs of the Times" scattered abroad in the United States and Europe. If the forty years of the last generation begin here, they expire 1880. Can the 1335 years end at any other point within the next eight years than 1873? I do not see that they possibly can.

Were we to come down to 1809, when Bonaparte annexed the States of the Church to the French empire, and when Pius VII. was taken captive, the seventy-five years of the time of the end would extend to 1884, thus overlapping the time of the last generation, as well as being out of harmony with all other great prophetic events. There is no striking event in the papal history from 1798 to 1809 to fix upon. There is a longer period given by Thurman as the time of a generation of one hundred years, derived from the book of Genesis. This naturally commences with the commencement of the signs, or darkening of the sun in 1780. One hundred years from this time terminate in 1880, and thus synchronize with the termination of the forty year period. Thus again we seem shut up to the conclusion that the 1335 days end somewhere in the next eight years; and where, again, unless in 1873?

I am in search of light, and for myself I must confess that the reasoning of Bro. Barbour's tract reaches my heart as nothing has done since 1844. The world has despised the "virgin bands." God is soon going to take his people away, and leave the world to the unparalleled tribulation. If this reckoning of 1873 be correct, it is soon to result in another great movement. And if it be of God, it will soon have divine attestation. Perhaps in the overthrow of Moslem rule in Europe as marked as the late downfall of papal power.

I am watching. The Lord is coming soon. The church is now doing its last work. Saints are drawing nearer to God. The unbelieving are getting further from him. May we all be prepared. The time for preparation is short. Let us all watch and pray, that we may escape all that is coming on the earth and stand before the Son of man. Some will be "left." How fearful! The gospel message closed, the church gone, and not saved! This will soon be the awful condition of multitudes. O! the solemn responsibility that rests upon us in this eventful crisis. The next natural phenomenon is the "shaking" of the heavenly "powers." This will be as literal as any other of the physical signs. Then it seems all is over, so far as getting prepared is concerned. Then the want of oil will be acutely felt! O, to be ready, ready, ALL READY.

Pierceton, Ind., March 25th.

From Bro. G. R. Lockwood.

BRO. GRANT:—I am interested in your paper; and when my circumstances are different, should be pleased to take it regularly, even though I might not indorse all the views that are exhibited there. For my motto has ever been—"Prove all things; hold fast that which is good." My training in the legal profession prepared me for independent investigation, even upon theological subjects. And though I have been twenty years in the Presbyterian ministry in New York, my native State, I have always exercised the privilege of free and candid investigation, unfettered by articles of faith. And after having fully investigated the subject, and satisfied that I was right, I did, years ago, come out publicly, in a Presbyterian pulpit, against the doctrine of a literal hell. I supposed conscience and the power of God to be "the worm" and "the fire." But I had not then investigated the doctrine of immortality.

Since I came to this State, eight years ago, refusing to come under the iron rule of a modern "Diotrephes"—finding Presbyterianism here to be very different from what it was in New York—I have stood independent. My wife died six years ago, leaving me alone with five little children, the oldest then but eleven years of age; and as I had to be away from home, and could not leave them alone over night, I was compelled to scatter them around to different places, and frequently moved them (for this is a new and wild country), and as I have had to take care of my children in these circumstances, I have made teaching during that time my principal business. But teaching here is done upon the rotary system—one term in a place—and I have not yet got them together, though that has been my intention. And if I had a permanent school (have started two Academies in the State of N. Y.), or were settled in permanent business of any kind, I should soon get my family together, and then devote myself to the work of preaching the truth. But at present I cannot do this here, where there is such a variety of sects, and so much bigotry, unless I am in independent circumstances. I have thought very much of going on a mission to New Mexico, where I have some acquaintances, and would if Providence opened the way.

My first acquaintance with Adventism was in this vicinity, and was not prepossessing. There is a little sheet, the organ of Seventh-day Adventists, issued at Marion, in this county. As to Ellen White's pretensions, and her paper in Michigan, my only feeling is perfect contempt. Your paper is interesting because it is something more than old wives' fables"; because the "experiences" that have been published in it look like true, rational piety; because the organization of which it is the organ, takes proper measures to be efficient, having a "missionary fund," a tract society, and are willing to contribute money, as well as words, to the cause.

As to the main features of your system, I embrace them. I have long since relinquished the idea of the inherent immortality of the soul. I believe that God will eventually "destroy both soul and body in hell." And I believe also that there are unmistakable signs that "the Judge standeth at the door." And the views I have upon these points do not in the least detract from "the terror of the Lord." I have contemplated these sublime subjects with profound awe and sublime devotion. I believe that enough importance has not been attached by the Orthodox churches to the doctrine of the resurrection and the coming of Christ.

Extracts from Letters.

BRO. D. EASTMAN writes:—"I am happy to learn that you have reduced the price of the Crisis. I think it will make many a heart rejoice. The paper has done much good beyond its subscribers. I often let some one have a copy who may live out of town, and does not believe in Christ's soon coming. They love to read them, and often confess that these things are so. I feel like trying hard to spread the present truth. The Lord is soon coming, and I must preach a free gospel to perishing men. Is it not time that every lamp should be burning? O for more holy zeal! for more men who will preach the truth with the Holy Ghost sent down from heaven, having the love of Christ that passeth knowledge. Let us not sleep as do others, but watch, knowing that if we continue faithful we shall yet see the King in his beauty."

SR. L. B. WEAVER writes:—"I am suffering extremely, and God only knows how much the mind suffers with the body. God help me to bear all without a murmur. Pray for me, dear ones, and ask God to give me grace to patiently bear every trial that may come upon me.

I think of the dear ones as they meet to worship God, and wish I could meet with them; but the suffering invalids will soon be free, and be made like Jesus, to die no more. Then no more sick-bed scenes. Dear ones, keep up good courage, and bear all patiently, for the crown will soon be given. Dear 'Chloe,' precious sister, you will soon be free from the pains of an invalid's life, and not be confined to the bed any more. God bless you, and all the dear ones. May the kingdom soon come."

SR. L. HARRINGTON writes:—"I received a note from a sister in Christ a few days ago, from which I extract a few sentences, thinking they may interest some one who has the means to scatter tracts, but who may not have the time or opportunity to do this work personally. If any one is inclined to answer this sister's prayers by sending her tracts, he will find a willing and working agent. A bundle of tracts lasts her but a short time, for, as she says, she cannot keep them. The following I extract unknown to her:—

'I hope you are well enough to enjoy this good hope. Oh! it is so sweet. It grows brighter. I have given all my tracts away but a few. I am praying for more. It seems to me that people are hungry for the truth. God bless it. I mean to do what I can, trusting only in Christ. I care not what man may say or do. Jesus only is my motto.'

Her address is Mrs. Sarah Gadsby, Ware, Mass."

BRO. L. C. MCKINSTRY writes:—"Amen! loud and long, to Bro. Fassett's article in Crisis of March 27th, entitled 'Definite Time.' Let all read it."

DRINK nothing without seeing it; sign nothing without reading it; and make sure that it means no more than it says.

Obituaries.

GOODWIN. Died in Gilmanton, N. H., Feb. 3d, 1872, Esther, wife of Bro. Gilman Goodwin, in the sixty-eighth year of her age.

Sr. G. was converted at the age of fifteen. Later in life she, with her husband, embraced the blessed hope of Jesus' soon coming. Her life has ever been one of quiet goodness and gentle patience; her example mild and loving. She truly lived the life of the righteous, and when she felt the chill of the death-wave, she could exclaim—"The Lord is good." Calmly and peacefully she fell asleep, to wait till earth's weary years are over, and the glorious Life-giver shall come to call the sleepers; then our dear brother, whose heart is now so bowed with grief, will greet her "over there," where parting and death can never come. J. H. F. VARNEY.

BURROUGHS. Died in St. Ansgar, Ia., Dec. 29th, 1871, of consumption, Bro. John Burroughs, aged forty-two years.

The subject of this notice was converted in Kent, Conn., in the great revival of 1843, under the labors of Eld. S. G. Mathewson and others. He embraced the blessed hope of the glorious appearing of our Lord, and continued in the same until he fell asleep in Jesus. He left a widowed mother, brother, and two sisters, to mourn his loss, but they mourn not as those who have no hope, feeling assured that he will have part in the first resurrection.

Funeral services were attended by Rev. Mr. Wheaton, who preached from Job 14: 14. I. M.

PACKARD. Died in Winchendon, Mass., Jan. 27th, 1872, of consumption of the blood and dropsy on the brain, my little son, Melvin Martin, aged one year, one month, and ten days.

Also, Feb. 16th, of consumption, my wife, Hattie S. Packard, aged thirty-one years, eight months, and nineteen days.

Thus within three short weeks two loved ones in my dear family were stricken down by the enemy death, and I am left to mourn their loss; but I do thank God that I mourn not as those who have no hope. In my wife's dying moments, the language of her heart was—

"I am going home to die no more."

She believed that she should sleep but a little while. Her choice of God's word for her funeral sermon was the language of David, Ps. 23: 4. Funeral sermons were both preached by Eld. M. A. Potter. J. A. PACKARD.

MOORE. Died in South Creek, Bradford Co., Pa., of gravel, and a broken limb, March 6th, 1872, Bro. Jesse Moore, in the sixty-seventh year of his age.

Bro. Moore died as he lived, a consistent believer in the gospel of the kingdom of God. He now sleeps in Jesus, and his wife and three children, and other kindred, are left to mourn the loss of a kind husband, a dear father, and a true christian friend; and with them we all mourn, but not without hope; for we heartily join with Bro. M.'s almost expiring sentiment—"I shall rise, and live again."

Funeral services by the writer; text from 1 Thess. 4: 13-18. C. F. SWEET.

BALDWIN. In Northville, N. Y., Feb. 24th, of heart disease, Hannah Baldwin, aged seventy-four years.

She lived a christian from her earliest youth. For nearly thirty years she had been a firm believer in the near coming of Christ, and a liberal supporter of the cause. Her illness was short, and her end, like her life, peaceful. We shall miss in her, friend, sister, and the bright example of a Christian life. She fell asleep relying with unshaken faith upon the merits of our Redeemer, "looking for that blessed hope, and the glorious appearing of the great God and our Savior Jesus Christ."—Com.

STAPLES. Died in South Elliot, Me., March 7th, 1872, Bro. Wm. Henry Staples, aged twenty-nine years.

Bro. S. was converted when quite young, but became much interested in the spirit which was so dominant in the breaking out of the rebellion, enlisting in 1862 for nine months, then re-enlisting, was wounded May 12th, 1864, at the battle of Spottsylvania Court House; since then he has been a confirmed cripple. He suffered intensely, but patiently, for more than a year. The grace of Christ has shone forth from his life with steady clearness and even brilliancy. "And she answered, It is well." E. OWEN.

SCOVILLE. Fell asleep in Litchfield, Ct., Nov. 18th, 1871, my mother, Anna Scoville, aged eighty-three years, eleven months, and seventeen days.

She lingered about two months desiring death rather than to remain and suffer longer with us. About the age of twenty-five she joined the M. E. church, and lived a consistent christian according to the light she then had. Her house was a pilgrim home. In 1844 she heard the sound of the coming of Christ, and believed it firmly until she ceased to live. A. LLOYD.

RICHARDSON. Died in Pembroke, N. H., Feb. 27th, 1872, Bro. Josiah Richardson, aged eighty-seven years, four months, twenty-seven days.

Bro. R. was a member of the Methodist church many years, but believed firmly in the near coming of Christ. He said he believed he should sleep but a little while. Funeral attended by Eld. Monson. J. B. PAINE.

LAMPREY. Died in South Reading, March 20th, after an illness of six hours, little Nina Z., only child of B. B. and Lucy C. Lamprey, aged eleven months and twenty-three days.

May the Lord comfort the hearts of the sorrowing parents. T. E. LANG, JR.

Married.

BOOTH—FISHER. At James Aber's, in Hornellsville, N. Y., March 10th, 1872, by Elder A. P. Moore, Mr. CASSIUS M. BOOTH and Miss CELIA L. FISHER, both of Fremont, N. Y.

SEWARD—CHESLEY. In Farmington, N. H., March 18th, by Elder J. H. F. Varney, THOMAS F. SEWARD and MARY A. CHESLEY, both of Barnstead.

MOONEY—SLEEPER. At the bride's residence, in Lake Village, N. H., by Eld. Levi Allen, GEORGE H. MOONEY, of Holderness, N. H., and SARAH F. SLEEPER, of Lake Village.

GERMANY.

THE ARMY OF OCCUPATION.

BERLIN, March 28. Germany, by a new proposition, will meet the French, it is said, more than half way, as regards the evacuation of the territory of the latter. The question is now solely a pecuniary one and likely to be settled. France will pay one large amount, and give faithful bonds for the balance to be discharged in two annual payments.

CONTROVERSY.

The controversy between the Catholic church and the government as represented in the determined will of Prince Bismarck, is creating the bitterest feelings among factions. The chancellor, however, is too strong and too cunning for the advocates of church supremacy.

GREAT BRITAIN.

BRITISH SUPREMACY IN INDIA THREATENED.

LONDON, March 28. There are intimations thrown out at the War office concerning news of an unfavorable character received from India. Whether it refers to an open revolt or otherwise is not yet announced. Russian complication is hinted at.

FRANCE.

NAPOLEON VINDICATED.

PARIS, March 28. The trial of a libel suit brought by Gen. Trochu against the Figaro commenced to-day, and was largely attended. Among a number of other witnesses examined was Marshal MacMahon, whose testimony was a complete vindication of the military character of the ex-Emperor Napoleon. He stated that the initial steps of the late war with Prussia were taken chiefly under his guidance and direction, and declared himsel solely responsible for all the movements of the troops after the army left Chalons, and that no responsibility whatever, for any part of the plan of the campaign, was chargeable to the Emperor. The evidence created a profound sensation in court.

SPAIN.

REVOLUTIONARY.

LONDON, March 28. It is firmly believed at Madrid that another revolution is inevitable. The political condition of the country is one of intense excitement. One competent to speak, forwards this despatch:—"Everything is shrouded in darkness and uncertainty, and no one can say what the end is to be. The sooner the inevitable comes the better, to relieve us from this constant state of anxiety and alarm."

RUSSIA.

EARTHQUAKE IN THE CAUCASUS.

NEW YORK, March 28. Mail advices state that the earthquake in the Caucasus converted a considerable extent of country into a desert, destroying the crops and entailing misery upon the inhabitants. The town of Schemaker was almost destroyed; one hundred and thirty-seven people being killed.

DOMESTIC.

CALIFORNIA.

THE RECENT EARTHQUAKE.

San Francisco, March 28. Dispatches from Genoa, Nevada, say that a gentleman from Inyo county, California, where an earthquake on Tuesday morning centered, reports that Camp Independence is a complete ruin.

The Court House was destroyed and not a single abode or brick building is standing from Bishop Creek to Independence. Fears are entertained for other mining camps further south in the Sierras. Mrs. West residing near Independence, was seriously injured and her child killed.

Stage passengers report several fissures miles in length, and fifty to two hundred feet wide and twenty feet deep opened along the eastern base of the Sierra, near Big Pine Camp.

At other places in the vicinity the ground is heaped up in great ridges, large springs have stopped running and others have broken out.

March 29. Advices from Volcanic County, north of Mojave river, show that the earthquake on Tuesday was felt with terrific force there. At Lone Pine twenty-three people were killed and thirty wounded. Shocks were felt at intervals for thirty hours. Fifty houses were demolished and the town is in ruins.

NEW HAMPSHIRE.

REVIVAL MEETINGS AT CONCORD.

Concord, N. H., March 30. A serious of union revival meetings have been held during the past fortnight, three times a day, in Phœnix Hall in this city. Most of those in the evening drew larger crowds of people than ever before assembled there. People have come from abroad in large numbers to hear Elder John G. Hook of this city, and Marvin W. Lutz of Philadelphia, who have taken the lead, assisted occasionally by other clergymen. Nearly a hundred have been inquirers, thirty-seven have been immersed by baptism in Horse Shoe Pond, where the ice was cut for that purpose. The meetings conclude to-morrow (Sunday) evening, but will be resumed in Smith's Hall, Manchester, next Thursday, Fast Day.

AN English Roman Catholic priest has written a letter to Father Hyacinthe which is a remarkable specimen of ecclesiastical bigotry. After rejecting the epithets "liar" and "conspirator" as too common place and matter-of course to apply to him, he chooses damned as the title by which to salute him. He then adds with a cold-blooded deliberation, which, from one supposed Christian to another, is simply horrible:

"As a priest of the Holy Roman Church, Catholic and Apostolic, I experience a supreme pleasure in awaiting the day of death and of the last judgment, when I shall see you and your collaborators of the Esperance de Rome cast into the pit and its torments forever. When I reflect on the existence of such apostates as you, I bless the justice of God that it provides a hell."

FRENCH POSTAGE CHANGED AGAIN.—The Post-office Department now announces that the following pre-paid rates of postage are in full of all charges to destination on letters for France forwarded via England: For letters not exceeding one-third of an ounce in weight, ten cents; one-half ounce, sixteen cents; not over two-thirds of an ounce, twenty cents; not over one ounce, twenty-six cents.

ANOTHER PREDICTION.—Elder Grant is outdone by a New York clairvoyant, who says if the people would read the whole of chapter 13 of the prophecy of Ezekiel they would be warned. The writer of a letter to an Eastern journal says:

She does not desire publicity, but is intimately acquainted with a "wise woman clairvoyant," who seeks unto God only for knowledge. She saw lately "the opening of the seventh seal," and spoke by the power of God that a time of trouble was near to the world such as never had been. For two hours she was in a trance. Personating first the Geneva Conference, she said, in broken English, that there was to be a mixture of Swiss, Prussian, etc.; that there was "too much cash asked." Then she personated an old gray-headed shaking man (John Bull, I hope), asking for a few grains of corn. Then a voice spoke to her: "But think not ye also shall escape. Judgments shall come upon thee also, proud nation, who care only for gold, and cry out unto the living God Jesus for help. Ye have dared me long enough with your sins and your impurities." Then she enacted our nation in an agony, seemingly as if help was nowhere to be found; for I thought from her actions England has truly felt, but now for revenge. She joins with the southern rebels against us; and O the agony of sorrow she then personated! God hiding his face because we had rejected the call of those good men to place his name as our King and Ruler. She said, also: "Are we Mohammedans or are we Christians?" I cannot write it—impossible to describe all; but a Joan of Arc seemed to be raised up—either a man or woman—to save us in the end.—Sacramento Cal. Daily Record.

In Brief.

——The climate from St. Augustine, Florida, south, from all accounts, must probably be one of the most salubrious and healthy in the world.——Since the close of the war, railways in the United States have increased from 34,000 miles to 54,000 miles, a growth of 20,000 miles in seven years, this increase being more by 4,000 miles than the entire mileage of the railways of Great Britain, which has about fifty thousand miles of railway.——Fifty-seven persons are recorded as "having disappeared mysteriously" from New York city, during the last year. What a record of crime is probably hidden under this announcement.——Spain has nearly three thousand nunneries.——Throughout Europe, as in America, a very large number of those employed in telegraphing are women.——Water is so scarce in Bennington, Vt., that at the east end of the village about thirty families depend upon one well.——There appears to be a war cloud hovering over Europe, perhaps "no bigger than a man's hand," but still one that may grow to magnitude, by and by, and finally burst in fury upon the devoted heads of millions.——In Italy the press is entirely in the hands of Jews as proprietors and editors.——Until Spain abolishes the cruel national pastime of the bull-fight, says the London Telegraph, there can be, and there will be, no real regeneration for her. The spectacle is exciting, picturesque, and full of brilliant skill and courage on the part of the performers, but it is debased by an inseparable brutality which poisons the very heart of the population.——An Artesian well 1200 feet deep has just been sunk in Chicago. The size of the bore is 54 inches, and most of its way is through solid rock. It has taken three months, steady boring by night and day, to reach an adequate subterranean vein of water.——More than 18,000 immigrants have arrived in New York from Jan. 1st 1872, to date, against 11,000 during the same time last year.——A singular church trial is in progress in Louisville. A lady, a member of a Presbyterian church, having expressed a belief in modern Spiritualism, has been arraigned under the Mosaic code, charged with violation of the first, second and third commandments. Regular counsel are employed.——The origin of the title "The Thunderer," by which the London Times is known, was from a writer beginning a leading article with the phrase, "We thundered forth the other day," etc.——President Thiers has notified M. Rochefort, once for all, that he will have to remain in prison as long as he is President of the French Republic.——An exchange says that this is the coldest March that has been known since the settlement of North America.——London, even, had a snow storm on the 21st.——A book is now in course of preparation in England, by the Rev. W. J. Loftie, called "A Century of Bibles; or, the Authorized Version from 1611 to 1711."——The monastery at Erfurt, where Martin Luther conceived the idea of a reformation, was recently partially destroyed by fire. The rooms occupied by Luther, and his Bible, which was kept as a curiosity, were in the part burnt. Numerous relics were destroyed.——All over India sweetmeats are consumed as a substantial article of food. A native, when traveling, seldom eats anything else; and between the two great meals, at all times, he whiles away the long noon of the Indian summer day by sucking lollipops or candy between the whiffs of his hookah. When a Hindoo wants to be very dissipated he simply eats candy enough to make him sick.——It may be strange—'tis no less strange than true—that Louis Napoleon is arranging the programme for his administration as he will conduct it when he returns to power at Paris, and that its principal features are a continuation of his old policy.

Notices.

THE ANNUAL MEETING of the Mass. Second Advent Conference for the choice of officers, will commence in Chelsea, Mass., at the Second Advent Chapel on Heard Street, Tuesday evening, April 2nd, continuing day and evening, and over the following Sunday. The church of Christ worshiping at the Advent Chapel send greeting, and invite their brethren far and near, to come up to this meeting and enjoy the freedom of the gospel in praying, singing, preaching, and exhorting one another, and so much the more as you see the day approaching. Let all the Advent churches in the State be represented at this meeting.

C. E. BARNES, Secretary.

We purpose this Conference to take the place of conferences occasionally held in Boston, which have been so profitable and successful in bringing together the lovers of the Savior's return from all parts of the country. We do not intend the business shall interfere more than possible with the time and spirit of worship. We earnestly invite all to come to this feast. We shall do our best to take care of and make you comfortable.

J. COUCH.

FRIENDS going from Boston to the above meeting, can take the steam cars at the Eastern depot on Causeway Street. Trains leave at 7.50, 8.25, 9.16, 10.30, 11, 11.25, A. M. At 12.58, 3.03, 4.54, 5.28, 6.42, 8.14, P. M. Cars stop near the Chapel. Those taking the horse cars, which leave Scollay's Square every fifteen minutes, will take the "Washington Avenue" cars, and stop at Heard Street, Chelsea.

The "Banner" and the "Crisis."

We will send the Banner six months free to new subscribers to the Crisis, and to old subscribers mentioning this offer when remitting for 1872; but we make one condition; viz., that before the close of the six months, they must either notify us to discontinue, or remit for the future as soon as convenient.

We expect hereafter to present a large, fine engraving in every number of the Bible Banner, illustrating and adding interest to Bible truth, making the offer of "One Year Free" very acceptable to many ministers of the gospel, whose attention would not otherwise be arrested. The series of engravings has already begun to appear. Send ten cents for three sample numbers. Address H. A. KING, 14 Murray Street, New York.

The World's Crisis and the Bible Banner one year, with free book, for $2.75, or without book, for $2.50. Address GEO. T. ADAMS, 160 Hanover Street, Boston, Mass.

The "Bible Banner" Free.

We desire to call the attention of the readers of the Crisis to our offer in the Bible Banner, to send it One Year Free to ministers of the gospel of any denomination, who send us their address, or otherwise signify their desire to receive it. We ask the readers of the Crisis to aid us in getting this offer before such ministers as they know to be devoted men of God, and who would be likely to accept the offer, and be benefitted thereby. Do not urgently press any one to accept, for we have not the means to send the paper free to a great many; but we trust the Lord will provide enough to send it where it should go, to prepare the way for weekly papers, and stir up the watchmen to sound the alarm to a guilty world. A copy of the Banner from one with whom the minister is acquainted, is worth a dozen copies sent from the office of publication. Address H. A. KING, 14 Murray Street, New York.

NORWEGIAN TRACTS.—Who will help raise a fund for publishing one or more good tracts on the subject of Jesus' soon coming, and attendant events, in the Norwegian language? There are many now, and will be more of this class of men in our country. Some of them have been converted to Christ, and the fact of his soon coming and kingdom. While West last season, several believing Norwegians expressed a wish for tracts in their language, and promised to aid in publishing them. They want such tracts to put into the hands of their countrymen who cannot read English, when they arrive in this country, and to send home to friends in Norway. Shall we extend our mission to them in this form? I will write a tract and raise $25, to begin the work, and when $100 are raised, I will see that one good tract is put in Norwegian type and circulated free. Who will add as much more, or any other sum? Brethren, Jesus is coming. Shall we tell it in other tongues? Those interested may send their contributions to my address, Yarmouth, Me., or to the Crisis Office. All will be acknowledged.

I. C. WELLCOME.

To the Brethren.

I am engaged in preparing a work designed especially for the ministry, on the importance and necessity of preaching the second coming of Christ as an event nigh at hand. My object is, in cooperation with the brethren, to have a copy placed in the hands of every minister in the United States. All can see the importance of such an enterprise. If one out of five hundred could be induced to give the trumpet a certain sound, it would pay for the labor and outlay. Of course it will not be expected that those for whom the work is designed will purchase it; this will be the work of our brethren all over the country, to see that a copy is placed in the hands of every preacher of the gospel. We propose, then, to request pledges and subscriptions from the brethren in order to secure its publication; the amount subscribed to be repaid in books, if required. The nature of the work may be gleaned from the following outlines:—

The Christian Minister a Watchman—The Duties of a Watchman—A Christian Watchman—Watchman, What of the Night?—Time of the End—Signs of the Times—Fulfillment of Prophecy—Prophecy in relation to the first Advent—Prophecy in relation to the second Advent—Signs of the second Advent—Celestial, Terrestial, Moral, National—The Papacy—Spiritualism—Time—Tarrying Time,—etc., etc., etc.

I would also state that the work will be useful to all for a reference, as it will be largely interspersed with Scripture quotations. Any who may feel disposed to aid in this enterprise may address Brn. Grant, or Adams, Crisis Office, Bro. Himes, Times Office, Chicago, Ills., or myself, at Arena, Iowa Co., Wis. GEO. THOMSON.

THE SECOND quarterly session of the Hoosick Valley Conference will be held at Sandy Hill, N. Y., commencing April 18th, 1872, and hold over the following Sabbath. Let there be a general rally of the friends of Jesus and his kingdom in all this region of country to this feast. Make this meeting a subject of earnest prayer, that God may greatly bless this gathering of his people. And first, consecrate thyself to God—have all upon the altar before you come; and then come filled with the Spirit, prepared to work for God. Come to admonish the saint and warn the sinner. Come in the name of our soon coming King to make one more charge upon the enemy's host previous to its being announced from the eternal throne, "It is done." Provisions will be made for all who come. A. W. SIBLEY, President.

A. P. BUMP, Secretary.

A VOICE FROM R. I.—The second quarterly session of the R. I. and Eastern Conn. Conference of Reformers will be held at Wyoming, R. I., commencing Wednesday, April 3d, at two o'clock P. M., and continue over Friday. It is earnestly hoped that all preachers and delegates who can, will come, and that every church failing to send delegates will not fail to send letters. Come!

All coming by Providence, can take the four o'clock P. M. train to Carolina Mills. A stage leaves on arrival of this train, and reaches Wyoming at 6-30. Taking the morning train, stop at Richmond Switch, from which a stage will leave for Wyoming at twelve o'clock.

N. A. ANGELL, Clerk.

THE SECOND Quarterly Meeting of the A. C. Church in Honeoye, Ontario Co., N. Y., will commence April 6th, and continue over Sunday. The brethren and sisters in adjoining towns are cordially invited to attend. H. H. BROWN.

O. B. BROWN.

THE THIRD quarterly meeting for the Southern District of Wisconsin, will be held at Magnolia, commencing on the evening of May 10th, and holding over the following Lord's day. Bro. Sheldon is expecting to be with us, and other ministering brethren are invited to attend; also the brethren from all the surrounding country. This will be the first meeting in our new Chapel, and we are anticipating a good time in the name of the Lord. Come one,—come all.

G. G. GODFREY.

"CHURCH FAIRS."—I have a quantity of tracts on this subject, written partly as a satire, partly as argument, with plenty of Scripture on the point, which I wish to dispose of, and get back the cost of publication. There are eight octavo pages, nonpareil type, containing about the matter of 32 pp. ordinary size tract page; and from the success which has attended their distribution heretofore, I think no one need fear that a small sum invested here will be wasted, either as to the amount of reading matter furnished, or the benefits to be derived from their perusal. Price, post-paid, 25 cents per dozen; $1.50 per one hundred. By express, $8.00 per one thousand.

Address E. P. WOODWARD, Maplewood, Mass.

OHIO CONFERENCE.—The A. C. Church of Ohio will hold its semi-annual conference at Fairfield, Huron Co., Ohio, commencing Thursday, April 18th, continuing over Sunday. We cordially invite all the churches and organizations of the State to send delegates to this meeting. We hope all that love the appearing of Jesus will feel interested, and be present. We do not wish to divide, but to become all the more united. Conveyance from Greenwich Station on the C. C. C. and I. R. R. will be in attendance. H. F. JEFFERSON, Sec.

IN RESPONSE to urgent and repeated invitations, Srs. L. M. Stoddard and E. S. Jennings will commence a series of meetings in Washington, D. C., Wednesday evening, April 10th, to continue as may seem to be duty.

Appointments.

☞ We would say to our preaching brethren that it is necessary we should receive their appointments as early as TUESDAY MORNING, as our paper goes to press about noon; otherwise they will not be inserted till the week following.

NEW TRACT.

We have just received a new tract of 24 pages, entitled, "The Coming Reign of Terror, or the Commune," by W. N. Pile. The writer shows that the "Reign of Terror" of 1792 was produced by the workings of Socialism, Spiritualism, Infidelity, Free-Love, and the Commune; and then reasons that as these elements are now at work everywhere, they must produce the same results. The tract treats of the living issues of the present, reveals the awful condition of society, and shows that we are on the verge of "the battle of that great day of God Almighty."

PRAYER.

CLINTON COLEGROVE.

My God! I hear thee; speak!
Speak when the hour is still,
The language of thy perfect love,
The message of thy will.

Speak to my heart and mind
Thy thoughts of kind concern,
And let thy love a fervent flame
In sacred sweetness burn.

Dear Father! make me new,
Take all my sins away,
Enrobe me in thy righteousness,
And guide me in thy way.

O! let the light of God
(In mercy on me shed)
Adorn my rough and weary road,
And bless my heart and head.

Self-love and pride subdue;
Thy glory be my joy,
Thy pleasure my most precious wish,
Thy service my employ.

THE THOUSAND YEARS.

D. CHURCHILL.

Bro. Grant:—I do not recollect of any opposition through the Advent campaign to prophecy being understood after it is fulfilled; but the opposition has been to our understanding prophecy before being fulfilled; therefore I wish to suggest a few thoughts in regard to the thousand years in Rev., 20th chapter. If it be in the past, of course it can be understood. If the one that was to be bound does not mean that "old serpent, which is the devil" that visited our first parents in the garden, but represents some power or government which was divested of its power for one thousand years, and then its power returned to it again at the end of the thousand years, it would be somewhat favorable to the thousand years in the past. I do not mean about one thousand years, say twelve hundred and sixty, but that that fulfills the prophecy, no longer, and no shorter. If there has been such a power in the present dispensation, I think it must be recorded in history. I have not been able to find the record. It also appears that the blessed and holy that have part in the first resurrection commence their reign with the thousand years; "but the rest of the dead lived not again [they had been alive once] until the thousand years were finished." The fourth verse says—"They lived and reigned with Christ a thousand years." Is it not leaning a little too much toward Spiritualism to say this is in the past?

Again, if the righteous and wicked are raised at one time, then all righteous dead and wicked dead, and righteous living and wicked are together. The righteous living are changed, and the resurrected saints with the living are caught up together (1 Thess. 4:17), and the wicked are left, for two shall be "in one bed; the one shall be taken and the other shall be left; two "shall be in the field, the one shall be taken and the other left." Luke 17: 34–36. "Then fire came down from God out of heaven, and devoured them." Rev. 20: 9. There is no resurrection beyond this.

Once more. What will become of the wicked living? for they never have a resurrection, consequently, they never can suffer the penalty of "the second death." Did not all die through the transgression of the first Adam? are not all to be made alive by, or through, the second Adam? Cor. 15: 22. If the last class referred to die on account of the Adamic transgression they must be raised in order to suffer the penalty of their own transgression.—Again, the thousand years cannot be prophetical and be in the past; and if literal, and it is to be between the two resurrections, why have we not had the general resurrection at the expiration of the thousand years? If the thousand years have commenced, please tell us when, and we can tell where they will expire; viz., at the general resurrection and the coming of Christ. Thus we shall be enabled to understand the time when the Lord is coming for which we have long sought.

Lowell, Mass.

WILL ROME BE BURNED?

O. A. STREETER.

Bro. Grant:—Much has been said on this subject. Some have assumed that the seven-hilled city—Rome—must be burned before the Lord comes. Now I am ready to admit one thing, as well as another, if the Bible says it.

I understand that the angel gave John a full explanation of the seventeenth of Revelation. John saw "a woman sit upon a scarlet-colored beast." Her name is given as "Mystery, Babylon the great; the mother of harlots." At verse seven the angel commences to tell John about it. He speaks of the beast of "seven heads." Then he says—"The seven heads are seven mountains on which the woman sitteth." He does not say the mountains are the woman, but there is where she lives, or "sitteth." Verse sixteenth speaks of the work of the ten horns—"These shall hate the whore, and shall make her desolate and naked, and shall eat her flesh, and burn her with fire." Burn who or what? The woman. Question. If the eating of flesh is not real flesh, is it not to be supposed that burning with fire is not real fire? Certainly.

But who is the woman? Let the angel answer. Verse 18th—"And the woman which thou sawest is that great city, which reigneth over the kings of the earth." Then the woman is the city that is called Babylon, harlot? So the angel said. I dare not offer an explanation on his.

The ten horns have eaten her flesh (taken away her power); and they have burned her with fire (destroyed her power forever; for as fire destroys forever, it is used here as such). It is the power that dwells at Rome that is to be destroyed, and not Rome itself. Washington, D. C., is not the United States, nor its government; it is where the government's seat is located. It may remove her seat and still retain the same power. So in this case. The ten horns have done their work. They have destroyed her power politically, burned her with fire; and that is all they can do. She is to exist as a church until Jesus comes. 2 Thess. 2. Babylon is fallen to rise no more. Rev. 18: 21. Then verse 4 is now due—"Come out of her, my people." She is gone down, thank God. The event to be looked for is that spoken of in chapter 19: 1–8.

Brethren and sisters, let us be ready. Do not flatter yourselves that some great event is to take place before your Lord comes. Let us be on the watch-tower, "lest coming suddenly he find you sleeping." Mark 13: 36. Rome may be burned, but the prophecy does not require it. "The woman is that great city." Remember this. May God help us to take his word as it is, without comment.

NEW YORK A. C. CONFERENCE.

SECRETARY'S REPORT.

This Conference met in Lockport on Thursday evening, March 14th, 1872, and continued its session (quarterly) three days. The first half hour was spent in prayer for the special blessing of God upon the meeting, after which Bro. A. C. Newell gave the address. A business meeting at nine o'clock on Friday morning was called to order, and opened by prayer by the President.

Committees. Devotional Exercises—R. C. Brown, A. Riggs, and N. T. Withington. Business—J. H. Whitmore, A. P. Moore, and Wm. E. Brown. Ordination—A. C. Newell, Wm. Ingmire, and B. F. Brownell. Campmeeting—D. Cogswell, Wm. E. Brown, A. Riggs, B. F. Brownell, and P. M. Grinnell.

Delegates. The following delegates were present and reported the condition of their churches and the cause generally in their respective localities, with the sums annexed which were paid into the Mission Fund—T. V. Pearson and Chauncey Pennoyer, Lockport, $6.50; B. F. Brownell, Brockport, $5; E. A. Bowe, Darien, $5; N. T. Withington, Springwater, $4; S. Reed and Wm. Joslyn, East Shelby, $7.70; N. McCullock and J. Phelan, Rochester, $7.88; Knowlesville (by letter), $2.75; Dansville, $13; Honeoye, $3.35. Total collection, $55.18.

Ministers. The following preachers reported—A. P. Moore, E. F. Sergisson, W. Ingmire, H. H. Brown, W. J. Hobbs, A. C. Newell, J. T. Ongley, Sister L. M. Stoddard, S. C. Gove, and D. Cogswell. C. W. Low by letter. Brn. J. H. Whitmore, W. Vreeland, J. E. Wells, and Sr. E. S. Jennings, were present later in the session.

Saturday, nine o'clock A. M. Opened by prayer. The chairman of the business committee reported the following items—(1) The matter of reimbursing Bro. C. M. Boothe for his services with the State tent the past season. $30 were voted him. (2) The matter of publishing a small conference manual. The following joint resolution advising this, passed last session, was re-adopted, and the Secretary instructed to call the especial attention of the churches without delay to this matter. It speaks for itself; read and act—

Resolved, 1. That the Secretary be requested to collect and arrange for publication the statistics of this conference, and present the same in the form of a neat hand-book, containing also our Constitution and By-laws, at our next annual meeting. 2. That, in order to assist the Secretary in carrying out the foregoing resolution, each church co-operating with us be requested to forward to him immediately the name of its minister, or ministers, the number of its members; its services, how, when, and where held; and such other information as may be of interest, or necessary to carry into practical effect the tabulation of our conference statistics.

3. The matter of a campmeeting: (a) Shall one be held? (b) If so, where? (c) Shall it be in connection with the annual conference in June? After discussing these points it was decided not to hold one in connection with the conference, nor so early as June. But the campmeeting committee were instructed to confer with the Hoosick Valley, and southern New York and northern Pensylvania A. C. Conferences, relative to holding a Union or General State Campmeeting, to be centrally located, about the first of August, and report as definitely as possibly at the annual meeting in June.

4. The matter of Tents. By vote, Bro. D. Cogswell was requested, and consented, to take charge of the State Tent the coming season. It was also proposed to buy and put into the field another tent. But the resolution was tabled, and individual action suggested. (If several brethren or sisters of means, and desiring to send the news of the coming kingdom into the hundreds of places in this State that have not yet heard this glorious message, would unite in ordering their tents, they might be purchased at a discount. Any desiring thus to spend some of the Lord's money, if they will correspond with the Secretary, he will be glad to furnish them with references and practical suggestions.)

Treasurer's Report. Amount on hand at last report, $1.18. Received of Secretary balance delegate money, $18.29. On hand, $19.47. R. C. Brown, Treasurer.

The Ordination Committee asked instructions and more time. Granted. Bro. Hobbs in behalf of the church in Springwater invited the annual meeting with them. The invitation was accepted, and Bro. D. Cogswell appointed to deliver the address—Bro. J. H. Whitmore alternate.

4 o'clock P. M. This session was more especially for considering the final report of the Ordination Committee. It was generally understood that the church at Lockport, over which Sr. L. M. Stoddard has now the Pastorate, were asking her ordination, and the report was awaited with interest, the committee of last session having been unit against it. The chairman of the committee submitted a careful, verbal report, in which the committee had united, evidently considering it sufficiently compromising to meet the case and pass easily. It was also further evident that the committee were laboring cautiously between a warm, personal sympathy with Sister Stoddard as an efficient and untiring laborer in "word and doctrine" and a worthy and beloved sister in the Lord, and the fear of establishing a dangerous precedent in the ordination of women, not expressly (if at all) approved in the New Testament, or authorized by any example of Christ or the apostles. A free and kind discussion followed, which resulted in tabling the report until another meeting. In the interim, by informal but unanimous agreement, Bro. J. H. Whitmore and Sr. E. S. Jennings were requested to prepare essays which shall aim to bring out the exact scriptural features of this whole question, and thus enable this conference to take a decided, and, if possible, a right position, and then maintain it. The W. A. C. P. Association presented the Conference, by the hand of Bro. Whitmore, two books of blank license and ordination certificates. They were accepted, and the compliments of the body returned in a hearty vote of thanks. The business session then adjourned sine die.

Besides a collection and private donations given to "Mother Ongley" (amount unknown to the Secretary), a collection of $57.57 was taken for our preachers, which, augmented by individual sums,—the payment of which was prescribed by the donors,—amounted to $83.02; and was apportioned according to their various necessities in the judgment of the Devotional Committee, as follows: two received $2 each; three, $3 each; three, $4 each; three, $5 each; one, $7; one, $10.57; and one, $25.45. Thus the total amount raised at this session, it will be seen, is not less than $150; a noble offering, not for the State, but for those who came or were represented there. May it not be hoped that our cold, inactive, and indifferent brethren and sisters, who have too little interest to come to conference themselves, will send a delegate or collection, and thereby be "provoked unto love and good works"?

The meeting was one of much interest. It was good to be there, as all could testify; and some said it was the best conference they ever attended. There were eight sermons, three business sessions, and five social and prayer-meetings. The social meeting on Sunday evening began at six, and continued uninterruptedly and spiritedly until nearly or quite eight o'clock, and then some desired the preaching to be dispensed with and the meeting to still continue. After the sermon Sunday afternoon one hundred and thirty-seven united in celebrating the Lord's Supper, and many of them felt that but few more such seasons would pass before the Master of the last great feast shall gird himself and come forth and serve them. At the depot Monday morning we parted regretfully, but hopefully, with the customary song—"Sweet by-and-by."

Wm. E. Brown, Sec'y.

JESUS WILL COME AGAIN.

J. M. BERRY.

Come, christians, from afar and near,
Stand up for Jesus' name;
Shout forth the tidings loud and clear,
That He will come again!
What if the daring skeptic sneers,
And laughs at all your hopes and fears,
And scoffs and mocks your sighs and tears?
Jesus will come again!

What though you have been waiting long,
And moments dragged like hours,
And sorrow was too deep for song,
And hopes like withered flowers?
Cheer up! for lo, the distant sky
Foretells that morn is drawing nigh,—
Even now the misty shadows fly,—
Jesus will come again!

We wait to see that coming day,
In hope, in joy, or pain,
For when our Savior went away,
He said "I'll come again!"
Though friends prove false, and foes upbraid,
Our hope stands firm although delayed;
For we believe the promise made,
That He would come again!

In dreams I hear my Savior's voice
Forgiveness speak to me;
He bids my poor weak heart rejoice,
And to his shelter flee.
So there I go, just as I am,
And cling to him all that I can,
And let him take my heart and hand,
Till He shall come again.

I come to thee! I will be thine
Through life—in weal or woe:
Thy path, where'er it leads, is mine;—
I'll go, dear Lord! I'll go!
Far where the trackless waters flow,
Or up the mountains capped with snow,
Or o'er the sultry desert's glow,
Till Thou shalt come again!

What hallelujahs we shall raise,
When round His throne we stand,
And join the victor's song of praise,
From every clime and land!
I seem to hear that mighty song—
To catch its echoes loud and long—
I'll spring to join the blood-washed throng,
When Jesus comes again!

JOURNAL NOTES.

WESTERLY, R. I.

Saturday last (Mar. 16th), I took the Express train for Westerly, R. I. At half past two, I was left at the depot. I saw by the gathering there that it was quite a business place. I soon inquired for Deacon Pendleton, and was directed to his house, which I soon found, and perceived it was to me a welcome home. The Deacon was at the mill where he has been of service for about thirty years, his wife sick for eight or nine years, most of the time unable to be up from the bed; yet she was cheerful, and happy in the faith, looking for the better country, that is, an heavenly. The daughter, the home stay, did every thing to make all comfortable and happy; so we found a pilgrim home.

This is a thrifty business place, situated on the river that separates R. I. from Conn., so that the town lies in both States. Mills are in successful operation, employing many operatives, and some of them run every day in the week. I saw some things new to me. The mills, with all other business, were going on briskly, as I entered the place, except one large mill, and others connected with it; they were hushed; and I learned that this was owned by seventh-day Baptists; they were at meeting, enjoying their Sabbath; but Sunday came, and the first thing you heard was the ringing of their factory bell to call all the workmen to their daily labor. Then the others were still, and the people could hardly tell which mill was the Sabbath breaker. The disciples of Jesus do not seem to heed their Master's prayer in this place, when he prayed that "They all might be one, even as he and the Father are one." Here are Close Communion Baptists, Free-will Baptists, Christian Baptists, and Seventh-day Baptists, a few Seventh-day Adventists, and a scattered number of every-day Adventists, Congregationalists, Episcopalians, Methodists, and other kinds of Paulists and Apolloists.

But the bell of the old original Union meeting-house called in season to be ready for worship. Its last call found us there, ready to do what we could for the cause of our divine Master. This old house has seemed to be the cradle to rock the children till they get able to care for themselves; and our brethren have had it kindly granted them, and I hope they will improve every opportunity to use it by the best means possible for Christ's and his Word's sake. It is a good place in which to blow the gospel trumpet and beseech men to be reconciled to God. The coming of the Savior and the salvation of men through Jesus Christ and him alone should be heard from this central house, Sunday after Sunday, till redemption is consummated.

Our brethren there, on whom the light of the gospel has shone, have great responsibilities in this work of letting the light shine. You have learned that instead of eternal torment or endless duration of the suffering of the finally impenitent, it is the goodness of God that leads to repentance; that the Lord is coming to destroy death, and make an end of wickedness by destroying the sinner, root and branch. "These shall go away into everlasting punishment." What is the punishment? Death; eternal punishment; eternal death; eternally a dead man; this brought about by a fiery ordeal, the burning day for the tares and the goats, and all the proud and those that do wickedly. Then the earth will bloom again like the rose, and every creature in heaven and on the earth, and under the earth, will say—"Glory and honor, and praise to our God."

Beloved brethren in Westerly and vicinity, come together one and all, and put your shoulders to the wheel. Inquire of the Lord. Have a meeting where the blessed hope can be preached, the sinner directed to Christ, and the people have the privilege of hearing that part of the gospel which they cannot hear elsewhere. I am interested for you, and this is the time to work. Earth is making her last groans. A few more conversions, and the scene closes. Come, then, gather around Christ and his Cross, and stand in defence of present truth.

SPIRITS IN PRISON.

A. P. MOORE.

A few evenings since, when preaching on the "thief on the cross," I made this assertion, that some thought 1 Pet. 3: 18–20 taught that Christ went in a disembodied state to hell, and preached to the "spirits in prison" there during the three days while his body was in the tomb; and if that was true, he did not go to Paradise with the thief, unless Paradise was in hell.

After I closed, a Baptist minister arose and said he had heard a great many sermons on 1 Pet. 3: 18–20, and read many others, and he never heard the idea advanced before that Christ went in a disembodied state and preached to the spirits in prison. That he thought no evangelical christians held any such view, and rather threw it back upon me as asserting something without proof. Said he agreed perfectly with my exposition of the passage, that it was the same Spirit that quickened Christ that preached through Noah to the antediluvians.

I simply said it was a very common objection that we had to meet, but had not the proof at hand, but "to-morrow night I expect to present some proof." Perhaps some others may have the same thing thrown back at them, and they not have the proof, so I present the following from Grant and Clayton's "Discussion" on the "State of the Dead," p. 27. Mr. Clayton says:—

"I have undertaken to prove only this: that the spirit of man is conscious between death and the resurrection. My next argument in favor of this position is founded upon 1 Pet. 3: 18–20—'For Christ also hath once suffered for sins, the just for the unjust, that he might bring us to God, being put to death in the flesh, but quickened by the Spirit; by which also he went and preached to the spirits in prison, which sometimes were disobedient; when once the long-suffering of God waited in the days of Noah, while the ark was preparing, wherein few, that is, eight souls, were saved by water. The point in this passage is, that Christ's Spirit made proclamation to the spirits of the antediluvians in prison; that is, as I understand it, in hades. The obvious import of the passage is, that Christ suffered the stroke of death in the flesh, but survived it in the spirit, by which spirit 'he went and preached to the spirits in prison, who were disobedient when once the long-suffering of God waited in the days of Noah.' Hence we have the conscious spirit of Christ preaching to the conscious spirits of the antediluvians between death and the resurrection. This view of the subject is sustained by a host of reputable authorities, among whom may be mentioned Bloomfield, in a note on this passage in his Critical Greek Testament; Bishop Horsley, in his sermon on this text; Dr. Landis, in his work on the Soul; Titman, Prof. at Leipsic, Germany; Turretin, a Geneva Professor; Flacias Illyricus, in his Clavis, pp. 457 and 462; Winer, author of a Critical Grammar of the New Testament; Olshausen, an eminent German Commentator; and Alford, author of a Critical Greek Testament, just issued by Harper & Brothers of New York. In the hands of these authorities I will leave the criticism of the passage, believing that it clearly sustains my position of the consciousness of the spirit between death and the resurrection."

Cut this out and preserve it for reference.

THE QUESTION.

J. B. CLARK.

"Unto two thousand and three hundred days; then shall the sanctuary be cleansed."—Dan. 8: 14.

Who will question that this is a prompt and direct answer to a specific question? Can it be possible that any one could suppose the answer would so deviate from the question as to involve matters to which that inquiry should not relate?

The question is—"How long.. the vision... the daily, and the transgression of desolation, to give both the sanctuary and the host to be trodden under foot?" We have omitted the italics, although we believe they are perfectly proper. No one can believe that this is a very difficult question, but relates to some previously defined charges laid concerning the sanctuary and the host. Against whom are these charges laid? "And it waxed great even to the host of heaven." Who is personified by "it"? The little horn. Concerning whom then was the question? The little horn.

Taking the answer, therefore, to be in accordance with the question, to what do the 2300 days belong? To the work of the little horn exclusively, for no other character brought to view in the vision is in the least accused of any such career as is already quoted. Consequently the 2300 days begin and end with the beginning of the abomination laid to the charge of the little horn. Therefore the seventy weeks cannot begin with the former period, as the epoch of one would be, as a necessary result, quite distinct from the other.

Gems.

— Give me the eye that can see God in all; the hand that can serve him with all; the heart that can bless him for all.

— Do the thing that lies next you. Be it little, do it. It may be great in its necessary relation to something else. Neglect not the present—the immediate thing. The person who adopts this rule will do a world of work—a world of good. He will begin at home, in his little circle, and so branch out as each day gives new and, perhaps, wider opportunities.

— Testamentary charities are no better than dead sacrifices.

— There is no real use in riches, except it be in the distribution; the rest is but conceit.

— When you are reading a book in a dark room, and come to a difficult part, you take it to a window to get more light. So take your Bibles to Christ.

— The devil has not indeed a doctor's degree, but he is highly educated and deeply experienced, and has, moreover, been practicing, trying and exercising his art and craft now well nigh six thousand years. No one avails against him but Christ alone.

— Dr. Watts says the man who is gifted with the talent of parlor preaching, can do more good than the minister by public harangues and learned disquisitions.

— Peace is love reposing; it is love on the green pastures; it is love beside the still waters. It is that great calm which comes over the conscience when it sees the atonement sufficient, and the Savior willing. It is unclouded azure in a lake of glass. It is the soul which Christ has pacified, spread out in serenity and simple faith, and the Lord God, merciful and gracious, smiling over it.

— Applause is the spur of noble minds, the end and aim of weak ones.

CHASTISEMENT.

M. E. ALLEN.

"Whom the Lord loveth he chasteneth."

Bear it with a humble spirit,
And with meekness acquiesce;
'Tis our Father who inflicts it,
Can he spare, or make it less?

Who of us would choose chastisement?
Always grievous, often keen;
'Tis a heavenly, wise advisement,
Through our blindness rarely seen.

But the blessed fruit it brings us,
Purifying heart and life;
When o'er sin we rise victorious,
Then earth life is heaven's type.

Dear Savior! thou didst bear the rod;
Was through sufferings perfect made;
Shall we not welcome them from God,
Or to suffer be afraid?

Oh! we are not of his flock,
If when chastened oft we faint;
Christ sustains—he is our rock,
And the strength of every saint.

Down, down, deep into our heart's core,
Reach our trials so severe;
When grief on grief is pressing sore,
Let us see our Father near.

All will be for our advancement;
'Tis the way our fathers trod;
Give to future bliss enhancement,
Bring us nearer to our God!

QUALIFICATIONS OF THE PREACHER.

We take the following from Beecher's "Lectures on Preaching," now being published in the Union.

"There is one thing more. I do not think that any man has a right to become a Christian minister, who is not willing and thankful to be the least of all God's servants, and to labor in the humblest sphere. If you would come into the Christian ministry, hoping to preach such a sermon as Robert Hall would have preached, you are not fit to come in at all. If you have a deep sense of the sweetness of the service of Christ, if the blood of the redemption is really in your heart, and in your blood; if you have tasted what gratitude means, and what love means, and if heaven is such a reality to you that all that lies between youth and manhood is but a step toward heaven; if you think that the saving of a single soul would be worth the work of your whole life, you have a call, and a very loud call. A call to the ministry is along the line of humility, and love, and sympathy, and good sense, and natural aspirations toward God.

I recollect when I returned from the first revival in which I ever worked. I had been at Indianapolis between one and two years, and there had been no revival (and I had never been in one since I was a boy). I went out, on Brother Jewett's call, from Indianapolis to Terre Haute; and I worked there three weeks in a revival, until my heart was on fire; and it rained a stream of prayer all the way home from Terre Haute to Indianapolis. It was like an Aurora Borealis, I have no doubt, ray upon ray, for that whole distance, if angels could have seen it. I was in that feeling all the way—'Lord, slay me if thou wilt me; but I will be slain or will have life and salvation among my people.' On Sunday I gave notice that I would preach every night that week. We had a dingy lecture room in my church that would hold about two hundred people. I preached Monday night, and we had a storm; Tuesday night it rained again, and when I called upon any who were awakened to remain, no one stayed; and I said, 'It makes no difference; if the Lord wishes it to be so, I do.' On Wednesday night I preached again, with more power, and called for inquirers at the close; one poor little thin servant girl stopped! She smelt of the kitchen and looked kitchen all over. When I dismissed the congregation, my first feeling, I know, as I went toward her, was one of disappointment. I said to myself that after so much work it was too bad. It was just a glance, an arrow which the devil shot at me, but which went past. The next minute I had an overwhelming revulsion in my soul; and I said to myself, 'If God pleases, I will work for the poorest of his creatures. I will work for the heart of a vagabond, if I am permitted to do it, and bring him to Christ Jesus.' I felt it; and I thanked God that night for that girl's staying. He paid me the next night, for two of my sweetest children—not my own, but they were like my own to me—stopped on the next night, and after that, the work went on.

If, therefore, you feel willing to work for Christ's sake, for the sake of eternity, for the love that you have for the intrinsic sweetness of the work of ministry, the molding of men and making them better, and helping them upward; if this is itself sweet and pleasant to you; if you are moved to do it in low places, without renown, and are willing to take your crown hereafter for it, you are called, and there is no doubt of it. But if you want only this: To be very eloquent men, and to watch the eloquence of others; or if you want to have a big church, with a big salary behind it, and if that is your call to the ministry, stay away. You may be called, but it was not the Lord that called you; it was the devil."

SPIRITUALISM IN CHINA.

The disciples of Confucius have often demonstrated that what has usually been supposed to be of recent origin is really of long standing in their country. Especially is this the case with Spiritualism. Not only, says Col. Conwell, do the Chinese Spiritualists believe in the same agencies and the same results which distinguish the sect here, but they also practice all the methods adopted in this country for spiritual communication, and a hundred others that do not seem to be known here. By this means they determine what their deceased relatives are doing; how they live and what they eat; what are the troubles and pains of purgatory and what is the remedy. They believe that the land of purgatory is like this earth, socially and politically, with the exception of the absence of work and wages. The spirits are supposed to eat, drink, sleep, quarrel, fight, sing, dance, etc., just as they did on earth. But as life is as expensive there as here, they can have but little joy unless the relatives on earth send them money enough to pay their expenses. During the stay of the spirits in that nether world, which is but temporary, they are possessed of certain powers, by means of which the gods expect them to make their wants known to men. They can rap on chairs and tables, and move the kitchen furniture with permission of the kitchen god, can make noises in the air, play on musical instruments, show their foot-prints in the mud or sand, sprinkle water on the face of the dead, pull the hair or clothes of the living, take possession of human beings, and after putting them into a trance, talking through them, and, in a thousand other strange ways, show their presence and desires. The most common method pursued by the Chinese is that of the medium or "talking with the human mouth," and to such a source will the coolie go for the information which the kitchen god has refused to give.

The medium is generally a young girl of eighteen or thereabouts, who, after being propitiated by an ample supply of cash, advises, as the mouth-piece of the spirits, that the coolie takes an immediate departure for the United States. He then proceeds to prepare his relatives in the other world for his long absence. They must have money with which to buy his spiritual food and clothing, and his family will, in his absence, be too poor to supply them until after money has been received from him. So he prepares enough to keep the spirits with strict economy until he has time to reach the United States, earn money and send it home. This money is made of paper, bamboo leaves, bark or other available material which can be marked with ink. When he has manufactured a quantity which he is assured will be satisfactory to the spirits, he incloses small bunches in little paper boxes prepared for the purpose, and marks upon the cover the ancestor's name for whom it is intended. One of these boxes is placed before each ancestral tablet—which is usually a piece of paper pasted up with the ancestor's name upon it—and there burned to ashes, while the coolie prays the ancestor to accept his "meagre gift." Some of this money is also burned for the benefit of the kitchen god; and the tree at the back of the house comes in for its share. Food in the shape of rich cakes and vegetables is then offered to the gods and to the ancestors by setting it apart from the food of the family for a short time, joss sticks are lighted in various places, and the ignorant coolie supposes that his ancestors are provided for.

Writing for the Newspapers.—Eli Perkins, in one of his letters to the New York Commercial, gives the following excellent counsel to young writers:—

"In the first place, of course, you must never think of writing unless you have something to say—something that seems to be almost bursting to get out. Then state what you have to say in the littlest words, and in short sentences. Your great idea must not be to see how well you can write—how you can show off in your gay rhetorical plumage, but to tell what interested you in a quick, sharp way to the reader. When you get done—stop. Don't "water your stock" of facts. Time is precious now-a-days, and people have so many newspapers to read, that they pay you a great compliment if they read you at all."

"NOT LOST FOREVER."

A Christian lady, living in one of our large cities, was passing a gin palace just as the keeper was thrusting a young man out into the street. He was very pale, and his haggard face and wild eyes told that he was far gone on the road to ruin, as with oaths he brandished his clenched fists, threatening to be revenged on the young man who had ill-used him. He was so excited and blinded with passion that he did not see the lady, who stood very near him, until she laid her hand upon his arm, and spoke in her gentle, loving voice, asking what was the matter.

At the first kind word the young man started as though a heavy blow had struck him, and turned quickly round, paler than before, and trembling from head to foot. He surveyed the lady for a moment, and then, with a sigh of relief, he said, "I thought it was my mother's voice, it sounded so strangely like it; but her voice has been hushed in death for many years."

"You had a kind mother, then," said the lady, "and she loved you?"

With sudden revulsion of feeling, the young man burst into tears, sobbing out, "Oh, yes, I had a good mother, and she loved me. But since she died, all the world has been against me, and I am lost, lost forever."

"No, not lost forever; for God is merciful, and his pitying love can reach the chief of sinners," said the lady, in her low, sweet voice; and the timely words swept the hidden chords of feeling which had long been untouched in the young man's heart, waking a host of tender emotions which had been hidden deep beneath the rubbish of sin and crime.

More words were spoken, and when the lady passed on her way, the young man followed, marked the house she entered, and wrote the name on the door-plate in his little memorandum-book. Then he walked away with a thoughtful look on his white face, and deeper and still more earnest feelings in his aching heart.

Years passed by, and the lady had forgotten the circumstance, when, one day, a stranger sent up his card, and desired to speak with her.

Wondering who it could be, she went down to the parlor, and found a noble-looking, and well-dressed man, who rose deferentially to meet her.

"Pardon me, madam, for this intrusion; but I have come many miles to thank you for the great service you rendered me a few years ago," he said, in a trembling voice.

The lady was puzzled, and asked for an explanation, as she did not remember having seen the gentleman before.

"I have changed so much," said the man, "that you have forgotten me; but though I only saw you once, I am sure I should have recognized you anywhere; and your voice, too, is so much like my mother's."

These words brought to the lady's remembrance the young man to whom she had spoken before the gin palace, and the two wept.

After the first gush of emotion had subsided, the gentleman sat down, and told the lady how those few gentle words had been instrumental in saving him, and making him what he was.

"The earnest expression, 'No, not lost forever,' followed me wherever I went, and it always seemed the voice of my mother speaking to me from her tomb. I repented of my many transgressions, and resolved to live as Jesus and my mother would have me; and, by the mercy and grace of God, I have been enabled to do so."—East London Evangelist.

THE BIBLE.

Study it carefully,
Think of it prayerfully,
Deep in thy heart let its pure precepts dwell;
Slight not its history,
Ponder its mystery;
None can e'er prize it too fondly or well.

Found in this volume of heavenly lore;
With faith that's unfailing,
And love all-prevailing,
Trust in its promise of life evermore.

WORKING FOR JESUS.

"I wish I could do something for my Savior besides loving him; not in order to show my love for him, since he can see my heart, but I want to do something for him because I love him. I will ask him, and He will tell me what to do."

So talked a young disciple to himself a few weeks since. Soon a friend, his Sunday school teacher, came to him, saying:

"Henry, would you like to work in the vineyard to-day?"

"Yes, sir," was the eager reply; "I was just asking for work—anything that I can do, with Jesus' help, I will."

"Well, Henry, I want the christians in our class, each to take a member of the class who is not a christian, and pray and labor with with him. I have given you Fred Haines."

"Fred Haines; oh, let some one else take him, I can't!"

"No, you can't, but Jesus can. Good morning."

Thus urged, this young disciple tremblingly sought his wild classmate. He was laughingly received; his earnest words and tearful appeals seemed unheeded; yet he left with a glad heart, for Jesus had paid him for his work with his own loving presence. Jesus gave him courage to go again and again, to pray and never faint, until his thoughtless friend learned to love the Savior.

"Oh, Mr. B.——," said Henry to his teacher, a few weeks after their first conversation, "working for Jesus pays. We deserve no reward for such little services, but Jesus gives it all the way along; it is now my daily prayer, 'Lord, what wilt thou have me to do?'"—S. S. Times.

Hygiene.

"This is for your Health."

COLOR POISONING.

Arsenic is universally known to be a deadly poison, and in every country of the world its sale has been regulated and restricted by law. These carefully devised measures, however, apply no farther than to its sale by druggists. As an ingredient in the manufacture of many articles its use is wholly unrestricted. In the preparation of certain colors it is largely used. It appears in our upholstery, upon the walls of our rooms, in our carpets, and even in the clothing we wear. So common has its use come to be in daily life that the subject warrants solicitude in behalf of the public health.

There is no color in nature so pleasing to the eye as green, and chemists have found by repeated experiments that the clearest and brightest of its tints are best produced by arsenic in one or another of its various forms, the most commom being the arsenite of copper, commonly known as Scheel's green, and the aceto-arsenite of copper, or Schweinfurt green. Either of these combinations is more than one-half pure arsenic. Some idea of the extensive use of arsenical green in the manufacture of wall paper and artificial flowers may be learned from the fact that seven hundred tons were applied to this use alone in England in 1862. The introduction into the stomach of any of these preparations of color gives rise to the same train of symptoms and demands the same prompt antidotes as pure arsenic.

The quantity of poison which the leaves of artificial flowers take up in their manufacture seems almost incredible. Careful chemical analysis has shown that in a twig of twelve leaves, the ordinary amount is ten grains. A lady might thus carry to an evening party enough deadly poison in her floral adornments to poison a score of the company.

So in the matter of dress. The fabric so popular among ladies, called "arsenical-green" tarletan, contains more than half its weight in arsenical green, a dress of ordinary dimensions holding in its texture between three and four ounces of virulent poison. Two years ago, several girls employed in a shop in this city, were seriously poisoned by working upon this fabric. The hands and face were badly swollen, eruptions appeared upon the parts exposed to the effects of the labor, and the sight was seriously affected. These local effects were accompanied by headache, lassitude, and a feeling of general illness.

But perhaps the most dangerous form taken by this poison is the coloring material used in the manufacture of confectionery, toys and articles designed especially for the use of children. Many of the green wooden toys which are manufactured abroad are painted with the aceto-arsenite of copper mixed with water, so that the moment the color is moistened it comes off either in the hands or mouth of th child. The toy water colors, sold so commonly, contain in the two usual shades o green, enough arsenic to destroy a whole family of children.

It would seem that in any community where the evil effects of the use of poisonous pigments were well known, the very knowledge itself would operate as a remedy. In this country the rights of individuals and industrial pursuits are looked upon as too sacred to allow of excessive restrictions, and a prohibitory law to affect the sale or use of arsenical colors would be of questionable power, and of as little avail as that now in existence for the sale of liquor. If the people could be thoroughly brought to understand the dangers they are constantly exposed to in the indiscriminate use of this poison under its various forms and names, there would be no need of a repressive law, for people of ordinary sense need only to be warned of a peril to shun it.—Globe.

Fresh Air.—Every person during each minute of his life destroys a quantity of air twice as large as himself!—how important, then, to have a constant supply of pure air. In every house and room two things should be attended to—First, the getting rid of the bad air which comes from the lungs; and next, the letting in of the fresh air from without. To do this open your windows at both top and bottom—the fresh air rushes in one way while the foul air makes its exit the other. This is lettting in your friend and expelling the enemy. Care should be taken not to overcrowd sitting and bedrooms; and persons should avoid occupying overcrowded houses.—Ex.

Cleanliness Important.—It is a curious fact, illustrating the necessity of cleanliness, and of keeping the pores of the skin open, that if a coat of varnish, or other substance impervious to moisture, be applied to the exterior of the body, death will ensue in about six hours. The experiment was once tried on a child in Florence. On the occasion of Pope Leo X's accession to the Papal chair, it was desired to have a living figure to represent the Golden Age, and so a child was gilded all over with varnish and gold leaf. The child died in a few hours. If the fur of a rabbit or the skin of a pig be covered with a solution of India rubber in naptha, the animal ceases to breathe in a couple of hours.

The Good Samaritan Liniment.—Take of alcohol two quarts, and add to it the following articles: Oils of sassafras, hemlock, spirits of turpentine, tincture of cayenne, catechu, guiac and laudanum, each one ounce; tincture of myrrh, four ounces; oil of originum, two ounces; oil of wintergreen, half an ounce; gum camphor, two ounces; chloroform, one ounce and a half; mix all together, and apply as an external remedy for all kinds of pains and corns.—*N. GLANCES AT PROPHECY.—No. 2.

J. WHITECAR.

Gibbon speaks of the fathers from Christ down between the third and fourth centuries, and says—"The most dreadful calamities were denounced against an unbelieving world. The edification of the New Jerusalem was to advance by equal steps with the distinction of mystic Babylon, or so long as the emperors who reigned before Constantine persisted in the profession of idolatry, the epithet of 'Babylon' was applied to the city and to the empire of Rome. A regular series was prepared of all the moral and physical evils which can afflict a flourishing nation: intestine discord, and the invasion of the fiercest barbarians from the unknown regions of the North, pestilence and famine, comets and eclipses, earthquakes and inundations, all these were only so many preparatory and alarming signs of the great catastrophe of Rome, when the country of the Scipios and Cæsars should be consumed by a flame from heaven, and the city of the seven hills with her palaces and temples, and her triumphal arches, should be buried in a vast lake of fire and brimstone. It might, however, afford some consolation to Roman vanity, that the period of their empire would be that of the world itself, which as it had once perished by the element of water, was destined to experience a second and a speedy destruction from the element of fire."—1 vol. chap. 15, p. 536.

"And the stone that smote the image became a great mountain and filled the whole earth." Here the God of heaven sets up his kingdom, that is not to be left to other people, for it breaks in pieces and consumes all these kingdoms, and it stands forever. See also Rev. 11: 15-18. When the seventh angel sounded "there were great voices in heaven, saying, The kingdoms of this world are become the kingdoms of our Lord and of his Christ, and he shall reign forever and ever." "And the time of the dead that they should be judged, and that thou shouldst give reward unto thy servants the prophets, and to the saints, and them that fear thy name, small and great, and shouldst destroy them which destroy the earth." And also John says (Rev. 10: 5-7)—"The angel sware by him that liveth forever and ever, who created heaven and the earth, and the things that therein are, and the sea and the things which are therein, that there should be time no longer; but in the days of the seventh angel, when he shall begin to sound, the mystery of God shall be finished, as he hath declared by his servants the prophets." We may have reason to call your attention to this portion of the subject in another place. Again, it may be inferred that the kingdom has been set up, from the following passages, but when examined in the light of the context, they are found to teach a very different sentiment.

We will look at the most prominent of them. The following is one of this class—"There be some standing here that shall not taste of death till they see the kingdom of God." Luke 8: 27. But we have only to read the verses which follow—"And it came to pass about eight days after these sayings, he took Peter and John and James and went up into a mountain to pray, and as he prayed, the fashion of his countenance was altered, and his raiment was white and glistering, and behold there talked with him two men which were Moses and Elias, who appeared in glory and spake of his decease which he should accomplish at Jerusalem. But Peter and they that were with him were heavy with sleep, and when they awoke they saw his glory, and the two men that stood with him, and it came to pass as they departed from him, Peter said unto Jesus, Master, it is good for us to be here, and let us make three tabernacles; one for thee, one for Moses, and one for Elias, not knowing what he said. While he thus spake, there came a cloud and overshadowed them, and they feared as they entered the cloud, and there came a voice out of the cloud, saying, This is my beloved Son. Hear him." When the voice was past, Jesus was found alone. Luke 9: 27-36. Thus the promise that some of the disciples should not taste of death till they had seen the kingdom of God, or, as Matthew expresses it, till they had seen the Son of man coming in his kingdom, was verified about eight days after it was given, in the transfiguration of Christ, when Peter, James and John saw his glory, and the glory of those who were with him. This view is confirmed by the fact that Peter regarded what he saw in the mountain as a vision of the kingdom of Christ, in which his saints will appear with him in glory. After exhorting us to make our calling and election sure, that so an entrance may be ministered unto us abundantly into the everlasting kingdom of our Lord (2 Peter 1: 10-18), he says—"For we have not followed cunningly devised fables, when we made known unto you the power and coming of our Lord Jesus Christ, but were eye witnesses of his majesty; for he received from God the Father, honor and glory, when there came such a voice to him from the excellent glory, This is my beloved Son in whom I am well pleased; and this voice which came from heaven we heard when we were with him in the holy mount."

Thus Peter understood the vision in the holy mount to be a miniature view of the powerful coming of our Lord to minister to his saints an abundant entrance into his everlasting kingdom. He was then a partaker, or a joint witness, of the glory that shall be revealed when the Son of man shall come in his glory and all the holy angels with him; "then shall he sit upon the throne of his glory; then shall the King say to them on his right hand, Come, ye blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world." Matt. 25: 31-34.

Another chief text is—"Behold the kingdom of God is within you. This, say some, makes it certain that the kingdom is already set up in the heart. It is true that the grace of God is in the hearts of his people; this has been the case not only since the first advent but since the days of righteous Abel. But our Lord was addressing the wicked Pharisees who had not this grace. Listen to Jesus. "Woe unto you, Scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites; for ye are like whited sepulchres which, indeed, appear beautiful outwardly, but are within full of dead men's bones and of all uncleanness. Even so ye also outwardly appear righteous unto men, but within ye are full of hypocrisy and iniquity." Matt. 23: 27, 28. Now let us turn to the passage and read in full—"And when he was demanded of the Pharisees when the kingdom of God should come, he answered them and said, The kingdom of God cometh not with observation, neither shall they say, Lo here! or, lo there! for, behold, the kingdom of God is within you. And he said unto the disciples, The days will come when ye shall desire to see one of the days of the Son of man, and ye shall not see it. And they shall say to you, See here; or, see there; go not after them, nor follow them. For as the lightning that lighteneth out of the one part under heaven shineth unto the other part under heaven, so shall also the Son of man be in his day." Luke 17: 20-24.

It is evident that what our Lord in the above passage says to the disciples covers the same ground as what he says to the Pharisees, and he embraces his second coming. The words "within you" are rendered in the margin "among you," and let it be observed that our Lord is not teaching that the kingdom was among them at the time he was addressing them, but he is speaking of the coming of the kingdom as a future event, and goes on to describe the manner of its coming, affirming that it is not a local but a general event, so that men will not say when it comes, Lo here! or, lo there! for, behold, the kingdom of God is among them; the event comes suddenly upon all; as the lightning cometh out of the east and shineth to the west, so shall the Son of man come in his kingdom; hence the passage in question instead of supporting the views that the kingdom is set up, proves that it comes when every eye sees Christ, and all kindreds of the earth wail because of him. Again says the apostle—"Now this I say, brethren, that flesh and blood cannot inherit the kingdom of God, neither doth corruption inherit incorruption. 1 Cor. 15: 50. The apostle's object here was to show the necessity of the change which will take place at the last trump, when the dead are "raised incorruptible, and we shall be changed; for this corruptible must put on incorruption, and this mortal must put on immortality." There is as much if not more of a necessity of a change for our bodies to inherit the kingdom, as there was for the change of Jesus' body who spilt his blood on the cross, but was raised or quickened by the Spirit, so that when he appeared to the disciples he could say—"Behold my hands and my feet, that it is I myself; handle me and see; for a spirit hath not flesh and bones as ye see me have." No blood mentioned as being quickened by the Spirit. They gave him a piece of broiled fish and a honeycomb, and he "took and did eat before them." Luke 24: 39-43. And so it is with the true Israel in their resurrection. Ezek. 37. Ezekiel is carried by the Spirit of the Lord and set in the midst of the valley which was full of bones, and Ezekiel prophesied, and they came together, bone to his bone. "And when I beheld, lo, the sinews and the flesh came upon them, and the skin covered them above, but there was no breath in them." Then Ezekiel prophesied to the wind, and "breath came into them, and they lived."

Let us now listen to the explanation of the above from the Lord himself. "Therefore prophesy and say unto them, Thus saith the Lord God; Behold, oh my people, I will open your graves and cause you to come up out of your graves, and bring you into the land of Israel. And ye shall know that I am the Lord, when I have opened your graves, oh, my people, and brought you up out of your graves; and shall put my spirit in you, and ye shall live; and I shall place you in your own land; then shall ye know that I the Lord have spoken it, and performed it, saith the Lord." Ezek. 37.

Here you will readily see in the resurrection, that the bones, sinews, flesh, skin, breath, and the Spirit of the Lord are all made mention of, but no blood; for flesh and blood together cannot inherit the kingdom; but the flesh must be quickened by the Spirit. You will also see that after their resurrection, they are placed in their own land; not to go up to reign above the skies, or up into heaven, as is generally taught by the theologians of the day.

I have never been able to find one word of the kind, either in the Old or New Testament. But I have only to say that it is one of the great errors of the opposers of the truth; consequently the beauty of the kingdom is destroyed, and nothing is charming in the prayer—"Thy kingdom come, Thy will be done in earth as it is in heaven." But between the third and fourth centuries, iniquity abounded, and the love of many waxed cold, and the church was backslidden from the faith which was once delivered to the saints, or in the promises made to Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, of the promised land in a heavenly state. They were fast divesting the inheritance of the saints and the kingdom of its beauty, and substituting an imaginary inheritance and kingdom. Says the historian—"But when the edifice of the church was almost completed, the temporary support was laid aside, the doctrine of Christ's reign upon earth was at first treated as a profound allegory, was considered by degrees as a doubtful and useless opinion, and was at length rejected as the absurd invention of heresy and fanaticism. A mysterious prophecy, Revelations, which still forms a part of the sacred canon, but which was thought to favor the exploded sentiment, has very narrowly escaped the proscription of the church."—Millman's Gibbon's History of Rome, 1 vol., p. 535.

But when the true Israel are raised, then the kingdom will come, and His will be done in earth; and then will be fulfilled the words of our Savior on the mount—"Blessed are the meek; for they shall inherit the earth." And also—"when the wicked are cut off, thou shall see it." Then the ransomed of the Lord shall "return and come to Zion, with songs, and everlasting joy upon their heads; they shall obtain joy and gladness, and sorrow and sighing shall flee away." And how sweet to believe there is to be a resurrection and a restitution of all things.

Where are our affections? Is there a kindred spirit with those before the Lamb, who could sing—"Thou wast slain, and hast redeemed us to God by thy blood, out of every kindred, tongue, and people, and nation, and hast made us unto our God kings and priests, and we shall reign on the earth." This earth is now groaning beneath the curse, but, thanks be to the Lord, it is to be changed by fire, back to its Edenic beauty, and the curse that was put upon it because of Adam's sin will be forever obliterated. Hark! hear the angel—"There shall be no more curse, but the throne of God and of the Lamb shall be in it." "And he that sat upon the throne said, Behold, I make all things new." Not all new things, but all things new. And this also is the throne of his glory, and the throne of David, for which the "stone" or "noblemen" went into a far country to receive and return.

Let us look to the prophet Daniel and see when the noblemen receives the kingdom, and where.

Daniel (9: 9-27), after speaking of the four universal governments that should arise, represented by the four great beasts, says—"I beheld till the throne was cast down and the Ancient of days did sit, whose garments were white as snow, and the hair of his head like the pure wool. His throne was like a fiery flame, and his wheels as burning fire. A fiery steam issued and came forth from before him. Thousand thousands ministered unto him, and ten thousand times ten thousand stood before him. The judgment was set and the books were opened. And I saw in the night vision, and behold, one like the Son of man come with the clouds of heaven, and came to the Ancient of days, and they brought him near before him. And there [there at the judgment] was given him dominion and glory, and a kingdom, that all people, nations and languages should serve him; his dominion is an everlasting dominion, which shall not pass away. And his kingdom, that which shall not be destroyed. And the kingdom and dominion, and the greatness of the kingdom under the whole heaven [not above, but under] shall be given to the people of the saints of the Most High.

Then again, like the noblemen that went into the far country, Jesus says—"In my Father's house are many mansions. If it were not so I would have told you. I go to prepare a place for you; and if I go and prepare a place for you, I will come again, and receive you unto myself, that where I am, there ye may be also." This house with many mansions, there is no doubt is that Jerusalem which is above and is free, which is the mother of us all. And when the times of the four Gentile governments are fulfilled for the treading down of the old Jerusalem, then the house with its many mansions, which the nobleman has gone to prepare, will come down. "I John saw the holy city, new Jerusalem coming down from God out of heaven, prepared as a bride adorned for her husband." Then it is prepared—completed. "And I heard a great voice out of heaven, saying, Behold, the tabernacle of God is with men, and he will dwell with them." Rev. 21: 1-7. "And the city had no need of the sun, neither of the moon, to shine in it, for the glory of God did lighten it, and the Lamb is the light thereof, and the nations of them which are saved, shall walk in the light of it." The throne of God and the Lamb is in it. Showing it to be the capital of the great King; and its location is to be Mount Zion, where the old Jerusalem was. For, says Isaiah—"Then the moon shall be confounded, and the sun ashamed;" or, as the Revelator says—"No need of the sun or the moon to shine in it," because of the glory that excelleth, when the Lord of hosts shall "reign in Mount Zion and in Jerusalem, and before his ancients gloriously." Then the ancients, Abraham, and Isaac and Jacob, with all the worthies must, as Ezekiel says (chap. 37), come up out of their graves and be placed in their own land; and then shall they have glorious bodies, like Jesus' glorious body (Phil. 3: 21); for they with us have sought for glory, honor, immortality, and eternal life. And that life is hid with Christ in God, so that "when Christ who is our life shall appear [not before], then shall ye also appear with him in glory." "Then shall the righteous shine forth as the sun in the kingdom of their Father." More glorious than Moses shone when he came down from the mount, and wist not that the skin of his face shone; and when Aaron and all the children of Israel saw Moses they were afraid to come nigh him. Exod. 34: 29-35. But we shall be made like him whose countenance was as the sun shining in its strength. Rev. 1: 16. Then will be fulfilled the words of the Lord—"But as truly as I live, all the earth shall be filled with the glory of the Lord." Num. 14: 20-21. This glory emanates from the throne; for then shall he sit upon the throne of glory; then will Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, and all the ancients who died in the faith, not having received the promises, but having seen them afar off, beyond the resurrection, and "were persuaded of them and embraced them, and confessed that they were strangers and pilgrims on the earth; but now they desire a better country, that is, an heavenly," when it is purified by fire, and the glory of the Lord covers the earth, and the will of God is done on earth as in heaven. "Wherefore, God is not ashamed to be called their God, for he hath prepared for them a city." Heb. 11: 8-16. When that holy city Jerusalem is prepared, it will come down. Then shall Abraham's seed, the Son of David, the Son of God, the King of kings, and Lords of lords, descend the trackless pathway of the skies, sitting upon the throne of his glory with diadems of unfading beauty upon his head. No more a rejected stone, or a stone of stumbling, but then he will come to be admired in all them that believe in that day. That stone cut out of the mount, will come loaded with glory. The Revelator speaking of him in respect of the glory and light of the city, says—"Her light was like unto a stone most precious, even like a jasper stone, clear as crystal." "And the Lamb is the light thereof." Then the stone that smote the image on the feet shall become a great mountain; when the Lord shall reign in mount Zion, and fill the whole earth. Because all the earth shall be filled with the glory of the Lord.

What a contrast; all creation is groaning under the curse. For the Lord said to Adam—"Cursed is the ground for thy sake;" and it will continue so until he shall say—"There shall be no more curse; but the throne of God and of the Lamb shall be in it." "And he that sat upon the throne said, Behold, I make all things new." The Lord said to the apostles—"Unto you it is given to know the mysteries of the kingdom of God;" and it was the gospel of the kingdom the apostles were sent out to preach. Hark! hear Paul's charge to Timothy—"I charge thee, therefore, before God and the Lord Jesus Christ who shall judge the quick and the dead at his appearing and kingdom." Then when the kingdom comes the Lord appears, and the dead are judged, and this in his charge is the word to be preached—"Preach the word; be instant in season, out of season. Reprove, rebuke, exhort, with all long-suffering and doctrine, for the time will come when they will not endure sound doctrine, but after their own lusts shall they heap to themselves teachers having itching ears. And they shall turn away their ears from the truth, and be turned unto fables."

Let me name a few of the fables of the teachers we have heaped to ourselves. First the kingdom was set up at the first Advent of Jesus; second, it is set up in our hearts when converted, though the capital is twelve thousand furlongs on the square, or fifteen hundred miles; third, when we die we get our reward; fourth, we are to go above the skies to live; fifth, that the world is to become converted before the Lord comes, and so on. They are not sent of the Lord to preach such delusive fables; but they study more to be eloquent than to give us the unadulterated word—thus saith the Lord. And they, being eloquent, are calculated to deceive, if possible, the very elect; ever learning, and never able to come to the knowledge of the truth, deceiving and being deceived. But when did Paul expect to get his crown? Hear his dying words—"I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith." What faith? See the charge to Timothy. "Henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness, which the Lord the righteous Judge shall give me at that day, and not to me only, but unto all them also that love his appearing." Tim. 4: 7, 8.

Let us awake to righteousness and sin not. "Behold I come quickly," says Jesus. Look around and see the increase of wickedness. The very earth is groaning beneath the curse. The pent-up fires are ready to break forth in one general conflagration. The earth begins to reel to and fro like a drunkard. The guilt is so great, the harvest is surely nigh. The firmament is seen to be out of order, and dark clouds gathering thick and fast over the political horizon. The nations seem to be arming for the battle of the great day of God Almighty. They seem to be arming for some unknown conflict. Look at the great iron navies and fortifications. Men are straining nerve and mind to invent the greatest implements of death. The nations are perplexed, as it is said they would be. The storm that is gathering must soon burst upon this ungodly world. The apostles say that men would become covetous, boasters, proud, blasphemous, traitors, heady, highminded, lovers of pleasure more than lovers of God, having a form of godliness, but denying the power thereof. How true this is. But says Jesus—"When I come, shall I find faith on the earth?" Signifying but little, as it was in the days of Noah. But, says Paul—"but ye, brethren, are not in darkness that that day should overtake you as a thief."

We do well to take heed to that sure word of prophecy, as unto a light that shineth in a dark place, until the day dawn, and to the sounding of the midnight cry—"Behold the Bridegroom cometh;" having our vessels filled with oil, and our lamps trimmed and burning, that when he comes, we may go in with him to the marriage feast. Even so. Amen.

God speaks. Above the clamor of the flesh for seclusion and ease—above the hum of business and the babble of tongues—above the clash of arms and the roar of battle, we hear a voice that comes with distinctness and authority: "Occupy till I come." "Sow beside all waters." "Work while it is called today." "Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it with thy might." We cannot be deaf, and we must not be disobedient to this divine commission.

THE 2300 AND THE 1335 DAYS OF DANIEL.

C. PENNOYER.

"Surely God will do nothing but he revealeth his secrets unto his servants the prophets," and promises that his Spirit shall lead us into "all truth." Let us take courage from the above named texts, and endeavor to get correct views of scriptural truth.

Some have supposed that the "daily sacrifice" spoken of by Daniel in the twelfth chapter refers to pagan worship; but I believe this to be a mistaken view. To my mind it has direct reference to the worship of God. At the expiration of the seventy years captivity (see Jer. 25: 11), God purposed to overthrow the kingdom of Babylon by the united kingdoms of Media and Persia. No sooner had they obtained the power, than God, through them, commenced to open the way and assist the Jews in their return to and the rebuilding of Jerusalem. (The reader will find this fully set forth in the book of Ezra.) Let it be remembered that the great central point in the providence of God was the restoration of the city and temple of Jerusalem, and the re-establishment of the worship of God according to the Mosaic law; and after much opposition and hindrance by Sanballat and others of his kind, the second temple was finally completed and dedicated to the service of God.

Let me now introduce a few passages from Daniel. "How long shall be the vision concerning the daily sacrifice, and the transgression of desolation?" 8: 13. The next verse answers the question—"Until two thousand three hundred days; then shall the sanctuary be cleansed." The desolating part of the 2300 is 1335 of the latter portion, and evidently dates from the decrees of Justinian and the consequent effect thereof, when war soon after commenced on the church, and great numbers suffered martyrdom.

It may readily be seen, by deducting the lesser number from the greater, that it is just nine hundred and sixty-five years from the dedication of the temple to the establishment of the power at Rome that would answer the prediction spoken in Rev. 17, called the abominations of the earth. The eleventh and twelfth chapters of Daniel evidently cover the same ground. The seventy weeks of chapter nine is also a portion of the 2300 days (or years), it being four hundred and ninety, and terminating at the destruction of Jerusalem, about A. D. 65-70. If this be true, the balance is 1810, and terminates in 1875 or 1880. At Jerusalem's fall the daily sacrifice was taken away, but "the abomination that maketh desolate" was not set up until about four hundred and sixty-eight years after, A. D. 533 to 538, or later.

I think that the seven weeks and sixty-two weeks of Daniel 9, date from the decree to build the city and temple; and the seventy weeks and 2300 days (or years) from its dedication when complete. It is evident that the 1260 days (years), so frequently brought to view in prophecy, stand for a pledge of the whole. I take the ground that those three numbers found in Daniel 12 have one common starting point, viz., at the decree of Justinian and its effect, from A. D. 533 and onward. That 1290 reach to a point after the seal is broken, and the subject matter began to be understood. (See Matt. 25—"The virgins go forth.") But to return to the consideration of the 1260 days, which are first mentioned in Daniel 7. And when we compare Rev. 12: 6-14, we find that the phrase, "A time, times and a half" answers to and agrees with the 1260. In Dan. 7, the fourth beast, or Roman kingdom, is broken into ten, and afterwards the eleventh horn, or power, appears; and this power makes war upon the saints. All Protestant christendom believes this to be the Roman Catholic persecuting power. Let us endeavor to find a starting point.

This power was to pluck up three kingdoms. And first the Heruli in Italy were swallowed up by the Goths, A. D. 493. Second, the Vandals in Africa, who were Arians and bitter opposers of the Catholic faith, fell by the power of Justinian. See Goodrich's History, vol. 2, pp. 626-7, also p. 801. He says—"The usurpation of the throne of the Vandals by Gilmer, induced Justinian to despatch an invading army into that country under the command of Belisarius. This general landed in Africa in 533. He advanced toward Carthage, defeating the Vandals on his march, and became master of the city with little opposition. Gilmer made one effort to save his kingdom, but it was unsuccessful. His army was irretrievably ruined, and forced to surrender unconditionally. He was carried captive to Constantinople, where he was led in the triumphal procession that honored the return of Belisarius."

I next quote from the same author (vol. 2, p. 801) concerning the third horn that was to be plucked up, which was also an Arian nation that held possession of Rome, and must be plucked up to answer the prophecy. He says—"The murder of Amalasontha, queen of the Goths, by her ungrateful husband Theodotus, afforded Belisarius a pretext for invading Italy. He sailed from Constantinople for Sicily in 535, and easily conquered that important island. Theodotus in great terror hastened to avert the danger by declaring himself the vassal of Justinian; but hearing immediately afterward that two Byzantine generals had been defeated in Dalmatia by the Gothic troops, he passed suddenly from the extreme of despair to the height of presumption, and withdrew his allegiance. Belisarius soon appeared to chastise his perfidy. He crossed the straits of Messina, overran the south of Italy, and captured the city of Naples; while Theodotus, secure within the walls of Rome, made no effort to protect his subjects. At length the Goths, disgusted with the incapacity and weakness of their sovereign, removed him from the throne, and chose Vitiges for their king. He abandoned Rome, and Belisarius took possession of the city A. D., 537. During the ensuing winter the Goths assembled from every quarter to save, if possible, their kingdom in Italy. A powerful army, animated by a dauntless spirit, was soon collected, and Vitiges led his followers to the siege of Rome.

"Belisarius concentrated his forces in the city, and defended it with equal skill and bravery; but famine soon appeared within the walls, and the citizens became anxious for a capitulation. A conspiracy was formed under the sanction of Pope Sylverius, for betraying the city to the Goths; but it was discovered by an intercepted letter. Belisarius sent [Pope] Sylverius into banishment, and ordered the Bishops to elect a new pontiff; but before a synod could be convened, Antonia, the general's wife, sold the papacy to Vigitius for two hundred pounds weight of gold. Reinforcements soon arrived, and the Goths were compelled to raise the siege of Rome. Belisarius finished the war in Italy by taking prisoner the Gothic king Vitiges, A. D. 539. He returned in triumph to Constantinople."

And thus the third horn of Daniel fell into the hand of the Roman Catholic power; and 1335 years from that date would reach A. D. 1874. Let me now call the reader's attention to those events which mark the termination of the 1260 years, so frequently mentioned in prophecy. Says Goodrich (pp. 183-4)—"At the commencement of the French Revolution, the clergy in France were both numerous and wealthy. They amounted to no less than eighteen Archbishops, one hundred and eleven Bishops, and one hundred and fifty thousand Priests, having under their control a revenue of five millions sterling annually, besides three thousand four hundred convents. The clergy and their wealth were now attacked by the infidel revolutionists, and fell an easy prey. The tithes and revenues of the clergy were taken away by a decree of a Constituent Assembly; the possessions of the church were declared to be the property of the nation; the religious orders were abolished, the monks and nuns ejected from their convents, and their immense wealth seized for the nation. The revolutionary torrent which was thus set in motion destroyed law, government and religion in France, and laid waste the Roman church, both there and in neighboring countries. The priests were massacred, her silver shrines and saints were turned into money for the payment of the troops, her bells were converted into cannon, and her churches and convents into barracks for soldiers. From the Atlantic to the Adriatic she presented but one appalling spectacle."

Again (vol. 2, p. 782) he says—"The invasion of Italy by the French under Bonaparte in 1796 led the way to important revolutions in the government of Rome. The pope was at first inclined to be hostile toward the French, but their repeated victories in the north of Italy gave them a decided predominance of power throughout the peninsula; and the pope [Pius VI.] was glad to make a treaty with Bonaparte, by which he surrendered to the French a large number of the finest pictures and statues in Rome. The good understanding between the two nations, however, was but of short duration. A popular tumult occurred at Rome, in which the French secretary of legation was killed. The French Directory, either irritated at this result, or eager for a pretext for interfering, immediately resolved to depose the pope. Accordingly in 1798, on a day of public rejoicing at Rome, being the anniversary of the pope's election, two French officers entered the chapel where he was attending the ceremonies, and announced to him that his power was at an end. His Swiss guards were dismissed, and he was placed under the protection of the soldiers of the French republic. The cardinals were all deprived of their authority, and a new government was formed."

The reader is referred to Rev. 13: 10—"He that leadeth into captivity shall go into captivity; he that killeth with the sword must be killed with the sword. Here is the patience and faith of the saints." This event transpired about 1260 years from the fall of the Goths, and it takes seventy-five years more to fill out the 1335, which seems to fix the end in 1873 or 1874.

After the pope's captivity, he retired to Florence, from which place he removed to France, where he died. After Bonaparte had placed himself at the head of the government of France, and reconquered Italy by the campaign of Marengo, he allowed the new pope, who had been elected at Paris with the title of Pius VII., to assume the pontifical chair at Rome; and in July, 1800, he made his entry into the city. He was a man of mild temper, and endeavored to restore everything to its former state, but his political power was merely nominal, for he could do nothing without the sanction of the French.

In 1804 the pope was summoned by Bonaparte to attend the ceremony of his coronation in the church of Notre Dame at Paris. Charlemagne had been obliged to go to Rome to procure investiture, but Napoleon resolved to reverse the old order of things, and bring the pontiff to France to perform the ceremony.

The pope administered the usual oath, which Napoleon repeated after him. The crown was then blessed by the pope, and Napoleon with his own hands placed it on his head. We quote again from the same volume (p. 783)—"Napoleon determined to deprive the pope of all political power. He accordingly wrote to him, desiring that he would resign the sovereign authority of Rome, and content himself with the office of bishop of that city. The pope did not willingly submit, and a French army was sent to Rome, which took him prisoner and removed him to the north of Italy. Rome was united to the French empire, the convents were all broken up, the monks and nuns sent to their homes, and a new government organized."

Rome continued under the French till 1814. The captivity of the second pope by the French, and the breaking up of the whole system, took place in 1809.

Should the argument based upon the first fail, and we again be disappointed, we can still make a point at 1809, and seventy-five years would carry us to 1874. But at present we do not see any corresponding event at the other end of the period; consequently we think that 1873 to 1875 is the strongest point. Moreover, if the generation mentioned in Matt. 24: 34 be a hundred years, then counting from 1780 it would end four years too soon; and our Savior says it "shall not pass till all be fulfilled." Should Russia move against Turkey during two years to come, it will give great strength to our position, and the cry would emphatically be made—"Behold, the Bridegroom cometh; go ye out to meet him." We are doubtless now living in the predicted period of Dan. 12—"Many shall run to and fro, and knowledge be increased."

In Dr. Gill's comments upon that passage he says—"That is, toward the end of the time appointed, many shall be stirred up to inquire into these things delivered in this book, and will spare no pains or cost to get a knowledge of them; will read and study the Scriptures and meditate on them, compare one passage with another, spiritual things with spiritual, in order to obtain the mind of Christ; will carefully peruse the writings of such who have gone before them who have attempted anything of this kind, and will go far and near to converse with persons who have any understanding of such things; and by such things, with the blessing of God upon them, the knowledge of this book of prophecy will increase, and things will appear plainer and clearer, the nearer the accomplishment of them is, and especially when accomplished, when prophecy and facts can be compared; and not only this kind of knowledge, but knowledge of all spiritual things, of all evangelical truths and doctrines, will be abundantly enlarged at this time."

Dr. Gill is not alone in such sentiments, but Matthew Henry, Elliot, Mead, Wolf, Mason, Bishop Newton, Cunninghame, and a host of others, would concur in the foregoing comments.

THE MARKET-PLACE.

B. FRENCH.

It seems that it was the custom in Jerusalem for those who wanted employment to advertize themselves by going to the market-place; so if any man wished to hire, he knew where to go to find help. A very good arrangement, as there were no daily papers to consult on business matters in those days.

We have sometimes fancied what the result would be if that was the custom in some of our cities and villages at the present time. No doubt there would be many who would go to the "market-place;" but a great many of our independent Yankees would be altogether too proud to go to a public place like that, and there stand, side by side, with poor ragged foreigners, waiting for some one to hire them. They would wait at home for employment to come to them; or they would go out privately, and perhaps travel all over the city, and spend the day for nothing; when some one of whom they did not think, would have been glad to have employed them in the morning if they could have been found at the "market-place." Those who went to the "market-place" would perhaps wait awhile, but if no one came to hire them, they would soon wander away. Some would go to the drinking saloons; some to the bowling alleys; and some might go home, cross and surly, because no man had hired them. Others would not go to the "market-place" at all, because circumstances prevented their getting there early in the morning.

Now the men we read about went to the "market-place," and staid there until they were called for. Some of them did not get there in the morning; they went later, and then waited until the lord of the vineyard came around again. They were not to blame for standing idle, for "no one had hired them;" but they found employment at last, although with some of them it was at the eleventh hour. But they received as much as those who went to work sooner. It seems the lord of the vineyard paid them for waiting; if they had gone into the field, and then stood idle, he might have cut down their wages.

Now for the application. This world is the vineyard, or, the field. The harvest is ripe, and the Lord of the harvest wants laborers. Where shall he find them? There are a great many professing to be children of the New Jerusalem who are desiring to be useful—to work for the Lord of the harvest. Well, if we want employment, we must be in the "market-place." What! has the Lord a market-place? Most certainly. Where? not in any particular locality; but we must be in the right position, in good working order, refreshed with the wine of the kingdom; we must be obedient if we would be servants of the Lord. We must be humble, feeling that we are weakness, and our strength must come from him. We must have an interest in the work; an earnest desire to gather some of the wasting grain, and save it for the garner of the Lord. We must be willing to do light as well as heavy work; to be reapers, or gleaners, or waiters for the reapers, just as the Lord wills. And we must be willing to work or wait. If there is no call for us to labor, we must not get impatient and leave the market-place, and wander off into worldly pleasures, and then give as an excuse that "no man hath hired us," but wait. Perhaps even now the Lord is sending a messenger for us.

"But," says one, "I have waited long and prayed for work; none has been given, and I am convinced the Lord does not want me in the field." Hold on! keep waiting. I have read somewhere that "They also serve who only stand and wait."

If you get paid for waiting as well as working, why not be content? If you are in the "market-place," in good working order, the Lord knows it, and is well pleased; and when he needs you he will surely call for you. Perhaps he is keeping you in reserve for some heavy work, which is to be done soon.

It is "catching weather" now; spare hands are sometimes needed when sudden storms threaten to break upon the reapers. It may be your work to carry to the tired reapers the pitcher and the loaf. Another says, "The day is almost past, the evening shadows grow long; what is the use to offer my service now?" Are the sheaves all gathered in? No. Then hasten! even at the eleventh hour the Master calls for workers, and the reward is sure.

"I have worked," says one. "I thought the Lord called me, and I went into the field.

I have labored long, but have seen no fruit. I have toiled in vain, and am now going to quit the field." Stop! my friend; how do you know? If you have labored heartily for the Lord, leave the increase with him; he will take care of the crop. When the angels gather the harvest home, they may find some sheaves marked with your name. If you were permitted to see the fruit of your labor, you might grow proud, get to boasting and lose all your religion. Trust in the Lord; do his bidding; and leave the event with him.

Come, children, all who are willing to work, make haste to get into the "market-place;" then wait patiently until the Master appoints a work for you to do; then work with all your might while the day lasts, for soon angels wil shout the "harvest home," and your work will be ended.

☞ Please Remember!

"THE WORLD'S CRISIS."

REDUCTION OF ITS SUBSCRIPTION PRICE.

At a meeting of the Advent Christian Publication Society, held August 23d, 1871, it was voted as follows:—

"That at any time during the year, if in the judgment of the Editor, Editorial Committee, and Business Agent, they see fit to reduce the price of subscription for the World's Crisis, they be authorized to do so."

It was stated in our last annual report, that if our subscribers all paid up promptly, the Society would be able to reduce the price of "our paper" to $2.00 per year. Independent of the names on our free list, $2.00 from each subscriber would give us a larger sum than we have ever received in any one year for the Crisis. This would enable us to continue the paper, as before, to the worthy on our free list, and pay all our bills promptly. We have been making special efforts to collect the dues on the paper, and have met with some success, yet not so full as we ought.

In accordance with the above vote, we have now decided to reduce the subscription price of

THE WORLD'S CRISIS,
Commencing with Volume XXXV.,
April 3d, 1872, to

$2.00 per year, Payable in Advance.

In remitting, our subscribers will please send for what they are owing, at the rate of $2.50 per year, to April 3d; $2.00, and at the same rate, for less than a year for the issue from that time forward.

As our price will be less, our friends will see that in order for our receipts to hold good, the number of paying subscribers must be increased; while the number of non-paying ones is diminished. Now we hope this may be accomplished; first, by an earnest, united, successful effort on the part of the friends of the Crisis in procuring and sending to the Office the names of a large number of new subscribers. Second, that a large number whose names have been on our books for years—delinquents, who have not paid any thing for a long time, will now at once write us, remitting a part, at least, of what they are owing, and paying for a year in advance, and thus become paying subscribers in fact, while for a long time they have been only such in name; otherwise, if we do not hear from them, we shall be compelled to drop their names from our list.

In regard to our free list, we would say—We hope that our receipts may be kept good as above, so that the Society may be able to continue the paper to the worthy poor among us, many of whom are in very destitute circumstances, and who should receive the Crisis freely so long as published. Yet it may be that there are some on the free list who are able to pay something. We trust they will do as the Lord would have them, but let none of the poor distress themselves. We believe the friends will see that we have funds to continue the paper to you as heretofore. Now is a good time for those who remit for themselves to put in something for the "poor fund." Those who are free to remit $2.50, as usual, can do so, and we will place the extra 50 cents on the fund to send the Crisis to the poor, free.

We doubt not the reduction will please our friends everywhere, and we hope they will sustain us in the same by their efforts and prayers.

GEO. T. ADAMS,
Business Agent.

CHRISTIAN UNION.

The subject of "christian union" is certainly one of first class importance to all who wish to please Jesus. When addressing his Father in behalf of his disciples, he prayed—"That they all may be ONE; as thou, Father, art in me, and I in thee, that they also may be one in us; that the world may believe that thou hast sent me." John 17: 21. It is evident that whatever prevents this result must be unchristian, and favorable to the cause of the enemy. If Christ would have his children all ONE, then Satan will do all he can to hinder and break up such a union, in order that the world may not believe in Christ as a Savior. We think all who believe in christianity are ready to admit that whatever helps to secure the union for which Christ prayed must be right; and that which prevents it is wrong. We are also confident that all the friends of Jesus would unite in saying that his followers should always defend the right, and oppose that which is wrong. We think every true christian would be ready to occupy this platform. We believe still further, that the time has come when a positive effort should be made to remove the sectarian walls that have so long separated the true followers of Christ in the various evangelical denominations. Of course, the bond of union will not consist in seeing eye to eye on all disputed doctrinal points; but in a union of hearts filled with the Holy Spirit. We can expect no other union in this world. This is the union for which we believe Jesus prayed, and which Satan has done all in his power to prevent. Let us have no test of christian fellowship that is not essential for salvation; then we shall be in harmony with Jesus, and the spirit of his prayer to which we have referred.

When we look at the sad consequences arising from the spirit of sectarianism, it leads us to plead with Christ that we may never again allow it a place in our hearts. Let no close communion walls be built between those who truly love the blessed Savior. Let christian character be the only test of fellowship; then, all the true disciples of Christ can mingle together in love. This test might exclude some of "our faith and order" in each church, but none whom Jesus accepts as his children. It might cut off some leading party men, whose chief aim may have been to build up "our church," instead of the church of Christ; but every true lover of the Redeemer, possessing his Spirit, could not help being delighted to see a closer union of all the Lord's true disciples. If we cannot do all we wish to secure this union, let us do what we can by example, pen, and precept. Let us gather with Christ, and not help scatter his flock by encouraging sectarianism. We are so near the day of the Lord, it seems important that all real christians should unite together against our common enemy. When united, we shall certainly be best prepared for the coming conflict. The struggle will not be a faint effort that awaits the faithful. The arch foe is well prepared, with hosts fully armed and disciplined. Shall christians waste their strength in such an hour as this over points about which equally good men honestly differ, and let the enemy take the field, and carry away captive our loved ones into the camp of the soul-destroying devourer? Is it not time for every loyal subject of King Immanuel to unite with every other one, who is true to his divine Master, and help form one solid phalanx to oppose the embattled legions of the advancing army of Satan? Let us rally to the closing conflict, and be brave for the right. We would not abandon one single item of truth for the sake of a union; but in meekness would instruct those who might be opposed. Let the union be of loving christian hearts; then their heads, or theological opinions, will be toned with the spirit of gentleness, and they can love as brethren, and feel no note of discord in their bond of union. For this, we believe our Savior prayed.

CALIFORNIA SCENERY.

The Spring scenery of California is the most lovely, charming, and beautiful, we ever beheld. The grass in the fields is of a bright green, also the abundance of the cedar cones in the door-yards are the most handsome and thrifty we ever saw. They are trimmed in the shape of a top; many of them are ten feet in diameter, and fifteen feet high. They are superior ornaments about the pleasant city homes. They grow perpetually, and never fade, unless for want of water. Flowers bloom all the year in the open air, and shrubs are ever green. It is an easy matter to beautify the home yard here with choice things. When once started, they continue to grow with but little care.

Just now (March 22nd), California looks more like paradise than any place we ever saw. The abundance of rain, the mild weather, and the rich soil, have united together to dress up nature in her most lovely robes, so as to give one a lively idea of the delightful Eden home of the first happy pair. The hills are now covered with their rich green carpet, and the wheat fields look very promising. Some of the wheat is two and a half feet high. The prospect for an abundant harvest was never more encouraging.

This is the season for the wild flowers, which surpass everything we have ever seen in any other country. We had heard about California flowers, but we had formed only a faint idea of the reality. The rich meadow fields look like immense flower gardens, excepting the green grass spots interspersed, which add to the beauty of the sight. In going from San Francisco to Sacramento on the cars, a distance of one hundred and thirty-eight miles, we pass through a most gorgeous display of beautiful flowers, possessing a great variety of very brilliant colors. The brightest yellow, clear blue, crimson, and all intervening shades, are so mingled as to look like one great bouquet, covering thousands of acres. Would that our readers could take a peep at this pleasant country as it now appears. We think it would awaken an increased love for the coming new earth, in which all these present delightful spots will be completely eclipsed by its heavenly scenery so enchantingly beautiful, set in the midst of grandeur and sublimity, forever adorned with the glory of God. Let us all secure a home among the redeemed, and a life among the ever-living.

EARTHQUAKE.—At twenty minutes past two o'clock, Tuesday morning, March 26th, we had the most severe shock of an earthquake ever experienced in Sacramento. We were awakened out of sound sleep by the rocking of our bed. We enjoyed the occasion, feeling no fear. Many ran into the streets, and much excitement was manifested. We have heard of no special damage. The vibrations of the earth were north and south. Many clocks were stopped, and buildings rocked alarmingly, causing much excitement. The shock extended over two hundred miles in different directions. At about ten A. M., when on the dome of the Capitol with our friend "C.", two more shocks were felt. The Capitol building was moved as though it was a very light object, compared with the immense power that caused the earthquake. We thought of the approaching time when the Lord will shake the earth "terribly," and the cities of the nations will fall.

A YEAR TO BE REMEMBERED.

"We give in to-day's supplement a summary,* more full and elaborate than ever presented in a newspaper, of the remarkable disasters and calamities which made the year 1871 noteworthy in the calendar of the century, together with an account of the peculiar natural phenomena of the year. The list is a melancholy one. Hardly a conceivable calamity which did not at some time during the year fall upon some portion of the globe.

Gales and shipwrecks at sea, floods, storms, earthquakes, tornadoes and conflagrations on land; famine, pestilence and epidemic; collisions on railroads, mining accidents, explosions of fire damp, added to the array of suicides, murders and violent deaths, make a long list of horrors, hardly equalled in any preceding year of the century, and it is to be hoped, not to be equalled in any year to come. The leading disasters of the year, such as the Westfield explosion, the collision at Revere, the conflagrations in Chicago and the northwest, and the famine and pestilence in Persia, are familiar to the public mind, but the list presents in chronological order calamities hardly less serious, which were crowded out of general recollection by succeeding horrors. The record of any single month is sufficient to awaken serious reflection, and show us the multitudinous possibilities of danger and death which encompass all our lives."—Boston Journal, Jan. 27th, 1872.

"A New York writer says—I do not remember the time when crime stalked so fearlessly in the streets of New York as now. The last week has witnessed two cold-blooded murders, half a dozen brutal assaults, burglaries unlimited, and highway robberies without number. Add to these the embezzling bank officers and defaulting clerks, and the schedule presents an array of criminal acts scarcely ever paralleled. . . . Even the most frequented thoroughfares are unsafe after midnight; for thieves abound, who will assault any one for the purpose of robbery, caring nothing if murder be the result of their work. A friend of mine, living up town, heard noises under his window late at night, and, on looking out, saw three men talking together. Presently one said, 'Here comes a feller; let's go for him.' And they did 'go for' a lone pedestrian to the extent of knocking him down, and leaving him senseless on the side-walk. As they turned coolly to a convenient street lamp to see the amount of booty they had achieved, one said—'How much did you get, Bill?' 'Only nineteen cents, but that will buy the beer! Come along, boys!' And so they went their way. The hospitals are full of beaten and wounded persons, who have received their injuries either at the hands of these ruffians, or in some drunken street or bar-room brawl, and the list of violent deaths upon which the coroners are called to hold inquest will amount to at least a dozen a day. . . .

The carnival of crime, robberies, burglaries, deadly assults, and murders continue, and, indeed, increase in this city. Rampant ruffianism is now so recognized as the inevitable condition here that with the perusal of the details of some daring outrage the interest felt by many ceases. So much has it become a matter of fact that criminals of the worst class, the most dangerous and daring have, if not protected and encouraged, at least been so tolerated in the pursuit of plunder and commission of crime, by the worthless police, that again and again it is said, 'An honest man has not half the protection afforded to a thief.' Men guilty of daring crimes, well known to be criminals, walk the streets with perfect immunity, and at night waylay, rob, beat and murder, honest men with impunity."—Chicago Tribune.

What mean these terrible facts concerning the criminal records of these last days? They are just what the prophets have said should be just before the second coming of Christ. Yet in the face of such things, there are many preachers who declare to their congregations that the world is growing better, and that the conversion of the world is at hand. We can hardly conceive of a position more fully opposed to the teachings of the Bible and surrounding events. The perils of the last days are upon us. The end is at hand. Infidelity is bold and defiant. "Evil men and seducers" are waxing "worse and worse, deceiving and being deceived." The Lord foresaw it, foretold it, and we live to see its fulfillment in our own day. Righteousness receives but small support at the present time, while iniquity stalks into office, and receives the applause of the multitude.

FREE LOVE.

A few months since, Mrs. Victoria C. Woodhull, the President elect of the National Association of Spiritualists, gave a lecture in the Music Hall, Boston, to a crowded house. In the course of her remarks, she is reported to have said:

"It can now be asked: What is the legitimate sequence of social freedom? To which I unhesitatingly reply, free love, or freedom of the affections.

'AND ARE YOU A FREE LOVER?'

is the almost incredulous query. I repeat a frequent reply: 'I am; and I can honestly, in the fulness of my soul, raise my voice to my Maker and thank him that I am—(faint applause)—and that I have had the strength and the devotion to truth to stand before this traducing and vilifying community in a manner representative of that which shall come with healing on its wings for the bruised hearts and crushed affections of humanity.' (Applause.) And to those who denounce me for this I reply: 'Yes, I am a free lover. I have an inalienable, constitutional, and natural right to love whom I may, to love as long or as short a period as I can; to change that love every day if I please.'"

After an exciting scene following this statement, she continued—

"And with that right neither you nor any law you can frame have any right to interfere. And I have the further right to demand a free and unrestricted exercise of that right, and it is your duty not only to accord it, but as a community to see that I am protected in it. I trust that I am fully understood, for I mean just that, and nothing else."

Such is the platform of the one whom the National Association of Spiritualists have chosen as their President, and the representative of their true principles of social reform, and who is also named as the next President of the U. S. Our fathers would have thought the person insane, who should have intimated that such sentiments as are advocated by Mrs. Woodhull, would have received applause in a popular Boston audience. Truly, "the world moves;" but to what point is it moving? Truly, towards Satan's stand-point, and professors of religion dare not say a word against it, lest they lose their popularity. The same is now true of a large proportion of the leading daily papers of the country. A few years since, they spoke out boldly against Spiritualism; but now they treat it with more courtesy than they do a pure Christianity. While a veneered, whitewashed, painted religion, that saves no one, is praised and honored by the press, the genuine is passed over in silence, or with a cutting sneer. Thus the press and a cold, formal, worldly-minded religion, wedded to popular favor, are helping on the cause of the enemy of all righteousness. While all this is being done, the mass of professors see no danger, and are quietly sleeping on the very brink of eternal ruin. They have departed from the Lord, conformed to the world, and are drunken with its spirit and manners, so that they are insensible to the perils with which they are surrounded. They are eating and drinking with the drunken, like a Belshazzar at his final feast.

"IT SEEMS STRANGE."

A Sacramento correspondent writes as follows to the Christian Advocate, in San Francisco:—

"Elder Grant, the advocate of soul-sleeping annihilationalism of the wicked, and the speedy second coming of Christ, has been speaking to crowded audiences for a couple of weeks. The result of his labors will be best known in after time. It seems strange that he could not be content, if he is a true minister of Jesus, to preach salvation by faith in Christ, and not agitate these questions, which at best can do no good, but have generally done great injury to the cause of the Redeemer."

If what we preach is error, and opposed to the Bible, of course it "can do no good;" but if the doctrine of eternal torment, the immortality of the soul, and the conversion of the world, are false doctrines, as we believe, then the agitation of such unscriptural dogmas can do no good. Shall we stop preaching the true doctrine of the Bible, because those who advocate certain theological fables are opposed, and say it "can do no good?" We propose a thorough investigation of the subject, with Bible in hand, to see who is sustained by the inspired Word.

ADAMIC PENALTY.

EDITOR OF THE CRISIS:—If the argument be correct, that all men must be saved from the Adamic death, as a measure of justice, does it not reasonably follow that the demands of the Adamic law are fully met in the death prior to the resurrection of all men? Is not, then, every subject of that resurrection thereby fully discharged from all penalties arising under that law? If so, is not the conclusion unavoidable that all men by that resurrection attain to the same moral and physical condition as that of man before the transgression? If not in the resurrection, wherein, in any sense, does a reprieve, pardon, or salvation from the Adamic penalty consist?

Fair Haven, Conn. A. CLARK.

The death of Adam was the penalty for his first act of disobedience. This sin was in the early part of his life. Of course, he must have been on probation after that for hundreds of years; but the death penalty for his first crime did not refer to sins committed afterwards, and should not be considered as his penalty. When a particular crime has a special penalty attached, that penalty does not go beyond that crime. If the first death, in the case of Adam, had been the penalty all his sins, the case would be quite different.

Since Adam's first transgression, the first death has not been the penalty for sin; but a calamity entailed upon us through Adam, who could not give immortality to his successors, because there was no immortal nature in him to transmit. If the first death were the penalty for sin, then those who are pardoned should not die. It would be a strange law that required the innocent to be punished. If one was condemned to be hung, and was pardoned, and then hung afterwards, of what benefit was his pardon? So, if the first death is the penalty for sin, why do the innocent die?

We need no pardon for a calamity. If by the carelessness of another a house is burnt, the man who owns the house should not be punished for the calamity. So, if we die because of what Adam did, it is right and just that our life should be restored again. Then it would be right that we should answer for our own sins, and receive the proper penalty for our crimes, if not pardoned.

THE CREED OF SPIRITUALISM.

The spirits and their followers, numbering millions, are now agitating the question whether they shall "assume a political aspect." In the "Banner of Light," Feb. 24th, 1872, Hudson Tuttle, a prominent Spiritualist, says—"The creed of Spiritualism presents itself as one fundamental proposition, supported by its phenomena—Man is an immortal spirit, retaining identity and individualty after separation from the physical form, and possessing the power to communicate with earth. Around this cardinal proposition gather the dependent facts and philosophy of spirit-life."

Again he says—"Lastly, I would ask, What great principle of Spiritualism is to be carried into the strife of politics to form the party platform? Is it immortality? Is it the fact of spirit-communion?"

It is well known that Spiritualists talk much about a system of religion peculiar to Spiritualism, which they wish to establish, while they are much opposed to having God and Christ recognized in the Constitution of the United States. Mr. Tuttle says:—

"Just now a petition is circulating over the whole country against the action of a few bigots who would put God and Christ into the government. Spiritualists are foremost in its circulation, and at a time when they are plotting to put their religion into the government, through the organization of a great party."

ORIGIN OF LOTTERIES.

"Lotteries were invented by the Romans to enliven their Saturnalia. The festival, which was instituted in commemoration of the freedom and equality which prevailed on earth in the golden reign of Saturn, began by the distribution of tickets which gained some prize. Augustus appointed lotteries, which consisted of things of little value; but Nero established some for the people, in which one thousand tickets were distributed daily, and a number of those who were favored by fortune became rich by them. Heliogabalus invented lotteries of a very singular nature; the prizes were either of great value or of none at all; one gained a prize of six slaves, and another of six flies; some got valuable vases and others vases of common earth. A lottery of this kind exhibited an excellent picture of the inequality with which fortune distributes her favors. The first lottery in England of which we have any account, was drawn at the west door of St. Paul's Cathedral, in 1569, and consisted of forty thousand tickets at forty shillings each. The profits of the lottery were to be applied towards repairing the harbors. In 1612, King James appointed a lottery to be drawn at the same place, for the plantation of English colonies in Virginia. The principal prize was four thousand crowns in plate."

What christian would have believed in the time of the Roman Saturnalia, that the lotteries then instituted would finally be incorporated into the church fairs in the last days, in order to raise money? Satan knows well how to manage these things.

INFORMATION WANTED.

A Baptist minister living in the south, whose name I suppress, thus writes me—

"DEAR BROTHER:—I want you to give an exposition of 1 Cor. 15: 24—'Then cometh the end,' through the Crisis. My reason for asking this favor is this: On the fourth Sunday in Feb. I tried to preach from Heb. 6: 23; and of course, to do the subject justice, I had to show the nature of the fall, the depravity of man, together with the mortality of the race, and the utter extinction of the finally impenitent; and on last Saturday I went to hear a Bro. W. of the Presbyterian church, who, evidently having heard of my discourse, took the above passage with which to answer it. His remarks were directed to me personally. He never once spoke of the context in the chapter as the epoch to which the 'then' referred, but said that 'when man fell, Christ engaged to redeem him, and from that time he took possession of the kingdom; and after he completes the work of redemption, he will deliver up the kingdom to God, which kingdom,' he said, 'is the church'; that 'the kingdom is now in existence, and all christians are in it.' He then turned to the soul of man, and said (looking me in the eye), 'It is immortal, it never dies, the Bible is full of testimony'; but he did not quote a single word in proof, and not once touched the resurrection, which I conceive to be the most prominent point in the text.

When he was done, I asked him for his proof, which he failed to produce. I then publicly told him that in defense of God's word I would challenge him to meet me, on the subject of immortality and the nature of the kingdom to be delivered up; but he did not take me up. I feel compelled to stand for the truth if the world rises up to condemn it.

One minister in Georgia, who heard me in an adjoining county, wrote me to beware of this 'new northern religion.' I wrote him that if there is such a religion in existence, it is one of the devil's institutions; that I knew nothing in my preaching that is new, that it is all as old as the Bible. Oh! I do want your prayers, for I feel that I need them to help me to pass through the fiery persecutions which I must necessarily bear in defending the truth. But while I live I intend by the help of God to preach his word, and fight the doctrine founded on the notions of men. I do wish I had 'Whitmore on Immortality.' I expect to have need of all the information I can get. Hoping to hear from you through the Crisis, I remain yours waiting for the kingdom."

BRIEF REPLY.

The "end" (telos) here referred to is not the end of Messiah's kingdom, for whether that kingdom is literal or spiritual in its nature, it will never end, for Gabriel affirms—"Of his kingdom there shall be no end" (telos). Luke 1: 32. So it is certain that the apostle does not mean the "end" of Christ's kingdom, as that will have "no end," whether set up in the past, or to be set up in the future. Paul here refers to the same "end" mentioned by Peter, when he said—"But the end of all things is at hand" (the telos). 1 Pet. 4: 7. The time when this "end" (telos) is to come is specified—"Then cometh the end." When? "Christ the first fruits; afterward they that are Christ's at his coming. "Then cometh the end." The end here referred to, comes when Christ comes—the end of temporal things—"when he shall have delivered up the kingdom to God even the Father; when he shall have put down all rule and all authority and power. For he must reign, till he hath put all enemies under his feet. The last enemy that shall be destroyed is death." No reference is here made to a celestial kingdom to which Christ sustains the relation of King, for if Christ were now a King in such a kingdom, it would involve the supposition that there is now unholy "rule, authority, and power" in it to be "put down," or to be abolished. But reference is simply made to a kingdom to which Christ sustains the relation of mediator—the kingdom that he went into the far country to receive for himself, which is now filled with enemies. Luke 19: 11–15.

As mediator he now stands warding off the stroke of wrath; but soon he will step aside, and thus "deliver up the kingdom to God," who, out of Christ, is a consuming fire, and then the stroke of vengeance will fall upon this kingdom of rebels; and God will then "put down" all unholy rule. Till then the Father will reign, for "the living may know that the Most High ruleth in the kingdom of men, and giveth it to whomsoever he will, and setteth up over it the basest of men" (Dan. 4: 17), and "he must reign till he hath put all enemies under," even death. Christ is not now reigning, but is "mediator." The Father said to him—"Sit thou on my right hand till I make thy foes thy footstool." Then Christ will begin his reign. "When the Son of man shall come in his glory, and all the holy angels with him, then shall he sit upon the throne of his glory." Matt. 25: 31. Then the reign of Christ will commence on earth renewed.

Although all power is given into the hands of Christ for the carrying out of the remedial scheme, he is no more King than Joseph when Pharaoh gave him all power requisite to prevent the people from being swept off by a famine. When the seventh trumpet sounds, Christ will begin his reign. Rev. 11: 15. His mediatorship ends before his kingship begins. W. S.

WHO MELCHISEDEC WAS.

BRO. SHELDON:—Will you please tell me through the Crisis who Melchisedec was?

W. BAKER.

I can only reiterate the statement of the Scriptures.

1. The only name given him in the Bible is "Melchisedec."

2. He lived on earth in the days of Abraham; was then "king of Salem," and "the priest of the most high God." Gen. 14: 18.

3. Though a priest, he was not of the Levitical order (which required the registration of father, mother, the time of birth, the time of death, and also a record of his descendants in the Levitical register,) but his "descent is not counted" (Heb. 7: 6), for which reason it is affirmed that he was, in the priestly record, "without father, without mother, without descent, having neither beginning of days, nor end of life." This priesthood was unrestricted, and unlimited.

4. Christ's priesthood was to be of the same order—"For it is evident that our Lord sprang out of Juda; of which tribe Moses spake nothing concerning priesthood." Heb. 7: 14. Thus both Melchisedec and Christ are "without father, mother, beginning of days, or end of life," in the record of the Levitical priesthood; or, as Wakefield renders the text—"Of whose father, mother, pedigree, birth, and death we have no account." But as men they were both born and died; Jesus had a mother, and Jesus died; so did Melchisedec. As priests they were without father or mother in priestly record, for that must contain the name of the mother as well as the father, and also the birth and death of each priest; but Melchisedec and Christ belonged to another priesthood—Christ being Melchisedec's successor in the priesthood—the Levitical priesthood having intervened between the two. CAIN'S WIFE.

It is often affirmed that Cain found a wife in the land of Nod; and after this assumption, the question is propounded—What race of people lived in the land of Nod, with whom Cain intermarried? We remark, (1) it is not said that Cain obtained his wife in the land of Nod, nor is such a thought even hinted at; and (2) if such a statement had been made, it would only have involved the thought that some of his own relatives had emigrated to that land before he did. It is only said—"Cain . . . . dwelt in the land of Nod, on the east of Eden. And Cain knew his wife; and she conceived, and bare Enoch." Gen. 4: 16, 17. When I state that a married man moved to Iowa, it is understood that he took his wife with him, even though, in a brief record, I omit the statement of all the particulars attending the journey; and if I subsequently assert that his first child was born in Iowa, it would by no means prove that he found his wife there. This is all we find stated in the case of Cain.

Cain moved to the land of Nod, and there a son was born to him. Cain might have been married years before his removal to Nod, and probably was. It is understood that when a married man moves, that he takes his wife with him, whether the fact is stated in recording the removal, or not. There is nothing more inconsistent in supposing that Cain married a relative, than in the case of his brothers, even if that marriage took place after he went down to Nod, which is nowhere affirmed. CONGRATULATION AT FUNERALS.

Recently, upon a funeral occasion, a Wisconsin clergyman told the bereaved mourners that he could not mourn with them, but he congratulated them on the death of their friend. That was certainly a reasonable position to take, while holding the popular view of death. If death really takes the man proper into a heavenly world, and leaves only the shell in which the man was secreted, why mourn because the man has left the shell for a heavenly world? Why mourn if he is still alive and in an improved condition? Why not congratulate his friends on his safe removal to a better home?

But if death is an enemy, we cannot congratulate bereaved mourners with the assurance that an enemy has triumphed over their friend. Nor will an enemy transport his captives to a celestial realm of felicity. The time of congratulation will be when our friends escape from the enemy's prison-house, shouting, "O death! where is thy sting? O grave! where is thy victory?" Then death-divided friends will meet, and joyfully congratulate each other on their escape from death and mortality, to enjoy eternal life in a sinless and deathless home. W. S.

HOLDING ON TO THE TRUTH.

In a letter from a Baptist minister in the South, who has recently embraced the whole truth, I have this cheering item—"I told my church that I expected to preach the doctrine of man's mortality, the destruction of the wicked, together with the coming of a literal kingdom, a literal King, and all literal subjects; but notwithstanding, they have re-elected me as pastor for this year."

Good! God bless this brother in his effort to let the light shine in the South. Being personally acquainted with him, I doubt not he will do his duty faithfully. Of course, being one of the early pioneers for the truth in that country, he will incur opposition on every hand, but this will only make him bolder in the Master's cause. God will reward him for his courage in holding up the truth of heaven in opposition to the fables of men. Nor will his efforts be in vain. Others through his influence will take a stand for the truth, and let their light shine. Nor is this the only minister who will hold up the truth in the South. He will soon have a noble band of helpers. W. S.

VOTING.

A brother from Ohio writes—"Bro. Sheldon:—I will feel thankful to you if you will please give me some scriptural proof that christians should not vote. I believe our Advent brethren hold that it is wrong to do so, but I have never seen any reason given."

I am not of the opinion that the mere act of voting is a sin; but to me it seems an unnecessary intermeddling with the affairs of Cæsar's household, often placing us in great danger of imbibing the spirit of this world. Our political ambition should all be for the reign of "another King" on David's throne; and when that ambition fully absorbs the mind, we shall care less about helping contending politicians gain their victories. It is often said that there is a choice between the candidates, and we ought to help get the best men into power till the King of glory comes. But when we act upon this pretext, we find some of our brethren voting on this side, and some on that side; so it leaves the matter about where it would have been if we had not meddled with it. Then what good have we done in fouling our hands and hearts with the elements of strife? Even if we could all agree to vote on one side as a church (which would not be the case), we are not strong enough to turn the scale either way. It is possible to cast a vote without political litigation or controversy; but in ninety-nine cases out of one hundred, if we care enough about the matter to vote, we care enough to defend our cause, and thus drink in the spirit of the world. Nor should we make tools of ourselves by voting to please some politician. W. S.

THE TRACT FUND.

The Advent Christian Publication Society, at a meeting on Springfield Camp-ground, August 23d, 1871, voted to raise Two Thousand Dollars for the free distribution of Tracts the ensuing year; and they invite the help and co-operation of all lovers of the Lord and of his truth, in the furtherance of the good cause. The times are ominous of coming events, and admonish us to diligence in the Master's work. The Lord is at the door, and what we do must be done quickly. Let the contributions be prompt, hearty, and liberal. The Lord will reward the liberal giver.

VALLEJO, CALIFORNIA.

Yesterday (March 24th) was a high day to the Advent Christian church in this city. Their commodious, convenient, and well-built chapel, finished, save plastering, which will be done as soon as the rains are over, was dedicated to the Lord by appropriate services. Prayer by Eld. D. D. Reed. Reading of the Scriptures by Eld. D. C. Abbott. Sermon by Eld. O. R. Fassett. This Advent Christian chapel Eld. Reed calls "the first lighthouse on the coast."

I have had the privilege of preaching the dedication sermon of the first A. C. Chapels in Wisconsin, Minnesota, and now in California, and on this coast. The lot on which the house is built is the munificent gift of Gen. Frisbie, of San Francisco, a large landholder in this city, and not an Adventist. Without this generous donation we could not have built at this time. The house was erected under the superintendence of Bro. David West and A. J. Young, who, together with other brethren, and some citizens who volunteered their services, gave in their time and labor free of charge. Near seven hundred dollars were pledged on the day of dedication to free the chapel of all debt, and finish it. The church here is in earnest.

In the afternoon I baptized four candidates, the Baptist clergyman of the city, Rev. Mr. Hatch, offering a fervent prayer by the water side. And in the evening six members were received into the church, receiving the right hand of fellowship.

Eld. Reed and myself, with our wives, intend holding meetings each evening through the week. This evening we ordain Bro. David Abbott, of Saratoga, Cal., to the work of the ministry, who is a man of ability, influence, and piety, and who will be a noble help to our cause in this State. On Thursday evening next, we ordain another brother to the work, Bro. Norton, of Santa Clara, who goes direct to Oregon, furnished with means for travel, and with tracts and books, by Bro. and Sister Reed, to distribute in that new field. They send him before them to that State, and intend soon to follow. Bro. Reed wishes me to accompany them.

Elder Grant is expected here next week by appointment. O. R. FASSETT.

MEMORY OF THE DEAD.

L. M. STODDARD.

I have just finished reading Bro. Boutell's thoughts concerning those precious ones who have "fallen asleep in Conn.," and it called to my mind the names of many in this (N. Y.) State,—where God has called me to labor, and where I labored nearly thirty years ago when a mere child,—who have fallen in death; and I thought it might not be amiss to speak of them. I hardly recall a place in western New York, where I do not find the fruits of the labors of dear Bro. T. F. Barry and E. R. Pinney, who lie in the silent grave. So much did I respect their memory, that two of my children bear their names.

Well do I remember the words of Bro. Barry when the cold dew of death was upon his brow, and while looking at his hands, exclaimed—

"These hands, that have immersed beneath the yielding wave
So many hundreds, soon must moulder in the grave."

And it is no wonder he thought of the fact, for in the city of Rochester alone, I am told, he baptized more than one thousand. Then the glistening countenance he wore when he preached with mighty power the speedy coming of Christ, the resurrection and change of the saints, and with glowing pathos and burning eloquence, with uplifted hands, speaking of meeting the Lord in mid air, till his hands and eyes seemed fixed like Stephen of old for some minutes, while the whole congregation were awed by the power of God, and the cry arose—"What shall we do to be saved?"

And what shall I say of Bro. Pinney? Suffering with a cancer upon his face for years, he raised his trumpet tongue to send forth the notes of warning to a guilty world; and his "works do follow him." Then when that dire cancer had accomplished its work, even to eating into the jugular vein, he fell "asleep in Jesus."

"Asleep in Jesus, blessed sleep,
From which none ever wake to weep."

Then I remember the name of Bro. Charles Fitch, and can say—

"Peaceful be thy silent slumber!"

Time fails me to speak of Bro. E. Galusha of this city, Bro. Joseph Marsh of Rochester, and Bro. Damon Johnson of Worcester, who labored much in this region, and in the Genesee Valley, where I spent a few days, at Springwater, last week. Many a one will arise from this State to deck the crowns of those noble men as stars forever in the kingdom of God.

Then the form of that noble pioneer in the cause of truth—Wm. Miller, of Low Hampton in this State; and dear Bro. C. B. Turner, whose works are known in all the churches.

I do not blame the fathers and mothers and relatives for strewing the graves of loved ones with flowers once a year, to perpetuate the memory of their noble deeds in sustaining the banner of stars and stripes; but our dead are held in remembrance of Him who has said—"Precious in the sight of the Lord is the death of his saints." And though no stone may mark their resting-place, the angels will be sent to gather them in the great Coronation day, when immortal crowns will be given them, enriched with the precious gems gathered by their untiring efforts, which shall perpetuate the memory of their faithfulness and love throughout the eternal age.

A SAD OCCURRENCE.—At Machiasport, Me., March 8th, at about two o'clock A. M., Capt. Joseph Bryant's house was discovered to be on fire, and the alarm was immediately given; when it proved too late to rescue the inmates from the devouring flames. Capt. Joseph Bryant, aged seventy-four, and his wife, Susan M. Bryant, aged seventy-one, also their two granddaughters, Nellie F. Bryant, aged fifteen, and Susie I. Flinn, aged thirteen, were the victims of this sad accident. These aged parents leave four children to mourn their loss.

The sad news was communicated to a daughter in Boston, who was unable to see the burned remains of those dear ones. Their son Joseph is far away upon the mighty waters. He has not heard the distressing news, and when he shall, may the sanctifying balm of the grace of God be applied to the wounded heart, and he be assisted to seek a permanent home and those abiding joys in the kingdom of God.

The two daughters, Srs. Emily Johnson and Mandy Flinn, who lived near by, were nearly paralyzed with sorrow as they gazed on the remains of their home, and thought of the loved ones that sleep in death. Susie was the only daughter of Levi and Mandy Flinn. This beloved daughter had been absent from home but a few days, visiting with her grandparents and with Nellie. Her last evening was spent with the Advent church, in their neat little chapel. Nellie's and Susie's voices were heard in the social praises that evening for the last time. It was about four weeks before this that I baptized Nellie and six other obedient and happy ones in that place, to show their faith in their once crucified and buried, but now risen Lord, by being buried with him by baptism and raised in the likeness of his resurrection.

The writer was called to speak to the mourners, and tried to comfort them with the words of Inspiration as they buried those loved ones out of their sight, to wait the time when "He will swallow up death in victory, and the Lord God will wipe away tears from off all faces, and the rebuke of his people shall he take away from off all the earth; for the Lord hath spoken it." Isa. 25: 8.

M. W. CORLISS.

BRO. J. COUCH writes of the meetings in Chelsea since the late Conference—"God is gloriously reviving his work in Chelsea. Sinners are penitently seeking the Savior, and backsliders are returning to their first love. Under these circumstances I esteem it to be my duty to labor at home at present, and do therefore withdraw my appointments for New Haven, Ct., and Lawrence, Mass."

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS.—In addition to what has been already acknowledged by Sr. Mary I. Herron, we have received for her the following sums, which the kind donors may rest assured will be so placed, in accordance with her wishes, that in her helpless condition she will receive the benefit of them from time to time, as her necessities require:—

GEO. T. ADAMS.

Extracts from Letters.

BRO. J. G. HOOK writes from Concord:—"The work of God is moving onward in this city. About one hundred and fifty have been converted and reclaimed. Many hundreds are under conviction, and it is acknowledged by all to be the work of God. All classes are being brought to a saving knowledge of the truth, forsaking sin and error, and making ready for the coming of our Lord. Sixty-six have been baptized."

BRO. J. L. CHUTE writes:—"Our protracted meeting in South Rochester has proved a blessing to the people. The church has been quickened and blessed, backsliders reclaimed, and some have been converted. Praise the Lord forever. May the blessed work go on, until prejudice shall give way, and the light shine more fully than ever."

BRO. J. L. BURINGER writes:—"Our views relative to the nature of man and the unconscious state of the dead have not been preached in this city (Dayton, O.) very much, there being but very few here holding those views. As a natural consequence, whenever the immortality of the soul is denied, we meet with a great deal of opposition. I believe if you or some brother would come out this way and give a few lectures, it would be the means of awakening the people from their slumbers. The only trouble would be to get them interested enough to turn out to hear the truth.

I attended a M. E. church on last Sabbath, and the pastor took occasion to denounce 'soul-sleepers' and their doctrine as unscriptural. I felt it my duty to try and convince the brother by scriptural references that we did not go outside of the Bible for our belief, but held closely to it. I presented our proof, or part of it, for the non-immortality of the soul, the state of the dead, and the time when the reward will be given. I am not as well posted as I would like to be. I have to depend on the Bible and the Crisis for my religious education. I prize the Crisis above all other papers, for it always is instructive. I cannot understand prophecy relative to the second coming of Christ, but am trying to live so that, whether he comes in 1873, or 1875, or at any moment, he will find me ready. Pray for me."

BRO. A. N. SEYMOUR writes:—On the 23d of March we were called to attend the funerals of Bro. Dutton, and of Sr. Weaver, the wife of Dr. L. Weaver, both of Hesperia, Mich. Bro. Dutton's funeral services were attended in the former part of the day, and Sr. Weaver's in the afternoon. Bro. Scott, of Hesperia, officiated in the morning, and myself in the afternoon.

One year ago last October Sister Weaver, with ten others, gave her heart to God, and was baptized, and my last work in Hesperia at that time was to bury her in the liquid grave in hope of a blissful immortality beyond the scenes of mortality and death. Sr. W. leaves one child, a sweet little girl, three years old.

We had but little acquaintance with Bro. Dutton, but we learn he was a good man. The church in Hesperia have lost two worthy members, over whom they mourn, but not without hope. Elders Grundy, Hopkins, and Burtenshaw, who love and preach the present truth, were present to aid in the exercises. On such an occasion as this, if there is anything satisfactory, consoling, and soul-cheering, it is the sure hope of speedy deliverance. God bless and sustain all mourning friends."

BRO. WM. SHEPHERD writes:—"Enclosed you will find $2 for Sr. Herron's more immediate relief. I think that my sympathies run out toward this afflicted sister, being prostrated myself with the same complaint, suffering for the last thirty-six hours the most excruciating pain. But notwithstanding, I could not forbear to attend to this matter at once.

Brethren, pray for me, that God will raise me up, and that this sickness may not be unto death."

BRO. J. P. LITTLEFIELD writes:—"Poor in this world's goods, yet knowing our heavenly Father cares for all his children, we have secured a hall at some expense for the worship of God in this place. Now who will come and help the faithful few looking for that 'blessed hope'? Address John P. Littlefield, Wells, Maine."

Summary of News.

FOREIGN.

Cable News.

GREAT BRITAIN.

THE AMERICA "CASE."

LONDON, April 3. The Globe calls attention to a rumor of an extraordinary character which has obtained currency in London, that the case of the American Government before the Geneva Tribunal of Arbitration estimates the losses of citizens of the United States by the capture and destruction of American ships and cargoes by Confederate cruisers built or fitted out in English waters, at $14,000,000 and the expense of the U. States Government in pursuing said privateers at $200,000,000. The Globe comments with some severity upon this statement, and expresses the hope that Mr. Gladstone will be speedily called upon in Parliament for an explanation as to its truth or falsity.

THE DOMINION'S RELATION TO THE MOTHER COUNTRY.

The Echo contains an article upon the subject of the union of Canada with Great Britain, in which it hints strongly that the connection between the two countries is merely artificial, and intimates that Lord Dufferin is possibly the last Viceroy of the Dominion.

LONDON, April 7. The Queen has returned, arriving this morning, and the rumor is again revived that her visit to the continent was one of considerable political significance, and that the result is likely to be seen in the early arrangement of new relations between this country, Germany and Italy. This report has ground for truth, in the fact that the Queen, while at Baden, is known to have had a conference with the Prince Imperial of Germany. This fact, added to that of the recent rumored visit of a government messenger from Berlin to Rome, furnishes a theme for much discussion in diplomatic circles.

FRANCE.

A BONAPARTIST MOVEMENT.

A great Bonapartist reaction is now in progress throughout France. It is believed that a political crisis is at hand. During the past few months the influx of Bonapartist leaders has been unusually large, and their agents have been industriously canvassing the various districts with immense success. The reaction has been greatly aided by the character of the evidence adduced in the suit against the Figaro which ended yesterday. The declaration of Marshal McMahon that the initial and considerable portion of the subsequent movements of the army during the late disastrous war with Germany were taken under his counsel and suggestion, thus clearing the ex-Emperor Napoleon of much of the responsibility for the ruin of France, which had been almost universally attributed to him, has been a powerful and most effective argument in the hands of the Imperialists, and has undoubtedly contributed largely to the success of the present movement. It is claimed by the friends of the empire that the army is almost a unit in favor of a return to imperial rule.

A SPEECH BY DISRAELI IN SUPPORT OF MONARCHY.

The Right Hon. Benjamin Disraeli, who is now on a visit to Manchester, addressed an immense Conservative meeting in Free Trade Hall in that city this evening. Disraeli began by saying that we have assembled here to proclaim our resolution to uphold the constitution of the kingdom. We have come together to talk of a programme for future action, which will not despoil churches nor plunder landlords, but to further the interests of the great body of the people. He then went on to make an earnest defence of monarchy. To the throne, he said, must be ascribed the blessings which Englishmen enjoy. The monarchy was an institution around which, in peril and adversity, the people can rally. The English monarchy cost less than that of any other nation. The expense of the sovereignty of the United States, which embraced Congress and State Legislatures as well as the Executive, was between £700,000 and £800,000 sterling—double the total of the English civil list. He closed with a vindication of the aristocracy, and a defence of the House of Lords as an essential element of the Government.

SPAIN.

GIBRALTAR.

MADRID, April 3. The desire that so frequently finds expression here, for the government of Spain to obtain possession of the fortress of Gibraltar, has finally brought about some degree of concerted action, and the expectation is freely expressed that Great Britain will be induced to give up her control of this important stronghold. The municipal authorities of the towns in the province of Badajos, together with the authorities of a number of towns and other provinces, have entered into a coalition of measures which it is hoped will lead to the restitution of Gibraltar to Spain.

PORTUGAL.

New Cable.

LISBON, April 3. It is proposed to lay an ocean cable from this city to Brazil, by way of the Madeira and Cape Verde Islands. This project has been under consideration for some time, and has now assumed a definite form, with every prospect of being pushed forward rapidly, so that at an early day Europe will be in direct communication with South America. A convention has been signed by the Maintenance and Construction Company of Great Britain and the government of Portugal, for laying the cable.

SYRIA.

DESTRUCTION OF THE CITY OF ANTIOCH BY AN EARTHQUAKE—FIFTEEN HUNDRED PEOPLE KILLED.

LONDON, Apr. 7. News received from Syria gives the details of a most fearful earthquake which occurred in that country on the 3d instant. The ancient city of Antioch was entirely destroyed, only the shaken and shapeless remains of some of the buildings remaining standing. The news of this terrible calamity is accompanied by the details of an awful record of loss of life, more than fifteen hundred souls being struck down in death in an instant, while as many more received fatal injuries from the falling buildings, and thousands of others are suffering from wounds and bruises, while all who survive the terrible fate of the dead are left homeless. The entire city is one mass of ruins, scarcely a building remaining recognizable among the huge piles of fragments and debris. For several hours previous to the convulsion, ominous sounds were heard which many of the people supposed to be the warnings of an approaching disaster; and the consequence was that several hundred people left the city, and fled to a place of safety from the calamity which soon came upon their less fortunate friends and neighbors. Internal convulsions of a more or less powerful character were observed throughout the day of the 3d inst.; but, with the exception of those mentioned above, who sought safety outside the city, the inhabitants, though somewhat alarmed, believed that no serious consequences would follow, and remained to meet their doom. The earthquake extended over other sections of the kingdom, but no reports of such disastrous results as those experienced at Antioch are received.

DOMESTIC.

CALIFORNIA.

San Francisco, April 4. Advices from Lone Pine to Friday last state that the earthquake shocks still continue, although with less violence. Four more deaths of injured parties are reported. Owens Lake has risen four feet, and Owens river shrunken to one-half its usual size. A creek is running where dry land was formerly. While one family of five were being buried, a shock filled the graves with earth and sunk the ground on which the burying party were standing four feet. In Santiago county springs which were wholly or partially dried by the earthquake fifteen years since, have broken out afresh.

The Government buildings at Camp Independence were entirely destroyed by the earthquake.

THE EARTHQUAKE IN CALIFORNIA, INYO COUNTY.

The shocks were accompanied with a great rumbling, and the air was filled with great clouds of dust—indeed such quantities of dust filled the air that a cloud was formed, which was seen by persons residing fifteen or twenty miles to the northward. In places on the stage road there were encountered rocks as large as two-story houses, which had rolled down from the mountains. From Independence to Big Pine, a distance of forty-five miles, there is not a square yard of ground that does not show cracks. Near Big Pine they found a crevice across the road sixty feet wide, and six feet deep. Off the road, but plain in sight, this crevice was two hundred feet wide and over twenty feet deep, and it could be traced a long distance, running north and south, parallel with the Sierra Nevada mountains.

AWFUL SCENE AT VISALIA.

Here eye witnesses describe the scene at the time of the shock as something awful in its inconceivable grandeur. A noise like the guns of fifty batteries of artillery fired simultaneously beneath the place; the ground for miles around trembling violently; houses shaking violently an instant, and the next lying in ruins; people, but a moment before in dreamland, shrieking in terror as they endeavored to extricate themselves from the mountainous heaps of debris; rocks and trees hurled from the sides of the neighboring hills and crashing down the slopes; houses, rocks, trees, horses, cattle and human beings thrown into the crevasse, which suddenly opened as the solid earth was rent asunder—all made the scene indescribable.

A family of seven persons on the outskirts of Visalia who were sound asleep were sunk, house and all, some two or three feet below the surface of the ground. All were rescued, however, alive, except a baby, which was burned to death by coming in contact with a stove. A mother was nursing a sick child, a girl of fourteen or fifteen, who had been taken the day before with chills and fever. After the shock neither could be found, the ruins of the house itself even being swallowed up in the enormous fissure which had been made in the earth.

THE VOLCANO OF COLIMA IN FULL ERUPTION.

The volcano of Colima, Mexico, which for the past two years has been showing signs of activity, is now in full eruption, throwing out clouds of ashes, which fall over a large section of the country, and the smoke is so dense as to obscure the sun. The spectacle is described as one of awful grandeur.

In Brief.

—— Forty thousand pounds of California butter have been shipped to New York.——Grading on the Northern Pacific Railroad has gone on all winter in Dakota, and is now finished to a point seventy miles west of the Minnesota line.——One day last week the women of the Methodist church in St. Louis held a mass meeting to consider plans for memorializing the General Conference of the Methodist Church to permit the ordination of women as ministers. A committee was appointed to draft such a memorial.——The fortune of A. T. Stewart of New York, is estimated at between fifty and sixty millions.——Whale ships are gradually abandoning the business. In the last three years one hundred have given up.——More than three thousand persons were converted from Catholicism to the Greek Church, in Russia, during 1870.——Every column of a newspaper contains from ten to twenty thousand distinct pieces of type. The displacement of a single one makes an error. Is it strange that errors occur?——Three hundred million letters yearly pass through the post-offices of the world.——Bananas are raised in the botanical gardens at Washington city.——A child has been born at Fort Kent, Maine, having seven fingers on each hands.——The wheat crop of North Georgia is said to be immense.——There are undoubtedly over 2,000,000 Germans distributed in the several States in the Union.——Quebec, Canada, has been visited this winter by black fever, as it is called, and which has proved very fatal to young children.——A female surgeon in Trieste has performed in the City Hospital one hundred and fifty successful and remarkable operations.——Astor, of New York city, has an income of over $600 per hour.——Buddhists consider the white elephant sacred. When his Siamese Majesty dies his soul enters one of these beasts; therefore no reigning monarch ever rides one. It would be impolite to mount the back of one of his royal predecessors.

Notices.

THE Alton Bay Campmeeting Committee will meet at Alton Bay, on the camp-ground, April 23d.

J. COUCH.

MASS. CONFERENCE.—Protracted meeting will commence in the school-house at North Sharon, Mass., Sunday, April 14th, and continue through the week, and over the following Sunday. Meetings afternoons and evenings, daily.

L. BOUTELL.
E. MORRILL.

PURSUANT to a vote of the Conn. A. C. Quar. Conference, at its last session, notice is hereby given that its next session will be held in Southington, to commence Wednesday evening, April 17th, and continue over the Sunday following. As most of the business of the conference is usually done on Thursday and Friday, it is necessary for all who wish to participate therein, to be on hand early. Let all the friends of peace, love and unity in the churches be represented at the coming meeting. The battle between truth and error, between the friends and foes of Christ, doth already begin to "wax hot." Let us not in any wise fight one another, but "gird on the whole armor," and give battle to our common foe.

L. S. LUDINGTON, Secretary.

AT the Hoosick Valley (N. Y.) Conference of last Oct., it was unanimously voted that a tent be procured for the purpose of holding meetings within the limits of that conference during the coming warm season. A committee was chosen for the purpose of raising funds and procuring the tent. All the necessary funds must be obtained on or before our next quarterly conference at Sandy Hill, N. Y., April 18th. The Lord says by their fruits his people shall be known. Now can we show three hundred and fifty dollars worth of love for poor perishing sinners by raising or pledging that amount before the close of that conference? Let each church see what they can raise or pledge to send by their delegates, or if they fail to send delegates, send by letter to my address, Sandy Hill, N. Y., before that time. We want the tent in the missionary field by the first of June. Dear christian friends of Jesus and his blessed truth, will you respond to this call at once?

H. K. FLAGG, for Committee.

THERE are two families living on the Springfield camp-ground, and it has become necessary to expend some $75 to make two houses, Sr. Holden's and Bro. Sharp's, comfortable, with chimneys, and an addition to Bro. Sharp's house. Now we feel safe from thieves breaking in hereafter, and carrying off what they pleased, leaving the houses there open. I have paid a part of the expense, and owe some $60. I want those having property there to help me pay it. Bro. Sharp has paid $15, besides giving the use of his house. What the friends see fit to send, please do so as soon as you can, either in pledges or in cash, as it must be paid soon. Direct to me at Chicopee Falls, Mass.

HIRAM MUNGER.

The "Banner" and the "Crisis."

We will send the Banner six months free to new subscribers to the Crisis, and to old subscribers mentioning this offer when remitting for 1872; but we make one condition; viz., that before the close of the six months, they must either notify us to discontinue, or remit for the future as soon as convenient.

We expect hereafter to present a large, fine engraving in every number of the Bible Banner, illustrating and adding interest to Bible truth, making the offer of "One Year Free" very acceptable to many ministers of the gospel, whose attention would not otherwise be arrested. The series of engravings has already begun to appear. Send ten cents for three sample numbers. Address H. A. KING, 14 Murray Street, New York.

The World's Crisis and the Bible Banner one year, with free book, for $2.75, or without book, for $2.50. Address GEO. T. ADAMS, 160 Hanover Street, Boston, Mass.

The "Bible Banner" Free.

We desire to call the attention of the readers of the Crisis to our offer in the Bible Banner, to send it One Year Free to ministers of the gospel of any denomination, who send us their address, or otherwise signify their desire to receive it. We ask the readers of the Crisis to aid us in getting this offer before such ministers as they know to be devoted men of God, and who would be likely to accept the offer, and be benefitted thereby. Do not urgently press any one to accept, for we have not the means to send the paper free to a great many; but we trust the Lord will provide enough to send it where it should go, to prepare the way for weekly papers, and stir up the watchmen to sound the alarm to a guilty world. A copy of the Banner from one with whom the minister is acquainted, is worth a dozen copies sent from the office of publication. Address H. A. KING, 14 Murray Street, New York.

NORWEGIAN TRACTS.—Who will help raise a fund for publishing one or more good tracts on the subject of Jesus' soon coming, and attendant events, in the Norwegian language? There are many now, and will be more of this class of men in our country. Some of them have been converted to Christ, and the fact of his soon coming and kingdom. While West last season, several believing Norwegians expressed a wish for tracts in their language, and promised to aid in publishing them. They want such tracts to put into the hands of their countrymen who cannot read English, when they arrive in this country, and to send home to friends in Norway. Shall we extend our mission to them in this form? I will write a tract and raise $25, to begin the work, and when $100 are raised, I will see that one good tract is put in Norwegian type and circulated free. Who will add as much more, or any other sum? Brethren, Jesus is coming. Shall we tell it in other tongues? Those interested may send their contributions to my address, Yarmouth, Me., or to the Crisis Office. All will be acknowledged.

I. C. WELLCOME.

To the Brethren.

I am engaged in preparing a work designed especially for the ministry, on the importance and necessity of preaching the second coming of Christ as an event nigh at hand. My object is, in co-operation with the brethren, to have a copy placed in the hands of every minister in the United States. All can see the importance of such an enterprise. If one out of five hundred could be induced to give the trumpet a certain sound, it would pay for the labor and outlay. Of course it will not be expected that those for whom the work is designed will purchase it; this will be the work of our brethren all over the country, to see that a copy is placed in the hands of every preacher of the gospel. We propose, then, to request pledges and subscriptions from the brethren in order to secure its publication; the amount subscribed to be repaid in books, if required. The nature of the work may be gleaned from the following outlines:—

The Christian Minister a Watchman—The Duties of a Watchman—A Christian Watchman—Watchman, What of the Night?—Time of the End—Signs of the Times—Fulfillment of Prophecy—Prophecy in relation to the first Advent—Prophecy in relation to the second Advent—Signs of the second Advent—Celestial, Terrestial, Moral, National—The Papacy—Spiritualism—Time—Tarrying Time,—etc., etc., etc.

I would also state that the work will be useful to all for a reference, as it will be largely interspersed with Scripture quotations. Any who may feel disposed to aid in this enterprise may address Brn. Grant, or Adams, Crisis Office, Bro. Himes, Times Office, Chicago, Ills., or myself, at Arena, Iowa Co., Wis.

GEO. THOMSON.

THE second quarterly session of the Hoosick Valley Conference will be held at Sandy Hill, N. Y., commencing April 18th, 1872; and hold over the following Sabbath. Let there be a general rally of the friends of Jesus and his kingdom in all this region of country to this feast. Make this meeting a subject of earnest prayer, that God may greatly bless this gathering of his people. And first, consecrate thyself to God—have all upon the altar before you come; and then come filled with the Spirit, prepared to work for God. Come to admonish the saint and warn the sinner. Come in the name of our soon coming King to make one more charge upon the enemy's host previous to its being announced from the eternal throne, "It is done." Provisions will be made for all who come.

A. W. SIBLEY, President.
A. P. BUMP, Secretary.

OHIO CONFERENCE.—The A. C. Church of Ohio will hold its semi-annual conference at Fairfield, Huron Co., Ohio, commencing Thursday, April 18th, continuing over Sunday. We cordially invite all the churches and organizations of the State to send delegates to this meeting. We hope all that love the appearing of Jesus will feel interested, and be present. We do not wish to divide, but to become all the more united. Conveyance from Greenwich Station on the C. C. C. and I. R. R. will be in attendance.

H. F. JEFFERSON, Sec.

"CHURCH FAIRS."—I have a quantity of tracts on this subject, written partly as a satire, partly as argument, with plenty of Scripture on the point, which I wish to dispose of, and get back the cost of publication. There are eight octavo pages, nonpareil type, containing about the matter of 32 pp. ordinary size tract page; and from the success which has attended their distribution heretofore, I think no one need fear that a small sum invested here will be wasted, either as to the amount of reading matter furnished, or the benefits to be derived from their perusal. Price, postpaid, 25 cents per dozen; $1.50 per one hundred. By express, $8.00 per one thousand.

Address E. P. WOODWARD, Maplewood, Mass.

THOSE wishing to preach at Portsmouth, N. H., will please correspond with either of the following brethren:—T. J. Spinney, S. W. Hoyt, C. H. Tucker.

ELD. JOHN COUCH is pastor of the Second Advent Church in Chelsea, Mass., and all communications relative to supplying the desk must be directed to him hereafter.

NEW TRACT.

We have just received a new tract of 24 pages, entitled, "The Coming Reign of Terror, or the Commune," by W. N. Pile. The writer shows that the "Reign of Terror" of 1792 was produced by the workings of Socialism, Spiritualism, Infidelity, Free-Love, and the Commune; and then reasons that as these elements are now at work everywhere, they must produce the same results. The tract treats of the living issues of the present, reveals the awful condition of society, and shows that we are on the verge of "the battle of that great day of God Almighty."

BRINGING THE SHEAVES.

"He who, bearing precious seed, in sadness
Goeth weeping forth as one who grieves;
Doubtless shall return again in gladness,
Bringing with him store of golden sheaves!"

Thus the grandest of Judea's sages
Lifted up his voice in years gone by,
And to-day from out the buried ages
Comes to me afresh this hopeful cry.

For with me it is as yet the seed-time;
I must toil until my field is sown;
Watching, working on through rain and tempest,
Waiting till the waving grain be grown!

Often times I gaze with bitter weeping
On my weary waste of fallow field;
Others 'round me golden grain are reaping,
But I know not what my land may yield.

Will the ripened grain be safely garnered?
Or will tempests beat it to the earth?
Or will tares and thistles, many-numbered,
Make the harvest of but little worth?

Grant, O Father, that despite this sadness—
Though to-day I sow in bitter tears—
I may homeward bear my sheaves in gladness,
When the golden harvest-time appears!

L. R. LOCKWOOD.

EDITOR OF CRISIS:—Although I have been brought up "after the straitest sect of our religion," a Presbyterian, and have been twenty years in that ministry in my native State, New York, yet I thank God I have never been fettered by sectarianism, but have ever acted on the principle to "prove all things, and hold fast that which is good."

I have seen several numbers of the Crisis, and much that I approve. The two central ideas of Adventism I indorse; although the process by which I arrive at these conclusions is probably very different from the views of many Adventists. I admit, for instance, that man has a spiritual nature, properly called "the soul," which is the basis of personal identity, and is the germ of the resurrection. But I do most emphatically deny the inherent immortality of the soul, and fearlessly challenge the world to prove it. It is the gospel, not heathen moralists, that brings "life and immortality to light." Saints, in the resurrection, will be made immortal, soul and body; for they have "eaten of the tree of life, and will live forever." But the wicked will be "punished with everlasting destruction."

And as to the Second Advent, though I am by no means sanguine that "the day and the hour" can be ascertained with perfect accuracy, yet there are unmistakable "signs" at the present day that the time is near at hand, and that "the Judge standeth at the door." And, though I am not a believer in "the one idea" system, nor in favor of "hobbies," either in Church or State, but believe that "the scribe well instructed" should bring forth from the rich "treasury" of Inspiration "things new and old," and should range over "the whole counsel of God"; yet I believe, at the present day, great prominence should be given to these two ideas—the destruction of the wicked, and the near approach of the glorified Savior. For these truths have been, for years and for centuries, in a great measure, overlooked. And it seems to me, that if "the second advent" had that prominence in the preaching of ministers and in the aspirations of christians that it had in the apostolic age, much would be accomplished for the spread of Christianity. For I cannot conceive of any subject more calculated to rouse the impenitent and to waken up the energies of christians, than the announcement that the time is rapidly approaching when we shall see when the Son of God shall "be revealed from heaven in flaming fire," the trumpet sounding, graves opening, the dead rising, and a congregated universe assembling around "the great white throne." O what was Sinai, with all its terrors—terrors so great that "even Moses did exceedingly fear and quake"—in comparison with the glorious and awful scene that will then be exhibited!

"Our Lord in grandeur, and our world on fire";

But the grand topic of this communication, on which I intended to write when I took my pen, is that mentioned in the caption—"Sanctification." But my feelings on the other subjects have controlled my pen to that extent that I shall have but little room left. But the truth in reference to sanctification is of vast importance, in order to a full preparation for the fearful period to which we have alluded. Nothing but truth will endure the fiery ordeal of the last day. Whilst the cold formalist, the proud Pharisee, and the fiery fanatic will be disappointed, and frowned from the presence of the Judge, the words of welcome will be addressed to the humble and benevolent disciples, who, without any ostentation or arrogant pretensions, have been engaged in doing good to their fellow men. And in order to have on "the wedding garment" when "the Bridegroom" comes, it is necessary to know what it is, and how it is to be obtained.

My sentiments coincide with the views of one of your correspondents in a recent number of the Crisis, when he says that, among those who profess sanctification, are some who have mistaken conviction for conversion; yet eventually experienced a genuine change of heart, and called it sanctification; and that there are others who have been "deceived by the pride of their hearts," so as not to see their true character, and therefore imagined themselves "perfect." I recollect reading, years ago, a series of essays in Zion's Herald, in which the writer gives his experience of "sanctification." The feelings which he describes as having occurred at this time, I believe to be evangelical and right; and the difference between us is that he thought himself a christian before that change occurred, and I do not. No man, in my estimation, is a christian, unless self is dethroned, and the love of Christ is his ruling principle; unless his governing motive is changed; unless his great ultimate object in life is to glorify God, and do good to his fellow men; unless he "lives not to himself, but to Him that died for him, and rose again." And self-denial is not self-mortification; is not to forego some present enjoyments for the sake of his own best interest in the future; but it is the crucifixion of self; it is an unconditional surrender—giving all up into the hands of God, to be disposed of for time and eternity as God shall please; anxious supremely to work in the vineyard of God, in his appropriate sphere; and having full confidence that "the Lord of the harvest" will take care of his servants, even though they cast all their own care upon him, and feel no distressing anxiety about themselves. This is a change of heart; this is being "created anew in Christ Jesus." And any change which does not imply a new moral nature, a new principle of action, does not entitle any one to consider himself a christian, as having "passed from death to life." And, I ask, is there another radical, moral change to be experienced in this life?

The great objection I have to the views of Wesley and Fletcher is, that they divide christians into two classes—"justified and sanctified"; a distinction for which there is not the shadow of scriptural authority. A justified, unsanctified christian is such an anomaly as angels never saw. The apostle addresses his brethren as being justified and sanctified. And the only distinction which the Bible recognizes as existing among christians, is a distinction corresponding with the three great periods in human life, infancy, manhood, and old age. And hence we read of "babes in Christ"; "young men," and "fathers"; "first the blade, then the ear, then the full corn in the ear." The "babe" is just as really a child as the "young man"; the difference is in degree. The germ of sanctification is implanted when a person becomes a christian; and, if faithful, he continues to "grow in grace" till he arrives to the full stature of manhood. And there is not a single passage quoted by Wesley and Fletcher to prove their views of sanctification, that does not apply to every christian.

In a future number we shall attempt to confirm and illustrate these views by Scripture, and by genuine christian experience.

A STORY OF GRACE.---No. 12.

E. S. WILLARD.

THE CONFLICT.

"And let it be, when thou hearest the sound of a going in the tops of the mulberry trees, that then thou shalt bestir thyself." 2 Sam. 5: 23, 24.

The way had been open for us to meet in the prayer circle with a few calling themselves Baptists. As we found ourselves thus favored, the long pent-up waters gushed forth, and we were quickened afresh with the Holy Spirit. The fruit of this meeting was peace, yet it brought a burden. We saw what they lacked. Our souls had been in their souls' stead, but we now knew the life-giving power of the blessed hope of the glorious appearing of our Lord Jesus Christ. How to communicate this hope was the burden.

We soon found that the bane of this place was Spiritualism. They had even made their boast that Hammonton should be to them what Salt Lake is to the Mormons. This was the great fear for this new place. As ancient Israel quailed before the giant of Gath, even so did modern Israel here shrink before this modern Goliath in his defiant boastings. Where was little David now? Like him we encouraged ourselves in the Lord our God. We contemplated no direct attack, but thought to "fetch a compass behind" him, and then wait until we "heard the sound of a going." He had the ground in their Sunday school, and was encroaching upon the one established by the Methodists. It was boldly asserted by the leaders of the school that they only used the Bible until something better could be prepared by themselves. Seeing this, we fetched our compass by throwing open our doors and inviting all who would to come and join with us in the study of God's word. Commencing with Genesis, we studied the Bible by subjects; the creation, the fall, the penalty, the flood, the call of Abraham, and the gospel, or good news of the kingdom preached to him in the promise of the land of Canaan, as the nucleus of the future kingdom of God soon to be established upon the earth under his Seed—the son of David, so beautifully set forth by Daniel and all the prophets and by the Revelator. Here we dwelt long and largely, for this is the field wherein is hid the treasure, which when a man hath found he hideth, and for joy thereof goeth and selleth all that he hath and buyeth it.

After a time some began to discover this treasure, and gave evidence of a desire to purchase it. We were besought with tears to intercede for them, which we did with all the heart. This was that for which we had labored, and we hailed the first evidence that the seed had taken root, as the husbandman hails the green blade after his patient toil.

"Blessed Bible, how I love it!"

Renewedly did we press this treasure to our bosom, thank God and take courage, for these tokens of his favor. And we now seemed to hear the "sound of a going," to bestir ourselves by sending for help, and prepare for the onset.

Gideon-like we had hidden ourselves and were threshing wheat; with him, too, we felt poor, and the least in our Father's house; yet God seemed to say to us—"Go, in this thy might, and I will be with thee." We went. And we cried not—"The sword of the Lord and of Gideon!" but—The sword of the Spirit—God's holy word—which is more quick and powerful than any sword of Gideon; yea, "sharper than any two-edged sword." The sword of the Spirit was lifted up, and the "Comforter," true to his mission, was present to make it effectual to the convincing of sin, of righteousness, and of judgment. All felt his power. Shoutings and weepings were mingled. Those who had before made up their minds to obtain the pearl of great price at the loss of all things, now arose and with gushing tears gave testimony. A number of others, who but for this meeting had been that night at a ball, sobbed aloud and entreated prayers. And others still, who with us had been searching the word, now with tearful eyes and choked utterance besought our aid in obtaining the treasure. Glory to God! My shackles, too, had fallen. I was free.

Just before the opening of this meeting, a letter was handed us containing a favorable response to our call for help, which greatly encouraged us. The "sound of a going" still urged us on to another attack. Here we met "the men of Israel," and some of them said—"Why hast thou served us thus, that thou calledst us not when thou wentest out to fight?" We congratulated them upon their readiness to "come up to the help of the Lord against the mighty," and that the curse of Meroz could not fall upon them; and thus they were appeased. We further told them on this occasion that we expected help. This we did with great trembling, fearing their displeasure; but they made no response, and there we left it with the great "Captain of our salvation." But we found they had now taken the whole into their own hands and had appointed a general rendezvous a mile distant, in form of a union-prayer-meeting, and invited all to come. We with our little company followed on and met with them.

In this meeting the principal names of modern Israel and two or three classes of aliens were represented. We renewedly implored the guidance of the Spirit, and that we might simply follow his leadings in the ordeal through which we were about to pass. For a time our little company seemed lost in the numbers about us, but they were the life of the meeting. Their new-born hopes and aspirations so freely expressed were like "apples of gold in pictures of silver."

Thus matters continued for ten successive nights, and then our "Evangelist" came, in the person of Eld. J. B. Cook, whose locks had whitened in the service. We modestly submitted it to them, asking if they would accept his services. The answer came to us by a vote of seventeen to sixteen, No! and we reported accordingly. But our brother had gone through too many battles to be daunted at this rebuff.

"Oh!" said he, "I will lay aside my officials and go in as one of you." To this they could not object, and when his three minutes came they told, every one. The weapons of our warfare, which were not carnal, were used with such skill that all could but see that he was "a workman that needeth not to be ashamed."

Night after night the house was crowded, expecting to hear him preach, but in vain. At last a lady, who made no profession, went to the rulers of the synagogue and asked if he might not preach, saying many were desirous to hear him. After much whispering and going to and fro, it was announced that the motion of the three minutes was rescinded so far as he was concerned, and he should be allowed thirty minutes; and was invited to take the stand.

We now for the first time felt like taking a long breath. The sword of the Spirit—the word of God, was wielded with power. Saints were comforted and sinners warned. The following evening the same privilege was taken, no man forbidding him; and for a time prejudice seemed to melt away before the truths of the Bible; and as he closed two or three rose at once, to let their brimming vessels run over, and truly delectable were some of these streams. One of the rulers of the synagogue knelt by his side and thanked God that, apostle-like, he had come among them, and closed with the Lord's prayer. O, bless God! we were now, as it were, in the third heaven, but soon to be cast down to hades—if that be dark.

The next night, and last of this union, was a perfect antipode to the foregoing, as if every light had been stricken out, and every voice hushed; and a crowded house left to sit two long hours in "durance vile," was this our closing night.

One of the rulers, who was absent the two nights previous, took the chair and announced that this evening must be spent wholly in prayer, to make up for what had been lost the two past evenings. The whole assembly was amazed, and looked one on the other to divine what had been lost. Not a word of Scripture was read. Only languishing hosannas and formal prayers drove the wheelless chariot. Near its close a few "sparks" (see Isa. 50: 11) were emitted in one or two, without the slightest apparent emotion, peeping up their heads for prayers as much as to say—We can do this much to ease you. Thus, it may be, was recovered what they had lost.

They went on and gave out their appointments for the next entire day and evening (Lord's day), and for every other night the following week. (There was no minister in the place.)

As they thus opposed themselves, husband announced that we would accept the kind offer of his hall from one of the aliens, and meet there at ten o'clock in the morning, and invited all to attend who wished to hear preaching. We met as appointed, and had the satisfaction of seeing a full house. Our brother took for his subject—"What is truth?" God's holy word was held up as the embodiment of truth. The hideous mask that had so long covered it here was torn off, and its beautiful face shone out upon the gazing audience until with one voice they seemed ready to cry out, "Long live the word of God!" Men unaccustomed to weep seemed to feel it a luxury; and we felt glad to be accounted worthy the name of believers and honorers of that book. At the close a mystic, or spiritist, arose and eulogized the speaker, but utterly opposed the literality of his views.

In the evening we were again regaled from the subject—"Why do we believe?" The answer was, Because the blessed God in his loving condescension challenges our every sense to faith. This was impressively illustrated by Scripture examples. On this occasion the speaker's fidelity and valor were challenged to testify against the crying sin of this place—mysticism; and he did it with such consummate skill that every arrow stuck, yet without apparently aiming once in that direction. At the close, however, he was accosted in a very different tone from the morning greetings; but he kindly attempted to reason from Scripture. But both reason and Scripture were hurled to the dust and trodden under foot, and the lowest abuse resorted to. We now began to see where the Lord had led us—even to face the enemy upon his own ground, yea, in his own temple. The spirit of the giant was chafed, and he was arousing for the combat. We looked to our great Captain, and met once more boldly in his name.

God's great plan of siege for the recovery of a revolted world from the powers of darkness, was now spread before us in a masterly manner, as it had been made plain upon tables, and the hour of its accomplishment shown to have come. The champion of spiritism was on hand with his "tongue whet like a sword," and his bow bent to shoot "arrows, even bitter words." His suite were also about him, and marked was their impatience; yet our Captain commanded peace, and peace there was; not only until our brother had finished, but until we could arise and add our testimony that these meetings in this place at this time were the result of the honor which God had shown to the exaltation and study of his literal word—the holy Bible; we invited all who would to join us in this study. Privilege was then given for any who wished to honor Christ in baptism to rise; when two of our little company had the boldness in these trying circumstances to stand up. Bless God!

Several times was our adversary remanded to his seat before the meeting could be closed; and then the winds were let loose, and for the space of three hours they remained, contradicting and blaspheming, saying among other things too dark for these pages that it was a good thing Jesus Christ learned the carpenter's trade while on earth; for he could have the new Jerusalem all built by the time he comes back. Oh, how it grieves us to write such things! May he soon be avenged.

Thus closed the labors of our brother, he having been with us six days and seven nights, and having had the privilege of preaching only three times.

THE afflictions of a saint are neither too numerous nor too sharp.

—Poet of Popular Theology.

"The soul that sinneth it shall die."—Bible.

The above quotations from the theological "Hymn Book" and the Bible, are so associated here that their glaring contrast may be seen at a glance. They should be in perfect harmony, for theology is a Bible science; popular theology is professionally so, and, therefore, we have the right to hold it amenable to, and to suppose its terms, statements, phrases, and the like, are those of, the Bible; but it is lamentably true that it finds the task of confining itself closely to that book a severe one, whether it weaves itself into prose or poetry. We find the reason of this in the fact that it is manufactured from human opinions, which are brought to the Bible for its sanction and benediction; a method started by Origen, whom we are told "interpreted many things into the Bible instead of interpreting out of it."

In this pretended evolution of its doctrines, which are really involutions, it performs sundry gyrations and acrobatisms which would be ludicrously amusing elsewhere, but which are painfully so here. In its attempts at using Bible phraseology to express its own dogmatic theories, it proves that the use of the Bible is more in fancy than fact, and often that there is not even a fancied resemblance between them and it, but they appear daringly arrayed against that Book of God. For example, see the poetical effusion above quoted. All attempts to crystalize these dogmas with a "thus saith the Lord," are futile and must fail; and those who engage in the work must be deeply chagrined when at last they see the ruin of all their work. In reviewing them we discover the secret of their method of operating to bring out their seeming proof from the Bible. We find the literal and figurative language of the book transposed and intermingled. The literal, which is the invulnerable basis of all language, is made figurative, and the figurative is made to do full duty as a substitute for the literal. A very ingenious method surely, to make the Bible prove what is not normal to it, but which cannot otherwise be proved. But it cannot be proved thus, surely, and it is unfortunate for our friends that they have not discovered the fact long ago,—that what the Bible cannot prove normally it cannot prove at all,—as they would thereby have averted the calamity which has now befallen them; for it is a calamity to be obliged to prove from the Bible, when its language is made thus chaotic, any definite system of doctrine. However, they have not made the discovery, or, have made a "virtue of necessity," and have continued in their up-hill work, and hence require the metaphysical exegesis of a "D. D." to explain what otherwise were simple enough for the comprehension of a child, which becomes thereby as clear as fog. In this, their herculean labor, these savants bring out the "meaning" of texts, so thus "befogged" that "death" "means" life, and life, death; destruction, eternal preservation; and such preservation, destruction; the grave, heaven, and heaven the grave; a silent tongue, a singing one, and a singing one "silent in the grave." To be cut off is to be continued in endless anguish, and to live forever is but to enjoy endless happiness.*

So perplexingly mixed is all this, that the difficulty of discovering a satisfactory meaning is apparent. So one cannot tell what could be "piped or harped" out of it, unless he should call on one of the skilled theological harpers to play his favorite tune. It is interesting sometimes to notice how unsophisticated children dispose of this Babelic affair; those especially who have never been instructed biblically. Those who have been properly taught—and often those who have not—are not to be caught in any confused mass of unintelligible terms, and are like the little girl who, when told that her recently deceased grandfather had gone to heaven, answered—"No, he is n't, he is dead and buried. Mother and I went and saw where they put him."

Another interesting incident to the point is an episode in the childhood of Henry Ward Beecher. His sister, Mrs. Stowe, relates the incident in the life of their father, Dr. Lyman Beecher. Their mother died when Henry was quite young, and speaking of her Mrs. Stowe says—

"They told us at one time that she had 'gone to heaven,' and at another she had been 'buried in the ground.' Whereupon Henry resolved to dig through the ground to heaven and so find her; for being discovered one morning under sister Catharine's window, digging with great zeal and earnestness there, she called to know what he was doing; when, lifting up his curly head, with great simplicity he answered, 'Why! I am digging to heaven to find Ma!'"

No wonder the child sought this solution of the difficult problem. When one is affirmed to be in two places at once, it is enough to mystify the ideas of old people as to where the two localities, heaven and the grave, come together, so that one can be in both at once. It is all as plain, however, as that the mortal and the immortal can be blended together in one man. Like the grave the body is earthly, like heaven the immortal (?) soul is purely ethereal; and so there is in all but a common analogy. It is certainly puzzling to so understand the double-entity doctrine, as to be fully persuaded that while there is an appearance of death, there is really no death, and the dear one whom you think you have laid in the grave is not there; but on every hand we find ourselves in contact with it.

We walked one day among the graves in a quiet old town, and noted the epitaphs that affection's hand had placed on the tombstones. Among others we read the following over the grave—or what we supposed was the grave—of a young lady—"She is not here; she is risen." We remember that this language was applied to Jesus on the morning of that memorable first day of the week, after he had arisen from the dead and left nothing in the tomb but the linen clothes and the napkin by itself. The angel then said of him—"He is not here; he is risen." As we read the inscription on the tombstone, we marveled greatly, and peered with a quiet curiosity over the headstone; but, lo! the grave was there. What could have been meant? The inscription declared, as the angel did, a resurrection. Alas! it was another instance of foggy theology.

Mrs. Stowe attempts a solution of her brother's difficulty. She tells us that Henry, putting the two together ("in the grave" and "in heaven"), resolved to dig through the ground to heaven and so find her. She gives as a reason the boy's answer—"I am digging to heaven to find Ma." He says nothing, however, about digging through the ground (eight thousand miles) to heaven. How could he any more conceive of heaven purely, as beneath him than above him? We are taught in childhood and adulthood that it is "In heaven above, where all is love"; and how could the boy think his mother as "through the ground" in heaven, when he had been told she was in it? He had a vague idea, certainly; could not have had thus befogged a clear one, but from his digging he had evidently in putting the two together sought a downward and not an upward solution of the great problem. He carried all he heard of his mother's present condition earthward; the nucleus thought was, that she was dead and buried, and that settled the question; all other thoughts, all other teachings, vaguely clustered around it. And why not? Appearances were in that direction certainly. One would say first of all that the friend was "dead and buried." If they had a contrary or mixed idea, it must come afterward by a theological training, not at all Biblical. That childishly simple method is excellent for the solving of doubts and showing of hard sentences (Dan. 5: 12), and we commend it to all interpreters of theological jargon; for it is true that if our dead friends are gone to heaven, that heaven is the grave; for they are there. We have seen the place where they were laid with many tears, and sadly often we have even borne them there, and we have gone "to the grave to weep there." But heaven is not the grave; therefore they are not in heaven. If they were or could be, then there is harmony in the following extract from a popular song, otherwise it is unsatisfactory. The song is of a child who having died and gone "to heaven," is represented as calling its father to come also. We are then told that "Loved lips that lie in the grave"

are calling—

"Come this way, my father, come straight to me, Here safely in heaven I am waiting for thee."

(By the by, what is the sense of that word "lie" in this case?) These lips in the grave—can they speak? They are made to, and to say "Here ... I am waiting," etc. A little grammar on this point. "Here" is an adverb of place, the place where the child is. The poet makes it do double duty—all in harmony with his theology. The lips are (1) in the grave, and (2) in heaven. We transpose—"Here I am safely in heaven, in the grave, waiting for thee; my father, come this way." Rule. When a noun or pronoun is put to identify or explain another noun or pronoun, it is put by apposition in the same case. In this sentence heaven and grave explain each other; hence in the same case and in the same place. So we have dead lips in the grave calling father to "come this way." Doubtless he will, whether he be good or bad, come to such a heaven as that.

Now was not the boy Henry right? Surely he was, if this astute poet is. But Henry's idea was "great simplicity" in digging to that heaven; our poet's is mixed somewhat, we think; in popular circles profound theological truth, simply absurd, however. But we will introduce another poet, one whose face is familiar. Here he is; he sings for the mass of christians, and they sing for him. Hear him.

"Then in a nobler, sweeter song,
I'll sing thy power to save,
When this poor lisping, stammering tongue
Lies silent in the grave."

Notice, that this sentiment is of a slightly different complexion from the others. In one case it is the lips that lie in the grave which speak; in the other it isn't; it is something else; it is—"I." That is the difference. The lips of one speak; they call—"Come this way, my father"; the other's tongue "lies silent in the grave." It does not, however, lie as much as the lips. Some one else (the "I") does the singing. He does not tell us where "I'll sing," whether "in the grave" like the dead child, or elsewhere, off that great, far-off nowhere, of that other poet. But that is of little consequence; he sings in "a nobler, sweeter song"; with his tongue silent in the grave." How one can sing with a silent tongue is a mystery; a greater mystery is, how one can sing and make melody without any tongue at all. It may be spirit—singing of a spirit—song with a spirit-tongue, hence not a literal bona fide occurrence.

"Beyond the bounds of time and space";

Such sentiments are enough to bewilder and drive away the "great simplicity" of all the Henrys in the world, or of any one. It is only to be accounted for on the ground that Henry's "simplicity" was a child's, else it would be strange that he should think to find his mother by digging under his sister's window, or elsewhere. There are some, however, who love such simplicity, unbefogged, which, throwing aside the heaven-idea, as associated with the grave, hears God speak, saying, "There is no knowledge, nor work, nor device in the grave, whither thou goest"; and who anticipate singing that "nobler, sweeter song," when this, no more a stammering tongue, "is ransomed from the grave."

* Since writing the above, we have noticed that Mr. Spurgeon said in a recent sermon when preaching from the text—"Because I live ye shall live also"—that to make this mean a promise of existence was "to turn wine into water," as the world has existence without Christ; inferring that if man lives at all, he must live forever. He has evidently overlooked the resurrection to immortality, and hence "life."

SIGNS OF THE TIMES.

We are living in a "grand and awful time." The last rushing years of probation are crowded with events of unparalled importance. Ordinary occurrences are lost in the constant whirl of exciting scenes. An age of wonders is compressed within the limits of a single year. The signs of the times are ominous. Satan was never so busy or successful as now. He works with sleepless vigilance and marvelous efficiency. Well knowing that his time is short, he is exerting every energy to prosecute his dark designs. The hosts of sin are marshaling for the final fray. The dispensation of mercy is hastening to a close, and the day of retribution is impending. The moral heavens are growing darker, and the cup of a doomed world will soon be full. Shall we not sound the notes of alarm?

We have fallen upon perilous times. The dark waves of infidelity sweep on with ruinous results. Never was the world so reckless of eternal things. Never was the atonement of Jesus so generally repudiated. Wickedness abounds. Pleasure rules the hour. The most deadly moral poison permeates society. The authority of God is defied. The Bible is rejected. Pride and passion and profanity and prodigality are the staple products of the age. Selfishness and rebellion have brought forth a hateful progeny. Can anything be done to stay the terrible tide of ruin? While the legions of Satan are so busy, shall we fold our arms "in lazy lock?" While the devotees of error are so defiant, shall the friends of truth be dumb?

Bible theology has become sadly perverted. The traditions of men have been substituted for the truth of God. Pagan principles are largely interwoven with the religious theories of the day. Many a creed harmonizes with Platonic philosophy more fully than with the book of God. A spiritualising method of interpreting the Scriptures has become generally adopted, resulting in great mysticism and confusion. Current theology is so constructed as entirely to supersede the necessity of Christ's personal coming, to raise the dead and judge the world. Such radical errors merit the reprehensions of enlightened christians. We rejoice that some earnest voices are already lifted in advocacy of a pure Bible-ism; but we cannot throw off the conviction that other agencies ought to be employed to scatter the heavenly light.

The practical developments of popular Christianity are equally deplorable. The standard of piety has been fearfully lowered. A compromising spirit prevails. Policy is substituted for principle, and proxy-worship takes the place of pure devotion. While there are earnest christians in all societies, the nominal church is practically married to the world. A frigid formalism has chilled her vitals and palsied her power. The soporifics of Satan have taken effect, and the masses of christian professors are dozing and dreaming on the very eve of swift-coming judgment. Whoever sees these terrible facts, and refuses to cry aloud, assumes a responsibility that is absolutely appalling. We cannot consent to bear it.

"This is for your Health."

VENTILATION.

We take the following sensible remarks on "Ventilation" from "Good Health" for April. Special attention is called to the fifth paragraph:—

The amount vitiated by respiration is a small part of the amount of air that should be supplied to a room; and the carbonic acid evolved is in no way so unpleasant or dangerous as the odorous exhalations from the skin, and lungs, and clothing in it.

The necessity for pure air must be evident to all. The question is how to get it. This question is a difficult one to solve in our winters, when the abstraction of foul air is apt to produce too much loss of heat, and when the introduction of pure air is too often attended by pernicious draughts.

In modes of natural ventilation, of which we speak here, as these are the only ones likely to be used in our dwellings, we may learn something from nature and from animals. From the experiments of Huber and others, we know that the air is very pure in the remotest parts of a bee-hive, though the fresh air passes in and the vitiated air passes out through a single small opening; and this in a hive crowded by many thousand active insects absorbing oxygen and exhaling carbonic acid during respiration; there are no openings at the top and bottom for upward and downward draught, as every crack and crevice is stopped by a glutinous cement. A certain set of bees fan their wings near the entrance of the hive, in lines diverging from the door, thus forcing air in a gentle eddy through the circuit of the hive, which returns and passes out by the same opening through which it entered. It will be found by experiment that this is always the case where air is gently blown into a room; two currents will pass at the same time, the one in, the other out.

From the bees we may learn that the first step in ventilation is cleanliness in the house, as well as in the streets and yard, that the entering air may be pure; if necessary, simple disinfectants and deodorizers may be placed in the way of the air, which also, if required, may be put and kept in motion by very simple mechanical means acting by springs or clockwork. Much has been written for and against upward and downward draughts, but neither seems to be nature's method. When we consider the immense expense of waters charged with ingredients which chemically change and purify the air—the deodorizing and purifying action of the vegetable world—the heated and ascending equatorial current and the cold and descending arctic current rushing in to supply its place—it would seem that the air was pure enough, and sufficiently in motion, in ordinary cases, for the needs of humanity, if this air could gain admission to our dwellings.

Recent experience seems to prove that a board of six inches width, placed under the lower window-sash, which may shut firmly upon it, pierced by two circles each six inches in diameter, and prolonged into two curved tubes opening upward into the room, provided with dampers, is sufficient to ventilate a room, either in summer or winter, without the danger of draughts. In one tube the current may flow inward, in the other outward; but the current will generally flow inward, upward in winter, and descending warmed, downward in summer—refreshing by its coolness, and becoming heated as it ascends—according as the tube is directed upward or downward. No violent action is necessary or desirable; the gentle current, once started, is kept up by natural laws.

In old times ventilation was secured in a good and natural manner by the capacious fire-place, in which the blazing logs caused a sufficient upward current to carry away all foul air, with much heat, however, at the same time; the cracks at windows and doors were ample for the introduction of fresh air. In these days of furnaces and tight houses, the small and cold chimneys are almost useless for purposes of ventilation. In schools and public buildings, where steam power is not desirable, the system depending upon a draught chimney, at the lower part of which a fire is kindled, or into which the heated products of combustion are conducted at the bottom, appears from recent experiments, to be the most economical, least liable to interruption, and most satisfactory.

A USEFUL ARTICLE.

Ammonia, or as it is generally called, spirits of hartshorn, is a powerful alkali, and dissolves grease and dirt with great ease. It has lately been recommended very highly for domestic purposes. For washing paint, put a tablespoonful in a quart of moderately hot water, dip in a flannel cloth and then wipe off the wood work; no scrubbing will be necessary. For taking greasy spots from any fabric use the ammonia nearly pure, then lay white blotting paper over the spot and iron it lightly. In washing lace put about twelve drops in a pint of warm suds. To clean silver, mix two teaspoonfuls of ammonia in a quart of hot suds. Put in your silver ware and wash, using an old nail-brush for the purpose. For cleaning hair-brushes, etc., simply shake the brushes up and down in a mixture of one tablespoonful of ammonia to one pint of hot water; when they are cleansed, rinse them in hot water, and stand them in the wind or in a hot place to dry. For washing finger-marks from looking-glasses or windows, put a few drops of ammonia on a moist rag, and make quick work of it. If you wish your house plants to flourish, put a few drops of the spirits in every pint of water used in watering. A teaspoonful will add much to the refreshing effects of the bath. Nothing is better than ammonia water for cleansing the hair. In every case rinse off the ammonia with clear water. To which we would only add, that for removing grease spots, a mixture of equal parts of ammonia and alcohol is better than alcohol alone; and for taking out the red stains produced by the strong acids in blue and black clothes, there is nothing better than ammonia.—Providence Journal.

HOW BESS MANAGED TOM.

Tom's sister Nell was pretty, and being a year older than Tom, wanted to show her authority over him. Tom was rough and awkward, and just at the age when a boy resents all meddling with his "rights." He would put his hands in his pockets, his chair on Nell's dress, and his feet on the window-sill. Of course, they often quarreled.

"For pity's sake, Tom, do take your hands out of your pockets!" Nell would say in her most vexing manner.

"What are pockets for, I'd like to know, if not to put one's hands in?" and Tom would whistle and march off.

"Tom, I don't believe you've combed your hair for a week!"

"Well, what's the use? it would be all roughed up again in less than an hour."

"I do wish you would take your great boots off the window-sill!"

"O, don't bother me, I'm reading," Tom would say, and the boots refused to stir an inch, which, of course, was very naughty. And so it would go from morning till night.

But little sister Bess had a different way with somewhat stubborn Tom. Bess seemed to understand that coaxing was better than driving; and sometimes when he sat with both hands plunged in his pockets, Bess, with a book or a picture would nestle down beside him, and almost before he knew it one hand would be patting her curls, while the other turned the leaves or held the pictures. If she chanced to see his feet on the window-sill, she would say—

"Just try my ottoman, Tom, dear, and see how comfortable it is to the feet;" and though Tom occasionally growled in a good-natured way about its being too low, the boots always came down to its level. Whenever his hair looked very rough, she would steal behind him and smooth it out in a way Tom liked so well that it was a temptation to let it go rough just for the pleasure of having her comb it. Yet, for the next three days at least, he would take special pains to keep every hair in its place, simply to please little Bess.

As they grew older, Bess, in the same quiet, loving way, helped him to grow wise and manly. If she had an interesting book, she always wanted Tom to enjoy it with her; if she were going to call in any of her young friends, Tom was always invited to go with her.

"I can't understand," said lady Nell, "why you should want that boy forever at your elbow! He's rough and awkward as a bear."

"Some bears are as gentle as kittens," said Bess, slipping her arm through his, with a loving hug, while "the bear" felt a great warm glow at his heart, as he walked away with Bess, and determined to be "gentle as a kitten," for her sake.

A GOLDEN TEXT FOR BOYS.

A man of very pleasing address, but very dishonest in his practices, once said to an honorable merchant, "whose word was as good as his bond," "I would give fifty thousand dollars for your good name."

"Why so?" asked the other, in some surprise.

"Because I could make a hundred thousand dollars out of it."

The honorable character which was at the bottom of that good name, he cared nothing for; it was only the reputation which he could turn to account in a money point of view, which he coveted.

But a good name can not be bought with silver;—it, of all other possessions, must be fairly earned. When it is possessed, it is better business capital than a great sum of money. It is a capital any boy or girl may secure. Honesty must be its foundation, even in the smallest particulars. When an employer says, "That is a boy I can trust," he will always find himself in demand, provided he joins with it industry. "The hand of the diligent maketh rich."

It seems hard at the time, may be, this ceaseless round of work, while other boys are lounging about store steps, or playing on the green. But the reward will come, if you are faithful. While loungers are dragging out a miserable lifetime in privation and poverty, the hard-working boy lives at his ease, respected and honored.

Remember this, boys, if you desire to make your way in the world. There is nothing that can serve your purpose like a name for honesty and industry, and you will never acquire either if you are a lounger about the streets, and a shirk at your business. Every body suspects a lad who is often seen about saloon doors or tavern steps. It undermines a boy's character for honesty very rapidly, to mix with the society he finds there, and such habits tend to anything but industrious ways.

"A good name is rather to be chosen than great riches, and loving favor rather than silver and gold." Print that text on your heart, and carry it with you in all your walks and way. If you are led to secure it, it will be worth far more than "fifty thousand dollars" to you.—Presbyterian.

THE NEW BIRTH.

A. FRENCH.

"Jesus answered and said unto him, Verily, verily, I say unto thee, except a man be born again he cannot see the kingdom of God."—JOHN 3: 3.

The inference from this text seems to be, if a man is born again he will see the kingdom of God. If a sinner experiences the new birth when converted, he will finally be saved, he cannot backslide and be lost.

I will give partly in my own language, and partly in the language of others, what seems to me to be truth in the text.

A great amount of darkness has pervaded popular theology on the subject of the "new birth," which might and indeed ought to be dispelled by the divine illumination of the gospel of Christ. The world has long been taught that the new birth must be experienced here in order to enter the kingdom of God. This conversion and new birth have been regarded as one and the same thing; hence, when individuals have been hopefully converted, it has been common to say that such have been born into the kingdom of God. If conversion and the new birth mean the same thing, we would have no objection to the position, but we judge they are not; hence, must regard such conclusions and remarks as unscriptural, and eminently calculated to mislead the honest inquirer after truth, and obscure the glorious doctrine of life and immortality through Jesus Christ. It also tends to pervert a correct view of the kingdom of God with its subjects, and to engender some of the most erroneous theories in regard to the final home and rest of the church of God.

We shall not at this time attempt to define and trace those errors, but chiefly from the text show that the new birth is not realized in time.

1 John 5: 18—"We know that whosoever is born of God sinneth not, but he that is begotten of God keepeth himself, and the wicked one toucheth him not." The difference between one begotten and one born is, that one who is born of God is in a state of absolute perfection and sinneth not; but he who is begotten, is so under the divine influence that he keepeth himself, and that wicked one toucheth him not. This state of absolute sinless perfection is also affirmed still more strongly (1 John 3d chap. 9th verse) of those who are born of God. "Whosoever is born of God doth not commit sin; for his seed remaineth in him; and he cannot sin, because he is born of God." Who will affirm any such state of perfection as this in the present life? He cannot sin, because he is born of God." It is therefore a very exalted state to be begotten of God, so as to be able to keep ourselves that the wicked one touch us not. And this I believe to be both the duty and privilege of every true christian,—to have power over temptation, that he shall not be brought into it.

But it will be much more glorious and exalted to be beyond the possibility of sinning, as all the saints will be "when He shall appear," and we are like him; for he is born from the dead, and can die no more; death has no more dominion over him. Col. 1: 18—"The first born from the dead, that in all things he might have the pre-eminence." Then certainly others are to follow the pattern, and be born from the dead also. The resurrection is therefore a birth to Christ and all his people.

Luke 20: 36, is another text to which I wish to invite attention—"Neither can they die any more; for they are equal to the angels; and are the children of God, being the children of the resurrection." This will perfect God's work of grace in the believer, restore him to his own image in which he was originally made, and fully qualify him to enter into, see, and enjoy, the kingdom of God. He may be converted, he must be, or he cannot enter the kingdom of God. He may have the righteousness of faith, and he must have it, or he cannot enter the kingdom of God. He may do the will of his Father in heaven, and he must do it, or he can never enter the kingdom of heaven. But after all this, there is another thing wanting, without which he cannot inherit the kingdom of God; and that is, to be born from the dead. "For flesh and blood cannot enter the kingdom of God; neither doth corruption inherit incorruption." 1 Cor. 15: 50. This is the crowning work, the top-stone, the completion of our qualification to inherit that kingdom.

As the same original word expresses the two facts of being begotten and being born, it is possible that our translators have sometimes erred in their choice of the English word to express the meaning of the sacred writer. "Whosoever believeth that Jesus is the Christ, is born of God." 1 John 5: 1. Now it seems to me that the construction of the text requires the use of the word begotten instead of "born." The whole text reads thus—"Whosoever believeth that Jesus is the Christ, is born of God; and every one that loveth him that begat, loveth him also that is begotten of him." That the word is properly rendered begat and begotten in the last clause, is clear that the sense requires it; why, then, not follow the obvious import of the passage and read it,—"Whosoever believeth that Jesus is the Christ, is begotten of God; and every one that loveth him that begat, loveth him also that is begotten of him"? The rendering would then be harmonious. 1 Pet. 1 23—"Being born again, not of corruptible seed." Does not the fact that is affirmed rather suggest and require the use of the word begotten? "Being begotten again, not of corruptible seed, but of incorruptible." The same inquiry would be appropriate with regard to 1 John 5: 4—"Whosoever is born of God overcometh the world." If the rule observed in verse 18, of the same chapter, had been followed, it would have been translated begotten, rather than "born." When one word expresses two or more ideas, we are to determine from the subject and context which of those ideas is conveyed by the word in the case at hand. To make myself fully understood, I will here sum up my own views on the subject.

The new birth, or being born again, or being born of God, I understand to be the whole work of grace wrought of God on the subject, from the first moment of his enlightening and drawing influence by his Spirit and Word, until that work is perfected at the resurrection of the just; and hence the work of regeneration is going on from the first inception of the Spirit in the heart of man, till that Spirit that dwells in the believer shall at the sound of the last trump, in one twinkling of the eye, quicken into immortality and incorruption this mortal body. And, according to the analogy of a natural birth, that the first act of the Spirit is called begetting, and the last act a birth, when the child of God is fully born into a life that shall never end. And except a man pass through this whole process, he cannot enter into the kingdom of God.

THE SEVENTY WEEKS.

J. B. CLARK.

"Seventy weeks are determined upon thy people, and upon thy holy city, to finish the transgression, and to make an end of sins [or sin offerings], and to make reconciliation for iniquity, and to bring in everlasting righteousness, and to seal up the vision and prophecy, and to anoint the Most Holy."—DAN. 9: 24

This text brings to view what will be accomplished within the period of seventy weeks—the end of all legal sacrifices—the end of the Jewish polity—the crucifixion of our Lord, when he offered himself upon the cross, as the last offering and sacrifice for sin, of which all other offerings and sacrifices were but types. All the legal sacrifices from Abel to the days of the Messiah ended at the cross. Therefore all sacrifices and oblations which have been offered since Christ's death are illegal. In fact, there cannot be and there have not been any legal sacrifices offered since the one great offering on Calvary; they all terminated at the cross; consequently in the year A. D. 70, there was no legal sacrifice or oblation to be made to cease.

Soon after the Jews crucified their Messiah, their real troubles began. They were given over to be destroyed by each other, and they provoked the Romans to make war against them; and they destroyed their city and the sanctuary; for desolations were determined. It does not read sacrifices and oblations (plural), but—"The sacrifice and the oblation [singular] to cease." Thus Christ made the last sacrifice and oblation by offering himself, which he made to cease; and when that ceased all other sacrifices and oblations ceased at the cross.

I understand there are many more things brought to view to be accomplished during the seventy weeks; such as the anointing of the Most Holy, meaning Christ. See Acts 10: 38, 4: 27. "For of a truth against thy holy child Jesus, whom thou hast anointed, both Herod, and Pontius Pilate, with the Gentiles, and the people of Israel, were gathered together for to do whatsoever thy hand and thy counsel determined before to be done." When was Christ anointed? We read after he was baptized by John, and after his forty days temptation in the wilderness, he went in the Spirit into Galilee, and on the Sabbath day he went into the synagogue, and stood up to read. They gave him the book of Isaiah from which he read this passage—"The Spirit of the Lord God is upon me because the Lord God hath anointed me to preach good tidings unto the meek." Then he began to say unto them—"This day is this Scripture fulfilled in your ears." Thus at or before this time he was anointed to preach.

I understand the seventy weeks are not cut off from any period, but that they are cut in pieces, or divided into three parts. We will next notice these divisions. Daniel 9: 25, 27.—"Know therefore and understand [the vision of the seventy weeks], that from the going forth of the commandment to restore and to build Jerusalem unto the Messiah the Prince, shall be seven weeks, and threescore and two weeks; the street shall be built again, and the wall, even in troublous times." In this passage we are informed when the seventy weeks began—"From the going forth of the commandment." What commandment? The one that related to the building of the street, and the wall (not the temple) "even in troublous times." Who gave this commandment? which king of Persia? The kings as Ezra has named them (Ezra 4, and 7, were Cyrus, Ahasuerus, Artaxerxes the first, Darius, and Artaxerxes Longimanus. The last named king gave the commandment referred to in Daniel 9: 25. Cyrus did not give this commandment, but he did give a commandment five hundred and sixty-nine years before Christ's death, to build the temple. Again, the decree given by Darius five hundred and fifty-two years before Christ's death (See Ezra 6: 1-14.) cannot be the commandment to which the angel referred, for this reason; it was a renewal of the decree given by Cyrus five hundred and sixty-nine years before Christ's death; and another reason, it was too early.

But the next decree or command we find in the seventh year of Artaxerxes Longimanus. See Ezra 7: 6-28. And from the prayer of Ezra 9: 9, we understand the decree to which we allude did give them the power to build in Judah and Jerusalem, the wall which had been broken down. In this decree (Ezra 7) we find a command from Artaxerxes, king of Persia, to restore the captive Jews. We also find the interdict (Ezra 4: 21), in which the Jews were commanded not to build Jerusalem is now removed by its own limitation—"until another commandment be given from me." This decree, therefore, took off this command.

After Ezra had been high priest and governor in Jerusalem thirteen years, Nehemiah was permitted to go up to assist Ezra in building Jerusalem and in repairing the walls, which was done in troublous times (See Nehemiah 2), under Nehemiah's administration, which lasted in all thirty-nine years, (Neh. chaps. 4, 7), Ezra and Nehemiah both having served as governors, seven weeks, or forty-nine years. This last decree was given 457 B. C., commencing the seventy weeks. The text reads—"From the going forth of the commandment to restore and build Jerusalem, ... and the street shall be built again, and the wall, even in troublous times." How exact the language of the angel (it does not read—from the pushing of the ram) in explaining the commencement of the seventy weeks. This last decree was given 457 B. C. Add thirty-three years and it makes just four hundred and ninety years to Christ's death, as it is supposed he was crucified A. D. 33. I do not wish to be particular as to the chronology, but more particular as to the events.

It is very evident the angel divided the seventy weeks into three parts, and clearly explains the use of this division. "There shall be seven weeks, and threescore and two weeks." I understand the streets, and wall were built during the seven weeks, forty-nine years. Ezra and Nehemiah were forty-nine years, or seven weeks of years, performing these very things, which ended B. C. 408, and then it will be just sixty-two weeks unto the Messiah the Prince, which I believe extend to the time that Christ was anointed to preach good tidings to the meek; which are four hundred and thirty-four years; which, beginning where the seven weeks ended—408—would end at Christ's baptism during the preaching of John the Baptist, the forerunner of Christ. Then follows the work to be accomplished during the last or one week,—the confirming of the (new) covenant by Christ and his apostle; thus making in all seventy weeks of probation to the Jews.

Thus the seven weeks, and the sixty-two weeks, making in all sixty-nine weeks, extend from the going forth of the commandment by Artaxerxes Longimanus, king of Persia (see Ezra 7, and compare with Ezra 9: 9, and Nehemiah 2, and onward) to the Messiah the Prince.

I believe there is no other way that we can determine where the seventy weeks begin and terminate, except by their division. I cannot find another commandment that will apply in all its bearings, but the one given by Artaxerxes to Ezra and confirmed to Nehemiah; they accomplished the work. This is the commandment given 457 B. C. By dividing the seventy weeks into three parts, he tells us plainly what would be accomplished in each part separately. After sixty-two weeks (the seven weeks having been fulfilled in the building of Jerusalem by Ezra and Nehemiah) shall Messiah be cut off (crucified) in the midst or close of the last, or one week. Thus the one week (the seventieth) is allotted to the confirming of the covenant—"And he [Messiah] shall confirm the [new] covenant with many for one week, and in the midst of the week he [Messiah] shall cause the sacrifice and the oblation to cease."

The idea of making "he" (2: 27) mean the Roman prince, I conceive to be incorrect. The people of the prince (Romans) are brought to view in the last clauses of the twenty-sixth verse, who shall come (subsequently) and destroy the city and the sanctuary; for these desolations were determined. Again it reverts back to Messiah when it says. "And he shall confirm the covenant with many for one week"—seven years.

What covenant is this to be confirmed? It cannot be the Jewish covenant, for that was confirmed by Moses many hundred years before Daniel lived. There are but two covenants. It must of necessity be the "new covenant," of which Christ is the Mediator; and if this is so, and the gospel covenant is meant, then the preaching of Christ and his apostles during the seven years alluded to is the fulfillment of this portion of Scripture.

ABIDING IN JESUS.

J. W. THOMAS.

"Abide in me."—JOHN 15: 4.

Abide in Jesus, and be alive. There is such a thing as being in Christ nominally. Many abide in him by profession, by participation in the ordinances of his house, and by an external alliance with his church; but they are in him only in name and not in fact. They are dead, fruitless branches, and designed to be cut off and cast into the fire. But those who are really in Christ are alive. They have formed a union with Jesus by a living faith. They have been grafted into him as the branch is grafted into the vine. This is the way to distinguish between false and true professors. Those who are false are dead as far as all vital godliness is concerned, but those who are true are alive to every good word and work.

Abide in Jesus, and be fruitful. It is impossible to bear fruit unless we abide in the vine. There are very many fruitless branches. We see them everywhere. They profess to belong to Jesus, but they bring forth no fruit. These branches are in danger of being cut off. Hear what the Master says—"I am the vine; ye are the branches; he that abideth in me and I in him, the same bringeth forth much fruit; for without me ye can do nothing." "If a man abide not in me, he is cast forth as a branch, and is withered; and men gather them and cast them into the fire; and they are burned." How then can we bear fruit? Let the next verse answer,—"If ye abide in me, and my words abide in you, ye shall ask what ye will, and it shall be done unto you." "Herein is my Father glorified, that ye bear much fruit; so shall ye be my disciples." Here we discover the secret of usefulness in divine things. It is to abide in Christ. We are grafted in by faith, and we stand by faith.

Abide in Jesus and be holy. All efforts to be holy aside from Jesus are vain. Indeed, it will not be an effort to be holy when we abide in him, for holiness is a natural result of union with him. Jesus is holy, and if by virtue of a true faith we become one with him, our fruit will be like his. "He that saith he abideth in him ought himself also so to walk, even as he walked." John 2: 6. Anxious inquirer, would you be holy? Then abide in him.

Abide in Jesus and be happy. There is no true and lasting happiness without Jesus. Many seek for happiness in the gratification of their appetites and passions, but these pleasures are only for a season; they leave a sting behind. Jesus is the only source of true and permanent happiness. Those who abide in him are constantly happy.

Abide in Jesus and be ready for his coming. We can only be prepared for the return of Jesus by abiding in him, Many seem to be very much troubled about the future. They cross bridges before they get to them. Dear friend, let me tell you of a better way. Live by the minute, and not worry about the future. Live constantly by faith on the Son of God. The beloved John understood it. Hear him—"And now, little children, abide in Him; that when he shall appear, we may have confidence, and not be ashamed before him at his coming."

THEOLOGICAL POETRY.—No. 2.

L. C. MCKINSTRY.

"What! to be banished from my God,
And yet forbid to die;
To linger in eternal pain,
And death forever fly?"
—Poet of Popular Theology.

"The soul that sinneth it shall die."—Bible.

It is not supposed that the multitude of our friends theological will join in this desire to sing in a ransomed-tongued state, and wait for "that day" with "them that sleep in Jesus"; they may not profit by our wish that they might see the glorious light of truth, as they must have the opportunity of "playing on the golden (?) harp"-strings of spiritualization, so making the word of God like an instrument, from which, their patent strings attached, they may bring out their favorite tunes, and sing of a dead one alive and a live one dead. They may bring the word of God into reproach thereby; they will, they do; but they must not mind that, as their favorite theories must be supported. When, therefore, they use the precise language of the Bible, they must be understood as having a covert meaning under it all, which, to be sure, it is exceedingly difficult to do, as the simple literal meaning of the Word is too obstinate to let a spiritual meaning shine through it. (Note. This accounts for the foggy atmosphere of spiritualization.) On this account they are under severe restraint, and so often either partially or entirely break away from the bondage of such language, and stride out where they can partially (if they dare venture no further) or entirely (if they are bold enough) have freedom, or rather license of expression, without the inconvenience of being thus bound, as with fetters of steel and heavy chains, by literal Bible language. They then have some opportunity to breathe free air, and talk and sing what they mean as nearly as possible to their condition.

Those who are but partially extricated, who are half bound and half free, are in a pitiable condition. They limp and hobble about. Sometimes they assume to be spiritually winged, and they then essay to a free spiritual flight, carrying their bondage with them. They cannot rest on air so rarified; and, like the poor lark in the story, they come suddenly back to an apologetic quotation of Scripture terms, which, however, are often scarcely recognizable, they are so warped and twisted to suit the theories to which our authors are predisposed.

We would they were one thing or the other; confined strictly to the word, or free from it. They so much desire to be free, that from our heart we wish they were. They dare not; their timidity keeps them back lest they be found theoretically rejecting the Book. They do this practically, even when they spiritualize, much more when they assert the exact contrary of Bible phraseology. Better by far is it to discard even all professed belief in the Bible, than to even attempt to make it responsible for that of which it is fully innocent. An example of this half bound, half free sort, is found in the familiar hymn commencing—

"A charge to keep I have,"

in which the poet sings in one of those moments of attempted flight, when high above all literal things and sense, of his

"Never dying soul to save,
And fit it for the sky."

Well, it is not a wonder, surely, if, flying thus away from the Bible, the poet should get the idea of a fly-away soul, whose wings, now folded in the body-cage, shall fly to some far-off world in the 'blue ethereal sky,' for which it is better fitted than elsewhere. He is, however, more moderate in his expressions than he who sings of going

"Beyond the bounds of time and space";

or than he of our childhood's hymn memories, who told us that

"There is beyond the sky
A heaven of joy and love"; and that

"Holy children when they die Go this world above."

These latter accord to the "fit" ones "holy" a much loftier place than the other. Maybe they rose higher in their flight, felt more free, and hence sang of a higher home of the never-dying soul. No consequence, however, if he who sings of "A never dying soul to save" and they do so blankly disagree; some singing of a home in the sky, and some getting it beyond it, and hence beyond all "space."

Immateriality requires no definiteness; locality is too gross for it, and hence it makes no difference what they believe or sing, except some one should chance to sing of this earth as the future home; then the difference would be evinced in the strong opposition that would be raised against it. If they wish to sing nonsense, we will allow them the privilege, but protest that we cannot sing with them. We remember with what feelings we scanned the field of poetical literature as we were about to relinquish our long-cherished faith of soul-immortality. We were possessed with the idea that poetry must be free to roam over the field of fancy, and could not be made on such a literal basis as this sublunary earth's crust. But we have learned better now, and can find as good measure as ever man wrote, scriptural, and sparkling with sentiments that cheer the pilgrim's heart.

It is amusing to notice the poetical jingle as found in the hymns we have quoted, and in others. It grows out of a fancied necessity, not so much to be scriptural as to have good poetry, even if it have no sense but fancy. And so it runs on with a starting point of—go to heaven when you die, so you have "love" with "above." If the poet has a God to glorify, he must search for some poetical rhyming, and "sky" is just the thing. If "die" is the word, then "sky" again comes into beautiful requisition; and such "a true yoke-fellow" fitness have these words, that they are often together in spiritual company joined to assist the poet's measure into a rhyming lay, prepositioned by such words as the poet's whim may dictate, there being no prohibition except it be in this, that one must tend upward and not get it this side the starry way on pain of charge of heresy.

It is not strange that these poets and those who sing for them, by singing their "hymns," acquire a distaste for any thing tangible and real, such as the resurrection of the dead as the way of life in the future, and life as existence in the eternal God-promised home of the saints on the earth renewed. There is, however, no language which suits so easily our thoughts and feelings, and which we feel so comfortable in using, as the precise, literal language of the Bible, whether we would express Bible sentiments in prose or poetry. We ask, and can have, nothing better or as good.

Our poet of the "never-dying soul," after taking his rarified flight, evidently bethinks himself of his wide departure from the Word by declaring so directly adverse to it, and so he comes back suddenly to an apologetic quotation of the Scripture term, or an attempt at it, although he simply changes his adjective for an adverb of contrary meaning. He retains his word dying, but seizes "forever," and puts it in the place of "never," or does something else with it, or knoweth not what he doeth, but really falls into the difficulty of contradicting himself, and so makes bad work; for his second attempt is to redeem himself from suspicion. So he turns over completely, and attempts to spiritualize that which he has before disputed in toto, and hence he falls into another difficulty, worse than self-contradiction, that of trying to make the Bible support his pet theory, and so he cries out—

"If I my trust betray,
I shall forever die;"

which means (haven't we the right to tell what he means as well as he to tell what the Bible means?) that instead of never-dying, the opposite is true, and yet not true, as his attempt at being scriptural is abortive; for his "dying" is to be so eternally extended that the poor never-forever-dying soul is never to be dead, and hence the term "die" must be a misnomer; for how can that die, or forever die, or be forever dying, which can never be dead? The verb die expresses the action by which one becomes dead; hence to die is to tend toward death according to the Adamic penalty; literally,—in dying thou shalt die. One can never tend toward that which does not exist. When one is dead he has ceased to die; he has died, and may remain so and be forever dead; but he cannot forever die.

So we find the poet's double trouble. His first "never-dying" expression is freest from any thing like Bible trammeling, but it is nevertheless no more really a teacher of endless life in misery. What words are these—"never dying" and "forever die" to yoke together to plough the theological field? Nevertheless they are thus employed, and remind us of the injunction of Jehovah to the Jews, not to plough with two different animals together. Well, let them plough, and we will consent to the propriety of the same, for, after all, we see that what is forever dying is really "never dying."

We have patched up the first stanza of this hymn for our "Jubilee Harp," patching over the unsightly and unsound part, so it goes very well. But would it not be advisable to try a hand at the last verse? Give it a good overhauling, and see if it cannot be made to harmonize with the truth before we sing it a long while more.

We refer to but one more poem on this interesting subject, and cannot forbear giving the whole. It is from the pen of Thomas McKellar. His song is of the land immortal, the place where men go when they die; which is not a land at all, but only the shadow of a land. The poem is faultless in measure, and smoothe in rhyme, but, alas for its theology! He says—

"There is a land immortal,
The beautiful of lands;
Beside its ancient portal
A sentry grimly stands;
He only can undo it,
And open wide the door,
And mortals who pass through it
Are mortal never more.

That glorious land is heaven,
And death the sentry grim;
The Lord thereof has given
The opening keys to him;
And ransomed spirits sighing,
And sorrowing for sin,
Pass through the gates in dying,
And freely enter in.

Though dark and drear the passage
That leadeth to the gate,
Yet grace attends the message
To souls that watch and wait;
And at the time appointed
A messenger comes down,
And guides the Lord's anointed
From cross to glory's crown.

Their sighs are lost in singing,
They 're blessed in their tears,
Their journey heavenward winging,
They leave on earth their fears;
Death, like an angel seeming,
We welcome thee, they cry;
Their face with glory beaming,
'T is life for them to die.

We do not propose to spend much time with this excellent specimen of popular theology, but a few special points we wish to notice.

1. A grim sentry stands at the ancient portal.

2. This sentry is death, which has the appearance of an angel to the dying saints, who comes for them.

3. This sentry has the opening keys of the portal. Turn to Rev. 1: 18, and read—"I am he that liveth and was dead [death cannot talk like that]; and behold, I am alive forevermore, and have the keys of hell and of death." Jesus, the resurrected Savior, utters these words, and we must impeach the testimony of Mr. McKellar that death has the keys, however transcendently beautiful his poetic idea may be, because Jesus is to be believed rather than that poet. It must be that Mr. McKellar had never read Rev. 1: 18; if he had, he must have taken advantage of the theological license, and have spiritualized the words of Jesus to mean, not that he had the keys, but that death had them.

Again, "ransomed spirits pass through the gates in dying, and freely enter in." Query. What dies? The spirits? They do not lose their powers of vocalization, for they change sighing to singing, as they go up to heaven and are mortal "never more." Were they mortal spirits once? It would seem by the poem that the change from mortal to immortal was in the instant of passing "through the gate." Another glaring violation of Scripture truth; see 1 Cor. 15: 53, 54, which teaches that this change is in the resurrection morning. But it may be he believes, with some others, that the resurrection is when the spirit leaves the body. But the Bible teaches that it is when the saints come out of the grave, and not when they go into it, that they are raised from the dead; and this seems the most sensible.

The last two lines tell us that their faces beam with glory, and "'t is life to die." Whose faces "beam"; the face of the mortal body or of the spirit? Alas! the ambiguity of immateriality clings to and inheres in it all, and it closes up with the cap of the climax—that "'t is life to die."

Notice the verse at the head of this article, and notice how it mixes things to make death mean life. See also the work it makes with Romans 6: 23—"The wages of sin is [life], but the gift of God is" eternal death. For surely if death is life, life is death; hence if death is life to the sinner (or, according to Mr. McKellar, to the saints also), then death being life, or life in misery, life is death in happiness. But we can go no further; we forbear; and solemnly declare that we can get no light from any thing out of the Bible on this track, and we will cling to the Book if it does make us unpopular.

PREACHERS AND OTHER FOLKS.

WM. A. FENN.

It is to be remembered that preachers and their families are related to mankind. The prevailing idea relative to them however, is, that they are by some miraculous power relieved from the current expenses of a common livelihood, so that about one half that is necessary to provide for an ordinary day laborer and his family, will enable the preacher and his family to live above board.

A mechanic needs from two to three dollars per day in order to meet his current expenses, and even at this sum he must be very industrious and lose no time, or he fails to bring the year around and "owe no man anything."

But how with the preacher? Why, we gave him a clean ten dollar bill Sunday night after his third sermon, and he looked pleased, and thanked us, and gave us encouragement that he would come again. That looks like doing business for the Lord in a fair and honorable way.

But how much did it cost the preacher to get to your place and back home again?

Well, perhaps two or three dollars. That is not much! that will leave him seven or eight dollars for his day's work and he will feel well over it.

How many in his family depend upon him for their support?

Only five, all told.

Well, let us see now. Suppose he has eight dollars when he gets home Monday night; that would be one dollar and sixty cents each, for board, clothes, house rent, coal, doctor's bills, and all.

Really, it does not go so far after all; but if he gets pinched he must go to work, as Bro. B. does.

Do you call Bro. B. to preach for you?

We did invite him once, but he was so dull, and you know our people here are in the habit of listening to good talent.

Did you give Bro. B. anything?

O yes! we paid his expenses to and from his appointment, and that was all he ought to have, as he works, you know, to support his family.

Would Bro. B. improve by giving his entire time to the work of the ministry?

O yes! he has excellent, natural gifts, but he is uncouth in his address, his hands are so crooked and black, and his face does not look ministerial at all, and the people, you know, call him a farmer.

But do you not think it would make quite a difference with Bro. A., if he should go to work to take care of his family?

O, I don't know; he is a splendid preacher, and I think he would preach well if he did work with his hands.

But does not the Bible say, "Even so hath the Lord ordained that they which preach the gospel should live of the gospel"? 1 Cor. 9: 14.

Yes, but we have to economise as reformers; and preachers cannot expect to receive fat salaries in preaching an unpopular gospel.

But do the people who profess to believe this gospel economise in their living, and sacrifice to help the cause forward?

Some of them do.

Who find fault with Bro. B.'s preaching; those who are self-sacrificing, or those who are worldly-minded?

Why, the latter, of course.

But let us here introduce a preacher and his wife, as they meet after an absence of four weeks. The ordinary salutation passes, when the wife says—

What makes you look so down-hearted? Has the Lord not blessed your labors?

O yes! several professed faith and were baptized; but as I took up the paper I saw that coal had advanced twelve shillings on a ton, potatoes are selling for eighty cents, flour is advancing, apples are far out of our reach; the rent I knew was due, meats are very high, and I knew the children were in need of shoes and winter clothing; and as I felt the snow striking against my cheek so cold, reminding me that winter was upon us, it made me feel a little discouraged.

Why so? have not the Lord's stewards remembered your wants?

O yes! I have got fifty dollars, and only been out four weeks.

Thank the Lord that you have done so well; but you must eat your supper.

Have n't you got any butter?

Not a mouthful; we have been without four days now; but here are some canned cherries to eat with your bread; you know the Lord favored us with a nice lot of cherries last summer; and you shall have the first taste of what I canned.

But did not you and the children have some?

O no! but we got along all right.

See that tear standing in the husband's eye as he thinks of the kind-hearted wife, who a few years ago was an indulged girl, who knew nothing of the hardships of a preacher's wife, and who did not marry a preacher either; and he almost resolves to quit the field of gospel labor and take up the saw and hammer again, and try to lighten the toils of a faithful wife, whose uncomplaining spirit is harder to endure than a fault-finding one would be to any true-hearted husband.

Well, has Mr. A. been for the rent?

O yes! but he seemed quite willing to wait a few days.

I see you have no fire in the sitting-room; are you out of coal?

Yes, or so very near out, that I did n't dare use it only in the kitchen; but I must confess I was somewhat mortified on receiving a call from Sr. D. this afternoon, and had to invite her into the kitchen, it was so cool; but I excused the matter, saying you had been gone longer than you anticipated, and she seemed to sympathize with me, and thought it quite hard to have to do all the shopping, ordering goods, etc., in the absence of a husband; but you know the shopping and ordering goods would not trouble me much, if that was the worst of it; but the pay part is what troubles me.

Well, we should be thankful that we are all well, and have got fifty dollars to lay out for necessaries. Let us see now. We want a ton of coal (or ought to have four); that is eight dollars; and a sack of flour, which will be two dollars; and Jimmies' shoes, which he must have, two dollars more.

Yes, but the boy has got to have an entire suit, and besides, Nellie's shoes are entirely used up, and she very much needs a hood and some flannel garments.

Well, what will they all cost?

Jimmie's suit will cost eight dollars (and that you know is a very cheap one), and the shoes for Nellie, and other things, will cost about four dollars more.

Let us see now: coal, flour, shoes, clothing, etc., twenty-four dollars; and the quarter's rent, twenty-five dollars more; that leaves one dollar of the fifty; and where are the potatoes and sugar, and other groceries, coming from, besides a pair of boots I must have, and you must have a shawl or cloak, and a hat, some new shoes, and a pair of rubbers, and you need a new dress. Now I cannot endure this. I must quit preaching and go to work and take care of my family.

I suppose the people where you have been thought they were doing extra well by you to give you fifty dollars, and pay your traveling expenses, did they not?

O yes! and so they did do well; but you know that other place where I went I hardly received enough to get there and back.

O! I wish Jesus would come and deliver his dear people from the toils and hardships of this dreary world; but we must thank the Lord for the many mercies he has already given us.

The above is a pen picture of many a poor preacher's lot, and it might be wonderfully brightened if all the professed church of Christ would do their duty.

"THE WORLD'S CRISIS."

REDUCTION OF ITS SUBSCRIPTION PRICE.

At a meeting of the Advent Christian Publication Society, held August 23d, 1871, it was voted as follows:—

"That at any time during the year, if in the judgment of the Editor, Editorial Committee, and Business Agent, they see fit to reduce the price of subscription for the World's Crisis, they be authorized to do so."

It was stated in our last annual report, that if our subscribers all paid up promptly, the Society would be able to reduce the price of "our paper" to $2.00 per year. Independent of the names on our free list, $2.00 from each subscriber would give us a larger sum than we have ever received in any one year for the Crisis. This would enable us to continue the paper, as before, to the worthy on our free list, and pay all our bills promptly. We have been making special efforts to collect the dues on the paper, and have met with some success, yet not so full as we ought.

In accordance with the above vote, we have now decided to reduce the subscription price of

THE WORLD'S CRISIS,
Commencing with Volume XXXV.,
April 3d, 1872, to
$2.00 per year, Payable in Advance.

In remitting, our subscribers will please send for what they are owing, at the rate of $2.50 per year, to April 3d; $2.00, and at the same rate, for less than a year for the issue from that time forward.

As our price will be less, our friends will see that in order for our receipts to hold good, the number of paying subscribers must be increased; while the number of non-paying ones is diminished. Now we hope this may be accomplished; first, by an earnest, united, successful effort on the part of the friends of the Crisis in procuring and sending to the Office the names of a large number of new subscribers. Second, that a large number whose names have been on our books for years—delinquents, who have not paid any thing for a long time, will now at once write us, remitting a part, at least, of what they are owing, and paying for a year in advance, and thus become paying subscribers in fact, while for a long time they have been only such in name; otherwise, if we do not hear from them, we shall be compelled to drop their names from our list.

In regard to our free list, we would say—We hope that our receipts may be kept good as above, so that the Society may be able to continue the paper to the worthy poor among us, many of whom are in very destitute circumstances, and who should receive the Crisis freely so long as published. Yet it may be that there are some on the free list who are able to pay something. We trust they will do as the Lord would have them, but let none of the poor distress themselves. We believe the friends will see that we have funds to continue the paper to you as heretofore. Now is a good time for those who remit for themselves to put in something for the "poor fund." Those who are free to remit $2.50, as usual, can do so, and we will place the extra 50 cents on the fund to send the Crisis to the poor, free.

We doubt not the reduction will please our friends everywhere, and we hope they will sustain us in the same by their efforts and prayers. GEO. T. ADAMS,
Business Agent.

SACRAMENTO.

Our discussion with Mr. Lohmueller, the Spiritualist, closed Saturday evening, April 30th, before a crowded house. We have rarely seen the interest in a debate kept up through its entire progress better than during the one just closed. But few, perhaps, could have sustained the side of our opponent with any more success. He frankly admitted in his last speech that he was not fully prepared to meet some of our positions. They were new, and not what he expected.

The discussion has done great good, and has convinced many that Spiritualism is false, and of devilish origin, and also that no part of man is immortal in this life. Quite a number of church members now see this clearly, and are rejoicing in the truth, loving Jesus and the Bible more than ever. Like thousands of others, they are astonished they never saw the light before, when it is shining so brightly from the sacred word. Besides these, there are many unconverted who are also satisfied that our position is in harmony with all true science, as well as the Bible; and as a result several of them are known to be under deep conviction. Some of these are prominent men in society, holding honored positions in professional life. They were decidedly skeptical when they first came to the meetings, but when they saw that the doctrine of the Bible was in harmony with reason and science, they were disarmed, their opposition ceased, and conviction of sin followed.

Our great battle in Sacramento was fought on the life and death question. It was a hard-fought battle, but the victory was glorious. We had all the ministers against us; who did what they could to keep people away from our meetings, and to destroy our influence; but the people would come; and the more they heard, the more they desired to hear, until they became satisfied their preachers were teaching an unscriptural doctrine when they said man had an "immortal soul." When this point was settled, they could understand the Bible, which before was a sealed book.

Monday, April 1st. We are now sailing down the Sacramento river to commence meetings at Vallejo this evening. To-day the Legislature of California closes its session. It meets only once in two years. Our friend "C." has been reporting the doings of the Assembly for the Sacramento Daily Record. The reports are said to be the best published doings of any legislative body in the United States, excepting the reports of Congress in the Congressional Globe, at Washington. The Sacramento Record is a live paper, and is rapidly gaining popularity. This paper did much to increase the interest in our meetings, for which we feel grateful. Other papers—the Union, Bee, Reporter, and Press, were all friendly, and assisted us in our efforts to spread the truth. If the ministers had shown the same kind spirit as the editors, we think they would have been instrumental in increasing the amount of good some four-fold. It did seem too bad that they were unwilling to assist us in trying to save men.

Yesterday was a blessed day in Sacramento. The Lord was with us by his Spirit in a signal manner. At 11 and 7½ we preached in the Academy of Music. At two o'clock we had baptism. We preached on baptism, which resulted in causing several others to decide to be baptized at the next opportunity. We appointed April 11th as the time.

At 5 o'clock we had a union conference and prayer-meeting, followed by the sacrament of the Lord's Supper. This was the best meeting we have had since we came to this coast. It will not be soon forgotten by those present. The testimony of young converts, and of those longer by the way, the voluntary requests for prayers by the unconverted, the rejoicing songs, and the great promptness of action, all conspired to make the meeting a most happy religious feast. Persons of long experience in christianity said this was the best meeting they ever enjoyed.

The sacrament was a very heavenly season. We never felt more sensibly on such an occasion that our heavenly Father and his Son were favoring us with their smiles. About forty gathered around the table. Eyes were filled with tears of joy, and hearts overflowed with love for Jesus, while the bread and wine were passed among the friends of our dear Savior, to commemorate his death and sufferings.

In connection with this meeting, we presented the following Covenant, which was heartily adopted:—

"We, whose names are subjoined, do hereby covenant and agree, by the help of the Lord, to walk together as the church of Christ; faithfully maintaining its ordinances, taking the BIBLE as our only rule of faith and practice, church order and discipline; making Christian character the only test of fellowship and communion.

We further agree, with christian fidelity and meekness, to exercise mutual watch-care, to counsel, admonish or reprove, as duty may require, and to receive the same from each other as becometh the household of faith."

Dr. A. P. Truesdell, of whom we have spoken in other communications, was chosen Elder. A hall has been hired, and meetings will be held every Sabbath. Bro. Truesdell is a true christian, free from all sectarianism. It will be recollected we had a discussion with him on the subject of future punishment, when he became convinced our position was correct. He is now fully settled that there is no immortality out of Christ. He has decided to be baptized April 10th. Until he heard us preach on the subject, he had supposed that sprinkling was baptism. When we first went to Sacramento, we said to him that we expected he would become the pastor of the church that would be raised up in that city to look for the coming of Jesus. He thought we were making a very strange statement; but we made it on the ground of his known honesty in seeking after truth and righteousness. He is wholly consecrated to the Lord, and knows from years of happy experience what it is to enjoy the "perfect love" that casts out all fear. He has a lovely, intelligent, and amiable companion, who is a true wife and mother, enjoying the same perfect rest in Jesus.

While we are sailing down the river, whose banks are lined with fruit, orchards in bloom, green hills, and nice farms, we are looking back with much pleasure upon the blessed scenes of yesterday, and are fondly hoping for similar ones at Vallejo this week. Our stay on this coast is now near its end. We are glad we came. We feel sure the Lord directed us here for good. It is exceedingly pleasant to be guided by such a friend and lover as we have in Jesus. It removes all anxiety about to-morrow. The dear Lord has given us constant peace every hour since we left the New England hills. We can sing—"All is well." The future is bright, without a cloud. We are satisfied the morning of glory is but a short distance in the future. We long to see the opening of the eternal day, when all the pure will meet to part no more forever.

"O hail! happy day."

The following is from the Sacramento Record:—

"BAPTISM, AND ORGANIZATION OF A NEW CHURCH.—Yesterday afternoon Elder Grant baptized nine persons at the baptistry of the Fourth street Baptist church. In the evening, at five o'clock, a meeting was held at Odd Fellows' Hall, when a church of forty members was organized by the Elder. Dr. Truesdell was selected as Elder of the new church, and regular meetings were appointed for Sunday afternoons. At six o'clock a table was spread in the hall, and the Lord's Supper celebrated in the manner peculiar to Second Adventists. In this they claim that they copy most closely after the original pattern. All the communicants sitting at the table, the bread and wine is passed around from hand to hand. Then 'testimonies' are called for, and those who choose so to do respond in 'experiences,' or 'hopes,' or 'confessions for Jesus,' as the answers to the summons of the presiding Elder are variously termed. Last night Elder Grant preached his last discourse in this city, at the Academy of Music, to a large audience. His 'parting advice,' as he named his valedictory, was full of practical moral injunctions, put in a fresh, nervous, magnetic, and at times really eloquent, manner. The Elder expressed himself as exceedingly gratified at the result of his mission in Sacramento; as he thought, under the circumstances, much good had been manifested as the result of his humble efforts. He had made many warm friends, whom he hoped to meet in the kingdom. Over one hundred persons rose in the audience to testify their gratitude on account of the Providence that had brought the Elder to this place."

"THE SUMMER LAND."

California has well been called the "Summer Land." It is a remarkable country. It abounds in choice fruits and flowers, rich soil and grains, with a delightful climate. To-day (March 28th) vegetation is as forward as it would be in New England the first week in June. Peach trees have been in bloom for two weeks; pear, quince, apricot and apple trees are now in bloom; red, yellow and white climbing roses, lilacs and honeysuckles, are also in bloom, making the homes look very pleasant. Figs are grown as large as smallish butternuts, strawberries are being sold in the streets, and the leaves of some trees are nearly full grown. Everything presents a summer look, that is really charming; while the distant Sierras are covered with deep snow. This is the most delightful season of the year on the Pacific coast.

Some are asking us for information relative to exchanging their eastern homes for a residence here. We would not advise any one to come to Cal. who cannot get a comfortable living east of the Mississippi river. It is no place for a lazy man. Good mechanics can do as well here, perhaps, as in other places. If a man can reach Cal. with fifteen hundred dollars, lay out one thousand of it in the purchase of land, then be industrious, he may expect to do well. He can find good land for five or ten dollars an acre. It is true that a farmer's success will depend much on whether there is plenty of rain. If one has a pleasant home in the east, we would not urge him to depart for the "Summer Land."

A NEW RELIGION.

In these last days, men and demons are inventing new religions with all the zeal that any mechanic ever contrived a new machine. The greater the variety, the more of confusion, and the less the confidence of the people in any one among the many. They are like the multitude of quack medicines, of which it may be said, a little good nursing is better than the whole collection; so one taste of the pure religion of Jesus is far better than all the other varieties in the world. But what about the other new one? Here it is, from the San Francisco Daily Chronicle, March 16th, 1872:—

NEW RELIGIOUS SECT.

"Another religious sect in England. Its members are called 'Comprehensionists.' We quote from a bulletin which they have put out: 'What is called Comprehension? It is a practical co-operation in every direction to unite mankind into one church.' 'The principle,' we are further told, 'of this church is in the character of the individual as having a feeling of personality—an inclination to separation and an atraction to amiability. The creed is a belief in the Beyond!' After wasting a good deal of time in the attempt to comprehend this Comprehension, we give it up, our liveliest feeling being that it is hardly worth while to propound a religious creed in the shape of a conundrum."

The complexion of this looks very much like Spiritualism. This is a prominent feature in the programme of the demons "to unite mankind into one church." This we believe to be Satan's last effort to establish his own religion in opposition to the Christian. The conflict will not be a feeble effort. Whoever stands in opposition will need to be clothed with "the whole armor of God." Mere human strength will not be sufficient to overcome this strong foe. His supporters are becoming very bold and defiant. This is the time to trust wholly in the Lord of hosts; then victory is sure to the faithful.

THE RELIGION OF SPIRITUALISM.

Spiritualism claims a place among the religions of the day as truly as does Catholicism, Mohammedanism, Shakerism, or Mormonism. It has one special, pet doctrine, beyond which it has no other test; and that is a belief in the immortality of the soul. Mrs. Victoria C. Woodhull, the President elect of the National Association of Spiritualists, has addressed an official letter to the Spiritualists of the United States, in which she says:—

"There are millions of people in this country, and millions more in other countries, who now either openly or privately acknowledge that they have found a two-fold preciousness in Spiritualism: one as affording a vivid proof of the immortality of the soul—a doctrine which theologians have taught dogmatically, but which Spiritualists have proved scientifically; and the other as ministering an unspeakable solace to the sorrow-stricken hearts of those who, in this world, yearn unutterably toward the sacred objects of their love and friendship escaped into the other. Modern Spiritualism has thus been the greatest blessing which the world has enjoyed during the present century."

In connection with the foregoing from Mrs. Woodhull, the editor of the Banner of Light says:—

"Spiritualism being, by reason of its palpable proof of the soul's immortality and the daily presence of the angels, the 'chief and best religion in the world.'"—Banner, Dec. 2nd, 1871.

Satan would be glad to make people believe that his religion, which denies God and the Bible, and Christ as our Savior, is the "best . . . in the world." He would have us believe there is no sin; hence we need no Savior to forgive sin. It seems strange that sensible persons should be led to believe the monstrous absurdities and lies of the demons, instead of the facts and true doctrines of Christianity; but so it is in these last days, as foretold by the prophet.

THE "Report" of tent meetings, which was submitted to the late Conference in Chelsea, came too late for this week. It will be given in our next issue.

DISCUSSION IN SACRAMENTO.*

We are having at this time (March 29th) an interesting discussion in Sacramento on the subject of Spiritualism. We are holding the debate in the Academy of Music, which is full every evening. Many intelligent men are deeply interested, and are becoming satisfied that our position is in harmony with reason, science, facts, common sense and the Bible. Our opponent is Mr. C. A. Lohmueller, with whom we discussed the same subject in San Francisco. He is a brilliant young German, who has been lecturing in Oregon on the subject of Spiritualism. He is frank and honest; quick to perceive a point, possessing fine reasoning powers, and a lover of metaphysical subjects. He is honorable and gentlemanly in debate, seeking to win by fair means. He is ambitious to become a first-class debater, and bids fair to secure his object.

Spiritualism has a very strong hold in Sacramento, as it has generally on the Pacific coast. It is fast becoming the leading religion, with a prospect of securing the controlling power in church and state. This is the avowed purpose of the demoniacal spirits, who are taking the lead in the strong phenomena. Their success is alarming to those who love a pure christianity, and wish to preserve sacred things from the polluting breath of infidelity and sensuality. Though our opponent has not yet submitted to be led by the spirits into all the vileness of Spiritualism, yet they have led him far from the doctrine of the Bible. He boldly stated that the "God of the Bible was but a myth." His attack upon the Scriptures and their Author was earnest, but no more successful than the dog that barks to stop the express train, moving forty miles an hour. He professed to believe in the God of nature, but found himself without any foundation for a charge against the God of the Bible, that did not stand with equal force against his God of nature. When we had shown that there can be no intelligent being without a personality having senses, we inquired if his God of nature had any senses? We found him unwilling to answer; for he saw at once, if he admitted, as the spirits claim, that God is only a "principle," he could not be intelligent; hence could not communicate with any one. Of course, that which has no personality, no senses, would be unable to hold communion with any living being; therefore must be inferior to man, who is known to be intelligent. This is just what Spiritualism teaches,—that man is the highest God.

Our opponent laid down the following proposition: "Spiritualism is the natural religion of man, and is just as impure as the natural man." We did not hesitate to pronounce this the devil's religion, and utterly opposed to all true reform. He claimed that the God of nature saved everybody, and condemned no one; that each man expiated his own sins, if he had any, and needed no other Savior but himself; that "man's natural demands were his highest commands." Hence it would follow that if a man's natural heart was filled with lust, such a feeling would be his "highest commands;" or in other words, whatever a man most desires to do, is that which he is under the most obligation to perform, provided the other party is agreed. We thought it needed no argument to prove that this must be the devil's religion; and that no natural man could ask any greater license. His God of nature, as he claimed, proposed to save all men as they are, and let them all do as they please till he calls for them to go to the "spirit-land."

The following are some of the points we presented for our opponent's consideration: "Man is an organized being made of the dust of the ground in the image of his Creator." "Every intelligent being must have a personal identity." When his personal identity ceases, his intelligence ends also." "None but living bodies are intelligent." "Every conscious being must have senses." "There can be no senses without a personal organism." "Hence every conscious, intelligent being must of necessity be a real person." "The senses never exist as independent personalities." "The nerves do not feel when taken out of the body. The ear does not hear, the eye does not see, the tongue does not talk, the feet do not walk, the hands do not work, the heart does not beat, the brain does not think, after separation from the living personality." "Where there is no life, there is no consciousness." "There is no life where there is not an organism." "Therefore there is no consciousness where there is no organization." "As all the senses of every sentient being are inseparably connected with the personal organism; and as no one can be intelligent without senses; it follows that when the organism, having the senses, is dead, that person is unconscious and knows nothing. Hence we are driven to the conclusion that none of the phenomena of Spiritualism can possibly proceed from man between death and the resurrection." These points were passed unnoticed by our opponent. We then presented the following:

"Nothing immaterial can be a personality, and have senses." "No material part of man leaves at death to return as an organized man." "No immaterial thing can exist any longer than the material object to which it belongs; hence, when a being is dead, it is not possible that something immaterial, that inhered in his constitution, should continue to exist as an intelligent personality, and return to communicate." "All attributes are immaterial. Love, desire, life, happiness, holiness, wickedness, pain, thought, etc., are attributes, and end with the death of the person." "No amount of attributes, or immaterialities, can make a personality." "If the mind is a personality, what is its shape? Has it organs of speech, feet, hands, head, heart, independent of the physical organism? Who will affirm and prove it?" "Thought always ceases, like all other attributes, with the death of the living organism." "In man and beast, thought is the result of an active brain; hence a child's brain produces a child's thought; dotard's brain a dotard's thought; deranged brain, deranged thought; idiot's brain, an idiot's thought; and a dead brain no thought. All physiological facts support these propositions, which are also in harmony with the Bible." "Hence, from these premises, we deduce the proposition: "The phenomena of Spiritualism do not proceed from any part of man that survives his death." We urged our opponent to disprove these points by reason, science, Bible, or any other true source of evidence; but the attempt was not made.

The discussion has been the means of opening the eyes of many to see that Spiritualism rests on the lie of Satan,—"Ye shall not surely die." People gaze with wonder at the simplicity of the truth on this subject; and express astonishment at their former blindness concerning a matter so plain. It is even a mystery to them why they did not see it before. They had taken it for granted that we are all immortal, and, consequently, had given no special thought to the subject. Their joy at finding the truth, is like one emerging from a dungeon to behold the beautiful landscape in a sunny day.

We do not believe it is possible for a person to understand the plan of salvation, or to see the harmony of the Bible, so long as he believes man is naturally immortal. Thank the Lord, the light is spreading rapidly in all directions. Let us all lend a helping hand.

TO DR. J. LITCH.—In the Advent Herald, Jan. 24th, 1872, is found the following from your pen:—"For nearly thirty years I have stood prominently before the world as a believer in the plain scriptural doctrine of the conscious existence of the soul after death; and of the eternal conscious sufferings of the wicked."

Bro. Litch:—Permit me to inquire if you are willing to discuss with me in oral debate one of the following propositions:—

"Do the Scriptures teach that man has an immortal soul?"

"Do the Scriptures teach that man has a soul which is conscious between death and the resurrection?"

"Do the Scriptures teach that every part of man is wholly mortal, and unconscious between death and the resurrection?"

The time, place, and other preliminaries to be mutually arranged.

A copy of this has been sent to the Advent Herald.

ETERNAL LIFE.

"And this is the promise that he hath promised us, even eternal life."—1 JOHN 2: 25.

As life is an attribute, and not an entity, or organism of itself, it cannot exist outside of a living body. With this fact before us, we inquire how much of man may hope for the promise of "eternal life?" One thing is certain, the Lord would not promise to give us what we already possess; hence eternal life is not in us now; if it were, then we could not die. We learn that eternal life is the gift of God through Jesus Christ. Rom. 6: 23. As life is an attribute of a living body, and as no attribute can exist independent of a body, it follows that whoever has eternal life must have a body. When the living body is destroyed, the life ceases also.

"He hath promised us . . . eternal life." What does the word us signify? Does it include a man's eyes, ears, organs of speech, nervous system, hands, feet, legs, heart, head, and body as a whole; or are all these excluded? We read "our vile body" is to "be fashioned like unto his [Christ's] glorious body." Phil. 3: 21. Again, the Scriptures say "this mortal must put on immortality." 1 Cor. 15: 53. Then the time must come when the life attribute, or principle, will eternally animate these bodies which are mortal in this present world. Eternal life is not promised to attribute itself, but only to an organized body; therefore, if we live forever, we must have bodies forever. This is brought about by the resurrection of the dead.

"PREACHERS AND OTHER FOLKS."—Our readers will find an article in another column, relating to preachers and their families, that should have a careful consideration by the church of Christ. Many seem to have forgotten that it costs about twice as much to live now as it did before the war. While this is true, it is also true that many churches give their preachers no more than they did ten or fifteen years since. As a consequence many of them feel almost crushed and disheartened. These things ought not so to be.

Let the preachers who are proclaiming the last solemn message to a judgment-bound world feel the sustaining hand of those who sympathize with them in their important work. Stand by them with a noble and generous heart. Inquire into their necessities, and see that they are supplied. We are confident there is no class of preachers who are so stinted in supplies as those who are proclaiming the coming of Jesus.

Will not those who truly love Jesus and his appearing, look to this matter more carefully? Remember the word of the Lord reads: "Whoso hath this world's good, and seeth his brother have need, and shutteth up his bowels of compassion from him, how dwelleth the love of God in him? . . . Let us not love in word, neither in tongue, but in deed."

A despatch to the Boston Journal from Concord, N. H., April 14th, says of the revival in that city under the labors of Brn. Hook and Lutz:—

"The Second Advent protracted meeting, which has been held nearly every day in Phœnix Hall for a month past, under the direction of Elders Hook and Lutz, is expected to close this evening. The attendance to-day on the various sessions has been immense. It is estimated that five thousand people have been present to-day. About five hundred joined in the communion this afternoon, administered in the 'primitive form.' Over eighty have been baptized by immersion, and more than double that number have been forward for prayers."

IN Bro. Pennoyer's article last week, second column, last paragraph, for "1874" read 1884.

PURIFICATION OF HEAVENLY THINGS.

A friend asks our mind on the following text—"For when Moses had spoken every precept to all the people according to the law, he took the blood of calves and of goats, with water, and scarlet wool, and hyssop, and sprinkled both the book, and all the people. . . . Moreover he sprinkled with blood both the tabernacle, and all the ministry. And almost all things are by the law purged with blood; and without shedding of blood is no remission. It was therefore necessary that the patterns of things in the heavens should be purified with these; but the heavenly things themselves with better sacrifices than these." Heb. 9: 19–23.

While it is true that this "sprinkling," which prefigured "the blood of sprinkling," which Peter styles the "sprinkling of the blood of Jesus Christ" (1 Pet. 1: 2), was intended to purge the obedient practitioner from sin, or to purify the actual transgressor, it was simply intended to dedicate the inanimate things to which it was applied in the type, as the tabernacle, the vessels of the tabernacle, the candlestick, the table, the shew bread, and the mercy-seat with its appendages. These inanimate substances had no sins to be purged away by the sprinkling of blood, in the type, but were simply subjected to this form of purification as a dedicatory act; and in speaking upon this point, Paul says—"Neither the first testament was dedicated without blood." Heb. 9: 18. The same dedication is here referred to in the antitype, by the purification of "the heavenly things."

These "heavenly things," so far as they relate to the "holy of holies," only need dedication, just as the mercy-seat did in the type, and not purification in any other sense; for they have never been polluted. Things that are polluted need to be purged before being dedicated, while unpolluted things only need to be dedicated.

This holds as true in the antitype as to the type. This consideration shows in what sense the blood of Christ is said to purify "things in the heavens"—the same sense in which they were purified in the type,—merely dedicated. When the same ceremonial was applied to sinners, it was to purge them, as well as to dedicate them. In the type the High Priest offered blood for himself, as well as for the people, to purify both himself and the people from sin; but in the antitype, Christ, our High Priest, had no sins to purge away; so the offering of blood for himself can only be for his purification in the sense of dedication.

Through faith sinners on earth can be made the recipients of the "sprinkling of the blood of Jesus Christ," to purify their hearts, and dedicate them to the service of God. It can just as consistently be affirmed that Christ and "the heavenly things" were dedicated, as that Christ was sanctified; but it could not be truthfully affirmed that they were cleansed from sin. W. S.

MARY'S GENEALOGY.—A friend thus writes me:—"Bro. Sheldon:—Who was Mary, the mother of Jesus?" Spiritualists say that in order for Jesus to be of the seed of David, Joseph must have been his natural father, and therefore he is not the Son of God. Please explain through the Crisis.

A SEARCHER AFTER TRUTH."

Mary's genealogy is traced back to David, by Luke, through Heli, the father of Mary. Luke 3: 23–31. The name of Joseph is used instead of Mary's name, as that was the Jewish method of giving genealogy,—using the husband's name instead of the wife's,—and, hence, it is said that Joseph "was the son of Heli" simply in the sense of his being his son by marriage. That Heli was not the father of Joseph except by marriage, is positively proven by the statement of Matthew—"Jacob begat Joseph, the husband of Mary." Then it is certain that Heli did not beget Joseph; hence Joseph "was the son of Heli" only by marriage, Heli being the father-in-law of Joseph, or the father of Mary, through whom Christ is traced back to David. W. S.

NOTE FROM A CATHOLIC LADY.—A Catholic lady of intellect attended my meetings in a southern city, and heard me on the prophecies with interest. I sent her reading matter. After several weeks, she writes me the following note:—"Mr. Sheldon:—Excuse the liberty I take in writing to you. I wish to acknowledge the receipt of those papers you sent me. I am sincerely thankful for them and hope they will accomplish their mission. I am a Catholic, but I am not a bigoted one. I will acknowledge the truth, let the result be what it may. I desire your prayers, and all good true christians. Accept my thanks.

I omit her name. Her attention was arrested by the fulfillment of prophecy, showing that we are near the end of time. We expect to hear soon that she is fully the Lord's. Others will see the light if we will only let it shine upon their path. She has read my work on the prophecies ("Adventism"), and other works on our faith, since listening to my sermons, and knows well what our faith is. Though still nominally a Catholic, the light of truth is penetrating her intellect and heart. W. S.

MASS. CONFERENCE.

The late Annual Conference at Chelsea, was one of the sweetest meetings we have had, and was fully attended by the faithful in Christ Jesus, and many from other States. It was delightful to meet the disciples looking for their long absent Lord on their homebound passage. The business meetings were characterized with love and harmony, such as would bind the body more closely together.

The meetings for worship were spiritual. The Lord was indeed with us according to his promise. The spirit of labor for the poor unbelieving, became prominent, and there was an active and successful effort in this direction. The preaching was adapted to feed and strengthen the church and warn the impenitent. Some thought more should have been said directly on the time of the Lord's coming, but I doubt not those that preached tried to speak what the Lord bade them. It is often harder to please the brethren than to please the Lord.

Fast day and Sunday we were favored with more people than could be accommodated in the Chapel, and these were the great days of the feast. Sunday, after love feast, preaching and communion, closed up by many souls being found in the anxious seat, and the work of God has been progressing with us ever since. Meetings every evening, and growing interesting under the labor of the pastor. New ones coming forward for prayers, others finding joy and peace in believing. We are having blessed good soul-reviving times in Chelsea. No great excitement, but solemn, searching times. The Lord is reviving his work and saving men. Brethren, pray for us, that God will bestow his grace more wonderfully upon us, that we may be more in harmony with him, and ready for his coming. The Lord add to the church daily such as shall be saved.

Thine, L. BOUTELL.

THE TRACT FUND.

The Advent Christian Publication Society, at a meeting on Springfield Camp-ground, August 23d, 1871, voted to raise Two Thousand Dollars for the free distribution of Tracts the ensuing year; and they invite the help and co-operation of all lovers of the Lord and of his truth, in the furtherance of the good cause. The times are ominous of coming events, and admonish us to diligence in the Master's work. The Lord is at the door, and what we do must be done quickly. Let the contributions be prompt, hearty, and liberal. The Lord will reward the liberal giver.

Correspondence.

From Bro. J. C. Smith.

BRN. and SRS.:—A few months ago I came to Kansas much reduced in strength, and health, but now through the divine blessing of our heavenly Father I am much better so that I am able by his help to labor some in his vineyard, in publishing the Gospel of the kingdom to a perishing people. While I have been here I have tried to scatter some seed; have visited many places, and scattered tracts. Doors have been opened before me to come and labor. One week ago last Sunday I held meeting at Key West, by invitation. Spoke to them from Acts 1: 6. While I spoke to them of the coming glories in Bible language, their hearts were melted to love, and from their eyes could be seen tears freely flowing. All seemed interested, and listened with attention. At the close I invited all who desired to be remembered in the kingdom, and would try and meet me there to arise, and all in the house arose. Fathers of threescore years wept like children, and my heart was filled with contrition and praise, and with the rest shed tears of joy, to see the goodness of God manifested in such a manner. The Lord blest, and we had a refreshing season. I could but give him all the glory, and sing praises to his holy name. I left them with the invitation to come again. Had an invitation to visit another place. The doors are opening on every hand.

Next Sunday (Apr. 7th), the Lord willing, I am to speak at a place eight miles away. I shall endeavor by the help of the Lord to give them Bible truths relative to the speedy coming of Christ and the setting up of his everlasting kingdom. They have already intimated they desire my labors among them one half of the time; but this I shall not be able to do, for there are too many places to visit. The population of this State numbers more than that of N. H., and not a man that I know of is setting forth the precious truths of the state of the dead, coming of Christ, resurrection of the dead, the judgment day, etc.

Now what shall be done? The cry is—more reapers; reapers who are willing to go forth without the camp, bearing the reproach of a cold-hearted world; reapers who are not ashamed of the gospel of Christ; those who are willing to leave all, and go in the name of Jesus Christ; who are willing to give all for Christ, and not shun to declare all the counsel of God. The call comes from every quarter. Men are earnest to hear. They are sick of the theology of the day, and desire something better. There are hundreds of places in this State that ought to be visited. What I need is a horse and saddle to go over this vast prairie. I ask not for riches, but I do ask what I stand in need of, and I believe the Lord will give it me.

I would gladly greet some of the dear brethren from the East, to help in this great work. Will not some consider, and come this way, as the Lord directs? May some be stirred up to activity, and sent by the Holy Spirit. He who is to come will soon come, and will not tarry. Are we all ready for his appearing? Is our work done? Can we see multitudes perish without a warning? The Lord help us to see what we might do, and can do, by his help; and may we go forth weeping, bearing precious seed, that at last we may come again rejoicing, bringing our sheaves with us. Pray for me. Your brother in Christ.

J. C. SMITH.

Extracts from Letters.

BRO. J. B. FITCH writes:—"I have been traveling and laboring in the gospel in Annapolis, Queen's and Shelburne counties (N. S.), and find some who gladly receive the truth. I live in hope of devoting all my time in laboring in the gospel. I rejoice to hear the good tidings from California and the South and West. I am glad there is a prospect of soon meeting all Father's family, and being free from care, sorrow, pain, and death.

There is a little company of good, believing souls in Halifax. I was with them four weeks ago yesterday. They are doing well, and the Lord is adding to their number. Bro. Verge preaches to them. He is a good preacher, but like myself is cumbered with the cares of a family. He hopes to get out and spend all his time in the gospel field the coming summer. Brethren, let us not forget to pray the Lord of the harvest to send laborers into his harvest.

I should like to tell you what a good conference we had at Shag Harbor last October. Bro. Reid was there from Searsport, Me., and Brn. Hall and Tozier from Woodstock, N. B. There was a good attendance, and a general confession from the Lord's children of being comforted and strengthened. Our next conference is to be at Litchfield, Annapolis Co., in June. Will Bro. Hook ask Father to let him come to the conference? We want to see him very much; let him bring as many good children of the Lord with him as can come. Bro. Hook promised to come to this Province again, and this will be a good time to fulfill the promise.

Dear laborers in the Office, be of good courage, and the Lord shall strengthen your hearts. You are doing a great work, sending out light and truth to the world."

Bro. Henry Constable, Prebendary of Cork, Ireland, writes:—"I trust this great truth which we are advocating will gradually banish the abominable system which sprung from an admixture of philosophy and Christianity, and has falsely been claimed to be the truth of God. We make progress here, but it is against wind and tide. There is in Cork but little opening for public discussion on this question. No Episcopalian church in Cork is open to me to preach upon the subject, though I know of one at least who agrees with me, and occupies one of the principal pulpits. I do not think any of the other Protestant churches would open their pulpits to me. I was myself desirous that a public meeting should be called for discussion, but the friends on whom I must rely for carrying it out, composed of Presbyterians, Methodists and Episcopalians, did not appear.

Dublin is wild against our view, though I know that one of the leading Episcopalian ministers there is studying the subject closely. In England there is an open door."

Bro. S. W. Morrill writes:—"We are striving in Suncook, N. H., for the promise made to Abraham and his seed. We hold three meetings through the week, and the Lord is with us in power. Bro. Bridge was with us last Saturday evening, and preached the word. One rose for prayers; others promised to pray. Thank the Lord, his Spirit has not departed. He is giving the people one more call. My prayer to God is, Save many in this place; and I would say to the brethren, you who know our circumstances, pray for us, that the Lord will unite and build us up, and save a few more in Suncook."

Sr. R. A. Joseph writes:—"My companion and myself have no preacher but the Crisis. It comes to us like the refreshing dew on the herbage of the earth after a prolonged drought; but it makes us long to sit under the gospel sound, and to mingle hearts and voices with the dear friends of Jesus who are waiting his appearing. I am very thankful for the light I have received (mostly through the Crisis), and it does my heart good to read the letters from one and another, and to know that the cause of truth is gaining ground."

Bro. I. Finn writes:—"I long for the coming of our blessed Savior in the clouds of heaven. I want to be among the number that will rise to meet him in the air, and be clad in robes of righteousness forever; to have a home in the kingdom of God; to enter the New Jerusalem, the 'city that hath foundations, whose maker and builder is God'; where no night, no stormy wind or chilling blast, nor scorching sun, shall come near those that enter the glorious city our kind heavenly Father hath prepared for those that love and obey him."

Sr. S. Gadsby writes:—"I have given away the tracts you sent me, and am trying to do what I can to spread this truth here in Ware, but I find it very hard indeed. I mean to keep on with the Bible for my guide, and Jesus for my Master. I am poor in this world, but rich in Christ; but with health I ask no more. I would like to meet with some of the Advent people. My heart grows weary sometimes, being alone; but God is helping me and giving me courage."

WIS. QUARTERLY MEETING.

Our third quarterly meeting for the Eastern District was held with the Cassel's Prairie Church, March 22nd, and over the Lord's day. Although not so largely attended as could be desired, especially by ministers, yet we trust the meeting was not in vain. Some dear brethren and sisters came quite a distance to attend the feast, and it was good to see their friendly faces. We had some warm, earnest exhortation from the saints, which made up for the deficiency in preaching. We believe the Church was encouraged and strengthened by the visit of the brethren and sisters, and on the whole, we think the meeting exerted a salutary influence. Two arose for prayers at the close of the meeting. It seems to be the universal desire throughout this entire section, as far as we can learn, to have Bro. Grant attend our Annual Campmeeting in June; and we hope he will consider himself engaged for that meeting.

Fires.—Several destructive fires are reported from Ohio, Missouri, Pennsylvania, New York, Georgia, Canada, Iowa, and Wisconsin, as well as in places nearer home. Saturday, it was feared the western portion of Chicago would be sacrificed to the fire fiend, as a fierce gale was blowing, and several fires were breaking out in different places. Quantities of grain were destroyed at Toledo, O., one of the elevators on the Southern road having been burned. Ayer, in this State, was nearly destroyed on Sunday evening, the loss being estimated at $200,000. In Philadelphia, one of the horse railway companies, by the destruction of its buildings, suffers the loss of $100,000. These fires have occurred within the last three or four days.

GREAT BRITAIN.

THE ASSAILANT OF THE QUEEN.

London, April 11. The trial of O'Connor ended to-day. The jury were satisfied of the sanity of the prisoner, and brought in a verdict of guilty. O'Connor was sentenced to be imprisoned for twelve months at hard labor, and to receive twenty lashes.

GERMANY.

THE ARMY OF OCCUPATION.

Berlin, April 11. It is the general expectation in military circles here that the army of occupation in France will shortly receive heavy reinforcements from Germany, and that a large body of troops have received orders to hold themselves in readiness for that service. This action on the part of the imperial military authorities is stated to be in consequence of a growing suspicion that the French government meditates a speedy renewal of hostilities against Germany, with the view of regaining possession of the lost provinces, and also of gratifying a desire for revenge so prevalent among the French people. It is believed that a movement of this character on the part of Germany at the present time would effectually check the belligerent designs of France.

BISMARCK AND THE CATHOLICS.

The conduct of Bismarck toward the Catholics continues to be a cause of complaint by the people of that faith, and much feeling is expressed against him. His action in supporting excommunicated priests and chaplains, and continuing them in their places is especially considered a grievance among the Ultramontanes. In some cases the conduct of the government officers, acting under orders from the Chancellor, has been such as to create the utmost bitterness among Catholics.

FRANCE.

BONAPARTISM.

Paris, April 14. A large number of secreted arms have been found by the government and secured. Paris is full of rumors about Napoleon's secret operations, and couriers from Chiselhurst are closely watched by the police.

SPAIN.

THE CARLIST UPRISING—THE MOVEMENT INCREASING.

Madrid, April 13. Troops in Catalonia are in close pursuit of the Carlists who appeared in that province. The number of Carlist bands is increasing. A party of marauders to-day made an attempt to stop a railway train when only five miles from the city of Madrid, but were unsuccessful.

Dispatches received from the Captain General of Catalonia say that disturbances are feared in Barcelona. Castell's band, six hundred strong, is in the vicinity. A plan is afoot for twenty of the band to enter the city and set fire to some of the buildings, so that in the confusion all their companions can pass in and gain possession of the city. The proofs of the plot are in the hands of the authorities. A detachment of troops has been sent out to find Castell's band. The origin of the present disorders is attributed to the Internationalists, supported by Carlists and Republicans. The Minister of War has ordered the suspension of all military furloughs and the immediate return of officers to their posts.

SWITZERLAND.

THE GENEVA CONFERENCE.

Geneva, April 15. The sitting of the tribunal for the settlement of the Alabama claims opened at 9.30 o'clock this morning, and terminated at noon. The statement that Count Selopis presided was incorrect. None of the five arbitrators were present. Great Britain and the United States only were represented—the former by Lord Tenterden and Messrs. Taylor and Barnard, and the latter by Messrs. J. Bancroft Davis, Caleb Cushing and Charles C. Beaman. The official proceedings were confined to the delivery of documents to the Secretary of the tribunal, who will transmit them to the arbitrators.

THE RECENT EARTHQUAKE.

San Francisco, April 10. Letters from Lone Pine say that the whole of Owens Valley has been moved southward fourteen feet. Over seven thousand shocks have occurred to date, and they still continued, but not with sufficient force to do damage. The earthquake of March 26th hurled immense rocks down the cliffs into the valley of the Yo-Semite, smashing great pine trees to splinters.

An Indian runner brings a dispatch from the mouth of the Colorado river, which says the earthquake caused immense waves to roll up the Gulf of California, doing considerable damage to shipping.

THE INYO (CALIFORNIA) EARTHQUAKE.

Our California exchanges devote much space to accounts of the late fearful earthquake in Inyo county, dwelling at length on the various phenomena observable prior, during and subsequent to the shocks. The day preceding the earthquake a high wind prevailed over the whole valley, but at night subsided, and was then succeeded by a perfect calm. The noise of the shock is described as appalling. It seemed," says an eye witness at Independence, "as if the mighty mountains skirting the valley were breaking up and rolling into plains below—the sound was in the air and under the earth, and its reverberations through the tumbling mountains were as terrific as the noise itself." The first shock is also said to have been both oscillating and vertical. The ground heaved and vibrated, and then, as the awful sound died in its far off echoes, the inhabitants who had escaped from their crumbling houses aghast with fright, heard away to the south, down the valley toward Lone Pine, a sharp and thundering explosion as of a thousand columbiads fired at once. Nearer and nearer came the appalling noise, and as the shock advanced, thousands upon thousands of huge rocks tumbled from the crags on either hand and crashed with deafening din into the ravines and upon the edges of the valley below. Then came the noise under their feet, and with it, the awful, sickening and terrifying uplift and swing of the earth.

The same eye-witness says in continuation of the narrative: "The people ran to and fro, some screamed, some prayed, others stood still and watched the course of things with stoical indifference. They soon learned that one or two persons had been killed there, and yet none knew what the end might be, for the earth vibrated constantly. At short intervals would be heard away off in the direction of Lone Pine and the Lake that terrible boom! bang! as if the very mountains themselves were splitting in twain. 'Look out, boys,' they would cry, 'here she comes again!' and come she would. But in each instance they had time to brace themselves for the advancing shock. Not only did tens of thousands of rocks and boulders rolling down the mountains add to the confusion of the scene, but in the Sierras, on one side of the valley, avalanche after avalanche of snow was sent thundering, booming, almost screaming down from the regions of eternal frost and ice to the gulfs below."

At every succeeding shock, we are told, great sheets of flame could be seen bursting from the rifted rocks in the mountain sides on either hand, which would coil and lap about for a moment and then disappear. When daylight came the entire valley south of Independence and toward Lone Pine was filled with smoke and dust, and in places, people said, the fumes of sulphur were almost suffocating. The clouds of smoke extended from Fish Springs south as far as the eye could reach. From the time of the first shock till daylight the noises and shocks were incessant.

The shocks continued the next day, though much feebler, and underground noises were incessant. Many of the inhabitants believed that the last great day had come, and all were deeply affected by fear. Almost numberless incidents are related by the interior journals, and many strange and hair-breadth escapes are told.—Journal.

CALIFORNIA EARTHQUAKE.

The Cal. correspondent of the Daily Globe in this city has written an interesting account of the late earthquake in Inyo Co., from which we take some extracts:—

San Francisco, April 3d, 1872. Col. Whipple arrived in this city last evening from Lone Pine, Inyo Co., in this State, direct from the terrible scenes of the fatal earthquake which occurred at Lone Pine on the 26th of March. This gentleman bears bodily marks of suffering from his own building having fallen upon him, and out of the ruins of which he had a most miraculous escape. He comes to this city for the purpose of arousing the sympathy of the people in behalf of the survivors of the fatal occurrence. His descriptions of the sensations and terrors endured during the earthquake are simple, but graphic and thrilling. He says that at the time the first strong shock took place he was fast asleep, but the force of the shock threw him out of bed, and almost instantly he found the house tottering and staggering until it fell, a complete mass of ruins. Only one means of escape was left him—a small hole through which he saw the moonlight, and thus guided he escaped, bruised and bleeding, into the open air. Upon emerging the most heart-rending sights were to be seen. Those who had escaped immediate death by the crash of buildings were terror-stricken—men, women and children running about bewildered. Fathers were weeping over the loss of their children, and mothers in agony sought their babes. The wounded lying in the wrecked houses groaned for help, and here and there in the pale moonlight of the early morning, the faces of the dead were to be seen in ghastly boldness. * * *

Through the vast chasm caused by the sinking of the earth between Lone Pine and Owens lake, a river runs with considerable depth and great velocity. Water was never known to exist in the same locality before. While the great shock lasted Owens river ran up stream for several minutes, and in many instances overflowed its banks, casting out swarms of fish. Another extraordinary freak of the earth was the flashing of fires in the mountains, caused by the attrition of mighty masses of rock hurled from their fastnesses by the force of the shocks. As the terror-stricken inhabitants looked up towards the mountains, the fierce and fiery element dazzled them. It seemed as if so many spirit fiends were holding high carnival in the weird hours of the morning. * * * * *

On Tuesday last, the 26th of March, when the first shocks were felt, Col. Whipple asserts that a dense smoke and fog covered the whole valley, making the day as dark as night, and obscuring every object beyond his extended hand. The air was nauseous and sickening with gases; the earth groaned like a huge giant suffering from intense pain, and spit forth flames of fire. These features, with that terrible and unearthly feeling which a violent earthquake produces in the mind, warned the people of what was to come. But when and where the agonized earth would burst forth they knew not until its sudden throes as described. * *

On Wednesday, at the burial of the dead, a sad and appalling incident occurred. While a family consisting of five persons, a mother, her three children and two cousins, were being interred, a powerful shock occurred, when the grave instantly closed, and the funeral cortege left palsied. At another time a large opening was made with a view of depositing therein fourteen dead bodies, and while in the act some slight shocks also occurred. * * * * *

By a glance at the map, you will see that Inyo county lies in the southwestern part of this State. Although the earthquake was severest at Lone Pine, to a greater or less extent, it was a universal shock as far as this State is concerned. About the same time great consternation was felt at Sacramento by a sudden shock, and also at several other points. No loss of life is reported except as already narrated. The effect of the earthquake in San Diego county, in the extreme southern portion of the State, was, by a strange freak of nature, of most beneficial character. In several valleys fresh streams of water sprang up, and in some instances these will be of incalculable value for irrigation purposes. Amongst other curiosities, a new waterfall, over one hundred feet in height, has been formed at the head-waters of the San Diego river.

UTAH.

A VERY EXCITED MORMON.

Salt Lake, April 12. A most shameful speech was delivered at Beaver a few days ago by Elder Musser, Mormon Telegraph Superintendent, who said, rather than surrender one single principle of their religion, the Mormons would make Moscow of Salt Lake City, tear up the railroads, break down the telegraph lines and destroy millions of other property. He spoke of the President as "Useless Grant," and stigmatized him and others as a corrupt set, and also included the President's wife in his outrageous attack.

Wheeler's bill to promote the purity of elections, is condemned by the church as being designed to assist in the overthrow of Mormonism and the disfranchisement of its believers.

A TERRIBLE SNOW AVALANCHE.

Salt Lake, April 13. The snow avalanche Thursday and yesterday at Little Cottonwood was the most fearful ever known in this region. The slide at the Wellington mine came from a height of two thousand feet, carrying away everything in its course and burying the entire day force of workmen. The men were dug out alive with the exception of the foreman, H. H. Murray, whose body was brought here to-day. Seven men were caught in another slide, but were rescued. Two men at the Davenport mine were buried in a cabin, but escaped. Other slides are anticipated. In the storm of the last few days snow fell six feet on a level.

The call is out for a national convention to start Victoria Woodhull's new party and probably nominate her for the presidency, to meet in New York, at Steinway Hall, May 9th and 10th. It is announced that the convention is expected to be composed without regard to race, sex, nationality, or previous condition, and all labor, land, peace and temperance reformers, and internationals and women suffragists—including all the various suffrage associations, are especially urged to choose delegates. The party is to be called "the party of the people to secure and maintain human rights," and the convention is to prepare a platform and consider the nomination of candidates for president and vice president, who shall be the best possible exponents of political and industrial reform. We said the "call" was out for this convention, but there seem to be in reality two calls, one signed by Elizabeth Cady Stanton, Isabella B. Hooker, Susan B. Anthony, and Matilda Joslyn Gage, in behalf of the national woman suffrage association, and the other by a long list of miscellaneous reformers, with the name of Victoria Woodhull standing first and that of Harvey Lyman of this city last. The first named document enumerates among the reasons for calling the convention that the mission of the republicans is ended, and that party is now building up a commercial feudalism dangerous to the liberties of the people; that the democratic party is dead beyond the hope of resurrection, and that even that portion of the labor party which met recently at Columbus, proved its incapacity to frame a national platform to meet the demands of the hour. Of course everything will be fixed just right for everybody, in the Steinway Hall platform.—Springfield Republican.

The French Army Strength—Startling Facts.—The tremendous under-current of intrigue and preparation for another deadly struggle which is going on in Europe was never better illustrated than by the recent announcement that France now has at her disposal $871,000 soldiers, all ready for service. This statement, which was at first received with the incredulity which is apparently merited, is, nevertheless, confirmed very authoritatively. The army which was imprisoned in Germany, numbering about 380,000 men, is on a very good footing. Sobered by its long and shameful captivity, it has prepared itself for vengeance. There are also 68,000 reserve troops of really excellent character, and 423,000 gardes mobiles, who have "seen service," but who cannot exactly claim the distinction of being veterans. The men are not to be disputed, however. They really exist as an organized force, and as a force willing and anxious to fight. France intends, within the next two years, to bring her regular strength up to half a million of men; and to thus have two armies, one of veterans and regulars, and the other, five hundred thousand in number also, of militia, at her immediate command. Her artillery is still in bad condition, but great efforts are in progress for its renovation and improvement. Germany has found it necessary to very much improve her own artillery, and will no more than equal France in the vigor at her amelioration of that effective arm of the service. France is still determined on a speedy and terrible vengeance upon Germany, and the wise may not be able to restrain the over impatient. If trouble begins at all, it will probably occur shortly after the payments are nearly completed, and on some pretext connected with the "occupation." The rumor that the occupying forces will be strengthened is doubtless true; but of itself has no alarming significance. It is a precautionary measure, but is often taken on the strength of a rumor which proves totally without foundation.—Journal.

In Brief.

—Rev. Henry Blodget of China has just finished a seven years' work in revising a translation of the Acts of the Apostles.—Henry Ward Beecher preached last Sunday from the text of "Our Father," a sermon denying utterly the doctrine of fore-ordainment, and claiming God to be the God of love and not the fiend which such a dogma implies.—The Internationals have organized several branch societies in Washington.—The peach season is six weeks behind time in Georgia.—Several negroes have recently joined one of the sections of the International Society in New York.—Several prominent Mormons have been appointed to proceed to Europe on missions.—Vesuvius is still threatening an increased eruption, and public warning is given to all exposed.—Measures are in progress to have a religious campaign in this city in connection with the great International Jubilee in June. A tent will be erected near the Coliseum, in which religious services will be held daily, and Mr. Burnell, Mr. Moody and other lay laborers will participate in them, and efforts will be made to have sermons from Mr. Beecher, Mr. Cuyler and other prominent clergymen during the week. The meetings will be held under the direction of the Boston Young Men's Christian Association.—The Internationalists are very active in Spain, and there is reason to fear that the Society is organizing a movement which will declare itself simultaneously here and in other countries of Europe.

OUR LAST EFFORT.

"The Judge standeth before the door."—Jas. 5: 9.

The evidence points to 1873 as the time when Christ shall come, and we shall be called to give an account of our stewardship. The warning must go forth. Immediate action is demanded to give a distinctness to the cry—"Behold! the Bridegroom cometh!" We are already engaged in this work, and are sending out tracts; also receiving funds for this purpose. Let all who have hearts that beat in this direction, pray to the Lord of the harvest to send forth laborers into his harvest. Send funds or pledges for this purpose to Geo. T. Adams, Agent of the Adv. Chris. Pub. Society, or to L. T. Cunningham.

L. T. Cunningham $500.00

At the late Conference in Chelsea, Mass., the conference voted to hold twenty or more protracted meetings in new places, and chose the undersigned brethren to superintend that work. Where there is a desire and opening, let your wants be made known to either of this committee. Action is our motto. We expect to see the work of God prosper in every direction, by corresponding effort and humble reliance upon our heavenly Father. The coming of Jesus Christ and the gospel of the kingdom must be preached, and the alarm sounded as a witness to all nations; then will the end come.

The pledges to Mass. Conference at the Annual meeting, should be paid to the Treasurer, Charles Goodrich, Crisis Office, 160 Hanover St., Boston. L. Boutell.

The Alton Bay Campmeeting Committee will meet at Alton Bay, on the camp-ground, April 23d. J. Couch.

Pursuant to a vote of the Conn. A. C. Quar. Conference, at its last session, notice is hereby given that its next session will be held in Southington, to commence Wednesday evening, April 17th, and continue over the Sunday following. As most of the business of the conference is usually done on Thursday and Friday, it is necessary for all who wish to participate therein, to be on hand early. Let all the friends of peace, love and unity in the churches be represented at the coming meeting. The battle between truth and error, between the friends and foes of Christ, doth already begin to "wax hot." Let us not in any wise fight one another, but "gird on the whole armor," and give battle to our common foe.

L. S. Ludington, Secretary.

At the Hoosick Valley (N. Y.) Conference of last Oct., it was unanimously voted that a tent be procured for the purpose of holding meetings within the limits of that conference during the coming warm season. A committee was chosen for the purpose of raising funds and procuring the tent. All the necessary funds must be obtained on or before our next quarterly conference at Sandy Hill, N. Y., April 18th. The Lord says by their fruits his people shall be known. Now can we show three hundred and fifty dollars worth of love for poor perishing sinners by raising or pledging that amount before the close of that conference? Let each church see what they can raise or pledge to send by their delegates, or if they fail to send delegates, send by letter to my address, Sandy Hill, N. Y., before that time. We want the tent in the missionary field by the first of June. Dear christian friends of Jesus and his blessed truth, will you respond to this call at once? H. K. Flagg, for Committee.

The second quarterly session of the Hoosick Valley Conference will be held at Sandy Hill, N. Y., commencing April 18th, 1872, and hold over the following Sabbath. Let there be a general rally of the friends of Jesus and his kingdom in all this region of country to this feast. Make this meeting a subject of earnest prayer, that God may greatly bless this gathering of his people. And first, consecrate thyself to God—have all upon the altar before you come; and then come filled with the Spirit, prepared to work for God. Come to admonish the saint and warn the sinner. Come in the name of our soon coming King to make one more charge upon the enemy's host previous to its being announced from the eternal throne, "It is done." Provisions will be made for all who come. A. W. Sibley, President.

A. P. Bump, Secretary.

Ohio Conference.—The A. C. Church of Ohio will hold its semi-annual conference at Fairfield, Huron Co., Ohio, commencing Thursday, April 18th, continuing over Sunday. We cordially invite all the churches and organizations of the State to send delegates to this meeting. We hope all that love the appearing of Jesus will feel interested, and be present. We do not wish to divide, but to become all the more united. Conveyance from Greenwich Station on the C. C. C. and I. R. R. will be in attendance. H. F. Jefferson, Sec.

The Quarterly Meeting of the church of God of Wayland and Loon Lake, will be held at Wallace, Steuben Co., N. Y., to commence at two o'clock p. m., Saturday, May 11th, and continue over the 12th. All are invited to attend, and especially so as this is the last quarterly meeting before the close of the third year of my pastoral labor, and perhaps the last that I shall ever hold with the church and people of the place.

C. F. Sweet.

To whom it may concern in Napoli, Bloomfield, Pa., Rootville, Blooming Valley, Sutton's Corner, Edenboro, etc.,—Bro. E. C. Cowles intends to take a trip into Western New York and Pa. in May or June, 1872, and will visit the above places, and perhaps call at Wallace, Fremont, Hornellsville, and any place where brethren desire him to do so on the Erie and Great Western railroads. Let all treat him as a brother in the Lord, and do by him as they would be done by. Twenty years' acquaintance with him assures me of his intentions to serve God, and do the work of a faithful minister in Jesus. C. F. Sweet.

After prayerful consideration, we have decided to accept the call extended to us last Jan., to take the pastoral charge of the A. C. Church at Saratoga Springs, N. Y., expecting to remove there about May 1st. We intend to be at the Conn. A. C. Conference, to convene at Southington, Ct., April 17th, spending a few days with friends, then onward to our new field of labor. Due notice will be given as to the time of change of P. O. address. Brn. and Srs., pray for us.

Wm. A. & M. L. Durand.

There are a few Advent people in Franconia, N. H., and vicinity very desirous of having preaching a part or all of the time. They are unanimous in the opinion that if wise and judicious preachers would come and hold meetings, and preach the whole gospel of Christ, it would be productive of great good.

Brethren wishing to preach in Franconia, will please correspond with John M. Bickford, before sending their appointments to the Crisis.

I am now settled with the church in Massena. My P. O. address will be Massena Centre, St. Lawrence Co., N. Y. C. Pike.

If there are any Sabbath Schools that have a larger number of Sabbath School books than they want, or any that they have laid aside and replaced with new ones, we would like very much to have them sent to us, as we are just starting a Sabbath School, and are not able just now to buy such as are needed. Any or all that send, please direct to Wm. Robinson, Kennebunk Depot, Me.

"THERE REMAINETH THEREFORE A REST."

Yes, I shall rest. When? He knows best.
When care and I lie down together,
The future morrow shall bring no sorrow,
No wintry winds or stormy weather.

Safe from all harm, with folded palm,
They 'll bear me through the busy street:
Cloudy or fair, I will not care,
When I am borne to my retreat.

Perhaps the foe, with one dread blow,
Will silence me in dreamless sleep;
What matter? 't will me my last ill,
There are not many left to weep.

But this I pray, be when it may,
By thy atoning sacrifice,
O Savior mine, thou 'lt own me thine,—
Thy righteousness for all suffice.

Yes, I shall rest among the blest,
After that sweet untroubled sleep,
With tearless eyes I shall arise
To meet with those who never weep.

My soul, be holy! O live thou lowly!
With patience all endure,
Until all glorious I rise victorious
Where Christ has gone before.

MASS. ADV. CHRIS. CONFERENCE.

ANNUAL REPORT.

In accordance with the published "call," the yearly session of this Conference was held in Chelsea. The first meeting for religious worship was held on the evening of Tuesday, April 2nd. A sermon was preached to an attentive congregation by Elder J. Couch. The conference was called to order for business at the close of the afternoon services on Wednesday, by the Vice President, T. M. Preble. After prayer by Bro. L. Boutell, the reports of the last two quarterly conferences were heard and accepted. It was then voted that the chairman appoint a committee of three on credentials. Brn. Goodrich, Leavitt, and E. G. Higgins, were appointed. Voted, that the chair appoint a committee of three to nominate officers for the ensuing year. Brn. Boutell, Munger, and D. Churchill, appointed. Voted, that a committee of three be appointed to arrange matters pertaining to the devotional exercises of the conference. Brn. Couch, Boutell, and J. S. White, appointed.

At this point the committee on credentials reported as follows: Preachers—J. Couch, G. A. Streeter, J. S. White, H. Munger, B. Finney, D. Churchill, L. T. Cunningham, B. Woodside, G. A. Brown, T. M. Preble, J. G. Smith, L. Boutell, Elam Burnham, I. B. Potter, S. S. Mooney, H. Davis, C. Goodrich, J. Hemenway, C. S. Shattuck, G. Boynton, C. E. Barnes. A. P. Moore reported by letter. Churches represented by delegates—Haverhill, Lawrence, Clinton, New Bedford, Chelsea, Salem, Worcester, Carver, Gloucester, Plymouth, Watertown, and Holden. Voted, that brethren from churches which omitted to send delegates, be received as such. (The above list of churches is arranged in accordance with this vote.) Voted, that Brn. Wm. Kellaway and G. A. Brown become members of this conference. Voted, to hear reports from preachers. Nearly all reported their labors. All had been blessed of the Lord; there were none that were tired of the gospel ministry. Many of them had found access to orthodox pulpits occasionally, which would have been denied them in former years. All found a lively interest to hear the truths held by them relating to man's nature and destiny, and the signs of the Savior's speedy return to earth. Voted to adjourn to 8.30 A. M.

April 4th, 1872, 8 30 A. M. The meeting was opened with prayer by Bro. Burnham. Voted to hear the report of the Treasurer, which was submitted as follows:—

Amount in the treasury at the commencement of the year, $66 08. Received during the year, $26.95. Total, $93.03.
Amount paid out during the year, $37.63. Balance in the treasury, $55 40.

C. GOODRICH, Treasurer.

Report accepted. Voted, to hear the report of the tent-meeting committee. Bro. Boutell reported their work. The tent had been kept in the field about all the time during suitable weather, and by its means the gospel had been carried into new fields, and received by some who probably would not otherwise have heard it. Its work had been abundantly blessed. Bro. Morrill had been with the tent, and had proved himself to be the right man in the right place. Report accepted. Voted, to hear the report of the protracted-meeting committee. A number of protracted meetings had been held in different parts of the State with considerable success. Report accepted. Voted, to hear the report of the nominating committee. They reported the following nominations:—For President, Luther Boutell; Vice President, C. F. Horn; Secretary, C. E. Barnes; Treasurer, C. Goodrich. Ministerial committee—J. Couch, J. S. White, H. Munger, D. Churchill, M. Batchelor. Tent, quarterly, and protracted meeting committee—J. Couch, G. A. Streeter, L. Boutell. The above ticket was unanimously elected. Voted to adjourn to the close of the afternoon services.

4 P. M. Meeting opened with prayer by Bro. J. G. Smith. Voted to hear the report of the council appointed to investigate and if possible settle the trouble in the A. C. church at Haverhill. Bro. Cunningham reported. They went to Haverhill, and a vote was taken whether or not to have a detailed investigation of the past, and it was decided not to do so. By mutual consent, the then present organization was dissolved and a church formed anew, none being received into membership except with the consent of all, thus forming a church, the members of which could fellowship each other. The council left them in harmony. After remarks by several, the report was accepted.

Following this, remarks were made by Brn. Leavitt, Yates, and White, from which it was learned that in about a week after the council had organized them anew, certain ones in the new church became dissatisfied, and revived the same difficulty, which had apparently been settled satisfactorily to all, thereby forming two parties again. After considerable discussion, it was voted to sustain the doings of the council, by recognizing the church formed by them. At this point a request from Bro. Owen, of Portsmouth, N. H, desiring to dissolve his connection with the conference, was read and granted. Voted to adjourn to 8 30 A. M.

April 5th, 8.30 A. M. Meeting opened with prayer by Bro. Brittain. The following resolution was adopted after some discussion:

Resolved, That all business matters be taken out of our quarterly conferences, and be submitted to an executive council consisting of five brethren, said council to be appointed annually by the conference, thus devoting the quarterly meetings entirely to devotion. Voted, that the Chair appoint a committee of three to nominate candidates for this council. Brn. Munger, Woodside and Cunningham appointed. This committee submitted the following names to constitute the executive council: L. Boutell, G. A. Streeter, G. W. Ruggles, A. M. Higgins, and Elam Burnham. Voted, that the protracted meeting committee be instructed to hold at least twenty protracted meetings during the ensuing year. Voted, to raise, by contributions and pledges, funds for conference uses. The pledges amounted to $416.00 (four hundred and sixteen dollars), and the collection to $10.83 (ten dollars and eighty-three cents). Voted to adjourn till after the afternoon services.

4 P. M. Met according to adjournment. Prayer by Bro. Boynton. Voted, to hear reports from churches. Most of the churches heard from were in good condition. In some there was a lack of interest, and in some a disposition to disunite, but generally there was a good interest. Adjourned to 8.30 A. M.

April 6th, 8.30 A. M. Meeting opened with prayer by Bro. Streeter. A short time was spent in hearing from other churches, most of which were reported as being in prosperous circumstances. At this point the Secretary was requested to read to the meeting the action of the conference a year ago in relation to divisions among churches. He did so as follows: "Whereas the predicted jealousies of the last days are now threatening the dissolution of all human society, and whereas the union and harmony of all our churches is being endangered by the same, manifested in contention and strife, resulting in factious parties, who in many cases wickedly increase the difficulty by establishing opposition meetings; therefore, Resolved, That this conference disapprove of the establishment of such meetings upon such principles; and Resolved, That we will not countenance them by our influence or ministrations, until proper efforts shall have been made to investigate and settle such differencet by a mutual council, or a council appointed by this conference fos such a purpose; and, Resolved, That we will not violate these principles by preaching at any such meeting established upon such principles, in any other State."

Following the reading of the above, remarks were made by a number of the brethren, from which it appeared that in a few instances some of our preachers had departed from the foregoing expression, by sending appointments to disaffected parties, who were maintaining meetings in opposition to churches which belong to this and other conferences. After further remarks expressing disapproval of the spirit some manifest by being determined to have their own way, or else withdrawing their support from, and running meetings in opposition to, the recognized Advent church of any particular place, it was unanimously voted to reaffirm the action of the conference a year ago in relation to this matter. This conference wish the churches of this and other States to know that they will not countenance the attempts of disorganizers and disunionists in maintaining meetings separate from the recognized Advent churches in any particular place or places.

Following this action was a discussion concerning the benefits and need of pastoral labor among our churches, when Bro. J. Couch was appointed to write an essay on the subject, to be published in the World's Crisis. The following was also adopted: Whereas, the A. C. Church of Chelsea having generously opened their hearts and homes to make us welcome, Resolved, That the sincere thanks of the conference be hereby tendered them. Voted, that the report of this meeting be published in the World's Crisis. Voted, that we adjourn sine die.

The attendance at all the meetings for worship was large, sometimes the chapel being literally packed with human beings. The social meetings for prayer and exhortation were very interesting, but the most interesting one was during the forenoon of Thursday. When the hour for preaching had arrived, it was found impossible to stay the progress of the social meeting, and it continued with great power until past twelve o'clock. During this meeting, twenty or more came forward for prayers, and some of the brethren, who have had great experience, said they had never since 1843 seen the Spirit of God so remarkably manifested.

The meeting on Sunday, the last day of the conference, was also a very remarkable one. Preaching in the forenoon by Bro. Hemenway, in the afternoon by Bro. Couch, and in the evening by Bro. Goodrich. In the evening the house was crowded to a perfect jam, and so great was the interest that the meeting did not close until eleven o'clock, and even then it was not from a cessation of the interest, but because of the lateness of the hour. During this meeting over forty anxious ones came forward for prayers. It was a meeting that will long be remembered. Praise our God forever and ever.

Those who had the privilege of attending this annual gathering will undoubtedly look back upon it as a season of special refreshing from the Lord.

C. E. BARNES, Sec'y.

A REQUEST.

In the Crisis of April 3d, Bro. Barbour, referring to Dan. 12: 12, says—"'Blessed is he that waiteth and cometh to the month and a half added thereto'; as some old translations read."

Will Bro. Barbour inform us through the paper to what translations he refers?

I have heard it said that the "Bishops' Bible" reads in this way. The history of this Bible is given in a few words:—"Archbishop Parker resolved on a new translation for the public use of the church, and engaged the Bishops and other learned men to take each a share or portion. These being afterwards joined together, and printed with short annotations, in 1568, in large folios, made what was called the great English Bible, and commonly, the Bishops' Bible."

In this Bible, the translation of Dan. 12: 12 is word for word as it is in our Bible, except in the place of "the abomination that maketh desolate;" it reads in that translation, "abominable desolation." There is a note in the margin which reads—"To this number be added a month and a half to the former number, signifying that we do not know the time of Christ's coming."

The "notes" in the Bishops' Bible are not a translation, or another reading of the text, and are not so intended. They are simply remarks as a comment. I do not know that Bro. Barbour refers to this note, or to the Bishops' Bible at all; but as he says that some old translations read Dan. 12: 12 in the manner he has stated, will he please name one that he thinks gives the text as he has stated?

ANGUISH OF ETERNAL TORMENT.

AT A MINISTERIAL CONFERENCE.

E. PRATT.

In listening to an essay on eternal torment, I was forcibly reminded of the remarks of Albert Barnes and others concerning this direful doctrine. Says Mr. Barnes—"I see not one ray [of light] to disclose to me the reason . . . . why man must suffer to all eternity. I have never seen a particle of light thrown on these subjects that has ever given a moment's ease to my tortured mind. . . . . All is dark, dark, dark to my soul, and I cannot disguise it."—Practical Sermons by Albert Barnes, Phila., 1860, first published in 1841. The speaker first introduced the natural effect that would be produced upon an individual when lost or banished to a hopeless condition. His reflections upon the past, when there was an opportunity to be saved, but now forever gone. The associations that diverted him from the path to life; his own friends that had so often pleaded with him to win him to Christ, now in sight with joy ineffable. And may he never join them? Never—NEVER—NEVER! O doleful thought of black despair—no kind word, no kind look, no gleam of hope, no friend, forever—forever. Then he alluded to his associates, "the devil and his angels." He can mutter nothing but imprecations, but no relief comes. Thus it is, and thus it must be. Imploringly he looks up, but to realize more and more his awful doom. If he asks for aid like Dives, there lies the impassable "great gulf." Then "remember, thou in thy life-time had thy good things." Tantalized with the reflections of the past, tantalized with the present, tantalized with the terrible future. "Depart, ye cursed." "Death and hell were cast into the lake of fire." "The smoke of their torment ascendeth up forever and ever." Blackness of darkness! This would seem terrible of itself, but when we associate with it the "lake of fire," what could our souls utter here but the imploring one of the "rich man" to send Lazarus, for "I am tormented in this flame." Add to this "the wrath of God without mixture," and where is the heart that would not bleed or eyes that would not weep for the impenitent?

This was the sentiment of the essay, and more than once or twice did the feelings of the speaker overpower his utterance, and he almost sobbed aloud. Following this essay was another by one of the same denomination of ministers, at the same ministerial conference, on "Restoration."

He says, When we contemplate the duration of punishment as has been portrayed by our Rev. Bro. G., we are led to inquire, Is there no alternative? Were the earth a huge millstone (we are told), and a little bird should succeed in carrying off but one particle of it in ten thousand years, when all this vast globe should have been thus carried away, eternity has but just begun. Was there a pyramid of paper extending to heaven, and all this mass covered with the finest figures, and each figure representing millions of years; when all these untold millions should have rolled themselves into the past, still eternity is onward the same as before. Then it follows that if all the sufferings of the human family for the last six thousand years, by all the imaginable modes of suffering, could have been suffered by one individual, it would fall far short of that suffering which the impenitent sinner must suffer, if the doctrine of eternal suffering be true. May we not be mistaken? We have seen great changes in theology within our time, and may, yea, must there not be a greater change in this doctrine of eternal retribution? High Calvinism has disappeared,—fire and brimstone is a thing of the past; and since there are so few passages that speak plainly on this subject, if at all; and since the Oriental language in which the Scriptures were written is so poetical, and capable of such a variety of meanings, may it not be possible, yea, even probable, that we have been mistaken in the eternity of punishment? Take, if you please, children that have just passed to the age of accountability, yet have not made a profession, or, what is called, experienced a change of heart; and must this dreadful eternity of suffering be theirs?

Again, the moral man, who has been an ornament to society; one who has lived a life far higher up on the scale of principle than many who profess christianity; esteemed by all; and is this eternity of suffering to be meted out to him also? We cannot believe it. Is the picture of the prodigal son calculated to enforce such a doctrine? We often see men whom we believe would be eminent for their morality and piety, if they could only be away from the influences and society that now lead them astray. Why, then, not permit them a chance, when by death all these influences and appetites shall have been left behind? And why, then, the preaching to spirits in prison, if there is no hope beyond this life?

Here one sprang to his feet, full of zeal, and snatched up the "rich man" in torment. He was reminded that hades was not a place of rewards, and never should be referred to in that sense. Another said he had read Bartlett and Blain, and was satisfied that the words eternity and everlasting applied to punishment are to be taken in a limited sense. "It were better that one half of the human family be annihilated, than that one soul should be eternally tormented."

Another said—"I saw a friend, amiable and lovely, fall in death; and as I looked upon those features, still beautiful in death, I thought of the doctrine we preach,—the eternity of punishment,—and said, Can it be possible that one so lovely must thus suffer? She has never had a change of heart, never been baptized, never joined the church, never testified for Jesus, and according to our preaching eternal misery is her portion. My heart revolts. I cannot believe it. I cannot preach it."

How sad I felt that the hour of adjournment had come without permitting me to testify of Jesus. They spoke of the dead or living men or women as the subjects of reward, but applied the reward to a disembodied spirit. I thought of God's testimony of his Son—"eternal life, and this life is in his Son." Then again—"My sheep hear my voice, . . . and I give unto them eternal life." But who will give life to the goats? Then to the Jews—"Ye would not come unto me that ye might have life." And then Paul's testimony—"The gift of God is eternal life," but "the wages of sin is death." Yes, brother, "better have one half the world annihilated, than that one soul should suffer eternal torment."

My brethren, we have reason to "thank God and take courage." Students of the Bible who dare believe for themselves are breaking away from this God-dishonoring doctrine, but I regret to see some of them clinging to the doctrine of probation after death. One remarked—"I believe every individual will have the same chance for life either here or hereafter." Why not accept God's arrangement—"They that have no law are a law unto themselves, their consciences either accusing or excusing them in that day"?

A STORY OF GRACE.—No. 12.

E. S. WILLARD.

THE CONFLICT.

But as if this were not enough for the loving heart of our Great Father to do for this people, again he sent another servant—Eld. H. L. Hastings of Boston. Stimulated by his zeal, we hired the Baptist hall, and having put up posters he went one way and we another through mud and rain from house to house announcing that a "stranger" would preach at the hall in the evening. The rain abated and our old friends—"the rulers of the synagogue"—with a goodly number of others were in attendance. But oh! what a chill seemed to accompany these friends of yore. They were evidently lookers on rather than helpers and partners of our joy.

In good Bunyan style our brother introduced himself as an embassador for Christ, acknowledging only his name and authority; that he was a stranger and a pilgrim on the earth, looking for a city whose builder and maker is God. But able as was his introduction and so scriptural his position, it was only to his condemnation. They did not receive him because he came not in his own name, but in the name of Christ only. These rulers apparently more zealous for Cæsar than for Christ, threw open the Methodist hall on the following evening and called the community to hold an indignation meeting; because, forsooth, they suspected somebody's loyalty in that the stars and stripes were not floating in the breeze at the very moment somebody thought they ought to be. Before our meeting closed they came down "en masse" and made the welkin ring—not with "Great is Diana of the Ephesians," but "The flag of our Union, forever!"

Our brother's first discourse might be termed a vindication of the divine character; well calculated to disabuse the public mind of many erroneous views, and showing by apt illustration the necessity that we be brought to love holiness here and practice it from choice, ere we can be fitted for paradise restored. In his second and last discourse the scenes accompanying the sounding of the seventh trumpet were ably dwelt upon. The organ was touched by a master hand, and it made sweet music to the ear of faith. Never were prophecy and the fulfillment so panoramic to our eyes as in the view there presented.

First, "the nations were angry," a prophecy uttered and its fulfillment before our eyes. (Oh! who would be any more than a simple minister of Christ if he can have such weapons to wield. Let the fainting hearts revive. The car is moving forward, and our God is at the helm. All glory to his name!) Second, "Thy wrath is come." "Here," said he, "there will be an indignation meeting on a grand scale; and one to which all will be summoned who have not fled for refuge to the hope set before us in the gospel." Third, "The time of the dead that they should be judged." Fourth, "The rewards." Fifth, "The destruction of the wicked."

Thus closed the labors of this servant also, and, like his predecessor, in a sense, he was "beaten and sent empty away." But they did not leave without fruit. No, bless God! we are even now using strength gained from their example. They were as faithful to their brethren while out of the desk as they were to the world while in it; and fruit has redounded to the glory of God, which will appear in the great reckoning day.

Oh! ye ministers of Christ, do you remember that it is written—"Like priest, like people"? Do you realize that in every thing—conversation, apparel, eating and drinking, ye are examples to the flock and they follow you as naturally as the sheep follow the shepherd? Come up, then, to the standard of your great Exemplar, so that saint nor sinner can put his finger on a spot that the grace of God can cleanse away from you. Thus cleansed you will form a nucleus, about which the saints of God will rally and together will constitute a body, "cleansed from all filthiness of the flesh and spirit, perfecting holiness in the fear of God." Then will be manifested a body such as was manifest to the world on the day of Pentecost, which our God will delight to honor by adding to it the gift of his holy Spirit as in the beginning. Then will be manifested a body walking in all lowliness and meekness, "with long suffering, forbearing one another in love," filled with one Spirit, animated by one hope, governed by one Lord, strengthened by one faith, submitting to one baptism, acknowledging one God and Father of all, until every scattered member in all the ramparts of Christendom will be attracted or driven to it. Then will the "perfect man" be formed; speaking the truth in love, and growing up into him in all things, which is the head, even Christ. Then, and not till then, will the body of Christ be fitted for translation and eternal union with its glorified Head. For this blessed consummation do we daily lift our hands to God and most devoutly pray—Lord, hasten it in its time.

Thus did our God, who is a wonder-working God, do a short work in relieving us of the burden that was upon us to set before this people that blessed hope. Like the five kings of Canaan, God brought them together to meet his first servant that through him he might present to them the great dispensational truth of our age—The kingdom of God nigh at hand. But they said "No!" we desire not its knowledge; and as the people of Magdala desired Jesus to depart out of their coasts, so did they desire this servant of God to depart from them. They desired not his message; and when it pleased God to send another servant they heeded him not, but did after their own heart's pleasure, entering not in themselves, nor suffering others to enter. Thus bringing upon themselves a condemnation like that of Jerusalem of old, who knew not the time of her visitation.

How sad is the thought! How we have wept over them and cried to God that their eyes might be opened. "How shall I give thee up, Ephraim? how shall I deliver thee, Israel? how shall I make thee as Admah? how shall I set thee as Zeboim? mine heart is turned within me, my repentings are kindled together. I will not execute the fierceness of mine anger, I will not return to destroy Ephraim; for I am God and not man; the holy One in the midst of thee . . . . Ephraim compasseth me about with lies, and the house of Israel with deceit. But Judah yet ruleth with God and is faithful with the saints." Hosea 11: 8, 9, 12. O God! may it be thus with many of these thy professed people! "Thou hast a few names even in Sardis which have not defiled their garments; and they shall walk with me in white, for they are worthy." How this comforts us! "Shall not the Judge of all the earth do right?" Amen.

How we love to cast responsibility and all judgment upon him who judgeth righteously. How we rejoice that he is God and not man. "Unto him that loved us and washed us from our sins in his own blood" can we commit all judgment.

Let not those faint who are called to thus labor apparently without successful results. From Abel down through a long line of patriarchs, prophets, apostles, martyrs, and in our Lord himself do we find companionship. Said Jesus—"We have piped unto you and ye have not danced, we have mourned unto you and ye have not lamented." They would not be charmed, charm he never so wisely. Said the chief apostle—"For I think God hath set forth us the apostles last, as it were appointed to death; for we are made a spectacle unto the world, and to angels, and to men. We are fools for Christ's sake . . . even unto this present hour we hunger, and thirst, and are naked, and are buffeted, and have no certain dwelling-place. And labor working with our own hands; being reviled, we bless; being persecuted, we suffer it; being defamed, we entreat; we are made as the filth of the world, and are the offscouring of all things unto this day." 1 Cor. 4: 9–13. Of prophets it is written—"They were stoned, they were sawn asunder, were tempted, were slain with the sword; they wandered about in sheepskins and goatskins; [compare this with the white cravated kid-gloved gentry of the present day who profess to be following in their footsteps] being destitute, afflicted, tormented (of whom the world was not worthy); they wandered in deserts, and in mountains, and in dens and caves of the earth." Heb. 11: 37, 38. This was their reception in the name of the Lord. Of the whole phalanx with Jesus at their head, down to the last and least testimony for him it may be asked—"Who hath believed our report? and to whom is the arm of the Lord revealed? Isa. 53: 1.

But, bless God! apparent defeat in this army is glorious victory; every defeat is a triumph, for it ends in the destruction of the foe. Indeed, there is no such thing as defeat here. "Thanks be unto God, who always causeth us to triumph in Christ, and maketh manifest the savor of his knowledge by us in every place. For we are made unto God a sweet savor of Christ, in them that are saved, and in them that perish; to the one we are a savor of death unto death; and to the other the savor of life unto life. And who is sufficient for these things?" 2 Cor. 2: 14–16. "But our sufficiency is of God."

Praise His name, He has condescended to start the only "through train" to the celestial city. All who take a "through ticket" are insured a "safe conduct." Terms—step on board, leaving all behind, yielding implicit obedience to the conductor—the Lord Jesus Christ. This immense train from paradise lost to paradise restored, with its ample accommodations for all the sleeping saints from Abel down, is drawing near to the celestial depot; yet there is room for all who desire to take passage. Just hold out the signal—a broken heart and a contrite spirit, and you will be helped on board. Who will embrace the golden moment? "The Spirit and the bride say, Come. And let him that heareth say, Come. And let him that is athirst, come. And whosoever will, let him take the water of life freely."

HOT HEARTS.

"We need men of hot hearts to tell of the love of Jesus," was the appeal sent home by some Chinese converts the other day. That is what the church wants—what the world needs—"men of hot hearts."

"I would you were hot," is the Master's cry. If we are to succeed we must be on fire about it. Dr. Arnett, of Edinburg, tells of his being at a railway station one day, and wearied of waiting for the train to move, he asked one of the men what the trouble was.

"Is there a want of water?"

"Plenty of water, sir," was the prompt reply, "but it's no bilin.'"

"That's the trouble with the church today. There's abundance of machinery—the engine is all in order, the train is made up, the men are at their posts—'there's plenty of water, but no bilin.'"

The great motive power is wanting. We need to heap on the fuel of sound doctrine, not shavings of sentiment, which may make a big blaze only to go out as quickly, but the solid logs of fundamental truth—chunks, if you will. But we need yet more the fire—to be baptized with the Holy Ghost as with fire.—R. F. Burns, D. D.

Gems.

— The tongue has set more people by the ears, ruined the peace of more families, and done more mischief in the world than all the highwaymen that were ever hung.

— Wisdom and truth, the offspring of the sky, are immortal, but cunning and deception, the meteors of the earth, after glittering for a moment, must pass away.

— A man that hath anything in the world so dear to him that he cannot spare it for Christ if he calls for it, is no true christian.

— If with a double burden the Lord supplies a double strength, it is exactly the same to our experience as if with half the burthen he left us half the strength. To all alleged difficulties there is one simple answer—He giveth more grace.

— When Charity walks into the lowest places of want, we see the beautiful purity of her robes most distinctly.

— Many have withstood the frowns of the world, but its smiles and caresses have hugged them to death.

— Do not think of one falsity as harmless, and another as slight, and another as unintended. Cast them all aside; they may be light and accidental, but they are ugly soot from the smoke of the pit, for all that; and it is better that our hearts should be swept clean of them, without one care as to which is the largest or blackest.

— The proof that we believe in the reality of religion is, that we walk in the power of it.

A YOUNG LADY of Kansas, tired of meeting the excuse, when urging her poorer neighbors to attend church, "Oh! the people dress so much; I can't afford to go in that style," has determined to dress as plainly as the poorest of them need to. Accordingly, she has for the last six months worn to church the same calico dress, costing ninety cents, and a hat which cost her eighty cents, discarding gloves. Thus attired, she has played the organ, and felt "quite comfortable," as she certifies. Example is better than precept. —Woman's Journal.

MR. BEECHER told the theological students at New Haven that the true minister is he who is willing to perform the humblest service, that the lowliest soul may be made better.

REVIVALS.—There has been an extensive revival of religion in Cold Spring, N. Y., during the past winter. It commenced in a Methodist church, about the middle of Oct. last. This is where the West Point Foundry is located. There have been two hundred and seventy-five conversions in the Methodist church. The Presbyterians and Baptists have also had several conversions. At Fishkill and Newburgh there have been revivals and many conversions.

At Hudson there has been a remarkable work under the labors of Mr. Earle, the revivalist. Doctors, lawyers, judges, merchants, and clerks, became interested in the work.

At Middletown, and in many other places in Orange county, there have been more or less conversions. There is not to my knowledge any Advent church in this region. I heard an Advent sermon from a Methodist preacher last Sabbath, which had considerable truth in it. The text was the parable of the ten virgins. He did not apply it as an Adventist would, but on the whole it was meat in due season.

Hygiene.

"This is for your Health."

WATER.—Mr. Gough, in his lecture Friday evening Apr. 5th, in this city, temperance being his subject, said, while speaking of water as a tonic, quoting from his personal experience—"That up to the 4th of last October he had delivered 6428 lectures, and traveled 346,000 miles, and since that time he had been lecturing six nights per week, and his nerves were like steel. He had never been confined to his bed by illness since an attack of the brain fever in 1846."

THE WEARING AND THE LEAVING OFF OF FLANNEL.

"Flannels next the skin" is the invariable recommendation of the doctor to all weakly patients. "Flannel next the skin, winter and summer," is the advice of all hygienic theorists to both well and ailing people; and on this one condition, unfailing health is often promised! Now, for my part, I hold and have always held, that clothing should be worn for comfort and not for health. Yet I suppose that the real importance of flannel as a hygienic agent is to be determined only by a conscientious trial. Those who are deficient in natural heat—constitutionally poor blooded and of defective vitality—should cleave unto flannel as their best friend, if, after fair and impartial trials of other means of securing healthful warmth they find their efforts unavailing.

Some people are always complaining of being uncomfortably chilly. In many cases the cause of this will be found in defective digestion or a torpid liuer, or the avoidance of plenty of cold water and thorough bathing, and the failure to take sufficient regular exercise in the open air. When want of warmth springs from these causes, you may pile on flannels and furs till you bend beneath the weight of a perfect avalanche of woolens, without finding any but the most transient relief. The trouble is inside of you, and not outside, in the atmosphere. For such cases, flannels will not avail. The remedies are: daily cold sponge baths, the first thing on getting out of bed in the morning; proper food in moderate quantities and a great deal of exercise in the open air. The last is the sovereign remedy for chilliness—walk, WALK, WALK! Whenever you feel the chilly sensation coming on, spring up at once and begin to exercise—taking care, however, to guard against profuse perspiration—and never, when heated, to sit down in a cool place or in the open air to rest, unless it be very warm indeed. Even in the warmest room, or during the warmest weather, if you feel the slightest chilliness, or if you have perspired ever so slightly, immediately, on discontinuing exercise, throw some extra covering about you till the feeling passes off.

The cause of almost all colds is owing to the fact that the garments next the skin become damp with perspiration, more or less; and this, when the reaction after exercise begins to be felt, causes a feeling as if the fast cooling body were wrapped in a cold, wet sheet. You feel chilled through and through—you are stiff, tired and sore; and in a few days a severe cold declares itself, which is often attended with the worst results. Now, the great good of wearing flannel next to the skin, is, that the perspiration does not so readily saturate it, as it does thin cotton garments; and therefore, the damp, chilly feeling is not felt. Thus, the body does not cool off so quickly and a cold is avoided.

But this is not always the case. We see persons wearing flannel, who seem to take cold with as much facility as those who do not wear it. The only sure preventive, in any case where the perspiration has been excessive, is to get rid of the damp inner garments as soon as possible, in a moderately warm place—to rub the whole body vigorously with a dry, coarse cloth; and then to put on dry clothing as fast as possible, and wear as much as you need to keep you comfortably warm till the usual habit of the body is restored. If you are constantly exercising, you don't need so much clothing as you would if perfectly quiescent and passive. The next best thing to this (if you cannot remove your damp clothes) is to put over your outside garments as much additional covering as is necessary to warmth, so that your clothing will dry rapidly, from the extra heat of the body thus generated and from the exclusion of the cool outside air. The third and last resort is to keep in motion, with sufficient briskness to overcome the chilly feeling; thus allowing the body to cool off gradually, and decreasing the motion by degrees. If you are able to do this, you need not be afraid of taking cold; especially if you observe prudent precautions as soon as in your power; such as not sitting or lying down to rest in a room cooler than the temperature of your body, without covering sufficient for comfort.

It is my opinion, that moderately healthy people who observe these and other precautions, which common sense will naturally dictate, and who live in other respects wisely and temperately, may go through life without being obliged to wear flannel next the skin, and may, moreover, in so neglecting to do, live to a good old age.

The body is just what you make it, and it demands just what you have habituated it to require of you. If you pamper it and cuddle it, it will refuse to be comfortable without pampering and cuddling. If you accustom it to resist outer influences, it will gain in vigor.—Herald of Health.

NEWSPAPERS placed over or under the bed-spread will keep the sleeper as warm as an additional pair of blankets, and they are an excellent protection where there are no blankets. The larger the sheets are, of course the better, and it might be best to stitch them to the coverlet. They also make an excellent wall paper for cabins and shanties. These uses of an article so abundant should be generally known to the poor, who are to suffer in cold weather.

REMEDY FOR CHRONIC DIARRHŒA.—Put a table-spoonful of wheat flour in a tumbler of water; beat until it foams, and drink immediately. If the patient is thirsty, more water may be added. It should be taken four times a day; before meal times and on going to bed.—Ibid.

READY MODE OF PREVENTING INFECTION.—There is no plan of preventing infection so ready as the production of sulphurous acid by the combustion of sulphur. To disinfect a bed, whilst the patient is temporarily removed from it, pass a copper warming-pan into the bed, containing a few live embers and a little sulphur. The pan should be moved about during the ignition of the sulphur. By burning sulphur in an open vessel, closets, carriages, passages, and vacated chambers of the sick may be easily disenfected. Clothing may be lightly sponged over or sprinkled with water containing a little well mingled sulphur, and then ironed with a flat iron heated to a temperature which will cause volitilization of the sulphur without burning the linen.—Home and Health.

LEMON FOR A COUGH.—Roast the lemon very carefully without burning it; when it is thoroughly hot, cut and squeeze into a cup upon three ounces of sugar, finely powdered. Take a spoonful whenever your cough troubles you. It is good and agreeable to the taste. Rarely has it been known to fail in giving relief.

HOW TO CURE CANCER.—Cut green white ash into short pieces, place it over a slow fire, and catch the sap as it runs from the ends, and rub it on the cancer.—Dr. Bascom, 73 Court St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

UNDER THE SNOW.

Beautiful things lie hidden
Under the snow,—
Tulips and daffodils sleeping,
Myrtles with broad leaves are creeping,
And blue-eyed forget-me-nots peeping,
Under the snow.

Beautiful things lie hidden
Under the snow,—
The crocus and dear little daisies,
And arbutus, twining in mazes,
Its sweet-scented flowerets upraises
Under the snow.

Beautiful things lie hidden
Under the snow,
But they will awake in the morning;
When Spring, with warm sunshine, is dawning,
They will peep out from under the awning
Under the snow.

Our dear little Alice lies hidden
Under the snow:
The angels their kind watch are keeping
O'er our beautiful treasure safe sleeping;
No pain and no sorrow or weeping
Under the snow.

Yes, beautiful Alice lies sleeping
Under the snow;
But she will awake in the morning,
At the bright resurrection-day dawning,
No more to lie down, midst our mourning,
Under the snow.

BAD WAGES.

"I have left my place, mother," said a poor boy one day when he returned from his work.

"Why have you left?" said the mother, "was your master unkind to you?"

"No, mother, he was kind enough," said the boy.

"Did'nt you like the work?" asked the mother.

"It was the wages I did'nt like," said the boy solemnly. "My master wanted me to sin, and the wages of sin is death."

His master had expected him to lie about the goods, and deceive and cheat the customers; but the boy said—

"No, sir, I can't do such things; I will leave your service first." And he did leave it; and he was right about it too. Such boys will make mothers' hearts glad, and will find that the Lord takes care of those who trust in him, and will not work for Satan nor earn the wages of sin.

Such trials do the faithful good. It may seem hard to suffer because we will not sin, but the rough sea makes the best sailor, the hot furnace makes the pure gold, the strongest faith comes from the hardest trials, and they who suffer for Christ's and for conscience' sake shall be blessed here and crowned with joy hereafter.—Little Christian.

A MOTHER'S INFLUENCE.—How touching is this tribute of Hon. T. H. Benton to his mother's influence! "My mother asked me never to use tobacco; I have never touched it from that time to the present day. She asked me not to gamble, and I have never gambled; I cannot tell who is losing in games that are being played. She admonished me, too, against hard drinking, and whatever capacity for endurance I have at present, and whatever usefulness I have attained through life, I have attributed to having complied with her pious and correct wishes. When I was seven years of age, she asked me not to drink; and then I made a resolution of total abstinence; and that I have adhered to it through all time I owe to my mother."

DID JESUS ANSWER YES?—"Mamma is talking to Jesus," said little Mary to herself, as she heard her mother at prayer in the adjoining room.

As Mrs. H—— left the place of prayer, Mary ran to her mother, and asked very innocently, "Did Jesus answer? Did he say 'Yes,' mother?"

When you kneel down by your bedside to pray, dear children, think of the question of this little child. Do you expect an answer to your prayer, or do you only repeat the words as a mere matter of form? If you ask aright, Jesus will answer "Yes;" for he has said in his holy word, "Ask, and ye shall receive."

THROUGH PEACE TO LIGHT.

I do not ask, O Lord, that life may be
A pleasant road;
I do not ask that thou wouldst take from me
Aught of its load;
I do not ask that flowers should always spring
Beneath my feet;
I know too well the poison and the sting
Of things too sweet.
One one thing only, Lord, dear Lord, I plead,
Lead me aright—
Though strength should falter, and though heart should bleed—
Through peace to light.

I do not ask, O Lord, that thou shouldst shed
Full radiance here;
Give but a ray of peace, that I may tread
Without a fear.
I do not ask my cross to understand,
My way to see;
Better in darkness just to feel thy hand,
And follow thee;
Joy is like restless day; but peace divine
Like quiet night;
Lead me, O Lord, till perfect day shall shine,
Through peace to light.

A LOOK AT RECENT TIME ARTICLES.

C. W. SARGENT.

I. Bro. L. T. Cunningham says "the period of the reign of Justinian, emperor of the East, is where all Catholic and Protestant writers of any note place the supremacy of the papacy." Bro. J. S. White, in reviewing this statement, endeavors to fix on 606 as the date of the religious supremacy of the pope. If the space can be allowed me, I wish to call attention to the following historical quotations:—

"That as the elder Rome was the founder of the laws, so it was not to be questioned that in her was the supremacy of the pontificate."—Preamble to the 9th law from the Novellæ—Justinian's Code, A. D. 534. "We therefore decree that the most holy pope of the elder Rome is the first of all the priesthood."—131*st Law on Ecclesiastical Titles—ibid.*

Bower states that Pope Agepetus, acting in concert with Emperor Justinian, was the first pope who deposed a bishop and put another in his place, without authority of the Council of Bishops,—which, according to the canons of the church, must be obtained before any transfer could be made.

By these short extracts it will be seen that the Bishop of Rome was considered first, or supreme, and as such was addressed as "the head of all the churches" by the same emperor who decreed that he should be called the first. Will brethren who are interested notice, also, that the Bishop of Rome claimed the supremacy as early as the Council of Chalcedon, A. D. 476? The decree of Phocas did not give any greater powers to the pope than those conferred on them by previous as well as subsequent rulers, and all would amount to comparatively nothing, were it not for the grant of Pepin in 754, and confirmed by Charlemagne in 790–800; for the reason that one emperor would elevate the Bishop of Rome, while another would degrade him; and consequently the so-called supremacy of the pope is a worthless point in and of itself. In reality it never should be considered in unfolding the prophecy relative to the little horn, for the pope, alone or with his church, never was that "little horn," but only an integral part—the eyes and mouth of the horn. In order, then, to find out when the 1260 days of Daniel 7 begin, our brethren must first find out what the horn is, when it arose, and what it was aside from its eyes and mouth.

II. Bro. Cunningham says in regard to the rise of the papacy—"The rise of the papacy was gradual; also the taking away of paganism. But there must be a point where paganism lost its power, which we think was in A. D. 508; also where the papacy was established, which must have been as early as A. D. 538." The point where paganism lost its power must be determined by history, and on turning to Gibbon's "Rome," I find that the recovery of Rome from the Lombards occurred in the year 536; and that they were termed barbarians (i. e. anything but Catholic); they were partly heathen, and partly Arians.

That paganism existed in the east and in Constantinople, is shown by the decree of Justinian, in which he proscribes the Gentiles, as well as the Christians.

That Clovis, king of the Franks, by a mere profession of the Catholic faith in 508, blotted out paganism in the west, is questionable; for Charlemagne waged a war of over thirty years against the Saxons, and other heathen nations of the west; and not until the beginning of the ninth century was the triumph of the church over paganism considered complete. "From this epoch, then [9th century], must date the temporal reign of Christ upon the earth, in the person of the sovereign pontiffs."—Catholic writer.

III. The taking of the "daily" (a disputed point) can easily be made plain by considering the work of the Catholics. We find that in 532 Justinian commenced a war against the Samaritans in Judea; and against the Jews in the east, as well as in Judea; also against the Gentiles of his own realm in that year, and continued the war against the Jews until he made Samaria a smoking and desolate wilderness, and had planted the "abomination of the cross" (as Gibbon says) on Mount Gerazim. The war on the Vandals was continued twenty years; on the Lombards, beginning 534, and continued seventeen years. Their work was that of extermination of so-called heretics, as well as Jews and heathens,—of every class of men who did not embrace and confess the Catholic faith. Now, of the three great classes that suffered, which are named in prophecy? Not the heathens, for they never were the host of Christ; not the Jews, for they did not take the position Christ desired of them, for they were by him rejected, and turned over to the Romans for chastisement, as early as A. D. 70. It must pertain to the church of Christ for this reason,—the horn was to wear out the saints of the Most High, by making war on them; and if war was made on the saints, did not the true worship of God suffer a removal from the place it had hitherto occupied? The Septuagint version of Dan. 8: 13 reads thus—"How long shall the vision continue, [even] the removal of the sacrifice, and the bringing in of the sin of desolation?" The "daily" was something removed, cast down, obliged to make way for a sin of desolation; and where do we find a sin of desolation after the wars of Justinian began? I think it was the "abomination of the cross," planted in the places where the saints of the Most High had previously worshiped.

RESPONSE TO THE ABOVE.

I. We do not see any necessity of stumbling as to what constitutes the little horn of Dan. 7. A few simple points kept distinct before the mind will relieve it of all difficulty. In determining what constitutes this little horn, it will be necessary to locate its rise, as to where and when. First, as to where. The body of the "fourth beast" I think all locate in western Rome; then the division of the Roman government into ten parts, represented by the ten horns, must be found in western Rome; and as this little horn was to come up among them (Dan. 7: 8), it also must be located in the west. Second, as to when. It was to rise after them, i. e., the ten. See Dan. 7: 24. Now we will give the list of these ten horns or kingdoms (according to Marchiaval, a Catholic historian, and Bishop Lloyd, and Dr. Hales' Anal. of Chron.):—The Huns, in Hungary, A. D. 356. The Ostrogoths, in Mysia, A. D. 377. The Visigoths, in Pannonia, A. D. 378. The Franks, in France, A. D. 407. The Vandals, in Africa, A. D. 407. The Sueves and Alans, in Gascoigne and Spain, A. D. 407. The Burgundians, in Burgundy, A. D. 407. The Heruli and Turingi, in Italy, A. D. 476. The Saxons and Angles, in Britain, A. D. 476. The Lombards, in Germany, A. D. 483.

As we have seen, this little horn was to rise after the ten, and he was to pluck up three of the first ten horns by the roots. "And he shall subdue three kings." We will also notice other marks of identity. 1. He was to be a blasphemous power; "speak great words against the Most High." 2. "Wear out the saints of the Most High." 3. "Think to change times and laws." 4. The saints, or times and laws, or both, were to "be given into his hand until a time, and times, and the dividing of time." 5. "The judgment" was to "sit" and "his dominion" was to be "taken away" "to consume and to destroy it unto the end." 6. "The same horn" was to "make war with the saints, and prevail against them, until the Ancient of days came, and judgment was given to the saints of the Most High; and the time came that the saints possessed the kingdom."

We have noticed nine prominent marks that identify this little horn to mean papal Rome, and nothing else; for there is no other power that has ever existed to which all these marks of identity can apply, except papal Rome. We make this statement without fear of successful contradiction. If any one thinks he can find a government under heaven (or any where else) that has ever existed to which all these marks of identity will apply, I would like to see it presented. I know some quibble with and try to deny that all these marks apply to papal Rome, and endeavor to fall back upon the "futurist theory" (that makes the prophecy talk nonsense), and imagine that a future power is to arise to fill the prophetic mould. Let those accept such a dodge as this as wish to; as for ourselves we will continue to hold fast to the old landmarks.

Some try to make Justinian and the pope combined the "little horn." If Justinian, or the Greek empire, was any part of that little horn, then the Greek empire must continue from the time the saints were given into his hand—1260 years. And then the question would arise, Who gave the saints into the hand of the Greek empire? But the Greek empire fell A. D. 1453, at least three hundred and forty years before the 1260 could end. Then, again, the little horn was to come up among the ten, but the Greek empire came up outside of the ten. Again, the little horn was to arise after the ten; but the Greek empire existed before the rise of the ten. And again, "the judgment" was to "sit" on the "little horn" to "take away his dominion, to consume, and to destroy it unto the end." But the Greek empire was overthrown in 1453; that ended it. There are other marks in the prophecy that identify the "little horn" that cannot be made to apply to the Greek empire. We trust our brethren will be willing to admit the force of these facts.

From what has been presented in the foregoing, it will be seen that the Greek empire cannot be one of the "three horns" that were to be "plucked up by the roots," as some think. And those that make the quelling of a sedition (as Gibbon calls it) in Constantinople, in the fifth year of the reign of Justinian, the "plucking up" of one of those three horns, is irrelevant, and an absurdity. For the Greek empire never was one of those three horns, neither one of the ten, nor the little horn, but was an integral part of the empire itself. If, as Bro. Sargent says, neither the pope, combined with the papal hierarchy, whose government was located in Rome, was that little horn, will he tell us what that little horn is? and have we been at fault in applying the wasting away of the pope since 1798 to the taking away of the dominion of the little horn? We believe the papal government established in Rome by Justinian, in A. D. 538, is the little horn of Daniel 7.

But says one, Did the papal hierarchy "pluck up" three kingdoms? We answer unhesitatingly, Yes. Was not Clovis, king of the Franks, a Catholic? and did he not act in the interest of the papal hierarchy in "plucking up" the Arian kingdom of Burgundy in A. D. 524 (according to Du Pin's Eccl. Hist., vol. 2, p. 257; also Gibbon's History, vol. 3, c. 38, pp. 578–580)? After which the Catholic religion flourished throughout France under the kings of the first race. And was not Justinian, emperor of the east, a Catholic? and did he not act in the interest of the papal hierarchy even before his elevation to the throne, when he meditated the extirpation of heresy, and the full establishment of the Catholic church? and after his elevation, when he conquered or "plucked up" the two remaining "horns," or Arian kingdoms—the Vandals, in A. D. 533, and the Ostrogoths in A. D. 538? A war from the beginning to the end, avowedly a Catholic war. We understand that the papal hierarchy was the original cause of the "plucking up" of all three of these horns or kingdoms. This power is called a "little" horn. So it was at first, occupying Rome, the throne of the Cæsars, as the seat of its power; but he soon became more stout than his fellows, and is called by Gibbon "the papal monarchy." And John the Revelator calls it that "great city that reigneth over the kings of the earth." Gibbon says—"The limits of civil and ecclesiastical powers are defined by the pontiff. To the former he appropriates the body; to the latter the soul; the sword of justice is in the hands of the magistrates; the more formidable weapon of excommunication is entrusted to the clergy; and in the exercise of their divine commission, a zealous son will not spare his offending father; the successor of St. Peter may lawfully chastise the kings of the earth."

The prophecy says the saints were to "be given into the hand" of this power "until a time, and times, and the dividing of time." Who gave the saints into the hand of this power? Justinian, emperor of the east. And this transaction between Justinian and the Bishop of Rome agrees with the condition of the prophecy, as no other transaction between an emperor and the pope ever did. In A. D. 533, the Greek emperor declared the Bishop of Rome head of all the holy churches, the head of all bishops, and "the true and effective corrector of heretics." In 538 he came into possession of the city of Rome, the old seat of the dragon, and gave it to the beast, or pope. Vigilius was the first pope who was seated in St. Peter's chair as the master of Rome. According to Gibbon, pope Sylverius was banished from Rome by Belisarius, for supposed treachery, in Jan., 537. At the command of the emperor of the east, the clergy of Rome proceeded to the election of a new bishop, and after a solemn invocation of the Holy Ghost, elected the deacon Vigilius, who had purchased the papal throne by a bribe of two hundred pounds of gold. Vigilius was elected by the direction of Justinian, but the next pope, Pelagius, was elected in 568. He was the first pope that was elected without the consent of the emperor. This fact shows that the popes and the church of Rome acted independently of the emperor after the election of Vigilius to St. Peter's chair.

We think, in the light of the foregoing facts, all may determine what the "little horn" is, and when it arose.

II. If I understand Bro. Sargent, he regards the taking away of the "daily" the taking away of christian worship. But in speaking of the overthrow of paganism, he says that "the recovery of Rome from the Lombards occurred in the year 536." We do not see that this is relevant to the subject under consideration. We understand that Rome and Italy at this date were in the hands of the Ostrogoths, part Catholics and part Arians. We do not see what connection the invasion of Italy by Belisarius, and the overthrow of the Gothic monarchy, has with the taking away of paganism. Neither do I see what the removal of paganism has to do with the "temporal reign of Christ on the earth, from the 9th century, in the person of the sovereign pontiffs," according to a "Catholic writer."

We will now quote from Gibbon, vol. 3, c. 37, pp. 540, 541, on the conversion of the most of the barbarian kingdoms as early as about A. D. 400. After speaking of the progress of Christianity that had "been marked by two glorious and decisive victories over the learned and luxurious citizens of the Roman empire, and over the warlike barbarians of Scythia and Germany, who subverted the empire, and embraced the religion of the Romans," he says again (p. 543)—"Their fiercer brethren, the formidable Visigoths, universally adopted the religion of the Romans, with whom they maintained a perpetual intercourse, of war, of friendship, or of conquest. In their long and victorious march from the Danube to the Atlantic Ocean, they converted their allies, they educated the rising generation; and the devotion which reigned in the camp of Alaric, or the court of Thoulouse, might edify or disgrace the palaces of Rome or Constantinople. During the same period Christianity was embraced by almost all the barbarians who established their kingdoms on the ruins of the western empire; the Burgundians in Gaul, the Suevi in Spain, the Vandals in Africa, the Ostrogoths in Pannonia, and the various bands of mercenaries, that raised Odoacer to the throne of Italy. The Franks and the Saxons still persevered in the errors of paganism; but the Franks obtained the monarchy of Gaul by their submission to the example of Clovis [who embraced Christianity A. D. 496, and was baptized with three thousand of his worthy subjects—Gib. ib., pp. 574–575]; and the Saxon conquerors of Britain were reclaimed from their savage superstition by the missionaries of Rome." All this work was accomplished as early as A. D. 508, when Christianity rose triumphant over paganism.

We do not suppose it was entirely removed in A. D. 508, nor do we suppose it was entirely removed in the ninth century. But after 508, or from that point, it was no longer in the ascendant; it no longer exercised a controling influence in the governments of the Roman empire. But the Catholic element was in the ascendant; and here commenced those changes in the governments that paved the way for the establishment of the papacy, or the setting up of the abomination that maketh desolate in Rome, A. D. 538. We understand that popery itself is but a compound of Paganism, Judaism and Christianity; and that the elements of the hydra-headed dragon are still at work to undermine all existing governments, and will probably bring on a conflict that will culminate in the war of that great day of God Almighty.

III. Again, we do not see what connection "a war against the Samaritans" or the "Jews" and the "Gentiles" by the Catholics after A. D. 532, even the "planting the abomination of the cross [as Gibbon says] on Mount Gerazim," or the giving "over" of the Jews into the hand of "the Romans for chastisement," has with the taking away of the "daily." In determining the meaning of the term "daily" in Dan. 8, it is necessary in the first place to understand the scope of the prophecy, as to what is embraced in the "vision." I suppose there is a general agreement that Persia, Grecia and Rome are embraced in the "vision." This much being admitted, then the question—"How long the vision?" is equivalent to asking, How long shall the powers embraced in the vision continue in their work of treading down the sanctuary and the host? and as the terms "daily" and "the transgression of desolation" are introduced, in answer to the question, How long the vision? as the powers that are to do this work of treading down, it follows as a required necessity that Persia, Grecia and Rome are represented in the terms "daily" and "the transgression of desolation." If this is admitted (and we do not see how it can be avoided), we think it will also be admitted that the term "transgression of desolation," in Dan. 8: 13, is the same power as in Dan. 11: 31, and Dan. 12: 11; "the abomination that maketh desolate," the same as the papacy or papal Rome. This also being admitted, we are shut up to the only alternative that Persia, Grecia and pagan Rome are represented by the term "transgression of desolation."

As the term "daily" might be more properly rendered continual, in view of the foregoing the question might be presented in this form—How long the vision, the continual transgression, and the transgression of desolation, to give both the sanctuary and the host to be trodden under foot? We think all may now see by these facts already presented that neither Jewish nor Christian worship are represented by the term "daily" or continual. Bro. S. gives us the reading of Dan. 8: 13, from the Septuagint version—"How long shall the vision continue; [even] the removal of the sacrifice?" As the latter clause of the verse from the Sept. does not necessarily conflict with our version from the Heb., we will pass that part at present. But we seriously object to the first clause. It will be noticed, in this clause the proper term "daily," or continual, is left out, and the supplied word sacrifice is introduced. This word is not in the original Hebrew, and by introducing it into the text it entirely reverses the meaning of the prophecy. If the Septuagint had been a legitimate rendering from the Hebrew, the term "daily," or continual, would not have been left out of the text. We will give the Septuagint with the proper word "daily" restored—"How long shall the vision continue; [even] the removal of the daily [or continual transgression], and the bringing in of the sin of desolation?" Christ has a people, or church, that lived under the Jewish economy, as well as under the Christian; and both branches have been trodden down, oppressed, persecuted and slain, by these powers termed the "daily" and the "transgression of desolation." But the "host" will soon be delivered, and then the sanctuary will be cleansed, or justified. Amen.

MAN'S ORIGINAL DRESS.—There is evidence that man in his original innocence was clothed with light as with a garment. Though destitute of raiment, he was not really naked, but was clothed with light. When he fell, that vesture of light was lost, and lo! he he was really naked. He was even more naked than the beasts by which he was surrounded. A late learned, talented, and pious author, speaking of man being made in the likeness of God, says, "God clothes himself with light; and as man was made after his likeness, we reasonably conclude that he clothed our first parents in the garb of light. Without this dress, they would have been imperfect in appearance, and unlike him. When they sinned against God, this feature of their likeness to their Creator was removed. When they perceived that, and saw clearly that they were naked, they were afraid, and ashamed, and sought to hide themselves from God among the trees of the garden; and sought to cover their shame from themselves by making girdles of fig leaves." If man in his original state was clothed with light, then in his glorified state he will be thus clothed, for it will be a restored state.—Prophetic Times.

CHRONOLOGICAL.

WM. HOBBS.

The chronology given in the fifth chapter of Genesis from Adam to the flood, amounts to 1656 years. Thus, Adam lived a hundred and thirty years, and begat Seth. He lived after this one hundred and thirty years, one hundred and five years, and begat Enos. He lived after this two hundred and thirty-five, ninety years, and begat Cainan. After three hundred and twenty-five, seventy years, and begat Mahalaleel. After three hundred and ninety-five, sixty-five years, and begat Jared. After four hundred and sixty, one hundred and sixty-two years, and begat Enoch. After six hundred and twenty-two, sixty-five years, and begat Methuselah. After six hundred and eighty-seven, one hundred and eighty-seven years, and begat Lamech. After eight hundred and seventy-four, one hundred and eighty-two years, and begat Noah. And Noah lived after these one thousand and fifty-six years, six hundred years, to the flood=1656 years.

That this period of 1656 years reaches only to the commencement of the flood, is evident from the age of Methuselah at his death, 969 years, added to 687 years before his birth, which amounts to just 1656 years. To extend the 1656 years to the end of the flood, would make Methuselah to live a year after the commencement of the deluge. But since it is said (Gen. 7: 6)—"And Noah was six hundred years old when the flood of waters was upon the earth," and (v. 11)—"In the six hundredth year of Noah's life, in the second month, the seventeenth day of the month, the same day were all the fountains of the great deep broken up," etc., this clearly proves that his six hundred years were completed soon after this. And since the flood of waters was not dried up till a year after, it would make 1657 years to the end of the flood. But since we read (Gen. 9: 28, 29)—"And Noah lived after the flood three hundred and fifty years; and all the days of Noah were nine hundred and fifty years; and he died"; the three hundred and fifty years that he lived "after the flood" must date just after the commencement of the flood, when he was six hundred; for $600\times350=950$. And so when we afterwards read—"Shem .... begat Arphaxad two years after the flood," it must date from the same point that Noah's three hundred and fifty years "after the flood" does. So it is just as impossible to get in one year between the 1656 years, and the "two years after the flood," when Arphaxad was begotten, as to get in one year between the six hundred years of Noah's life at the flood, and his "three hundred and fifty years after the flood."

Thus we have to birth of Arphaxad 1658 years; and from Arphaxad to Sala $35+1658=1693$. Sala to Eber $30+1693=1723$. Eber to Peleg $34+1723=1757$. Peleg to Reu $30+1657=1787$. Reu to Serug $32+1787=1819$. Serug to Nahor $30+1819=1849$. From Nahor to Terah the Septuagint and Samaritan versions assign seventy-nine years instead of twenty-nine, as in our version; adopting this longer period $79+1849=1928$ years to the birth of Terah the father of Abraham. And since Abraham was seventy-five years old just after the death of Terah, at 205 years of age these periods $1928+205=2133$ years to the entrance of Abraham into Canaan.

To this 2133, if we add 430 years, we are carried forward to the Exodus from Egypt under the conduct of Moses. $2133+430=2563$. The apostle Paul says (Gal. 2: 17)—"The covenant which was confirmed before of God in Christ, the law, which was four hundred and thirty years after, cannot disannul, that it should make the promise of none effect." This would seem to imply that the promise made to Abraham, when he was seventy-five years old (Gen. 12: 2–4) was the covenant four hundred and thirty years after, which the law was given by Moses just after the children of Israel came out of Egypt. And this serves to explain the language in Exod. 12: 40, 41—"Now the sojourning of the children of Israel, who dwelt, in Egypt, was four hundred and thirty years. And it came to pass at the end of four hundred and thirty years, even the self-same day it came to pass, that all the hosts of the Lord went out from the land of Egypt." That is, they sojourned in Egypt from their entrance to their exodus therefrom, four hundred and thirty years from the Abrahamic era.

Now just where the exode began, Paul gives us a chronology to Samuel the prophet. Acts 13: 18–20—"And about the time of forty years suffered he their manners in the wilderness. And when he had destroyed seven nations in the land of Canaan, he divided their land to them by lot. And after that he gave them judges, about the space of four hundred and fifty years, until Samuel the prophet." Now since it was just forty years from their exode to their entrance into Canaan, it is proof that Paul did not speak indefinitely when he said it was "about forty years." And so when he said, "He gave them judges about the space of four hundred and fifty years, until Samuel the prophet," this is just as definite. And his giving the time as just so many fifties, would seem to indicate a reckoning by jubilee periods.

That the jubilee was a period of fifty years, is evident from Lev. 25: 8–12—"And thou shalt number seven sabbaths of years unto thee, seven times seven years; and the space of the seven sabbaths of years shall be unto thee forty and nine years. Then shalt thou cause the trumpet of the jubilee to sound on the tenth day of the seventh month; in the day of atonement shall ye make the trumpet sound throughout all your land. And ye shall hallow the fiftieth year, and proclaim liberty throughout all the land unto all the inhabitants thereof; it shall be a jubilee unto you; and ye shall return every man to his family. A jubilee shall that fiftieth year be unto you; ye shall not sow, neither reap that which groweth of itself in it, nor gather the grapes in it of thy vine undressed. For it is the jubilee; it shall be holy unto you; ye shall eat the increase thereof out of the field."

As they were to let the land remain uncultivated every seventh year, the forty-ninth year and the fiftieth would make two years in succession wherein they could neither sow nor reap, etc. And as this jubilee period was to date from the seed-time after they entered into Canaan, it would date six months after the forty years ended on their entrance in the first month. And since creation dates from the autumn, the period of four hundred and thirty years from the call of Abraham would date six months later than the two thousand one hundred and thirty-three years from creation to the call of Abraham. $2133\frac{1}{2}+430+40\frac{1}{2}=2604$. Thus we have 2604 years to the beginning of the first jubilee period.

Now there is more evidence in the chronology given by Paul in Acts 13: 17–21, that the forty years in the wilderness, and the four hundred and fifty years to Samuel the prophet, are to be understood as consecutive periods, than that the forty years of Saul's reign are to be understood as dating at the end of the four hundred and fifty. The later period clearly reaches "until Samuel the prophet"; and since it cannot reach to the end of his life, either as a prophet or as a judge (for "he judged Israel all the days of his life"—1 Sam. 6: 15), the four hundred and fifty years would naturally relate to the commencement of his prophetic life. And since he began to prophesy when he was a child (1 Sam. 3: 1–21), and, according to Josephus, when he was about twelve years old; and since it was "when Samuel was old" that they desired him to make them a king, there is room for another period of fifty years after the four hundred and fifty years, before he was old, and before Saul was made king; which would make Samuel sixty-four when Saul was made king. And as Samuel lived twenty-two years after Saul began to reign, he would be eighty-six when he died. Paul does not, therefore, give the time of Samuel after the four hundred and fifty years before Saul's reign, but says—"Afterward they desired a king, and Paul gave them Saul the son of Cis, a man of the tribe of Benjamin, by the space of forty years." "Afterward" would relate to time after the four hundred and fifty years, and after the period of Samuel's administration, before Saul was made king. Thus we have ten jubilee periods of fifty years each from the entrance into Canaan up to the beginning of Saul's reign. Now we have forty years for Saul; forty years for David (1 Chron. 29: 27); forty years for Solomon (2 Chron. 9: 30); seventeen for Rehoboam (2 Chron. 12: 17); three for Abijah (2 Chron. 13: 1), and forty-one for Asa (2 Chron. 16: 13). These added together make just one hundred and eighty-one years. This would make the thirteenth jubilee period end with the tenth year of the reign of Asa, king of Judah. And we read that "in his days the land was quiet ten years"; spoken of the beginning of his reign. 2 Chron. 14: 1. This would allow of the jubilee period being celebrated in peace.

Thus we have thirty-one years of Asa this side of the thirteen jubilee periods. Thirty-one added to the reign of Jehoshaphat, twenty-five years (2 Chron. 20: 31), make fifty-six years; or the fourteenth jubilee period, ending six years before Jehoshaphat's death. This would make the first year of his successor fall into the first Sabbatic year after that jubilee. Then the six years over the jubilee period, added to the eight years of Jehoram, and seven for Ahaziah and Athaliah, make twenty-one years. Joash succeeded and reigned forty years. And forty and twenty-one make eleven years over the fifteen jubilee periods, or 750 years. Amaziah's reign of twenty-nine years added to the years over the 750 years, make 40 years of the sixteenth jubilee period. 2 Chron. 25: 1. "As the last year of Amaziah ended with the fifteenth of Jeroboam II.; and the first of Azariah—or, as he is called in other places, Uzziah—commenced with the twenty-seventh of Jeroboam, it follows that from the death of Amaziah to the commencement of the reign of Azariah, an interregnum of eleven years must have intervened in the line of the kings of Judah. As Azariah was but sixteen years of age in the twenty-seventh year of Jeroboam II., he could have been but five years of age at the death of his father Amaziah. Therefore, Dr. Lightfoot and others have supposed that the government was administered by regents during the eleven years of the minority of Azariah." Bliss, p. 105.

Now the forty years of the sixteenth jubilee, added to this interregnum of eleven years, make one hundred and three years. This completes the seventeenth, and leaves a remainder of three for the eighteenth jubilee. Jotham succeeded Ahaziah and reigned "sixteen years," which added to three make nineteen years. 2 Chron. 25: 1, and 27: 1. Ahaz succeeded Jotham and reigned sixteen years. Hezekiah succeeded Ahaz, and reigned twenty-nine years. 2 Chron. 28: 1, 29: 1. These years added together make 64 years. This leaves a remainder of fourteen years over the eighteen jubilee periods, and so makes the fifteenth year of Hezekiah a jubilee year, while his fourteenth year would be a sabbatic year.

That this was the fact in regard to his fourteenth and fifteenth years, we have conclusive proof. "In the fourteenth year of king Hezekiah did Sennacherib, king of Assyria, come up against all the fenced cities of Judah, and took them." 2 Kings 18: 13. Hezekiah paid money to Sennacherib to have him withdraw from him, but he left his generals to contend against Jerusalem, and after they had made an insulting demand on Hezekiah for his surrender, Isaiah was sent to Hezekiah with a message from God against the Assyrian armies, and said, as a proof of the correctness of his prophecy—"This shall be a sign unto thee: ye shall eat this year such things as grow of themselves, and in the second year that which springeth of the same; and in the third year sow ye, and reap, and plant vineyards, and eat the fruits thereof." 2 Kings 19: 30.

This requirement to eat that which groweth of itself for two years in succession, proves that the first year was the seventh sabbatic year, and the second the jubilee period. And since these two correspond to the fourteenth and fifteenth years of Hezekiah's reign, the jubilee period would end with the fifteenth year. Then reckoning back from that year, we must have just so many periods of fifty years each as will reach to the entrance into Canaan when these jubilee periods began. In reckoning back from this point, if we make one jubilee period less than what we have here found, we do not have enough to reach from their beginning to the time of Samuel the prophet; and if we add in between the entrance into Canaan and the four fifty years of the judges, to make up any deficiency, we alter the jubilee periods so that the fifteenth of Hezekiah would fall outside of a jubilee year.

Now since we cannot find less than eighteen jubilees from the beginning of these periods, up to the fifteenth year of Hezekiah's reign, and we cannot find any date for more than that number, we must conclude that there was neither more nor less than that number. And, therefore, we take fifteen from Hezekiah's reign of thirty-one years, and we have fourteen years for the next jubilee. He was succeeded by Manasseh, who reigned "fifty and five years in Jerusalem." 2 Chron. 33: 1. But he did evil in the sight of the Lord. "Wherefore the Lord brought upon them the captain of the host of the king of Assyria, which took Manasseh among the thorns, and bound him with fetters, and carried him to Babylon." "And when he was in affliction, he besought the Lord his God, and humbled himself greatly before the God of his fathers, and prayed unto him; and he was intreated of him, and heard his supplications, and brought him again to Jerusalem." Chap. 33: 11–12.

Now here is evidently an interregnum in the reign of Manasseh, during his captivity, that cannot be reckoned into the fifty-five years of his reign "in Jerusalem." "He was in captivity, Dr. Hales supposes, about twelve years, to the death of Esarhaddon."—Bliss, p. 118. He was taken captive in the twenty-second year of his reign."—Ibid. p. 117. So if he reigned twenty-two years, and then was in captivity twelve years, he would have to reign thirty-three years after his return, to make him reign "fifty-five" years in Jerusalem. But $22+12+33=67$ years; and being twelve years old when he began to reign, he would then be seventy-nine when he died. Amon succeeded him, and reigned "two years." 2 Chron. 33: 21. Josiah succeeded him, and reigned "thirty-one years." 2 Chron. 34: 1. Then reckoning fourteen years of Hezekiah's reign after the jubilee, and sixty-seven for Manasseh, and two for Amon, and thirty-one for Hezekiah, we have one hundred and fourteen years. And this makes twenty jubilee periods, ending with the seventeenth year of Josiah. This leaves fourteen years for the twenty-first jubilee. Jehoahaz, Jehoiakim, and Jehoiachin, reigned eleven years; and Jehoiachin was taken captive, with all the principal men, three months after Jehoiakim's captivity, and was carried off to Babylon by Nebuchadnezzar. Here began the seventy years captivity. Jer. 29: 1–10.

Thus if the twelve years interregnum for the captivity of Manasseh is exclusive of his fifty-five years "reign in Jerusalem," it would make twenty-five years of the twenty-first jubilee end with the captivity of Jehoiachin. And in further proof thereof we quote Ezek. 1: 1–2—"And it came to pass in the thirtieth year, in the fourth month, in the fifth day of the month, as I was among the captives by the river of Chebar, that the heavens were opened, and I saw visions of God. In the fifth day of the month, which was the fifth year of king Jehoiachin's captivity." Now if the seventeenth year of Josiah was a jubilee, then the fifth year of Jehoiachin's captivity would be the thirtieth year of the next jubilee; and there is no other epoch from which it could properly seem to date. And since the fifteenth year of Hezekiah was manifestly a jubilee, it requires twelve years interval for the captivity of Manasseh to measure the interval between the jubilee in the fifteenth year of Hezekiah's reign, and the jubilee in the seventeenth year of Josiah's reign.

We have, therefore, from creation to the beginning of these jubilee periods 4604 years; and then $20\times50+25=1025$, and $4604+1025=5629$ years to the Babylonish captivity; and 70 years captivity to the first year of Cyrus, $5629+70=5699+2300=7999$ years.

According to Dan. 9: 1–25, from the end of the seventy years captivity there was to be seven weeks and threescore and two weeks to Messiah the Prince; and that "after these weeks, these threescore and two," Messiah was to be cut off; as the Septuagint renders it. Other versions, "after the threescore and two weeks." As this identifies "the threescore and two weeks," as the same period previously mentioned as following the seven weeks, it is equivalent to saying that Messiah should be cut off after the sixty-nine weeks; and, therefore, the sixty-nine would reach beyond his birth to the beginning of his official work as Messiah, at his baptism, when he "began to be about thirty years of age." Luke 3: 21–23.

Now as twenty-five years of the jubilee ended at the captivity, if we add seventy to the end thereof, and four hundred and eighty-

NOTE. The reckoning of 500 years from the entrance into Canaan to the beginning of Saul's reign, would make the fourth year of Solomon come into the five hundred and eighty-fourth year, after the forty years of the Exode. This is the nearest we can come to an agreement with the disputed passage in 1 Kings 6: 1. Josephus gives five hundred and ninety-two years from the coming out of Egypt. The chronology given by Paul (Acts 13) does not agree with this passage, and it cannot be reconciled with other testimony of a chronological character in the Bible.

three years to that, we have five hundred and seventy-eight to Christ's baptism. $25+70+483=578$. As this dates from the jubilee before the captivity, if we subtract one for every jubilee, we have $578-11=567$ years. Divide this by seven, and we get the Sabbatic years, and thus find the Sabbatic year of Christ's baptism to be 81, with no remainder.

According to Luke 21 : 21–30, and Matthew 2 : 1–23, the birth of Christ took place inside of forty days before Herod's death. And according to Josephus, the death of Herod was nigh to the Jewish passover. Wars, b. 11, c. 1, s. 2, 3. And he also states that Herod reigned thirty-four years from the death of Antigonus, whom Herod conquered when he took Jerusalem, and that in a Sabbatic year. Antiq. b. 14, c. 16, s. 1, 2, 3, and b. 18, c. 8, s. 1. And if we subtract Christ's age—thirty-one—from five hundred and seventy-eight, we have five hundred and forty-seven years from the jubilee period of Ezek. 1 : 1. And then Herod's reign of thirty-four, minus 1, for a jubilee, we have five hundred and fourteen years preceding Herod's reign, the last being a Sabbatic year, and the year when Herod took Jerusalem, "in the third month," and so the fourth month before the close of that Sabbatic year, which closed with the sixth month.

The agreement of these chronological points with each other, confirms the view that the seventy weeks date with the seven and sixty-two, in the first year of Cyrus, and proves there are but 483 years from Cyrus to Christ's baptism. And if there is such a mistake in the Chronology of Usher, who follows Ptolemy's Canon, from Cyrus to Christ, why may not there have been a mistake of thirty years too much in the time since Christ? Are we to believe in the infallibility of human chronology? Are not the seventy weeks of Daniel to date the vision of chap. 8; and do not sixty-nine of those weeks reach to Messiah the Prince? after which he was to be cut off. If so, there remain but 1817 years thereafter to the end of the vision of the Medo-Persian, Grecian and Roman kingdoms. If, according to human computations, the time expired in 1843, does that prove the vision failed? Though it tarry, it shall not tarry in reality.

NOTE.—The writer would acknowledge a mistake in his figures on the first page, last column, fifth paragraph from top of page. Corrected, it should read as follows: We have, therefore, from creation to the beginning of these jubilee periods 2604 years; and then $20\times50+25=1025$, and $2604+1025=3629$ years to the Babylonish captivity; and 70 of captivity to the first year of Cyrus added equals 3699 years; and 2300 years from that point amounts to 5999 years. THE EFFORT.—THE "GOOD TIDINGS."

Believing that the great and glorious Bible truths held by us as a people ought to be more widely disseminated, it was proposed at the National Conference, held more than two years ago, that a book should be written by brethren selected for the purpose, which should present some of the doctrines that have been so obscured by tradition as to have been lost sight of by the church; embracing, however, only such as seemed most essential, and might prove the most interesting and instructive. There was considerable delay in preparing and publishing it, but early in September an edition of two thousand was published, and is now nearly exhausted. But it is very desirable they should go out much faster.

"Glad Tidings" is a book that should be extensively read by others than Adventists. As publisher, I have arranged to have them sold at a much reduced rate. It is quite certain there are now thousands who would readily buy the book at the price it is now offered, if they knew of it, or if presented to them. If brethren in the different places would make a little effort, very many could be introduced, with promise of the best results. As comparatively few have seen it, I will give the subjects of the thirteen chapters:—The destiny of the earth—The time of reward—The resurrection of the just—The nature of man—What is the soul?—What is the Spirit?—The intermediate state—The Bible doctrine of future punishment—Prophecy, nature and objects—The metallic image—Exposition of Dan. 11—The four angels—Exposition of seventeenth of Revelation.

The subject of prophecy, which to many seems more difficult to understand, is here presented in such clearness and simplicity, that its design, I am sure, in all its grandeur and beauty will easily appear. And other subjects that are so ably treated, are of the very first importance. Now, pray do not say that the book probably contains nothing new to Adventists. It was not written and published for Adventists, but for others, and will you not assist in obtaining readers for it? Can we not by the use of good publications do much to correct the erroneous views that prevail, and thus cause thousands more to rejoice in the blessed hope? Certainly much has been and is now being accomplished, but we must double our efforts.

I see that the price of most books now published, of this size and binding, is from $1.25, to $2. The price of this, single or by the doz., is given by the Business Agent (see Crisis); but if any wish for a larger number they can make inquiry of me as to terms.

TENT MEETING REPORT.

CONDENSED.

Report for the season, 1871. We held six tent meetings in the following places:—Littleton, Groton Junction, Gloucester, Mass., and Suncook, N. H. From thence the tent was carried to Springfield for the benefit of the campmeeting, and was of great service, for meeting, and sleeping purposes for those who did not have tents. From Springfield it went to Natick, thence to Alton Bay campmeeting, and was used for the same purpose as at Springfield, with one more tent meeting at Fitchburg, Mass., after campmeeting.

These meetings were variously attended, but in every place visited it was evident that good was the result. The people generally turned out well, in some places crowding the tent, and by this means had the privilege of hearing this gospel, which otherwise they would not have heard. Thus the seed has been sown broadcast. Tracts by thousands, also the Crisis and Young Pilgrim, have been distributed gratuitously, wherever we have been, and the good done will never be known till the day of account. It is with pleasure that I look to what has been accomplished with the Conference Tent. I only wish more could have been done in the name of our Lord and Master.

Bro. Morrill has been uncompromising and faithful in his duties with the Tent, and deserves our gratitude for his interest and hard labor the past season. He was the right man in the right place.

This brief account of the Tent meetings the past season is submitted to the Conference. For the Tent Committtee,

L. BOUTELL.

CLOSE OF OUR MISSION TO CALIFORNIA.

SAN FRANCISCO.

We have made our farewell visit to the Pacific coast. We arrived in San Francisco Monday, Jan. 8th, and said "Good bye" Wednesday morning, April 10th. Last year we left April 11th. We have reason to praise God for what he has done upon this coast during the last fifteen months. We feel most richly paid for our long journeys; for abundance of misrepresentation, slander and warnings made against us from some pulpits and religious periodicals, holding us up to the public as a dangerous infidel, whose visit to the coast was a sad calamity that should be deplored by all good people; while we have seen scores converted to Christ, who are now happy in the Lord, waiting for his glorious appearing to set up his heavenly kingdom.

When we arrived in San Francisco, Dec. 17th, 1870, we knew of only one person—"C."—who would sympathize with us; but now we have a host of warm friends, who love us in the Lord. The great truths, so dear to us, and for the belief of which our name is cast out as evil, have taken strong hold in the hearts of many noble Californians, who are not ashamed of Jesus nor his words. They have learned, like Paul, to glory in the cross of Christ. They are not faint-hearted, and disposed to draw back to perdition; but are most firmly resolved, by the grace of God, to endure to the end.

When we draw a contrast between the present state of things, and what it was when we held our first meeting in the Young Men's Christian Association Rooms, Dec. 22nd, 1871, we can truly say, "What hath God wrought?" Men and women, who were then rushing rapidly down the broad road to destruction, are now in the narrow path that leads to life eternal, rejoicing in the bright prospect of soon seeing our dear Savior. They are truly new creatures. No one can doubt the reality of the christian religion, after witnessing its glorious effects in transforming men from swearing, ugly drunkards, to praying, happy, temperate, loving disciples of Jesus. Infidels, who have witnessed these things, confess it shakes their foundation, which is built largely on the inconsistencies of professors of religion, in connection with the unreasonableness of the doctrine of eternal torment. When these two objections are removed, the main pillars of infidelity are gone.

Satan has made a most persistent effort to crush the church on the Pacific coast that is looking for the coming of Jesus. He has attacked it in all possible ways, and has sometimes gained victories that looked alarming; but the good Lord has stretched out his almighty arm of defense, and the enemy has been obliged to retreat in confusion, thus increasing the courage of the christian soldiers. Apparently, all that the combined effort of opposing ministers could do has been done to neutralize the influence of those who love and support the truth which, with the blessing of the Lord, has led many from darkness to light, from Satan to Christ. It is too bad; but so it is, and must be endured with patience, or else the enemy will get the advantage. As soon as one becomes offended at persecution, the seed of truth in his heart becomes unfruitful. This the deceiver knows full well. Forbearance and long-suffering are essential in order to grow in grace. We must "be patient toward ALL men." When we are reviled, we must not revile again, but return good for evil, if we would imitate our heavenly Leader. This is a hard lesson for some to learn; but it is of great importance if we wish to make progress in divine life. Good people often make great mistakes by opposing evil with a hard spirit. It is kindness that conquers when all things else have failed of success.

OUR LAST MEETING.

We returned to San Francisco, from Vallejo, Saturday, Apr. 6th, and closed our meetings Tuesday evening, Apr. 10th, with a precious communion season, when seventy-five sat around the table of the Lord. Some wept for joy at the thought of what the Lord had done for them and their loved ones. We also had precious meetings on the Sabbath, and Monday evening, when we preached our last sermon, at the close of which thirteen came forward for prayers. Six were baptized on Tuesday, making thirteen in all. At the baptism, the Lord blessed in a signal manner. Others are waiting for the next opportunity for baptism.

Tuesday evening was devoted to the communion. Some fifteen received the right hand of fellowship, and ten at a previous meeting. The present prospect is bright. Several members of other churches are charmed with the meetings, and do not hesitate to say they are much the best in the city. They feel more at home with us than in any other place; and are among our warm friends. One at the communion said he had been turned out by the church to which he had belonged, because he had shown sympathy with our views and meetings. He felt much comforted in knowing he was now free to mingle with those of "like precious faith." Another church has turned out quite a number for believing what we have preached, being determined not to allow "heretics"—so called—to remain in church fellowship; but unfortunately, the evidence is strong to show that the Lord is not pleased with what they have done, and has hid his face from them. Another church contemplates doing the same thing, but it happens that one of its leading and most efficient and official members is fully settled in the doctrine which some call heresy; and he gave them to understand he should never consent to have unofficial members turned out, while he remained believing the same things. He wished them to show no partiality. Thus the matter stands. The opposition is earnest; but the truth is spreading, and the Lord is blessing those who proclaim and those who believe it.

OUR PARTING

scene, at the close of the communion, was one of the most hearty exhibitions of christian sympathy we have ever enjoyed. It could be truly said, "See how they love one another." It was no feigned love, but the pure, fervent, unselfish, outgushing fruit of the Holy Spirit—the "perfect love" that casts out fear. It was hard for such friends to part; but we felt assured the meeting in paradise is not far distant. While tears of sadness flowed, as we said good bye, we felt strengthened in heart to endure to the end, in order to enjoy forever the society of such dear friends. We said parting words and shook hands many times, and yet lingered still; did the same things again and again, till the lateness of the hour admonished us we must say farewell and be parted for a "little while," but should remain one in Christ, waiting for his coming, when we hope to meet to crown him Lord of all, and for ever live and rejoice with him in his paradise home, associated with the dear ones whose society will be ever pleasing.

Bro. and Sr. Fassett were obliged to be out of the city, holding meetings in other places; consequently, we did not have the pleasure of their company at the Sacrament. Their labors are being blest on the Pacific coast. Bro. Howell was with us. He is a true man, and is helping in the great work of sounding the last alarm to a guilty world. He preaches a part of the time in Vallejo, and at other times in the city churches of San Francisco. We request prayers for California, that great success may attend the labors of Bro. and Sr. Fassett, Bro. Howell, Bro. and Sr. Reed, Bro. Wilson, Bro. Norton, and others.

SACRAMENTO.

Wednesday morning, April 10th, at seven o'clock A. M., we departed from San Francisco, accompanied by some dear friends across the bay, where we said our last good bye, and took the cars for Sacramento. On our way we passed through, probably, the most gorgeous, enchanting fields of flowers to be found in the world. We have spoken of these in a former letter, but they are now more charming than ever. One might be excused for thinking he was on the borders of paradise, when he gets a sight of these immense natural flower gardens. Their colors are very bright, and of a great variety of shades, as beautifully blended as in a well arranged bouquet. Once seen they cannot be forgotten.

On arriving at Sacramento, we found the people more anxious to hear about the christian's hope than ever. We learned that strong efforts had been made by some of the ministers to make people believe they had immortal souls, and that, consequently, the wicked must be tormented eternally; but those who had heard the other side saw at once that our opponents were either mistaken as to our views, or else they were willfully misrepresenting us. We presume it was the former, as they were not out to hear what we did say. We would recommend that they hear before they judge, and then they may be able to hit nearer when they strike. Sometimes they try to make out we are Sadducees, denying the resurrection of the dead; whereas we are precisely the opposite, placing our only hope of a future life in the resurrection of the dead. Then, again, they say we are Spiritualists, when they themselves are advocating Spiritualism to all intents and purposes, while our stand-point is at the furthest possible distance from Spiritualism. Again, they represent us as teaching that every body will be annihilated; and then, that we teach there is no punishment for the wicked. It seems as though they were determined to put us in a false light. This only serves to weaken their position in the estimation of those who know what we do believe, and the reason of our hope.

We found the brethren and sisters joyful in the Lord, feeling very thankful for the light they had received concerning the teaching of the Scriptures. They are willing to bear reproach for the sake of the truth, and are being brought nearer to Jesus. While some former friends now neglect them, and treat them with coldness, and almost abuse them, they have the comfort of knowing that they love the Savior better than ever before. There is a warmth, vigor, and life-like feeling in their christian experience at present which surpasses any thing they had ever enjoyed in former years. The change is so great, thy feel quite like young converts. Others, witnessing their joy and peace, are anxious to find the same fountain from whence these blessings flow.

Wednesday evening we preached in the First Baptist church, and had a very pleasant and profitable meeting. Six more were baptized and received special blessings. Others are waiting for the next opportunity. Among those baptized were Dr. A. P. Truesdell, and Dr. Burns and wife. These two doctors hold prominent positions in the treatment of disease. Dr. Burns is a successful physician, who is conducting a Water Cure establishment in company with Dr. McConikey. Dr. Truesdell is having special success in treating chronic diseases of the lungs and throat, and other parts of the body, by a new process. We take much pleasure in introducing him to our Brn. and Srs. in California as a true christian. He hopes to be able, through the aid of assistants, to leave home soon and preach the word of life in the surrounding country. We recommend him to all the friends of Jesus. Those who wish meetings will do well to address him a note, and he will inform them when he can make them a visit. Get him if you can. His heart is in the work. We think it is very fortunate that we could leave him in charge of the meetings in Sacramento. He has had a rich experience in Christ. We find but few such men in our travels. He is a shining light every day.

When we look over the results of the meetings in Sacramento, we have great reason to praise the Lord. The Brn. and Srs. are intelligent, and will command respect among the people. Their society is agreeable, and their conversation entertaining. Several others were almost persuaded to unite with us. If the meetings could have continued one or two weeks more, it was thought that glorious results would have been witnessed. We left many warm friends in Christ in that city, whom we hope to meet soon in the kingdom.

VALLEJO.

We have spent a few days in Vallejo, and find the church in a healthy, prosperous condition, under the faithful watch care of Bro. and Sr. Fassett. The new chapel is pleasantly and wisely located on Capitol Hill, overlooking the surrounding country. We are much pleased with its construction and situation. Had it not been for the opposition from the same source from which we received aid and sympathy when here last year, there would have been no necessity for the erection of this new house; but under the circumstances we do not see how our Brn. could well do otherwise, unless they would consent to put their light under a bushel, which would have dishonored Christ. Quite a number have become tired of the opposition against us, and have left their former church relation and united with us to share the reproach heaped upon us for the truth's sake. Their increase of light on the teaching of the Bible makes them feel almost like young converts. They are like birds let loose from their cage to enjoy their full liberty in the pure air and sunlight. Two more were baptized, and received rich blessings.

Some of the prominent men in the city are deeply interested in the meetings, and have become satisfied that our position is in harmony with the Bible. An intelligent gentleman, who is editor of two papers, a daily and weekly, was a skeptic when he went to hear Bro. Fassett on the prophecies. After hearing his infidelity was removed, he gave his heart to Jesus, and is now ready to be baptized in the likeness of the burial and resurrection of Christ.

Those who have been skeptical concerning the reality of the christian religion, because so many professors have set such poor examples, are now convinced that there is something real about the religion of Jesus. Others who had lost their confidence in the Bible, because of its seeming contradictions, as it was construed to sustain popular theology; now see its harmony with reason and common sense. It is heart-cheering to see with what joy some are embracing the truth. They had given up all hope of ever being satisfied in relation to the teaching of the Bible. One intelligent, prominent business man remarked to us, he had said to his friends in former years, he thought he should have to get up a Bible of his own; but now he saw no need of it, for the one we have is all right and consistent. He has found that his difficulties arose from hearing false constructions put upon the Scriptures by those who attempted to sustain their theology by perverting the true meaning of the Bible. It is a sad sight to see the people led away from the truth and from Christ by those who profess to be leading them aright. O that they might have their eyes opened before it is too late; and before any more are made to stumble and fall into infidelity. Yet these same teachers will turn around and charge us with making infidels when we are instrumental in leading skeptics to believe and love the Bible. How like the charge made by the Pharisees against the disciples of Christ at the time of his first advent. In our boyhood days, an infidel was one who did not believe the Bible; now it seems that the one who believes it and loves it most is called the infidel. This is Satan's plan to destroy the power of the Scriptures. Let us "buy the truth and sell it not." He is to be pitied who thinks more of his reputation than he does of an unpopular truth. The conflict between truth and error, between the powers of light and darkness, Christ and Belial, is becoming more and more general and earnest. Brn. and Srs., let us go into the heat of the conflict. We have nothing to fear.

STONE AND GRANT.—Rev. Dr. Stone delivered a discourse at the Skating Rink last Sunday evening, on "The New Heavens and New Earth," in which he advanced and approved the same ideas in regard to a literal "new earth," formed out of this globe, for the Saints' Home, that have been prominently advocated in our midst by Elder Miles Grant.—San Francisco Daily Post.

Dr. Stone formerly preached in the Park Street church, Boston, and is the most popular minister on the Pacific coast.

RICHES.—In another column will be found an article on "riches," published in the Sacramento Daily Record of March 30th. We think it is the best thing we have ever seen written outside of the Bible. The positions taken are true. The article deserves a second reading, and should be preserved for careful consideration.

SIGNS OF THE TIMES.

The signs of the times indicate that "the end of all things is at hand." The moral, religious, social, and political condition of the world is very ominous of the end. Infidelity and crime are abounding to an alarming extent. Confidence in humanity is diminishing every day among business men. The honest portion, which is quite small, know not what to do. Their clerks and partners are continually robbing them; their agents are becoming rich at their expense; while the extravagance of their families is making them bankrupt. In this situation their hearts are "failing them for fear, and for looking after those things which are coming on the earth." Luke 21 26.

The social condition of the world is becoming very corrupt. Loose morals are prevailing in all directions, as never before since this country was settled. Virtue is now the exception. The facts that might be given on this subject are really shocking; and this immoral tide is rising rapidly. There seems to be hardly any check, or restraining influence brought to bear upon it at the present time. Lust is raging like a Chicago or Peshtigo fire. Men and women, the pulpit and press, who should sound the note of alarm, are either silent, or fleeing before the onward march of the approaching demon of destruction. The fear of reproach or injury from the popular crowd serves to silence those who should cry aloud against the waves of corruption that are dashing against the very foundations of all good society.

The political condition of the world is rapidly approaching a state of confusion that threatens to overthrow all existing governments, and in their stead establish one specially under the control of Satan and his demons. An immense and powerful organization is formed for this object. We refer to the International Society, organized upon the basis of Spiritualism; yet it is not known, perhaps, by the masses, that the demons are the chief movers and directors. At heart it is an organism against God, Christianity and the Bible. It is fast becoming the most formidable association the world has ever known. It presents a terrible appearance. Its influence is as deadly upon christianity as the poisen of the Upas tree upon vegetation. The spirit of Satan is its life; as the Holy Spirit is the life of christianity. It opens any asylum for all backsliders, infidels, Mohammedans, Jews, Hindoos, Catholics, Swedenborgians, Mormons, Shakers, and Spiritualists; while it shuts out every true Christian. Let all beware lest they take upon them "the mark of the beast." Trying times are upon us, when we shall need on "the whole armor of God."

PREACHING FABLES.

Soon after the great earthquake took place in California, when some thirty were killed and about one hundred wounded, we find the following announcement for the next Sabbath, by one of the popular ministers in San Francisco:—

"Dr. Cunningham, Pastor of the Central Presbyterian Church, will deliver the second lecture of the series on Bible truth and Æsop's Fables, this evening, at 7½ P. M., in the church on Tyler street, between Taylor and Jones. The first lecture of the series was largely attended and most heartily appreciated. Subject this evening: 'The Fox in the well.'"

We have yet to learn what connection there is between "Bible truth and Æsop's Fables." We can see some connection between the foregoing announcement, and the following prophecy:—"For the time will come when they will not endure sound doctrine; but after their own lusts shall they heap to themielves teachers, having itching ears; and they shall turn away their ears from the truth, and shall be turned unto fables." 2 Tim. 4 : 3–4.

Of course, we would not intimate that the prophet meant "Æsop's Fables;" but did mean that men would teach doctrines no more true than fables; and that such preaching would turn away the people from the truth, and cause them to stumble. It is too bad that so many stumbling stones are placed in the way of honest souls.

PERSONAL.—When at Vallejo, Cal., we met Bro. R. W. Wilson, Bro. and Sr. Fassett, and Bro. and Sr. Reed. Bro. W. is feeling better than when he came to this coast. He is pleased with the country, and does not desire to return. He has decided to settle in Santa Clara, in the beautiful Santa Clara Valley, near Bro. Reed. He intends to spend a portion of the summer laboring for Christ among the people in the hill country, where are many who have never heard a word about "the blessed hope." Bro. Wilson is just the one for that field, and we shall expect to hear of very happy results form his judicious labors in the vineyard of the Lord. He is a dear good man, and will exert a most salutary influence wherever he goes. He has given the Lord full possession of his heart, aud is enjoying perfect peace and love.

Bro. and Sr. Reed have not been able to get out much during the winter on account of the bad traveling. They are in good spirits, and strong in the Lord. They have just gone to Lake Port—a new place—with Bro. Fassett, where they propose to begin a siege of the fort of the enemy.

Bro. and Sr. Fassett are highly esteemed by those who know them, and their faithful labors are blessed by the Lord. Sr. Fassett's eyes are improving under the skillful treatment of Bro. Jamieson, at Vallejo. She expects a full cure in a little while.

THE RAINBOW.—We would recommend our readers to take the Rainbow, an able monthly, edited and published by Dr. Wm. Leask, 34 Sandringham Road, Kingsland, London, Eng. Price $2.50 a year in gold, or its equivalent. Postal orders can be sent.

THE SIX THOUSAND YEARS.

For centuries on centuries the impression has prevailed that when six thousand years from the creation of Adam shall have expired, a new era shall be ushered in by the coming of Emanuel from the skies. Many have supposed that six millenaries of human toil were foreshadowed by the six days of creation; and Barnabas, an early writer, and the reputed companion of the apostle Paul, locates the second coming of Christ at the end of this measurement of time. Whether this claim is reliable, or speculative, it has led to numerous computations to determine when the six thousand years will run out, and consequently when the long-looked-for new era shall dawn. Without doubt the most critical and reliable computation yet made, terminates the six thousand years in 1875; but I am not prepared to accept even this as being infallibly correct, but only as approximately accurate.

I do not think it possible to fix with absolute certainty upon the year that will end the six thousand, with present light; the best we can now do is to give the probable point, which I claim, after some investigation, to be 1875; and yet possibly that may be several years too early, or too late. We can give chapter and verse to prove, that from the length of time that some ten different men lived before the flood, the world must have been 1656 years old at the time of the deluge; but the ages of these men were given in round years, no allusion being made to odd months, weeks, or days, that might have made a difference of several years. We are not to suppose that all these men died on the same day of the month that Adam did, nor in the same month of the year. Nor can we step out with absolute positiveness on the unproven assumption that the variation in falling short and overrunning the exact year, must be equal. Probably this may have been pretty nearly the case, but at best this is only a probability.

Again, I can show that the kings of Judah reigned five hundred and nine years; but this estimate is made with no reference to the fact that the reign of these kings is given in current years, regardless of the fact that these might have been an excess, or lack, of weeks or months not mentioned, which might possibly vary the estimate several years. That the excess in some cases, and the lack in others, might be about equal, is very probable, but by no means absolutely certain. These, and similar considerations, prevent our converting a probability into an absolute certainty.

We are now in a cycle of time that must end the six thousand years; the probable point in that cycle may possible be too late, or too early, but the cycle is certain.

BRIEF EXPOSITIONS.

"WM. SHELDON:—We desire you to give us the meaning of the following passages of Scripture, viz., Mark 9 : 42–48; Rev. 20; Isa. 66 : 24. Give us the meaning of the 'worm' spoken of in the above chapters, in full, and oblige Yours,

J. M. SMITH & C. B. EVANS.

Cincinnati, O.

A full exposition of Rev. 20th, would require several articles; firstly, to prove that it does not teach several doctrines deduced from it, and then to show what it does teach. Not having the time to do justice to the subject at present, we defer this. The other two texts read thus—"And if thy hand offend thee, cut it off: it is better for thee to enter into life maimed than having two hands to go into hell [gehenna], into the fire that never shall be quenched: where their worm dieth not, and their fire is not quenched. And if thy foot offend thee, cut it off: it is better for thee to enter halt into life, than having two feet to be cast into hell [gehenna], into the fire that never shall be quenched: where their worm dieth not, and the fire is not quenched. And if thine eye offend thee, pluck it out: it is better for thee to enter into the kingdom of God with one eye, than having two eyes to be cast into [gehenna] hell-fire; where their worm dieth not, and the fire is not quenched." Mark 9 : 42–48. "And they shall go forth and look upon the carcasses of the men that have transgressed against me: for their worm shall not die, neither shall their fire be quenched." Isa. 66 : 24.

Jesus locates this scene in gehenna, and elsewhere tells us that "the whole body shall be cast into gehenna" (Matt. 5 : 30); and also that God will "destroy both soul and body in gehenna." Matt. 10 : 28. While various meanings are attached to the word "destroy" by theologians, it is admitted that it has but one meaning when applied to the body; and as the soul is here said to share this destruction with the body, it must be destroyed in the same sense, be literally destroyed; and as the body does not go to a gehenna of fire at death, it cannot go till the "resurrection of damnation." When the body comes in contact with fire, it is destroyed. I will here repeat what I have elsewhere published.

Gehenna, here translated "hell," instead of conveying the idea of preservation, is the strongest term in the whole Greek vocabulary to express total consumption. Says Greenfield—"Gehenna, properly the valley of Hinnom, south of Jerusalem, once celebrated for the horrid worship of Moloch, and afterward polluted with every species of filth, as well as the carcasses of animals, and dead bodies of malefactors; to consume which, in order to avert the pestilence which such a mass of corruption would occasion, constant fires were kept burning."—Greek Lexicon.

"Our Lord seems to allude to the worms which continually preyed on the dead carcasses which were cast into the valley of Hinnom, gehenna, and to the perpetual fire there kept to consume them. '—Parkhurst's Greek Lexicon. And Parkhurst again remarks—"A gehenna of fire does, I apprehend, in its outward and primary sense, relate to that dreadful doom of being burnt alive in the valley of Hinnom."

Here is the origin and meaning of the word gehenna, employed by the Savior to portray the coming doom of the impenitent. Old gehenna is made a type, by divine selection, to prefigure the destiny of the wicked. Then let us look at the typical gehenna in constrast with the antitypical gehenna, and thus learn the lesson the Savior designed to teach. Nothing was cast into typical gehenna to be preserved, but to be consumed; neither will the wicked be cast into antitypical gehenna to be preserved, but to be consumed. As in the typical gehenna the fire devoured all that was cast inside of the arches, and the worms devoured all on the outside; so in the antitypical gehenna the agent of destruction, symbolized by the worm and fire, will devour the wicked.

We are sometimes told that the worm signifies the sinner's immortal soul, or his guilty conscience. But the fallacy of this assumption is apparent when we pause to notice that the worm was no part of that which was cast into typical gehenna, but merely an agent to consume that which was cast therein: therefore the worm that dieth not is nothing that is to be cast into antitypical gehenna, but merely symbolizes an agent to consume the wicked when they are cast into it. If the agent here symbolized should die, sinners might continue to live. If the fire could be quenched, sinners might escape death; but as it is, sinners must be consumed.

That the "worm that dieth not" is not the soul or conscience of the sinner, is made still more certain by reading the statement of the prophet Isaiah, from which Jesus quotes—"And they shall go forth and look upon the carcasses of the men that have transgressed against me: for their worm shall not die, neither shall their fire be quenched." Is. 66 : 24. A carcass is a "dead body" or "corpse." Do "carcasses" contain a deathless soul, or a tormenting guilty conscience? "Their worm" cannot here mean soul or conscience, but a consuming agent. So also in the Savior's discourse, as he quotes from the prophet. As before shown, in the typical gehenna, the worm and the fire devoured all that was cast into it. Therefore, in the antitype (hell), the worm is no part of the sinner, but simply an agent to consume him. If this agent of destruction is not hindered, if the worm does not die, there is no escape for the sinner, but he must be consumed. To illustrate: We walk out into the farmer's corn-field, and discover that a worm has commenced devouring the corn, and readily conclude that if the worm does not die the corn will be destroyed. So with the sinner; if that worm, or agent of destruction, is undying, it will surely destroy him.

"The fire is not quenched." Is it therefore perpetual? A fire that cannot be quenched, instead of being endless in duration, is one that cannot be extinguished, and is therefore sure to consume that on which it preys. This is its meaning out of the Bible and in the Bible. We witness a house on fire; the flames are streaming from every part; there is no hope of saving the house, and we say the fire cannot be quenched; and just as truly as this is the case, the house must be consumed. So in the case of the sinner: if the fire cannot be quenched, the sinner must be consumed. It was said of the fire that consumed the gates and palaces of Jerusalem: "It shall not be quenched" (Jer. 17: 27); and of the fire that consumed the Jewish sacrifices, "It shall never go out." Lev. 6 : 13. But those fires were not perpetual. Still the language used is just as strong as that applied to the sinner. If a disease cannot be cured it will kill its victim. If a fire cannot be quenched, it will consume that to which it is applied. This is both the common sense view and the scriptural view of the matter, and there is no escape from the conclusion we have reached.

Jesus did not say "Their soul dieth not," but "their worm"; and the prophet speaks of the worm of "carcasses." This gehenna of fire comes after the judgment arrives, and brings the "second death." W. S.

OUR CHURCH AND DISCIPLINE.

In the absence of the Editor-in chief, we briefly respond to the following note of a new subscriber:—

"MR. GRANT:—"As my wife and I are striving to be true followers of Christ, we ask of you advice, praying that if this is for the honor and glory of God, that he will help the work along; but if not, that it may all be lost.

(1.) In the first place, we as Christians think we should belong to some church. There are plenty of churches all around us, but none of the Advent church; and we do not feel as though we could join any other and yet hold to the Advent doctrine. We are not prejudiced, but think this church the most in accordance with the Bible. We believe there are true Caristians in most of the churches, but there is so much strife here between those of one church and those of another, that we do not feel as if we wanted to join either.

(2.) Please inform us by letter, or in your paper, the nearest place to Ithaca, where there is an Advent church, and whether there is any prospect of starting one in this vicinity. Our only desire is to be true followers of Christ. Give us all and any information you may think we stand in need of.

(3. We would like to know if you (as a church) have any discipline, and if so, what is the nature of it? We feel as if we were here all alone, looking to Christ for assistance, and hope that he through you may give us instruction if it please him to have your work prosper. Yours with respect,

Ithaca, N. Y. WM. WHIPPLE."

REPLY.

1. It is well to belong to some church provided it is a church that will help one forward, instead of holding back; but never smother God's truth for the sake of getting a home that will not be congenial to your relish. Rather stand alone till God sends help; but let your light shine.

2. Cannot tell how near to your place a church may be found. Probably you will soon learn this through the Crisis. You may prove to be the nucleus for a church in your place. Wait and pray. Some of our ministers in your State may see this and give you aid. Will not Bro. Whitmore, or Stevens, go or send some true man of God? Do not be imposed upon by irresponsible stragglers.

3. We have the best discipline in the world; it is the Word of God, being "profitable for doctrine, reproof, correction, instruction," etc. The church of Christ had no other for three hundred years after the first Advent. We simply covenant together to live out the rules of this Word, as a church looking for the return of our Savior to reign on David's throne. W. S.

TWELVE THOUSAND SUBSCRIBERS.—Shall the subscription list of the Crisis be raised to 12,000 before our next Annual meeting? Why not? If each one would get a new subscriber, we should soon have 20,000. Since the price is reduced to $2.00, it will be easier work to get subscribers. Who will try? Who will say "I," instead of thinking that means somebody else? Begin this very week, and work with a will, and the result will soon be apparent. Let us have a response from Maine to Minnesota—from every state.

HENRY CONSTABLE'S work on "The Duration and Nature of Future Punishment," is an excellent work to put into the hands of all, especially the ministry. It will do good. I speak because I have carefully read it, and with confidence can recommend it.

T. M. PREBLE.

CHRISTIAN workers would do well to ponder the observation of a murderer who was recently hanged. It was this: "If I had received as much attention before being put into prison as I have since, I should never have been here."

THE TRACT FUND.

The Advent Christian Publication Society, at a meeting on Springfield Camp-ground, August 23d, 1871, voted to raise Two Thousand Dollars for the free distribution of Tracts the ensuing year; and they invite the help and co-operation of all lovers of the Lord and of his truth, in the furtherance of the good cause. The times are ominous of coming events, and admonish us to diligence in the Master's work. The Lord is at the door, and what we do must be done quickly. Let the contributions be prompt, hearty, and liberal. The Lord will reward the liberal giver.

CALIFORNIA LETTER.

O. R. FASSETT.

PARTING WITH BRO. GRANT.

The second of April, having listened to Bro. Grant at Vallejo, knowing that I was to leave on the morrow for a tour north, about a hundred miles from San Francisco, the thought entered my mind as I took his hand that I should not see him again before his departure for the east, and I said—"Bro. Grant, we shall not meet again before you leave for home!" And involuntarily I threw my arm around his neck, and we embraced each other in "unfeigned love" as brethren.

In company with Bro. and Sr. Reed, the next morning we started for Lakeport, meeting unexpectedly with Eld. Grant at the depot, who came to see us depart. We bade him farewell, and my companion adieu, and were in the fiery chariots borne speedily to the terminus of the railroad, about thirty miles on our way. Here we remained over night to take stage the rest of our journey, a distance of fifty miles. Having arrived at half-past two o'clock P. M., we had the privilege of visiting the mineral springs in this village. Callistoga lies at the head of Nappa Valley, one of the richest valleys in this State, and where the grape is cultivated extensively. The mountain and valley scenery is enchanting. We put up at the "Mountain House," where we had good accommodations, a ride of four miles free of charge, and gentlemanly landlords. We recommend to all our friends to patronize this "House," if they want good fare, a ride, and all at a little cost. The grounds of the springs are admirably laid out. Besides the main hotel, there are fifteen beautiful cottages; before the door of each is the palm, an evergreen tree. There are several arbors, and bathing houses, and an observatory on a natural elevation in the midst, and from which you have a view of the surrounding scenery. The springs are numerous, with various temperature from that of cold to boiling heat. The first spring has over the entrance of the building enclosing it the following inscription: "Nature's Kitchen; Cook for Yourself!" Parties boil their eggs, and take their lunch here. It is said that the water "tastes like chicken broth," and by putting into it crackers or bread, and sprinkling into it a little salt and pepper, one can enjoy a chicken soup without much expense or trouble. But where the chickens are cooked, is the question for solution. At the second spring the water is not so hot, but is too hot to drink freely without cooling. It is called "The Sulphur, Iron and Magnesia Spring." There is no need of boiling tea-kettles here, where there can be a hundred springs dug of this temperature. The water is very agreeable to drink, and must be beneficial in certain physical conditions. The third is named "Mud Bath." The spring water is drained off, leaving mud impregnated with the minerals. Rheumatic patients are put into this, where there ailment is cooked out of them! Then there are hot vapor baths, or rooms, where one is put in with his head out of a little window in open air, and he must sweat like rain. We were shut in a second, and felt the perspiration starting in every pore. These baths would sweat out a cold, and extract humors from the body, with but little difficulty. These springs are a marvel and a study. We spoke to our guide (who volunteered to show us their wonders) of the final conflagration, and he inquired if we thought "it would begin here," and left us, concluding who we were, no doubt.

Four miles from this village there is a "Petrified Forest," the "Greatest Wonder of the Age," so called. "Huge trees, from six to ten feet in diameter, and from this down to small branches and twigs, thousands of years old, now solid stone, arrest the attention and excite the wonder of visitors. In the midst of this (perhaps antediluvian) forest of stone, living trees are now growing—live oak, fir, etc.,—affording a beautiful shade, and rendering the forest a desirable place to visit." We were not able to visit this forest, as we desired, but saw specimens in large trunks of trees which were piled up on the grounds of the "Springs" in the form of and called the "Petrified Grotto." They were a curiosity, indeed, to us.

Thursday morning, at six o'clock, we took stage for

LAKEPORT.

After a good breakfast, we started for a long ride of fifty miles. We passed up the rugged side of "Saint Hellena Mountain," which lifts its head four thousand seven hundred feet above the valley. For the purpose of viewing the charming scenery, we walked, or rode upon the outside of the stage with the driver. O how enchanting! the scenery so romantic; and as we rose above the valley, it looked so beautiful at our feet. It was a picture of beauty such as we seldom ever beheld. Birds were singing sweetly, and the morning was as lovely as we could desire. We passed near the summit of this mountain, and then through rugged cliffs, and by meandering brooks and deep ravines, we descended the other side.

Just before reaching Lakeport, which takes its name from "Clear Lake," we came in sight of "Uncle Sam," a mountain bearing this name, of a dark green appearance; and in the distance is seen "Snow Mountain," which is covered with snow, the first snow I had seen during this season. It is very difficult in this country to determine the seasons of the year. If you lose the month, you are at your wits' end to know whether it be summer, fall, spring, or winter. We see the force of Christ's language when he says, "When ye see the fig-tree and all the trees putting forth their leaves, ye know that summer is nigh." By this sign now visible, we determine that summer is the next season to come; otherwise, we might suppose from appearances that any other season might be at hand, for we have winter (without snow), fall, spring and summer weather all within a single week. When we came here on Thursday, the air was as warm as in summer. Friday we had rain, winds, and cold as severe as in winter, and Bro. Cutler had two large fires to keep us and his family comfortable. But the fig-tree and all the trees tell us "summer is nigh." So while all men are perplexed as to what period in our world's history we have reached, "the signs" admonish us that the Lord's coming is "near, even at the doors."

HOW THE TRUTH WAS FIRST PLANTED IN LAKEPORT, CAL. We came to Lakeport by invitation of Bro. Cyrus Cutler. He is a son of Jacob Cutler, who is about eighty years of age. An Advent sister four years ago wished to disseminate the truth, and paid for the Crisis to be sent to the old gentleman. It was not much esteemed for a long while; but at last Cyrus became interested in its articles on immortality, and began to advocate the doctrine. The question was finally introduced into a debating society, of which he was member, last winter. The disputants were chosen. A clergyman or two, and others, were to affirm man's immortality, while he and others were to sustain the negative. Bro. Cyrus, seeing by the Crisis that I visited in San Francisco, sent to me for the arrangement of an argument, and such publications as I could furnish him with, which I forwarded. The debate, however, was deferred several weeks by a protracted meeting, and it was thought that there was an effort to prevent the discussion altogether. The ministers during the meetings, and in filling their appointments (of different denominations), preached against the little cloud of heresy they saw coming up in the religious horizon, thus forestalling the discussion, and to prejudice the people. The debate, however, came off this spring, and the decision of the judges was, that Bro. Cutler and his side had the argument. He stirred up the whole religious community, and feeling the crushing weight of "orthodoxy," he felt incompetent to meet the emergency, and sent for me to come over and help him. I sent his letter to Bro. and Sr. Reed, and asked if they would accompany me, and they concluded to do so.

On the Lord's day, April 7th, we attended service in the "Grove school-house," near Bro. Cutler's, when the minister (Presbyterian) took for his text—"If any man will do his will, he shall know of the doctrine." He had evidently prepared himself to give "the winds of doctrine," as he stated, a terrible blow. But we were present, and he was hindered and cramped. Besides, he wished in the opening of the service that the congregation would "sing a song," and as there was hesitancy and delay, Bro. Cutler, who usually leads the singing, requested us to sing, when we struck up and sang—"When I can read my title clear," affixing the chorus—"We'll stand the storm," etc., which I think took him down, finding we were prepared for the onset. He called upon a Methodist clergyman present to follow his discourse, who in like manner was shorn of his strength, and after stating that he "intended to say more, but would not, as an afternoon service was to be held," he sat down. Then we were granted the privilege of giving out any notice we wished, together with others present; after which I begged the privilege to add a few remarks to those of the two ministers, on the side of truth and "sound doctrine."

At present we are holding meetings in the Methodist church at Lakeport, with a good prospect before us that we shall have a gracious revival. Sunday evening two ministers (Methodists) were present, and a large audience. Last evening another stated to me at the close—"I have not half the prejudice I had when I came in," and tears filled his eyes.

Correspondence:

From Bro. C. F. Sweet.

DEAR BRN.:—On Monday, Oct. 9th, the day of fire and flame in the West, I crossed over Niagara river at Buffalo, and spent a week at Lowbank, some thirty miles west of Buffalo, on the Canada side. Bro. William Braven called me there. We had quite a good, and, I think, profitable time. On Sunday baptized three dear souls in the name of the Lord Jesus. Monday the 16th preached at Gainsboro, and on Tuesday left for Trenton, Consecon, and Picton, Prince Edward county. Preached eight sermons in Picton. Four in Cherry Valley, in which place I occupied the Disciple church, a large and commodious house, which was quite well filled. The last discourse in this place was a funeral sermon of an old man some ninety-four years of age. The congregation was large and quite attentive, and I gave them some new (to them) truth, as well as an abundance of old truths.

I preached once in the Methodist church at Mount Pleasant, and told them as much truth as their unenlightened minds were able to bear. I heard that some said it was "not as bad as they expected." Thank God, they had the candor to acknowledge the fact; but the statement shows how slander has a tendency to prejudice and blind the people.

Bro. Levings, who took me to his own house, also took me to Consecon to my appointment on Sunday, Nov. 5th, and after preaching a very close sermon on first principles, we repaired to the shore of the Bay of Quinte, and I baptized Bro. James Lent and wife of Picton, also Bro. Lewis Chase and wife of Consecon, and also a sister-in-law of Bro. Chase. I preached also on Monday and Tuesday evenings following. On Wednesday as I was about to leave, Bro. Philip Chase came to me at his father's and said he had commenced to plow that morning, but he could not plow, and had turned out his team to go and be baptized. So we with his father went to the Bay, and I baptized "Philip," and he like the eunuch went on his way rejoicing. I left the water side for Trenton, where I preached that evening in the Methodist church. Next day went on to father Lent's neighborhood, and preached two evenings in a little old Wesleyan chapel; and the church, general character, and religious tone of the place (with a few happy exceptions), are all of the same piece. Here I received the kind friendship of father and mother Lent and family, that is so cheering to the way-worn pilgrim. May the Lord reward them and all their children for their remembrance of a pilgrim after a "godly sort."

From here I went to Orono and preached at the Temperance Hall, and in the Christian's New Brick church, which was quite well filled; and God gave me utterance, and also a hearing ear in the congregation. Good was done. I preached also in Clark and Selina on Sunday the 19th, and then went back to Orono to hear a Mr. McDonough (a Wesleyan Methodist) preach a set sermon on the coming of Christ, kingdom of God, and the millennium. So at the appointed time I dropped in, and found a good place to take notes. At length he made his appearance. Preliminaries being got through, he took his texts, viz: Dan. 2:44 and 7:13, 14; Rev. 20:1–10. His first dashing statement showed, as a brother had surmised, that he intended to deal death-blows to "Adventism." He said, "Adventism is infidelity and atheism."

After he closed the meeting, I stepped up on the seat and said—"There will be preaching to-morrow evening at the Christian church in this place, and then the present discourse of Mr. McDonough will be reviewed; and although I must consider Mr. McDonough my personal traducer, yet if he will hear my reply I will treat him as a gentleman." He yelled out in a sneering and scoffing manner, "I shall not go to hear you, sir"; and then (as I was passing out of the house) he exhorted his congregation "not to go to hear that infidel and atheist, but to treat him with perfect contempt."

The next day the following printed handbill was placarded over the town and village:

"REVIEW.—There will be a review of Mr. McDonough's false attempt, last evening, to expound 'the gospel of the kingdom of God' at the Christian church this (Monday) evening, by C. F. Sweet of Albion, N. Y. The public, and especially Mr. McDonough, are cordially invited. THOMAS CRANKHITE."

Bro. C. took pains to mail a notice to Mr. McDonough and some of his admirers. Some, on reading them, we learn, tore them in pieces, and committed them to the flames. The review went off before a large congregation of people, a number of whom were members of Mr. McDonough's church. The Lord helped me, and the people listened with the very best attention, and after formally introducing my subject, I proceeded to ask if it was infidelity to believe in the personal, literal coming and kingdom of Christ, as distinctly taught in the Holy Scriptures? If Adventism is infidelity and atheism in the nineteenth century, was it not infidelity and atheism also in the first century of the present dispensation? Here I showed the Scriptures in which it was most clearly manifest that Mr. McDonough and apostolical preaching were very dissimilar, and that if I must be called an infidel and an atheist for holding with them, and not with Mr. McDonough, I would bear it patiently, for evidently "the coming of the Lord draweth nigh"; then all these wrongs will be righted. If it is atheism to believe in the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ as the Creator of all things, in whom we live and move and have our being, then I must be an atheist; for I take this scriptural view of the subject. Is not the doctrine of the creeds very nearly allied to atheism, that say he is without body, parts, or passions? and as one clergyman holding up a tea-cup said, "God is in this tea-cup as much as he is anywhere"? I wonder if an atheist hearing that would not say that is the truth.

Extracts from Letters.

BRO. AND SR. H. J. AND F. E. MUNSON write from Girard, Kan., March 22d:—"We wish again to address you in the interests of the cause of the Lord in our State. As far as we know, we are here alone in the public ministry of the gospel of the kingdom, as we hold it. Myself, and wife as a helper, have done what we could during the last two years for the promotion of the cause. More recently, we have had some blessed outpourings from the hand of the Lord. Fifteen were baptized this winter at one place. This was the result of a protracted effort of over two weeks.

We feel that we have here in Kansas a broad field, unoccupied and neglected. We cannot resist longer the sense of duty of putting forth more earnest efforts on our part, and also of making an earnest cry for help. We ask aid to enable us to devote our energies to the cause through the State, as far as we are able to extend our labors. We need a tent the coming summer. It seems to us, of all places, we need one here, as the school-houses are generally small, church houses few, and closed against us, and the few interested are not able to hire halls, if we had them. We implore immediate aid."

Cannot something be done to assist Bro. Munson in his efforts to spread the truth, and save the people in Kansas?

BRO. D. W. SPEAR writes:—"I was glad to see Bro. Fassett's piece on definite time in the Crisis. While we are exceedingly glad to read anything showing a clear light on prophecy, and tending to unite the church, still we are strongly opposed to theories and arguments based upon doubtful dates and uncertainties, that only produce wranglings and divisions. Do not let us do anything to divide the church at this late day."

SR. B. HART writes:—"The Crisis has been a great blessing to me in showing me the right way to the kingdom. I hold it next to the Bible. I was brought up to believe that all are created immortal, and at death a christian goes right to heaven. I have searched the Scriptures, and find they do not teach this, and am willing to trust God, and let him have his own way, and am satisfied. I want to live and reign with Christ on the new earth. I feel his love in my heart as I am writing.

We could not do without the Crisis; it is our preacher. We have no meetings here in East Rush, N. Y., but hope the Lord will send some one. I believe good could be done. Bro. H. Pratt was here and preached a few times, and left a good impression on the people; they were hungry to hear the truth. I am determined by the help of the Lord to work out my soul's salvation. The Lord has done great things for me and my children. Blessed be the Lord!"

SR. S. ISBELL writes:—"A little over a year ago we came to Iowa, bringing our parents with us (both of whom were suffering with lung disease), hoping that the change from the cold and rugged climate of Wisconsin, to the more genial one of the South might prove beneficial; but, alas! the blighting hand of disease had too firm a grasp of the sources of life, and our dear father failed rapidly. The last week of his life he seemed in great pain, and every breath was a cry to his heavenly Father for help to bear his suffering. He told mother he realized now what Paul meant when he said, 'pray without ceasing.' And in the night he suddenly 'fell on sleep.'

Father took great interest in Brn. Grant's and Fassett's labors in California, and often deplored his inability to do no more for the cause of Christ. The Crisis was always a well-spring of happiness to him; he looked for the speedy coming of Jesus, and exhorted us all to prepare for it. Pray for us, that we may meet you all and him in the kingdom of God."

BRO. E. N. MORSE writes:—"I am trying to preach the gospel of the kingdom in this section. We have been having quite a reformation in Worcester. People seem to be anxious to hear, but are afraid of the Advent doctrine, and even those who profess to believe in the speedy coming of Christ say that it is no use to preach it. So they said in the days of the antediluvians. But when the last prayer was made, the last sermon preached, the last exhortation given, God closed the door of the ark. As it was in the days of Noah, even so shall it be in the days of the coming of the Son of man."

BRO. N. R. SMITH writes:—"The Crisis is the first paper that I have any remembrance of seeing, or reading, and still I watch for its weekly coming because I love its contents, Bible truths. My prayer is that many may receive these truths into good and honest hearts, that their supporters may wax valiant, and that Jesus will soon come to be admired by those who have done and will be doing right."

BRO. H. S. MITCHELL writes:—"The Lord is blessing the little church in Bowdoin. A good interest still prevails. Preaching nearly every Sabbath, and a good attendance. Pray for us, that union may prevail, and sinners come to the knowledge of the truth and be saved."

SR. S. S. MOONEY writes:—"My husband is here at Gloucester sick with pleurisy fever. He has been very sick, but is some better. He asks the dear children of God to remember him in their prayers."

Summary of News.

FOREIGN.

Cable News.

GREAT BRITAIN.

AN ULTIMATUM FROM BISMARCK.

LONDON, April 18. [Special to the New York World.] Bismarck has sent an ultimatum that the French army be forthwith reduced to 225,000 men. He hints that in case of a refusal it will be necessary for Germany to establish a French Government which Germany can trust.

SPAIN.

MADRID, April 18. A decree has been issued annulling the concession for a telegraph cable to America by way of the Azores.

DON CARLOS.

MADRID, April 21. The Carlists, without making any decided outbreak for some days past, keep the country in a state of perpetual alarm and excitement by industriously spreading reports of their strength and of their probable future movements. It is announced that Don Carlos will soon publish a manifesto, protesting against the validity of the late election, on the ground that gross irregularities have been committed at the polling places. He also forbids the Carlists who were elected deputies to the Cortes taking their seats in that body. A general rising of Carlists in all parts of Spain is momentarily expected. Troops are prepared to meet it. The railway companies have been ordered to hold all their rolling stock in readiness for instant use. Volunteers in Madrid and elsewhere proffer their services to the government. A council of Ministers met yesterday evening, and were in session all night.

THE CARLISTS.

MADRID, April 22. The Carlist campaign has been actively opened, and large numbers of revolutionists have taken the field under Don Carlos. The initiatory step in the movement against the government has created great excitement in this city. The revolutionary rising has been simultaneously accomplished in a large number of districts throughout Spain. In the neighborhood of Barcelona, Seville, and several other cities the movement is of sufficient strength to cause the authorities much apprehension. It is also stated that the Carlists are massed in great numbers at Toledo and Navarre, and under the command of priests. Every preparation has been made by the government to meet the emergency. The railways are held in readiness for the transportation of troops or war material if rendered necessary.

GERMANY.

THE RELATIONS BETWEEN GERMANY AND FRANCE—A DENIAL.

BERLIN, April 19. The North German Gazette positively denies the truth of the statements made by the London Telegraph in regard to the relations of Germany and France, and pronounces the rumors of grave complications between the two countries wholly without foundation.

ITALY.

LABOR MOVEMENT.

ROME, April 18. A "Workingmen's Congress" is now being held in this city. The gathering is composed of delegates from labor associations in different parts of Europe, and the attendance is large, about one hundred and fifty associations being represented. The movement is looked upon with some degree of suspicion by the authorities as tending to the spread of the political theories of the Internationals. The leaders, however, assert that their motive is not political, but that the purpose of the gathering is to consult on the questions properly pertaining to the moral and social condition of the working people.

UNWARRANTABLE ACTION.

April 21. The Italian government has intimated its objection to the introduction, in the Geneva Conference, of the American claim for consequential damages, and has instructed its representatives to oppose its consideration by the conference.

PERSIA.

THE FAMINE.

LONDON, April 21. Persian advices state that the famine is increasing in Teheran, the principal city; and destitution is becoming widespread. It is feared that with the approach of summer the disease and epidemic, which have partially abated during the winter, may again appear. Numbers are perishing daily from want and exhaustion. From all parts of Persia a similar state of affairs is reported.

DOMESTIC.

Little Rock, April 20. The Fort Smith New Era of the 17th inst, contains the following startling news from the Indian country:

"The feelings of jealousy harbored by our Indian neighbors at the authority of the Federal Government exercised over their territory culminated last Monday, the 15th inst., in a fearful deed of bloodshed, falling little short of wholesale massacre of the agents of the Government. The following startling letter was received Tuesday morning at the the United States Marshal's office by Captain James W. Donnelly:

WHITEMORE'S BARREN FORK, CHEROKEE NATION, April 15.

J. W. Donelly—Dear Sir: We have had a terrible fight. We lost seven on our side killed. Three of theirs were killed. There are lots of wounded. We are in a terrible strait. Send us men and means instanter. We are with the dead and wounded and expect to stay with them until the last one of us goes. Owens is wounded. For God's sake send help, and send quickly. Come to Dutchtown, and then down Barren Fork to Whitemore's. Ward is killed. Vanney and I are alone with Owens. None of the rest are here with us. We look for help to-morrow night by dark, and are looking to be attacked every moment. The parties are close together. Some of the Cherokees are with us. Yours in haste.

(Signed) J. S. PEAVY.

A demand has been made upon the authorities of the Cherokee nation to assist in taking the murderers, dead or alive. This is one of the most terrible affairs ever known in this country, originating in distrust and jealousy, with which the more intelligent portion of the inhabitants of the Indian territory are misled by bad white men. What protection can be had may be surmised from the fact that Proctor has committed eighteen murders and is still unhung. It is the stern determination of the United States Marshal of this district to bring to justice the murderous and rebellious crew in the nation at any sacrifice.

GAVAZZI'S MISSION.

New York, April 20. Father Gavazzi states that he and Rev. Dr. Thompson are a deputation from the Free Christian Church of Italy, to make its objects and prospects known to friends in America and to ask assistance. They hope to carry home from America the beginning of an Evangelical college, which shall diffuse throughout United Italy the true doctrine of free Christianity. Their creed is simply the golden rule and to pay no attention to the Vatican.

THE EAST INDIA EARTHQUAKE.

New York, April 22. Advices from Madrid say that the earthquake in the Philippine Islands continued all night and part of the next day. All the inhabitants of Cotta Baton fled in the utmost consternation. Many women were taken aboard ships in the harbor. The town was destroyed in less than ten minutes, and confusion ensued almost beyond imagination. It is remarkable that only one fatal case occurred, though many persons were injured.

Houses were thrown down on Friday last at Round Valley Camp, Inyo county. The earth opened in many places, but no lives were lost.——The proportion of professing christians to the population in this country, is one to eight. There are 91,000 clergymen, and their average salary is $700.——The Third Congregational Church of San Francisco numbers several Chinese converts in its membership, and is the first church in the Pacific States to take such action.——The Bishop of Augsburg, Germany has directed the clergy of his diocese to punish unbelievers in Papal infallibility by withholding from them baptism and burial, as well as the intermediate rites of confession and communion.——The French Trans-Atlantic Telegraph Company have concluded a contract with the Telegraph Maintenance and Construction Company for laying a fourth telegraphic cable between Europe and America.——The conflagration which laid waste the business portion of the town of Ayer Sunday morning proved proportionately as great a calamity to that enterprising and prosperous community as was the great fire in Chicago to the people of the Queen City of the West.——The town of West Point, Mississippi, was nearly destroyed by fire April 15th. Fifty dwellings and the business houses were totally destroyed.

OUR LAST EFFORT.

"The Judge standeth before the door."—JAS. 5:9.

The evidence points to 1873 as the time when Christ shall come, and we shall be called to give an account of our stewardship. The warning must go forth. Immediate action is demanded to give a distinctness to the cry—"Behold! the Bridegroom cometh!" We are already engaged in this work, and are sending out tracts; also receiving funds for this purpose. Let all who have hearts that beat in this direction, pray to the Lord of the harvest to send forth laborers into his harvest. Send funds or pledges for this purpose to GEO. T. ADAMS, Agent of the Adv. Chris. Pub. Society, or to L. T. CUNNINGHAM.

L. T. Cunningham	$500.00
E. Wolcott (received by L. T. Cunningham)	75.00

THE SPRINGFIELD National Advent Campmeeting Committee, according to appointment, will meet at "Coolley's Hotel," Springfield, Wednesday, May 1st, at nine o'clock A. M.
GEO. T. ADAMS, Secretary.

THE pledges to Mass. Conference at the Annual meeting, should be paid to the Treasurer, Charles Goodrich, Crisis Office, 160 Hanover St., Boston. L. BOUTELL.

THERE are two families living on the Springfield camp-ground, and it has become necessary to expend some $75 to make two houses, Sr. Holden's and Bro. Sharp's, comfortable, with chimneys, and an addition to Bro. Sharp's house. Now we feel safe from thieves breaking in hereafter, and carrying off what they pleased, leaving the houses there open. I have paid a part of the expense, and owe some $60. I want those having property there to help me pay it. Bro. Sharp has paid $15, besides giving the use of his house. What the friends see fit to send, please do so as soon as you can, either in pledges or in cash, as it must be paid soon. Direct to me at Chicopee Falls, Mass.
HIRAM MUNGER.

THE QUARTERLY Meeting of the church of God of Wayland and Loon Lake, will be held at Wallace, Steuben Co., N. Y., to commence at two o'clock P. M., Saturday, May 11th, and continue over the 12th. All are invited to attend, and especially so as this is the last quarterly meeting before the close of the third year of my pastoral labor, and perhaps the last that I shall ever hold with the church and people of the place.

AT a special meeting of the church in Springfield, Mass., held Friday evening, April 12th, it was voted unanimously to invite the brethren and sisters scattered abroad to meet with them on Wednesday, May 8th, and continue over the following Lord's day. The forenoons (in part at least) will be devoted to business, including the consideration of the expediency of forming a Life and Advent Conference. The afternoons and evenings will be devoted to preaching, prayer, conference and general spiritual improvement. The evidences of the speedy coming of our Lord and the kindred truths we hold so dear call upon us for an earnest effort to spread them abroad, that others may rejoice with us in the glorious prospect. All are most cordially invited. The church in Springfield will care for all who come. R. E. Ladd, T. R. Weaver, J. K. Winter, A. W. Bradford, W. N. Pile, Committee.

three years to that, we have five hundred and seventy-eight to Christ's baptism. 25+70+483=578. As this dates from the jubilee before the captivity, if we subtract one for every jubilee, we have 578—11=567 years. Divide this by seven, and we get the Sabbatic years, and thus find the Sabbatic year of Christ's baptism to be 81, with no remainder.

According to Luke 21 : 21-30, and Matthew 2 : 1-23, the birth of Christ took place inside of forty days before Herod's death. And according to Josephus, the death of Herod was nigh to the Jewish passover. Wars, b. 11, c. 1, s. 2, 3. And he also states that Herod reigned thirty-four years from the death of Antigonus, whom Herod conquered when he took Jerusalem, and that in a Sabbatic year. Antiq. b. 14, c. 16, s. 1, 2, 3, and b. 18, c. 8, s. 1. And if we subtract Christ's age—thirty-one—from five hundred and seventy-eight, we have five hundred and forty-seven years from the jubilee period of Ezek. 1 : 1. And then Herod's reign of thirty-four, minus 1, for a jubilee, we have five hundred and fourteen years preceding Herod's reign, the last being a Sabbatic year, and the year when Herod took Jerusalem, "in the third month," and so the fourth month before the close of that Sabbatic year, which closed with the sixth month.

The agreement of these chronological points with each other, confirms the view that the seventy weeks date with the seven and sixty-two, in the first year of Cyrus, and proves there are but 483 years from Cyrus to Christ's baptism. And if there is such a mistake in the Chronology of Usher, who follows Ptolemy's Canon, from Cyrus to Christ, why may not there have been a mistake of thirty years too much in the time since Christ? Are we to believe in the infallibility of human chronology? Are not the seventy weeks of Daniel to date the vision of chap. 8; and do not sixty-nine of those weeks reach to Messiah the Prince? after which he was to be cut off. If so, there remain but 1817 years thereafter to the end of the vision of the Medo-Persian, Grecian and Roman kingdoms. If, according to human computations, the time expired in 1843, does that prove the vision failed? Though it tarry, it shall not tarry in reality.

NOTE.—The writer would acknowledge a mistake in his figures on the first page, last column, fifth paragraph from top of page. Corrected, it should read as follows: We have, therefore, from creation to the beginning of these jubilee periods 2604 years; and then 20×50+25=1025, and 2604+1025=3629 years to the Babylonish captivity; and 70 of captivity to the first year of Cyrus added equals 3699 years; and 2300 years from that point amounts to 5999 years. W. H.

THE EFFORT.—THE "GOOD TIDINGS."

Believing that the great and glorious Bible truths held by us as a people ought to be more widely disseminated, it was proposed at the National Conference, held more than two years ago, that a book should be written by brethren selected for the purpose, which should present some of the doctrines that have been so obscured by tradition as to have been lost sight of by the church; embracing, however, only such as seemed most essential, and might prove the most interesting and instructive. There was considerable delay in preparing and publishing it, but early in September an edition of two thousand was published, and is now nearly exhausted. But it is very desirable they should go out much faster.

"Glad Tidings" is a book that should be extensively read by others than Adventists. As publisher, I have arranged to have them sold at a much reduced rate. It is quite certain there are now thousands who would readily buy the book at the price it is now offered, if they knew of it, or if presented to them. If brethren in the different places would make a little effort, very many could be introduced, with promise of the best results. As comparatively few have seen it, I will give the subjects of the thirteen chapters:—The destiny of the earth—The time of reward—The resurrection of the just—The nature of man—What is the soul?—What is the Spirit?—The intermediate state—The Bible doctrine of future punishment—Prophecy, nature and objects—The metallic image—Exposition of Dan. 11—The four angels—Exposition of seventeenth of Revelation.

The subject of prophecy, which to many seems more difficult to understand, is here presented in such clearness and simplicity, that its design, I am sure, in all its grandeur and beauty will easily appear. And other subjects that are so ably treated, are of the very first importance. Now, pray do not say that the book probably contains nothing new to Adventists. It was not written and published for Adventists, but for others, and will you not assist in obtaining readers for it? Can we not by the use of good publications do much to correct the erroneous views that prevail, and thus cause thousands more to rejoice in the blessed hope? Certainly much has been and is now being accomplished, but we must double our efforts.

I see that the price of most books now published, of this size and binding, is from $1.25, to $2. The price of this, single or by the doz., is given by the Business Agent (see Crisis); but if any wish for a larger number they can make inquiry of me as to terms.

TENT MEETING REPORT.

CONDENSED.

Report for the season, 1871. We held six tent meetings in the following places:—Littleton, Groton Junction, Gloucester, Mass., and Suncook, N. H. From thence the tent was carried to Springfield for the benefit of the campmeeting, and was of great service, for meeting, and sleeping purposes for those who did not have tents. From Springfield it went to Natick, thence to Alton Bay campmeeting, and was used for the same purpose as at Springfield, with one more tent meeting at Fitchburg, Mass., after campmeeting.

These meetings were variously attended, but in every place visited it was evident that good was the result. The people generally turned out well, in some places crowding the tent, and by this means had the privilege of hearing this gospel, which otherwise they would not have heard. Thus the seed has been sown broadcast. Tracts by thousands, also the Crisis and Young Pilgrim, have been distributed gratuitously, wherever we have been, and the good done will never be known till the day of account. It is with pleasure that I look to what has been accomplished with the Conference Tent. I only wish more could have been done in the name of our Lord and Master.

Bro. Morrill has been uncompromising and faithful in his duties with the Tent, and deserves our gratitude for his interest and hard labor the past season. He was the right man in the right place.

This brief account of the Tent meetings the past season is submitted to the Conference. For the Tent Committee,

L. BOUTELL.

CLOSE OF OUR MISSION TO CALIFORNIA.

SAN FRANCISCO.

We have made our farewell visit to the Pacific coast. We arrived in San Francisco Monday, Jan. 8th, and said "Good bye" Wednesday morning, April 10th. Last year we left April 11th. We have reason to praise God for what he has done upon this coast during the last fifteen months. We feel most richly paid for our long journeys; for abundance of misrepresentation, slander and warnings made against us from some pulpits and religious periodicals, holding us up to the public as a dangerous infidel, whose visit to the coast was a sad calamity that should be deplored by all good people; while we have seen scores converted to Christ, who are now happy in the Lord, waiting for his glorious appearing to set up his heavenly kingdom.

When we arrived in San Francisco, Dec. 17th, 1870, we knew of only one person—"C."—who would sympathize with us; but now we have a host of warm friends, who love us in the Lord. The great truths, so dear to us, and for the belief of which our name is cast out as evil, have taken strong hold in the hearts of many noble Californians, who are not ashamed of Jesus nor his words. They have learned, like Paul, to glory in the cross of Christ. They are not faint-hearted, and disposed to draw back to perdition; but are most firmly resolved, by the grace of God, to endure to the end.

When we draw a contrast between the present state of things, and what it was when we held our first meeting in the Young Men's Christian Association Rooms, Dec. 22nd, 1871, we can truly say, "What hath God wrought?" Men and women, who were then rushing rapidly down the broad road to destruction, are now in the narrow path that leads to life eternal, rejoicing in the bright prospect of soon seeing our dear Savior. They are truly new creatures. No one can doubt the reality of the christian religion, after witnessing its glorious effects in transforming men from swearing, ugly drunkards, to praying, happy, temperate, loving disciples of Jesus. Infidels, who have witnessed these things, confess it shakes their foundation, which is built largely on the inconsistencies of professors of religion, in connection with the unreasonableness of the doctrine of eternal torment. When these two objections are removed, the main pillars of infidelity are gone.

Satan has made a most persistent effort to crush the church on the Pacific coast that is looking for the coming of Jesus. He has attacked it in all possible ways, and has sometimes gained victories that looked alarming; but the good Lord has stretched out his almighty arm of defense, and the enemy has been obliged to retreat in confusion, thus increasing the courage of the christian soldiers. Apparently, all that the combined effort of opposing ministers could do has been done to neutralize the influence of those who love and support the truth which, with the blessing of the Lord, has led many from darkness to light, from Satan to Christ. It is too bad; but so it is, and must be endured with patience, or else the enemy will get the advantage. As soon as one becomes offended at persecution, the seed of truth in his heart becomes unfruitful. This the deceiver knows full well. Forbearance and long-suffering are essential in order to grow in grace. We must "be patient toward ALL men." When we are reviled, we must not revile again, but return good for evil, if we would imitate our heavenly Leader. This is a hard lesson for some to learn; but it is of great importance if we wish to make progress in divine life. Good people often make great mistakes by opposing evil with a hard spirit. It is kindness that conquers when all things else have failed of success.

OUR LAST MEETING.

We returned to San Francisco, from Vallejo, Saturday, Apr. 6th, and closed our meetings Tuesday evening, Apr. 10th, with a precious communion season, when seventy-five sat around the table of the Lord. Some wept for joy at the thought of what the Lord had done for them and their loved ones. We also had precious meetings on the Sabbath, and Monday evening, when we preached our last sermon, at the close of which thirteen came forward for prayers. Six were baptized on Tuesday, making thirteen in all. At the baptism, the Lord blessed in a signal manner. Others are waiting for the next opportunity for baptism.

Tuesday evening was devoted to the communion. Some fifteen received the right hand of fellowship, and ten at a previous meeting. The present prospect is bright. Several members of other churches are charmed with the meetings, and do not hesitate to say they are much the best in the city. They feel more at home with us than in any other place; and are among our warm friends. One at the communion said he had been turned out by the church to which he had belonged, because he had shown sympathy with our views and meetings. He felt much comforted in knowing he was now free to mingle with those of "like precious faith." Another church has turned out quite a number for believing what we have preached, being determined not to allow "heretics"—so called—to remain in church fellowship; but unfortunately, the evidence is strong to show that the Lord is not pleased with what they have done, and has hid his face from them. Another church contemplates doing the same thing, but it happens that one of its leading and most efficient and official members is fully settled in the doctrine which some call heresy; and he gave them to understand he should never consent to have unofficial members turned out, while he remained believing the same things. He wished them to show no partiality. Thus the matter stands. The opposition is earnest; but the truth is spreading, and the Lord is blessing those who proclaim and those who believe it.

OUR PARTING

scene, at the close of the communion, was one of the most hearty exhibitions of christian sympathy we have ever enjoyed. It could be truly said, "See how they love one another." It was no feigned love, but the pure, fervent, unselfish, outgushing fruit of the Holy Spirit—the "perfect love" that casts out fear. It was hard for such friends to part; but we felt assured the meeting in paradise is not far distant. While tears of sadness flowed, as we said good bye, we felt strengthened in heart to endure to the end, in order to enjoy forever the society of such dear friends. We said parting words and shook hands many times, and yet lingered still; did the same things again and again, till the lateness of the hour admonished us we must say farewell and be parted for a "little while," but should remain one in Christ, waiting for his coming, when we hope to meet to crown him Lord of all, and for ever live and rejoice with him in his paradise home, associated with the dear ones whose society will be ever pleasing.

Bro. and Sr. Fassett were obliged to be out of the city, holding meetings in other places; consequently, we did not have the pleasure of their company at the Sacrament. Their labors are being blest on the Pacific coast. Bro. Howell was with us. He is a true man, and is helping in the great work of sounding the last alarm to a guilty world. He preaches a part of the time in Vallejo, and at other times in the city churches of San Francisco. We request prayers for California, that great success may attend the labors of Bro. and Sr. Fassett, Bro. Howell, Bro. and Sr. Reed, Bro. Wilson, Bro. Norton, and others.

SACRAMENTO.

Wednesday morning, April 10th, at seven o'clock A. M., we departed from San Francisco, accompanied by some dear friends across the bay, where we said our last good bye, and took the cars for Sacramento. On our way we passed through, probably, the most gorgeous, enchanting fields of flowers to be found in the world. We have spoken of these in a former letter, but they are now more charming than ever. One might be excused for thinking he was on the borders of paradise, when he gets a sight of these immense natural flower gardens. Their colors are very bright, and of a great variety of shades, as beautifully blended as in a well arranged bouquet. Once seen they cannot be forgotten.

On arriving at Sacramento, we found the people more anxious to hear about the christian's hope than ever. We learned that strong efforts had been made by some of the ministers to make people believe they had immortal souls, and that, consequently, the wicked must be tormented eternally; but those who had heard the other side saw at once that our opponents were either mistaken as to our views, or else they were willfully misrepresenting us. We presume it was the former, as they were not out to hear what we did say. We would recommend that they hear before they judge, and then they may be able to hit nearer when they strike. Sometimes they try to make out we are Sadducees, denying the resurrection of the dead; whereas we are precisely the opposite, placing our only hope of a future life in the resurrection of the dead. Then, again, they say we are Spiritualists, when they themselves are advocating Spiritualism to all intents and purposes, while our stand-point is at the furthest possible distance from Spiritualism. Again, they represent us as teaching that every body will be annihilated; and then, that we teach there is no punishment for the wicked. It seems as though they were determined to put us in a false light. This only serves to weaken their position in the estimation of those who know what we do believe, and the reason of our hope.

We found the brethren and sisters joyful in the Lord, feeling very thankful for the light they had received concerning the teaching of the Scriptures. They are willing to bear reproach for the sake of the truth, and are being brought nearer to Jesus. While some former friends now neglect them, and treat them with coldness, and almost abuse them, they have the comfort of knowing that they love the Savior better than ever before. There is a warmth, vigor, and life-like feeling in their christian experience at present which surpasses any thing they had ever enjoyed in former years. The change is so great, thy feel quite like young converts. Others, witnessing their joy and peace, are anxious to find the same fountain from whence these blessings flow.

Wednesday evening we preached in the First Baptist church, and had a very pleasant and profitable meeting. Six more were baptized and received special blessings. Others are waiting for the next opportunity. Among those baptized were Dr. A. P. Truesdell, and Dr. Burns and wife. These two doctors hold prominent positions in the treatment of disease. Dr. Burns is a successful physician, who is conducting a Water Cure establishment in company with Dr. McConikey. Dr. Truesdell is having special success in treating chronic diseases of the lungs and throat, and other parts of the body, by a new process. We take much pleasure in introducing him to our Brn. and Srs. in California as a true christian. He hopes to be able, through the aid of assistants, to leave home soon and preach the word of life in the surrounding country. We recommend him to all the friends of Jesus. Those who wish meetings will do well to address him a note, and he will inform them when he can make them a visit. Get him if you can. His heart is in the work. We think it is very fortunate that we could leave him in charge of the meetings in Sacramento. He has had a rich experience in Christ. We find but few such men in our travels. He is a shining light every day.

When we look over the results of the meetings in Sacramento, we have great reason to praise the Lord. The Brn. and Srs. are intelligent, and will command respect among the people. Their society is agreeable, and their conversation entertaining. Several others were almost persuaded to unite with us. If the meetings could have continued one or two weeks more, it was thought that glorious results would have been witnessed. We left many warm friends in Christ in that city, whom we hope to meet soon in the kingdom.

VALLEJO.

We have spent a few days in Vallejo, and find the church in a healthy, prosperous condition, under the faithful watch care of Bro. and Sr. Fassett. The new chapel is pleasantly and wisely located on Capitol Hill, overlooking the surrounding country. We are much pleased with its construction and situation. Had it not been for the opposition from the same source from which we received aid and sympathy when here last year, there would have been no necessity for the erection of this new house; but under the circumstances we do not see how our Brn. could well do otherwise, unless they would consent to put their light under a bushel, which would have dishonored Christ. Quite a number have become tired of the opposition against us, and have left their former church relation and united with us to share the reproach heaped upon us for the truth's sake. Their increase of light on the teaching of the Bible makes them feel almost like young converts. They are like birds let loose from their cage to enjoy their full liberty in the pure air and sunlight. Two more were baptized, and received rich blessings.

Some of the prominent men in the city are deeply interested in the meetings, and have become satisfied that our position is in harmony with the Bible. An intelligent gentleman, who is editor of two papers, a daily and weekly, was a skeptic when he went to hear Bro. Fassett on the prophecies. After hearing his infidelity was removed, he gave his heart to Jesus, and is now ready to be baptized in the likeness of the burial and resurrection of Christ.

Those who have been skeptical concerning the reality of the christian religion, because so many professors have set such poor examples, are now convinced that there is something real about the religion of Jesus. Others who had lost their confidence in the Bible, because of its seeming contradictions, as it was construed to sustain popular theology; now see its harmony with reason and common sense. It is heart-cheering to see with what joy some are embracing the truth. They had given up all hope of ever being satisfied in relation to the teaching of the Bible. One intelligent, prominent business man remarked to us, he had said to his friends in former years, he thought he should have to get up a Bible of his own; but now he saw no need of it, for the one we have is all right and consistent. He has found that his difficulties arose from hearing false constructions put upon the Scriptures by those who attempted to sustain their theology by perverting the true meaning of the Bible. It is a sad sight to see the people led away from the truth and from Christ by those who profess to be leading them aright. O that they might have their eyes opened before it is too late; and before any more are made to stumble and fall into infidelity. Yet these same teachers will turn around and charge us with making infidels when we are instrumental in leading skeptics to believe and love the Bible. How like the charge made by the Pharisees against the disciples of Christ at the time of his first advent. In our boyhood days, an infidel was one who did not believe the Bible; now it seems that the one who believes it and loves it most is called the infidel. This is Satan's plan to destroy the power of the Scriptures. Let us "buy the truth and sell it not." He is to be pitied who thinks more of his reputation than he does of an unpopular truth. The conflict between truth and error, between the powers of light and darkness, Christ and Belial, is becoming more and more general and earnest. Brn. and Srs., let us go into the heat of the conflict. We have nothing to fear.

STONE AND GRANT.—Rev. Dr. Stone delivered a discourse at the Skating Rink last Sunday evening, on "The New Heavens and New Earth," in which he advanced and approved the same ideas in regard to a literal "new earth," formed out of this globe, for the Saints' Home, that have been prominently advocated in our midst by Elder Miles Grant. —San Francisco Daily Post.

Dr. Stone formerly preached in the Park Street church, Boston, and is the most popular minister on the Pacific coast.

RICHES.—In another column will be found an article on "riches," published in the Sacramento Daily Record of March 30th. We think it is the best thing we have ever seen written outside of the Bible. The positions taken are true. The article deserves a second reading, and should be preserved for careful consideration.

SIGNS OF THE TIMES.

The signs of the times indicate that "the end of all things is at hand." The moral, religious, social, and political condition of the world is very ominous of the end. Infidelity and crime are abounding to an alarming extent. Confidence in humanity is diminishing every day among business men. The honest portion, which is quite small, know not what to do. Their clerks and partners are continually robbing them; their agents are becoming rich at their expense; while the extravagance of their families is making them bankrupt. In this situation their hearts are "failing them for fear, and for looking after those things which are coming on the earth." Luke 21 26.

The social condition of the world is becoming very corrupt. Loose morals are prevailing in all directions, as never before since this country was settled. Virtue is now the exception. The facts that might be given on this subject are really shocking; and this immoral tide is rising rapidly. There seems to be hardly any check, or restraining influence brought to bear upon it at the present time. Lust is raging like a Chicago or Peshtigo fire. Men and women, the pulpit and press, who should sound the note of alarm, are either silent, or fleeing before the onward march of the approaching demon of destruction. The fear of reproach or injury from the popular crowd serves to silence those who should cry aloud against the waves of corruption that are dashing against the very foundations of all good society.

The political condition of the world is rapidly approaching a state of confusion that threatens to overthrow all existing governments, and in their stead establish one specially under the control of Satan and his demons. An immense and powerful organization is formed for this object. We refer to the International Society, organized upon the basis of Spiritualism; yet it is not known, perhaps, by the masses, that the demons are the chief movers and directors. At heart it is an organism against God, Christianity and the Bible. It is fast becoming the most formidable association the world has ever known. It presents a terrible appearance. Its influence is as deadly upon christianity as the poisen of the Upas tree upon vegetation. The spirit of Satan is its life; as the Holy Spirit is the life of christianity. It opens any asylum for all backsliders, infidels, Mohammedans, Jews, Hindoos, Catholics, Swedenborgians, Mormons, Shakers, and Spiritualists; while it shuts out every true Christian. Let all beware lest they take upon them "the mark of the beast." Trying times are upon us, when we shall need on "the whole armor of God."

PREACHING FABLES.

Soon after the great earthquake took place in California, when some thirty were killed and about one hundred wounded, we find the following announcement for the next Sabbath, by one of the popular ministers in San Francisco:—

"Dr. Cunningham, Pastor of the Central Presbyterian Church, will deliver the second lecture of the series on Bible truth and Æsop's Fables, this evening, at 7½ P. M., in the church on Tyler street, between Taylor and Jones. The first lecture of the series was largely attended and most heartily appreciated. Subject this evening: 'The Fox in the well.'"

We have yet to learn what connection there is between "Bible truth and Æsop's Fables." We can see some connection between the foregoing announcement, and the following prophecy:—"For the time will come when they will not endure sound doctrine; but after their own lusts shall they heap to themselves teachers, having itching ears; and they shall turn away their ears from the truth, and shall be turned unto fables." 2 Tim. 4 : 3-4.

Of course, we would not intimate that the prophet meant "Æsop's Fables;" but did mean that men would teach doctrines no more true than fables; and that such preaching would turn away the people from the truth, and cause them to stumble. It is too bad that so many stumbling stones are placed in the way of honest souls.

PERSONAL.—When at Vallejo, Cal., we met Bro. R. W. Wilson, Bro. and Sr. Fassett, and Bro. and Sr. Reed. Bro. W. is feeling better than when he came to this coast. He is pleased with the country, and does not desire to return. He has decided to settle in Santa Clara, in the beautiful Santa Clara Valley, near Bro. Reed. He intends to spend a portion of the summer laboring for Christ among the people in the hill country, where are many who have never heard a word about "the blessed hope." Bro. Wilson is just the one for that field, and we shall expect to hear of very happy results form his judicious labors in the vineyard of the Lord. He is a dear good man, and will exert a most salutary influence wherever he goes. He has given the Lord full possession of his heart, and is enjoying perfect peace and love.

Bro. and Sr. Reed have not been able to get out much during the winter on account of the bad traveling. They are in good spirits, and strong in the Lord. They have just gone to Lake Port—a new place—with Bro. Fassett, where they propose to begin a siege of the fort of the enemy.

Bro. and Sr. Fassett are highly esteemed by those who know them, and their faithful labors are blessed by the Lord. Sr. Fassett's eyes are improving under the skillful treatment of Bro. Jamieson, at Vallejo. She expects a full cure in a little while.

THE RAINBOW.—We would recommend our readers to take the Rainbow, an able monthly, edited and published by Dr. Wm. Leask, 34 Sandringham Road, Kingsland, London, Eng. Price $2.50 a year in gold, or its equivalent. Postal orders can be sent.

THE SIX THOUSAND YEARS.

For centuries on centuries the impression has prevailed that when six thousand years from the creation of Adam shall have expired, a new era shall be ushered in by the coming of Emanuel from the skies. Many have supposed that six millenaries of human toil were foreshadowed by the six days of creation; and Barnabas, an early writer, and the reputed companion of the apostle Paul, locates the second coming of Christ at the end of this measurement of time. Whether this claim is reliable, or speculative, it has led to numerous computations to determine when the six thousand years will run out, and consequently when the long-looked-for new era shall dawn. Without doubt the most critical and reliable computation yet made, terminates the six thousand years in 1875; but I am not prepared to accept even this as being infallibly correct, but only as approximately accurate.

I do not think it possible to fix with absolute certainty upon the year that will end the six thousand, with present light; the best we can now do is to give the probable point, which I claim, after some investigation, to be 1875; and yet possibly that may be several years too early, or too late. We can give chapter and verse to prove, that from the length of time that some ten different men lived before the flood, the world must have been 1656 years old at the time of the deluge; but the ages of these men were given in round years, no allusion being made to odd months, weeks, or days, that might have made a difference of several years. We are not to suppose that all these men died on the same day of the month that Adam did, nor in the same month of the year. Nor can we step out with absolute positiveness on the unproven assumption that the variation in falling short and overrunning the exact year, must be equal. Probably this may have been pretty nearly the case, but at best this is only a probability.

Again, I can show that the kings of Judah reigned five hundred and nine years; but this estimate is made with no reference to the fact that the reign of these kings is given in current years, regardless of the fact that these might have been an excess, or lack, of weeks or months not mentioned, which might possibly vary the estimate several years. That the excess in some cases, and the lack in others, might be about equal, is very probable, but by no means absolutely certain. These, and similar considerations, prevent our converting a probability into an absolute certainty.

We are now in a cycle of time that must end the six thousand years; the probable point in that cycle may possible be too late, or too early, but the cycle is certain. W. S.

BRIEF EXPOSITIONS.

"WM. SHELDON:—We desire you to give us the meaning of the following passages of Scripture, viz., Mark 9 : 42-48; Rev. 20; Isa. 66 : 24. Give us the meaning of the 'worm' spoken of in the above chapters, in full, and oblige Yours,

J. M. SMITH & C. B. EVANS.

Cincinnati, O.

A full exposition of Rev. 20th, would require several articles; firstly, to prove that it does not teach several doctrines deduced from it, and then to show what it does teach. Not having the time to do justice to the subject at present, we defer this. The other two texts read thus—"And if thy hand offend thee, cut it off: it is better for thee to enter into life maimed than having two hands to go into hell [gehenna], into the fire that never shall be quenched: where their worm dieth not, and their fire is not quenched. And if thy foot offend thee, cut it off: it is better for thee to enter halt into life, than having two feet to be cast into hell [gehenna], into the fire that never shall be quenched: where their worm dieth not, and the fire is not quenched. And if thine eye offend thee, pluck it out: it is better for thee to enter into the kingdom of God with one eye, than having two eyes to be cast into [gehenna] hell-fire; where their worm dieth not, and the fire is not quenched." Mark 9 : 42-48. "And they shall go forth and look upon the carcasses of the men that have transgressed against me: for their worm shall not die, neither shall their fire be quenched." Isa. 66 : 24.

Jesus locates this scene in gehenna, and elsewhere tells us that "the whole body shall be cast into gehenna" (Matt. 5 : 30); and also that God will "destroy both soul and body in gehenna." Matt. 10 : 28. While various meanings are attached to the word "destroy" by theologians, it is admitted that it has but one meaning when applied to the body; and as the soul is here said to share this destruction with the body, it must be destroyed in the same sense, be literally destroyed; and as the body does not go to a gehenna of fire at death, it cannot go till the "resurrection of damnation." When the body comes in contact with fire, it is destroyed. I will here repeat what I have elsewhere published.

Gehenna, here translated "hell," instead of conveying the idea of preservation, is the strongest term in the whole Greek vocabulary to express total consumption. Says Greenfield —"Gehenna, properly the valley of Hinnom, south of Jerusalem, once celebrated for the horrid worship of Moloch, and afterward polluted with every species of filth, as well as the carcasses of animals, and dead bodies of malefactors; to consume which, in order to avert the pestilence which such a mass of corruption would occasion, constant fires were kept burning."—Greek Lexicon.

"Our Lord seems to allude to the worms which continually preyed on the dead carcasses which were cast into the valley of Hinnom, gehenna, and to the perpetual fire there kept to consume them.'—Parkhurst's Greek Lexicon. And Parkhurst again remarks—"A gehenna of fire does, I apprehend, in its outward and primary sense, relate to that dreadful doom of being burnt alive in the valley of Hinnom."

Here is the origin and meaning of the word gehenna, employed by the Savior to portray the coming doom of the impenitent. Old gehenna is made a type, by divine selection, to prefigure the destiny of the wicked. Then let us look at the typical gehenna in constrast with the antitypical gehenna, and thus learn the lesson the Savior designed to teach. Nothing was cast into typical gehenna to be preserved, but to be consumed; neither will the wicked be cast into antitypical gehenna to be preserved, but to be consumed. As in the typical gehenna the fire devoured all that was cast inside of the arches, and the worms devoured all on the outside; so in the antitypical gehenna the agent of destruction, symbolized by the worm and fire, will devour the wicked.

We are sometimes told that the worm signifies the sinner's immortal soul, or his guilty conscience. But the fallacy of this assumption is apparent when we pause to notice that the worm was no part of that which was cast into typical gehenna, but merely an agent to consume that which was cast therein: therefore the worm that dieth not is nothing that is to be cast into antitypical gehenna, but merely symbolizes an agent to consume the wicked when they are cast into it. If the agent here symbolized should die, sinners might continue to live. If the fire could be quenched, sinners might escape death; but as it is, sinners must be consumed.

That the "worm that dieth not" is not the soul or conscience of the sinner, is made still more certain by reading the statement of the prophet Isaiah, from which Jesus quotes—"And they shall go forth and look upon the carcasses of the men that have transgressed against me: for their worm shall not die, neither shall their fire be quenched." Is. 66 : 24. A carcass is a "dead body" or "corpse." Do "carcasses" contain a deathless soul, or a tormenting guilty conscience? "Their worm" cannot here mean soul or conscience, but a consuming agent. So also in the Savior's discourse, as he quotes from the prophet. As before shown, in the typical gehenna, the worm and the fire devoured all that was cast into it. Therefore, in the antitype (hell), the worm is no part of the sinner, but simply an agent to consume him. If this agent of destruction is not hindered, if the worm does not die, there is no escape for the sinner, but he must be consumed. To illustrate: We walk out into the farmer's corn-field, and discover that a worm has commenced devouring the corn, and readily conclude that if the worm does not die the corn will be destroyed. So with the sinner; if that worm, or agent of destruction, is undying, it will surely destroy him.

"The fire is not quenched." Is it therefore perpetual? A fire that cannot be quenched, instead of being endless in duration, is one that cannot be extinguished, and is therefore sure to consume that on which it preys. This is its meaning out of the Bible and in the Bible. We witness a house on fire; the flames are streaming from every part; there is no hope of saving the house, and we say the fire cannot be quenched; and just as truly as this is the case, the house must be consumed. So in the case of the sinner: if the fire cannot be quenched, the sinner must be consumed. It was said of the fire that consumed the gates and palaces of Jerusalem: "It shall not be quenched" (Jer. 17 : 27); and of the fire that consumed the Jewish sacrifices, "It shall never go out." Lev. 6 : 13. But those fires were not perpetual. Still the language used is just as strong as that applied to the sinner. If a disease cannot be cured it will kill its victim. If a fire cannot be quenched, it will consume that to which it is applied. This is both the common sense view and the scriptural view of the matter, and there is no escape from the conclusion we have reached.

Jesus did not say "Their soul dieth not," but "their worm"; and the prophet speaks of the worm of "carcasses." This gehenna of fire comes after the judgment arrives, and brings the "second death." W. S.

OUR CHURCH AND DISCIPLINE.

In the absence of the Editor-in chief, we briefly respond to the following note of a new subscriber:—

"MR. GRANT:—"As my wife and I are striving to be true followers of Christ, we ask of you advice, praying that if this is for the honor and glory of God, that he will help the work along; but if not, that it may all be lost.

(1.) In the first place, we as Christians think we should belong to some church. There are plenty of churches all around us, but none of the Advent church; and we do not feel as though we could join any other and yet hold to the Advent doctrine. We are not prejudiced, but think this church the most in accordance with the Bible. We believe there are true Christians in most of the churches, but there is so much strife here between those of one church and those of another, that we do not feel as if we wanted to join either.

(2.) Please inform us by letter, or in your paper, the nearest place to Ithaca, where there is an Advent church, and whether there is any prospect of starting one in this vicinity. Our only desire is to be true followers of Christ. Give us all and any information you may think we stand in need of.

(3. We would like to know if you (as a church) have any discipline, and if so, what is the nature of it? We feel as if we were here all alone, looking to Christ for assistance, and hope that he through you may give us instruction if it please him to have your work prosper. Yours with respect,

Ithaca, N. Y. WM. WHIPPLE."

REPLY.

1. It is well to belong to some church provided it is a church that will help one forward, instead of holding back; but never smother God's truth for the sake of getting a home that will not be congenial to your relish. Rather stand alone till God sends help; but let your light shine.

2. Cannot tell how near to your place a church may be found. Probably you will soon learn this through the Crisis. You may prove to be the nucleus for a church in your place. Wait and pray. Some of our ministers in your State may see this and give you aid. Will not Bro. Whitmore, or Stevens, go or send some true man of God? Do not be imposed upon by irresponsible stragglers.

3. We have the best discipline in the world; it is the Word of God, being "profitable for doctrine, reproof, correction, instruction," etc. The church of Christ had no other for three hundred years after the first Advent. We simply covenant together to live out the rules of this Word, as a church looking for the return of our Savior to reign on David's throne. W. S.

TWELVE THOUSAND SUBSCRIBERS.—Shall the subscription list of the Crisis be raised to 12,000 before our next Annual meeting? Why not? If each one would get a new subscriber, we should soon have 20,000. Since the price is reduced to $2.00, it will be easier work to get subscribers. Who will try? Who will say "I," instead of thinking that means somebody else? Begin this very week, and work with a will, and the result will soon be apparent. Let us have a response from Maine to Minnesota—from every state. W. S.

HENRY CONSTABLE'S work on "The Duration and Nature of Future Punishment," is an excellent work to put into the hands of all, especially the ministry. It will do good. I speak because I have carefully read it, and with confidence can recommend it.

T. M. PREBLE.

CHRISTIAN workers would do well to ponder the observation of a murderer who was recently hanged. It was this: "If I had received as much attention before being put into prison as I have since, I should never have been here."

THE TRACT FUND.

The Advent Christian Publication Society, at a meeting on Springfield Camp-ground, August 23d, 1871, voted to raise Two Thousand Dollars for the free distribution of Tracts the ensuing year; and they invite the help and co-operation of all lovers of the Lord and of his truth, in the furtherance of the good cause. The times are ominous of coming events, and admonish us to diligence in the Master's work. The Lord is at the door, and what we do must be done quickly. Let the contributions be prompt, hearty, and liberal. The Lord will reward the liberal giver.

CALIFORNIA LETTER.

O. R. FASSETT.

PARTING WITH BRO. GRANT.

The second of April, having listened to Bro. Grant at Vallejo, knowing that I was to leave on the morrow for a tour north, about a hundred miles from San Francisco, the thought entered my mind as I took his hand that I should not see him again before his departure for the east, and I said—"Bro. Grant, we shall not meet again before you leave for home!" And involuntarily I threw my arm around his neck, and we embraced each other in "unfeigned love" as brethren.

In company with Bro. and Sr. Reed, the next morning we started for Lakeport, meeting unexpectedly with Eld. Grant at the depot, who came to see us depart. We bade him farewell, and my companion adieu, and were in the fiery chariots borne speedily to the terminus of the railroad, about thirty miles on our way. Here we remained over night to take stage the rest of our journey, a distance of fifty miles. Having arrived at half-past two o'clock P. M., we had the privilege of visiting the mineral springs in this village. Callistoga lies at the head of Nappa Valley, one of the richest valleys in this State, and where the grape is cultivated extensively. The mountain and valley scenery is enchanting. We put up at the "Mountain House," where we had good accommodations, a ride of four miles free of charge, and gentlemanly landlords. We recommend to all our friends to patronize this "House," if they want good fare, a ride, and all at a little cost. The grounds of the springs are admirably laid out. Besides the main hotel, there are fifteen beautiful cottages; before the door of each is the palm, an evergreen tree. There are several arbors, and bathing houses, and an observatory on a natural elevation in the midst, and from which you have a view of the surrounding scenery. The springs are numerous, with various temperature from that of cold to boiling heat. The first spring has over the entrance of the building enclosing it the following inscription: "Nature's Kitchen; Cook for Yourself!" Parties boil their eggs, and take their lunch here. It is said that the water "tastes like chicken broth," and by putting into it crackers or bread, and sprinkling into it a little salt and pepper, one can enjoy a chicken soup without much expense or trouble. But where the chickens are cooked, is the question for solution. At the second spring the water is not so hot, but is too hot to drink freely without cooling. It is called "The Sulphur, Iron and Magnesia Spring." There is no need of boiling tea-kettles here, where there can be a hundred springs dug of this temperature. The water is very agreeable to drink, and must be beneficial in certain physical conditions. The third is named "Mud Bath." The spring water is drained off, leaving mud impregnated with the minerals. Rheumatic patients are put into this, where there ailment is cooked out of them! Then there are hot vapor baths, or rooms, where one is put in with his head out of a little window in open air, and he must sweat like rain. We were shut in a second, and felt the perspiration starting in every pore. These baths would sweat out a cold, and extract humors from the body, with but little difficulty. These springs are a marvel and a study. We spoke to our guide (who volunteered to show us their wonders) of the final conflagration, and he inquired if we thought "it would begin here," and left us, concluding who we were, no doubt.

Four miles from this village there is a "Petrified Forest," the "Greatest Wonder of the Age," so called. "Huge trees, from six to ten feet in diameter, and from this down to small branches and twigs, thousands of years old, now solid stone, arrest the attention and excite the wonder of visitors. In the midst of this (perhaps antediluvian) forest of stone, living trees are now growing—live oak, fir, etc.,—affording a beautiful shade, and rendering the forest a desirable place to visit." We were not able to visit this forest, as we desired, but saw specimens in large trunks of trees which were piled up on the grounds of the "Springs" in the form of and called the "Petrified Grotto." They were a curiosity, indeed, to us.

Thursday morning, at six o'clock, we took stage for

LAKEPORT.

After a good breakfast, we started for a long ride of fifty miles. We passed up the rugged side of "Saint Hellena Mountain," which lifts its head four thousand seven hundred feet above the valley. For the purpose of viewing the charming scenery, we walked, or rode upon the outside of the stage with the driver. O how enchanting! the scenery so romantic; and as we rose above the valley, it looked so beautiful at our feet. It was a picture of beauty such as we seldom ever beheld. Birds were singing sweetly, and the morning was as lovely as we could desire. We passed near the summit of this mountain, and then through rugged cliffs, and by meandering brooks and deep ravines, we descended the other side.

Just before reaching Lakeport, which takes its name from "Clear Lake," we came in sight of "Uncle Sam," a mountain bearing this name, of a dark green appearance; and in the distance is seen "Snow Mountain," which is covered with snow, the first snow I had seen during this season. It is very difficult in this country to determine the seasons of the year. If you lose the month, you are at your wits' end to know whether it be summer, fall, spring, or winter. We see the force of Christ's language when he says, "When ye see the fig-tree and all the trees putting forth their leaves, ye know that summer is nigh." By this sign now visible, we determine that summer is the next season to come; otherwise, we might suppose from appearances that any other season might be at hand, for we have winter (without snow), fall, spring and summer weather all within a single week. When we came here on Thursday, the air was as warm as in summer. Friday we had rain, winds, and cold as severe as in winter, and Bro. Cutler had two large fires to keep us and his family comfortable. But the fig-tree and all the trees tell us "summer is nigh." So while all men are perplexed as to what period in our world's history we have reached, "the signs" admonish us that the Lord's coming is "near, even at the doors."

HOW THE TRUTH WAS FIRST PLANTED IN LAKEPORT, CAL. We came to Lakeport by invitation of Bro. Cyrus Cutler. He is a son of Jacob Cutler, who is about eighty years of age. An Advent sister four years ago wished to disseminate the truth, and paid for the Crisis to be sent to the old gentleman. It was not much esteemed for a long while; but at last Cyrus became interested in its articles on immortality, and began to advocate the doctrine. The question was finally introduced into a debating society, of which he was member, last winter. The disputants were chosen. A clergyman or two, and others, were to affirm man's immortality, while he and others were to sustain the negative. Bro. Cyrus, seeing by the Crisis that I visited in San Francisco, sent to me for the arrangement of an argument, and such publications as I could furnish him with, which I forwarded. The debate, however, was deferred several weeks by a protracted meeting, and it was thought that there was an effort to prevent the discussion altogether. The ministers during the meetings, and in filling their appointments (of different denominations), preached against the little cloud of heresy they saw coming up in the religious horizon, thus forestalling the discussion, and to prejudice the people. The debate, however, came off this spring, and the decision of the judges was, that Bro. Cutler and his side had the argument. He stirred up the whole religious community, and feeling the crushing weight of "orthodoxy," he felt incompetent to meet the emergency, and sent for me to come over and help him. I sent his letter to Bro. and Sr. Reed, and asked if they would accompany me, and they concluded to do so.

On the Lord's day, April 7th, we attended service in the "Grove school-house," near Bro. Cutler's, when the minister (Presbyterian) took for his text—"If any man will do his will, he shall know of the doctrine." He had evidently prepared himself to give "the winds of doctrine," as he stated, a terrible blow. But we were present, and he was hindered and cramped. Besides, he wished in the opening of the service that the congregation would "sing a song," and as there was hesitancy and delay, Bro. Cutler, who usually leads the singing, requested us to sing, when we struck up and sang—"When I can read my title clear," affixing the chorus—"We'll stand the storm," etc., which I think took him down, finding we were prepared for the onset. He called upon a Methodist clergyman present to follow his discourse, who in like manner was shorn of his strength, and after stating that he "intended to say more, but would not, as an afternoon service was to be held," he sat down. Then we were granted the privilege of giving out any notice we wished, together with others present; after which I begged the privilege to add a few remarks to those of the two ministers, on the side of truth and "sound doctrine."

At present we are holding meetings in the Methodist church at Lakeport, with a good prospect before us that we shall have a gracious revival. Sunday evening two ministers (Methodists) were present, and a large audience. Last evening another stated to me at the close—"I have not half the prejudice I had when I came in," and tears filled his eyes.

Correspondence.

From Bro. C. F. Sweet.

DEAR BRN.:—On Monday, Oct. 9th, the day of fire and flame in the West, I crossed over Niagara river at Buffalo, and spent a week at Lowbank, some thirty miles west of Buffalo, on the Canada side. Bro. William Braven called me there. We had quite a good, and, I think, profitable time. On Sunday baptized three dear souls in the name of the Lord Jesus. Monday the 16th preached at Gainsboro, and on Tuesday left for Trenton, Consecon, and Pictou, Prince Edward county. Preached eight sermons in Pictou. Four in Cherry Valley, in which place I occupied the Disciple church, a large and commodious house, which was quite well filled. The last discourse in this place was a funeral sermon of an old man some ninety-four years of age. The congregation was large and quite attentive, and I gave them some new (to them) truth, as well as an abundance of old truths.

I preached once in the Methodist church at Mount Pleasant, and told them as much truth as their unenlightened minds were able to bear. I heard that some said it was "not as bad as they expected." Thank God, they had the candor to acknowledge the fact; but the statement shows how slander has a tendency to prejudice and blind the people.

Bro. Levings, who took me to his own house, also took me to Consecon to my appointment on Sunday, Nov. 5th, and after preaching a very close sermon on first principles, we repaired to the shore of the Bay of Quinte, and I baptized Bro. James Lent and wife of Pictou, also Bro. Lewis Chase and wife of Consecon, and also a sister-in-law of Bro. Chase. I preached also on Monday and Tuesday evenings following. On Wednesday as I was about to leave, Bro. Philip Chase came to me at his father's and said he had commenced to plow that morning, but he could not plow, and had turned out his team to go and be baptized. So we with his father went to the Bay, and I baptized "Philip," and he like the eunuch went on his way rejoicing. I left the water side for Trenton, where I preached that evening in the Methodist church. Next day went on to father Lent's neighborhood, and preached two evenings in a little old Wesleyan chapel; and the church, general character, and religious tone of the place (with a few happy exceptions), are all of the same piece. Here I received the kind friendship of father and mother Lent and family, that is so cheering to the way-worn pilgrim. May the Lord reward them and all their children for their remembrance of a pilgrim after a "godly sort."

From here I went to Orono and preached at the Temperance Hall, and in the Christian's New Brick church, which was quite well filled; and God gave me utterance, and also a hearing ear in the congregation. Good was done. I preached also in Clark and Selina on Sunday the 19th, and then went back to Orono to hear a Mr. McDonough (a Wesleyan Methodist) preach a set sermon on the coming of Christ, kingdom of God, and the millennium. So at the appointed time I dropped in, and found a good place to take notes. At length he made his appearance. Preliminaries being got through, he took his texts, viz: Dan. 2:44 and 7:13, 14; Rev. 20:1–10. His first dashing statement showed, as a brother had surmised, that he intended to deal death-blows to "Adventism." He said, "Adventism is infidelity and atheism."

After he closed the meeting, I stepped up on the seat and said—"There will be preaching to-morrow evening at the Christian church in this place, and then the present discourse of Mr. McDonough will be reviewed; and although I must consider Mr. McDonough my personal traducer, yet if he will hear my reply I will treat him as a gentleman." He yelled out in a sneering and scoffing manner, "I shall not go to hear you, sir"; and then (as I was passing out of the house) he exhorted his congregation "not to go to hear that infidel and atheist, but to treat him with perfect contempt."

The next day the following printed hand-bill was placarded over the town and village:

"REVIEW.—There will be a review of Mr. McDonough's false attempt, last evening, to expound 'the gospel of the kingdom of God' at the Christian church this (Monday) evening, by C. F. Sweet of Albion, N. Y. The public, and especially Mr. McDonough, are cordially invited. THOMAS CRANKHITE."

Bro. C. took pains to mail a notice to Mr. McDonough and some of his admirers. Some, on reading them, we learn, tore them in pieces, and committed them to the flames. The review went off before a large congregation of people, a number of whom were members of Mr. McDonough's church. The Lord helped me, and the people listened with the very best attention, and after formally introducing my subject, I proceeded to ask if it was infidelity to believe in the personal, literal coming and kingdom of Christ, as distinctly taught in the Holy Scriptures? If Adventism is infidelity and atheism in the nineteenth century, was it not infidelity and atheism also in the first century of the present dispensation? Here I showed the Scriptures in which it was most clearly manifest that Mr. McDonough and apostolical preaching were very dissimilar, and that if I must be called an infidel and an atheist for holding with them, and not with Mr. McDonough, I would bear it patiently, for evidently "the coming of the Lord draweth nigh"; then all these wrongs will be righted. If it is atheism to believe in the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ as the Creator of all things, in whom we live and move and have our being, then I must be an atheist; for I take this scriptural view of the subject. Is not the doctrine of the creeds very nearly allied to atheism, that say he is without body, parts, or passions? and as one clergyman holding up a tea-cup said, "God is in this tea-cup as much as he is anywhere"? I wonder if an atheist hearing that would not say that is the truth.

Extracts from Letters.

BRO. AND SR. H. J. AND F. E. MUNSON write from Girard, Kan., March 22d:—"We wish again to address you in the interests of the cause of the Lord in our State. As far as we know, we are here alone in the public ministry of the gospel of the kingdom, as we hold it. Myself, and wife as a helper, have done what we could during the last two years for the promotion of the cause. More recently, we have had some blessed outpourings from the hand of the Lord. Fifteen were baptized this winter at one place. This was the result of a protracted effort of over two weeks.

We feel that we have here in Kansas a broad field, unoccupied and neglected. We cannot resist longer the sense of duty of putting forth more earnest efforts on our part, and also of making an earnest cry for help. We ask aid to enable us to devote our energies to the cause through the State, as far as we are able to extend our labors. We need a tent the coming summer. It seems to us, of all places, we need one here, as the school-houses are generally small, church houses few, and closed against us, and the few interested are not able to hire halls, if we had them. We implore immediate aid."

Cannot something be done to assist Bro. Munson in his efforts to spread the truth, and save the people in Kansas?

BRO. D. W. SPEAR writes:—"I was glad to see Bro. Fassett's piece on definite time in the Crisis. While we are exceedingly glad to read anything showing a clear light on prophecy, and tending to unite the church, still we are strongly opposed to theories and arguments based upon doubtful dates and uncertainties, that only produce wranglings and divisions. Do not let us do anything to divide the church at this late day."

SR. B. HART writes:—"The Crisis has been a great blessing to me in showing me the right way to the kingdom. I hold it next to the Bible. I was brought up to believe that all are created immortal, and at death a christian goes right to heaven. I have searched the Scriptures, and find they do not teach this, and am willing to trust God, and let him have his own way, and am satisfied. I want to live and reign with Christ on the new earth. I feel his love in my heart as I am writing.

We could not do without the Crisis; it is our preacher. We have no meetings here in East Rush, N. Y., but hope the Lord will send some one. I believe good could be done. Bro. H. Pratt was here and preached a few times, and left a good impression on the people; they were hungry to hear the truth. I am determined by the help of the Lord to work out my soul's salvation. The Lord has done great things for me and my children. Blessed be the Lord!"

SR. S. ISBELL writes:—"A little over a year ago we came to Iowa, bringing our parents with us (both of whom were suffering with lung disease), hoping that the change from the cold and rugged climate of Wisconsin, to the more genial one of the South might prove beneficial; but, alas! the blighting hand of disease had too firm a grasp of the sources of life, and our dear father failed rapidly. The last week of his life he seemed in great pain, and every breath was a cry to his heavenly Father for help to bear his suffering. He told mother he realized now what Paul meant when he said, 'pray without ceasing.' And in the night he suddenly 'fell on sleep.'

Father took great interest in Bro. Grant's and Fassett's labors in California, and often deplored his inability to do no more for the cause of Christ. The Crisis was always a well-spring of happiness to him; he looked for the speedy coming of Jesus, and exhorted us all to prepare for it. Pray for us, that we may meet you all and him in the kingdom of God."

BRO. E. N. MORSE writes:—"I am trying to preach the gospel of the kingdom in this section. We have been having quite a reformation in Worcester. People seem to be anxious to hear, but are afraid of the Advent doctrine, and even those who profess to believe in the speedy coming of Christ say that it is no use to preach it. So they said in the days of the antediluvians. But when the last prayer was made, the last sermon preached, the last exhortation given, God closed the door of the ark. As it was in the days of Noah, even so shall it be in the days of the coming of the Son of man."

BRO. N. R. SMITH writes:—"The Crisis is the first paper that I have any remembrance of seeing, or reading, and still I watch for its weekly coming because I love its contents, Bible truths. My prayer is that many may receive these truths into good and honest hearts, that their supporters may wax valiant, and that Jesus will soon come to be admired by those who have done and will be doing right."

BRO. H. S. MITCHELL writes:—"The Lord is blessing the little church in Bowdoin. A good interest still prevails. Preaching nearly every Sabbath, and a good attendance. Pray for us, that union may prevail, and sinners come to the knowledge of the truth and be saved."

SR. S. S. MOONEY writes:—"My husband is here at Gloucester sick with pleurisy fever. He has been very sick, but is some better. He asks the dear children of God to remember him in their prayers."

Summary of News.

FOREIGN.

Cable News.

GREAT BRITAIN.

AN ULTIMATUM FROM BISMARCK.

LONDON, April 18. [Special to the New York World.] Bismarck has sent an ultimatum that the French army be forthwith reduced to 225,000 men. He hints that in case of a refusal it will be necessary for Germany to establish a French Government which Germany can trust.

SPAIN.

MADRID, April 18. A decree has been issued annulling the concession for a telegraph cable to America by way of the Azores.

DON CARLOS.

MADRID, April 21. The Carlists, without making any decided outbreak for some days past, keep the country in a state of perpetual alarm and excitement by industriously spreading reports of their strength and of their probable future movements. It is announced that Don Carlos will soon publish a manifesto, protesting against the validity of the late election, on the ground that gross irregularities have been committed at the polling places. He also forbids the Carlists who were elected deputies to the Cortes taking their seats in that body. A general rising of Carlists in all parts of Spain is momentarily expected. Troops are prepared to meet it. The railway companies have been ordered to hold all their rolling stock in readiness for instant use. Volunteers in Madrid and elsewhere proffer their services to the government. A council of Ministers met yesterday evening, and were in session all night.

THE CARLISTS.

MADRID, April 22. The Carlist campaign has been actively opened, and large numbers of revolutionists have taken the field under Don Carlos. The initiatory step in the movement against the government has created great excitement in this city. The revolutionary rising has been simultaneously accomplished in a large number of districts throughout Spain. In the neighborhood of Barcelona, Seville, and several other cities the movement is of sufficient strength to cause the authorities much apprehension. It is also stated that the Carlists are massed in great numbers at Toledo and Navarre, and under the command of priests. Every preparation has been made by the government to meet the emergency. The railways are held in readiness for the transportation of troops or war material if rendered necessary.

GERMANY.

THE RELATIONS BETWEEN GERMANY AND FRANCE A DENIAL.

BERLIN, April 19. The North German Gazette positively denies the truth of the statements made by the London Telegraph in regard to the relations of Germany and France, and pronounces the rumors of grave complications between the two countries wholly without foundation.

ITALY.

LABOR MOVEMENT.

ROME, April 18. A "Workingmen's Congress" is now being held in this city. The gathering is composed of delegates from labor associations in different parts of Europe, and the attendance is large, about one hundred and fifty associations being represented. The movement is looked upon with some degree of suspicion by the authorities as tending to the spread of the political theories of the Internationals. The leaders, however, assert that their motive is not political, but that the purpose of the gathering is to consult on the questions properly pertaining to the moral and social condition of the working people.

UNWARRANTABLE ACTION.

April 21. The Italian government has intimated its objection to the introduction, in the Geneva Conference, of the American claim for consequential damages, and has instructed its representatives to oppose its consideration by the conference.

PERSIA.

THE FAMINE.

LONDON, April 21. Persian advices state that the famine is increasing in Teheran, the principal city; and destitution is becoming widespread. It is feared that with the approach of summer the disease and epidemic, which have partially abated during the winter, may again appear. Numbers are perishing daily from want and exhaustion. From all parts of Persia a similar state of affairs is reported.

DOMESTIC.

Little Rock, April 20. The Fort Smith New Era of the 17th inst, contains the following startling news from the Indian country:

"The feelings of jealousy harbored by our Indian neighbors at the authority of the Federal Government exercised over their territory culminated last Monday, the 15th inst., in a fearful deed of bloodshed, falling little short of wholesale massacre of the agents of the Government. The following startling letter was received Tuesday morning at the the United States Marshal's office by Captain James W. Donnelly:

WHITEMORE'S BARREN FORK,
CHEROKEE NATION, April 15.

J. W. Donelly—Dear Sir: We have had a terrible fight. We lost seven on our side killed. Three of theirs were killed. There are lots of wounded. We are in a terrible strait. Send us men and means instanter. We are with the dead and wounded and expect to stay with them until the last one of us goes. Owens is wounded. For God's sake send help, and send quickly. Come to Dutchtown, and then down Barren Fork to Whitemore's. Ward is killed. Vanney and I are alone with Owens. None of the rest are here with us. We look for help to-morrow night by dark, and are looking to be attacked every moment. The parties are close together. Some of the Cherokees are with us. Yours in haste.

(Signed) J. S. PEAVY.

A demand has been made upon the authorities of the Cherokee nation to assist in taking the murderers, dead or alive. This is one of the most terrible affairs ever known in this country, originating in distrust and jealousy, with which the more intelligent portion of the inhabitants of the Indian territory are misled by bad white men. What protection can be had may be surmised from the fact that Proctor has committed eighteen murders and is still unhung. It is the stern determination of the United States Marshal of this district to bring to justice the murderous and rebellious crew in the nation at any sacrifice.

GAVAZZI'S MISSION.

New York, April 20. Father Gavazzi states that he and Rev. Dr. Thompson are a deputation from the Free Christian Church of Italy, to make its objects and prospects known to friends in America and to ask assistance. They hope to carry home from America the beginning of an Evangelical college, which shall diffuse throughout United Italy the true doctrine of free Christianity. Their creed is simply the golden rule and to pay no attention to the Vatican.

THE EAST INDIA EARTHQUAKE.

New York, April 22. Advices from Madrid say that the earthquake in the Philippine Islands continued all night and part of the next day. All the inhabitants of Cotta Baton fled in the utmost consternation. Many women were taken aboard ships in the harbor. The town was destroyed in less than ten minutes, and confusion ensued almost beyond imagination. It is remarkable that only one fatal case occurred, though many persons were injured.

In Brief.

—— Fires are again raging among the pines of South Jersey, near Centreton and Rosenbergen. Nearly a thousand acres of woodland have been swept by the flames, causing a loss estimated at $40,000.——People generally suppose the slave trade to be suppressed, but Spain all the while is secretly carrying on the vile traffic between Africa and the south side of Cuba.——A revolution has broken out in Yucatan, and the insurrection in Mexico is gaining power. Vera Cruz is in the hands of the revolutionists.——Mexico has suffered severely of late from earthquakes.——Seventeen Roman Catholics of Kankakee, Ill., have informed their Bishop of their conversion to the Evangelical religion. They enumerate the stumbling blocks in Roman Catholicism as follows:—1. The Romish doctrine that priests forgive sins; 2. That there is a purgatory; 3. That the sacrifice of Jesus is renewed in the mass; 4. That the Pope is infallible; 5. That the Virgin Mary is without sin.——The cathedral at Cologne, it is now promised by the architects at work upon that immense structure, will be completed in the year 1888.——Five hundred women and girls were thrown out of employment by the destruction of the Metropolitan Paper Collar Company's establishment in New York on Saturday night, 13th inst.——James Gordon Bennett, Sr., is seventy-five years of age, yet his brain is as vigorous as it was twenty years ago. His habits are of a very abstemious character, and to this he ascribes his good health.——The Carlist bands which have been agitating Spain lately are reported to have disappeared.——A cable note says that European governments are determined to suppress the International Society.——Violent shocks of earthquake continue in Inyo county, but is not felt on the Mono Lake. Houses were thrown down on Friday last at Round Valley Camp, Inyo county. The earth opened in many places, but no lives were lost.——The proportion of professing christians to the population in this country, is one to eight. There are 91,000 clergymen, and their average salary is $700.——The Third Congregational Church of San Francisco numbers several Chinese converts in its membership, and is the first church in the Pacific States to take such action.——The Bishop of Augsburg, Germany has directed the clergy of his diocese to punish unbelievers in Papal infallibility by withholding from them baptism and burial, as well as the intermediate rites of confession and communion.——The French Trans-Atlantic Telegraph Company have concluded a contract with the Telegraph Maintenance and Construction Company for laying a fourth telegraphic cable between Europe and America.——The conflagration which laid waste the business portion of the town of Ayer Sunday morning proved proportionately as great a calamity to that enterprising and prosperous community as was the great fire in Chicago to the people of the Queen City of the West.——The town of West Point, Mississippi, was nearly destroyed by fire April 15th. Fifty dwellings and the business houses were totally destroyed.

OUR LAST EFFORT.

"The Judge standeth before the door."—JAS. 5:9.

The evidence points to 1873 as the time when Christ shall come, and we shall be called to give an account of our stewardship. The warning must go forth. Immediate action is demanded to give a distinctness to the cry—"Behold! the Bridegroom cometh!" We are already engaged in this work, and are sending out tracts; also receiving funds for this purpose. Let all who have hearts that beat in this direction, pray to the Lord of the harvest to send forth laborers into his harvest. Send funds or pledges for this purpose to GEO. T. ADAMS, Agent of the Adv. Chris. Pub. Society, or to L. T. CUNNINGHAM.

L. T. CUNNINGHAM $500.00
E. Wolcott (received by L. T. Cunningham) 75.00

THE SPRINGFIELD National Advent Campmeeting Committee, according to appointment, will meet at "Coolley's Hotel," Springfield, Wednesday, May 1st, at nine o'clock A. M.

GEO. T. ADAMS, Secretary.

THE pledges to Mass. Conference at the Annual meeting, should be paid to the Treasurer, Charles Goodrich, Crisis Office, 160 Hanover St., Boston. L. BOUTELL.

THERE are two families living on the Springfield camp-ground, and it has become necessary to expend some $75 to make two houses, Sr. Holden's and Bro. Sharp's, comfortable, with chimneys, and an addition to Bro. Sharp's house. Now we feel safe from thieves breaking in hereafter, and carrying off what they pleased, leaving the houses there open. I have paid a part of the expense, and owe some $60. I want those having property there to help me pay it. Bro. Sharp has paid $15, besides giving the use of his house. What the friends see fit to send, please do so as soon as you can, either in pledges or in cash, as it must be paid soon. Direct to me at Chicopee Falls, Mass.

HIRAM MUNGER.

THE QUARTERLY Meeting of the church of God of Wayland and Loon Lake, will be held at Wallace, Steuben Co., N. Y., to commence at two o'clock P. M., Saturday, May 11th, and continue over the 12th. All are invited to attend, and especially so as this is the last quarterly meeting before the close of the third year of my pastoral labor, and perhaps the last that I shall ever hold with the church and people of the place.

C. F. SWEET.

AT a special meeting of the church in Springfield, Mass., held Friday evening, April 12th, it was voted unanimously to invite the brethren and sisters scattered abroad to meet with them on Wednesday, May 8th, and continue over the following Lord's day. The forenoons (in part at least) will be devoted to business, including the consideration of the expediency of forming a Life and Advent Conference. The afternoons and evenings will be devoted to preaching, prayer, conference and general spiritual improvement. The evidences of the speedy coming of our Lord and the kindred truths we hold so dear call upon us for an earnest effort to spread them abroad, that others may rejoice with us in the glorious prospect. All are most cordially invited. The church in Springfield will care for all who come. R. E. Ladd, T. R. Weaver, J. K. Winter, A. W. Bradford, W. N. Pile, Committee.

THE DESERT ROCK.

"They drank of that spiritual Rock that followed them, and the Rock was Christ."—1 Cor. 10: 4.

Rock of the desert, pouring still
Thy stream the thirsty soul to fill;
Rock of the desert, now as full
Of living water, pure and cool,
We stand beside thy stream.

Rock of eternity, to thee
In thirst and weariness we flee;
Thy waters cannot cease to pour;
Their fullness is forevermore;
Let him that thirsteth come.

Bright water of eternity,
We come, we come, to drink of thee.
The voice of welcome that we hear,
The voice dispelling every fear,
Is—"whosoever will."

River of life, upon thy brink
We sit, and of thy waters drink;
The murmur of thy sparkling wave
Speaks still of Him who came to save,
Who bids us drink and live.

River of peace, so full and bright,
Each drop clear-shining with the light;
And still the voice that comes from thee,
The voice that telleth all is free,
Is—"whosoever will."

River of love, so deep and wide,
All heaven is in thy flowing tide;
For all the love of God is here,
The love that casteth out all fear,
The—"whosoever will."

River of God, still flowing on,
Thy source the everlasting throne.
River of Heaven, translucent stream,
Thy fullness ever at the brim
For—"whosoever will."

River of health, thy current pours,
Its freshness on these leprous shores!
Pure Jordan, bidding all draw nigh,
For health and immortality,
With—"whosoever will."

Dear river, what a sun is thine!
What glories on thy waters shine!
What freshness in each sparkling drop,
And still the voice that cometh up
Is—"whosoever will."

—H. Bonar.

GLEANINGS BY THE WAY.

M. E. OTIS.

Through the unforeseen providence of God I was unable to fill my appointment yesterday, and so had the privilege of sitting under the sound of the gospel and listening to preaching from one of God's servants, in the forepart of the day, from a part of the thirteenth chapter of 1 Kings, which contains a narrative of a man of God who came from Judah to Bethel with a message from the Lord to King Jeroboam. Some very good practical thoughts were drawn therefrom, and some that would prove highly beneficial to all, if they would be heeded. The fact was brought before us that while this man of God was in the way of duty he was impregnable, but as soon as he stepped aside to rest himself under the oak, then it was that he was caught in the snare that was laid in wait for him, and which he would have escaped had he continued on his journey, till he arrived at the end where he could have refreshed himself and rested in safety. Just so with the children of God; while they continue to walk in the path of duty they are safe, but when they stop by the wayside 'tis then that they endanger their lives. Again, the temptation was noticed which was placed before him while in the way of duty, and it will be noticed that it was great in comparison to the one by the wayside—for there was honor and reward connected with the first, and it would naturally be considered that if he was able to stand against such inducements that he was beyond all danger of falling; thus many are led to reason with regard to themselves, and having passed in safety some very critical place in their history, have got off from their guard, and before some slight temptation have fallen before the enemy; and thus we behold to-day the wrecks of those who have fallen all along by the way to the promised land.

While reflecting upon this subject it brought to my mind a little of my experience when quite young, and it may not be amiss to notice it here. As some well know who were connected with the 1854 time movement, there were some that still continued to look for the coming of the Lord up to May 19th, 1855, and among them, many of the brethren and sisters residing in Worcester, and myself with them, who though quite young at the time looked with great interest to that day, expecting with certainty to behold the King in his beauty and soon to be beyond the reach of sorrow. And for days preceding that to which we looked for the Lord, I walked circumspectly before my associates, and those by whom I was surrounded, realizing that it would be with great care that I should be enabled to keep myself unspotted from the world, and thus be in readiness to meet my Lord. In consequence of this carefulness I was enabled to enjoy the favor of God continually, and to stand before the power that was brought to bear against me—by those with whom I was surrounded—my employers and others.

At last the day of so much interest to us arrived, and truly it was a lovely day; and as the sun rose so beautifully that cloudless morning, supposing it to be the last time upon this groaning earth, I could but bring to my mind the day when it rose upon Sodom for the last time, and shone upon the inhabitants of that wicked city. As I had procured leave of absence from the shop, I hastened to make ready to leave my uncle's abode where I then made it my home, to join those who were in sympathy with me; and after bidding my friends good-by, and giving my last warning as I supposed, I hurried away expecting to meet them no more this side of the judgment. Meeting with a few at the house of Bro. E. Higgins, all day we watched in constant expectation of the coming One; but the slow hours of day passed away, and lo! we were doomed to disappointment. Darkness began to gather over the land and He, whom we so much loved, and for whom we had looked with so much earnestness, was still absent. O! never shall I forget the sadness of my heart, the anguish of my soul that threatened to overwhelm me, as I wended my steps towards my uncle's dwelling, not knowing what to say or do; but ere I arrived there a sister (who is now sleeping in the embrace of death) called to me as I passed her residence, knowing the reception I should meet among those with whom I made it my home, and not wishing me to return with my then present feelings, she invited me in, and also desired that I should spend the night; and as the next day was the Sabbath, to attend meeting before I returned, thinking that I should be better prepared to meet them. I reluctantly consented to tarry, for I desired to escape to my own room where I could alone give vent to the grief of my soul, but I soon found an opportunity here, and all night long and till nearly noon the next day did I continue to give vent to the bitterness of my grief. It was a critical period in my history. I swayed to and fro, tempted by Satan one moment to renounce my faith in Christ, and return to the pleasures of the world, and the next inspired with new hope and courage; and thus I wavered till at last I was enabled to settle down into Christ, and find peace to my troubled soul once more. The crisis was reached and passed, and I thanked God I was safe. I arose, and with a stronger determination than ever to be faithful to my Lord and Master, I went forth to meet the stigma and reproach which might be heaped upon me, but not till after I had met with the brethren and sisters, who met at the Hall to comfort one another, with whom in my deep sorrow I refused to meet in the former part of the day.

Praise the Lord! for the grace which was given me in that time of need, which enabled me to return at the close of the meeting to the dwelling of my uncle, and there meet with those who had no love for the hope which was dear to me, and also on Monday morning when I returned to my usual employment when ridiculed there for my faith, and entreated by church members to give it up, the grace of God enabled me to stand before them and confess that I had been mistaken, but I could never give up the hope of Christ's coming,—never. I think I felt some then, as the man of God who when entreated by the king to turn one side said—"If thou wilt give me half of thine house I will not go." But, alas! although I had stood under the disappointment when many, especially the young, had fallen, and gone back to the world, yet there came a time, when I stopped like the man of God under the oak. I realized no danger and yet I fell. But a few days had passed away and I relaxed in my efforts to live watchful, and it was here, like the prophet who lied to the man of God, that Satan lied to me—telling me that I need not be careful of every word that I spoke, and keep myself so excluded, but that I might be more social with those around, and still I need not be light and trifling. I listened to his suggestion and thought it was all well enough, and concluded I would adopt it. 'Twas then that I lost my power that I had had, and Satan led me from one step to another—little by little, and at the close of a week I found that I could laugh with the gay, and even had some relish for their jokes. But when the truth had flashed upon me that it was the enemy of my soul that I had listened to, and that he had led me far from God, I could have wept, it seemed to me, seas of tears, if they would have availed anything. I thought of the position I had gained and how in one short week I had fallen; and though it caused deep sadness of heart, I was discouraged, and with the pleasures of the world before me, and no one to take me by the hand and aid me at this time of need, I turned for consolation to the world—and what misery did I reap in a few years as I followed in the wake of the world,—longing for something to fill the aching void in my heart.

But, I thank God that he left me not to be completely wrecked, but that I have been spared to sing—

"Amazing grace! how sweet the sound,
That saved a wretch like me;
I once was lost, but now am found,
Was blind, but now I see."

This has been some of my experience, and I trust while I have been impressed to write it, it may not be in vain, but that it may prove a warning to some who may be tempted by Satan to step one side. One step taken from the narrow path and we are in danger. It was unsafe for the man of God to rest by the wayside; just so it is even now. This world is no resting-place for the saints of God. With the poet we may sing—

"Here o'er the earth as a stranger I roam, Here is no rest, is no rest;"

but on a little way in the future there is "rest for the weary."

Reader! are you resting now, are you standing still while there is much to be done? Remember that this is not the time to take rest. This is not the time to sit with arms folded in lazy lock.

"Worlds are charging, heaven beholding,
Thou hast but an hour to fight;
Now the blazoned cross unfolding,
On! right onward for the right."

A TENT FOR ENGLAND.

Friends and Lovers of Jesus and his Truth:—I have been amongst you, going in and out, preaching the "word of this life" for some twenty months, and now it is in my heart in the fall of the year to return to my native land. It is my intense desire to proclaim the kingdom of God, and preach repentance towards God, faith in our Lord Jesus, the Messiah, and righteousness, as I have never even begun to do heretofore. Indeed, I say it not boastingly, but as before our Lord, who searcheth the heart, I feel I have given all for Christ, and scoffs, jeers, any thing in self-denial or suffering, comes to me as a source of joy, since it is all for Christ's sake. I thank my Father for leading me to these American States. I have thus formed many associations that time will not annul, but which will shortly be consummated in the kingdom of God. I thank you all, beloved, for the cordial hospitality you have shown me as a stranger brother. As some of you know, among whom I have gone preaching, my efforts through God have been measurably blessed. Some have been turned to the Lord. And to God be the praise of well doing.

And now I desire to return again to the old country. I want to make its valleys and hills sound and resound with the glad tidings of the kingdom of God—a subject, as taught in the Bible, but little understood there. Who will pray for me, that doors may open before me, and strong words of the Spirit may proceed from my heart and out of my mouth? And who will devote stated special hours to this pleading? "Brethren, pray for me!" I have no means. I am not wealthy. What little I had I parted with for that Savior who is dearer to me than my natural life. Still, I do not say this to beg of you, but will explain myself, for "to beg I am ashamed." Neither do I thus write so that I may receive a "salary" from you; since I trust to the God of the sparrows for my support, and he knows me, and will feed me.

I am going to lay before you a proposal that "fruit may abound to your account"; not to ask a gift for myself. I must preach the Word. But halls are very dear in England, as they are here, though somewhat less costly than in America, of course. Still I should not feel able to hire them, for I am not in a position. (I am a poor man, yet I have a kingdom I have not begun on.) So I have proposed to two or three "pillars" among us, that an appeal be made to the churches for a tent—a good large canvas tent, fit to go anywhere, capable of holding twelve or fifteen hundred people—in which the gospel might be proclaimed. Call the tent, say, "The Evangelist," and let us have streaming in the free heaven, in the open presence of our Savior, a flag with this motto—"Thy kingdom come!"

You have done nobly for the Southern mission; you have responded to the Californian call. Brethren! is England worth your effort? Think what importance it is to flood England with light. Her voice sounds out into all the world. Her children go everywhere. Shall they, as they scatter into Canada, the North American States, South Africa, through Australia to India,—shall they "go everywhere" teaching the faith which is after godliness? Shall we give them all the opportunity of hearing it, knowing it, believing it, cherishing it, and confessing it? Will you help in this good work? As for myself, I have given myself an eternal gift to be spent for Jesus, never to "look back," much less go back; and that is all I have. I appeal then to you for the furtherance of the knowledge of God's love and Christ's devotion for us. I beg, that men might hear in masses of the life eternal, the gift of God through Jesus Christ our Lord. I ask not for myself; I speak for Jesus.

Brethren! I have shown you one way of doing good. May the Father work in you his good pleasure in this matter. And if any feel a liberal, generous spirit, see this is a good way to invest a little money, and will send their tokens of love for Jesus to me, W. Kellaway, care Geo. T. Adams, Crisis Office, Boston, I will act as a careful steward of Christ, in the outlay for the tent I have spoken of. I only desire that Jesus I know, to be known, loved, and served by others. And even if the tent should not be bought, I might then foot it through England, and visit and preach as a pilgrim stranger in the apostolic fashion. But should any church, as a church, wish to make a special effort in this promising cause, and desire me to come and see them, preaching the word to them in the name of Messiah, I am ready to attend to the call of all to whom for Christ's sake I am become servant.

And now, brethren, permit me to thank God for his rich grace to us; and let me again commend this work of love to your generous Christian hearts, for your hearty approval and ready aid. All receipts will be acknowledged. Will some write in the Crisis respecting the tent, and what they have to say for it? Your fellow-laborer, waiting in longing and patience for Jesus.

W. Kellaway.

☞ "The Herald of Salvation" is still published by me at 60 cts. a year. If the Lord will, I may continue it, should he permit me to labor in England. It is well recommended by many dear saints.

"I AM A CLERGYMAN; I AM POSTED."

I. C. WELLCOME.

There are some very important lessons to be learned by noting the self-conceit, pride of position, and scholarship, of some persons who "know nothing yet as they ought to know." We give one illustration of this.

Last autumn, while passing through Wisconsin, homeward, on the train we heard two men, who sat near by, conversing about the scenery of the prairies. One remarked—"All this shows the action of water. These western prairies have at some time been entirely covered with water." We had become weary of silence and felt like talking, and only waited the proper opportunity to ask a question. When their conversation ceased, we asked—

"When do you suppose these prairies were submerged with water?"

"Oh! I do not know, but it is evident they have been. Don't you think so?"

"Yes," we replied. "And may it not have been in the time of the flood?"

"No," was the quick reply, "the flood was never here. The flood covered only a small part of the earth."

"But," we replied, "the Bible tells us that it 'covered all the high hills that were under the whole heaven, and the mountains were covered. And all flesh died that moved upon the earth.'"

"Ah!" said he, "you do not understand the Bible; the Bible does not mean all the earth. I am a clergyman. I have looked into these matters. I am posted. It is now given by all scholars of note in our schools, by theological students and eminent ministers, that the flood covered a radius of only some five hundred miles in Asia."

We replied—"If this be so, it seems a want of wisdom and prudence to have constructed such a huge and costly ship to escape such a flood. Noah and family could have moved out of that territory, on the old style of travel, at much less expense and labor and time than it took to build the ark. Again, the story abo[illegible] inst[illegible] not [illegible] "[illegible] floo[illegible] but it nevered covered all the earth. Do you believe the ark was large enough to hold all the animals said to have gone into it?"

"Of course I do. I believe the Bible, and it is so recorded. Do you not believe the Bible?" we asked.

"Oh, yes! I believe the Bible; you don't understand it. It does n't mean so. This is your difficulty," said our clergyman. "The ark would not hold one-eighth of the animals said to have entered it."

"We wish to understand the Scriptures. Who shall tell us what they mean if they do not explain themselves?" we replied.

"What denomination do you belong with?" asked our posted clergyman.

"The Second Advent denomination."

"Are you a minister?"

"Yes, I have spent some years in the work of preaching."

"You do not believe in the immortality of the soul, then?"

"No, I believe the Bible, and that teaches me that the soul is mortal, and immortality is offered us."

"Have you seen Prof. Bartlett's book—'Life and Death Eternal?'" he asked.

"Yes, I have the book."

"What do you think of that?"

"I think it a very shallow and weak effort, perverting and mistaking nearly all our positions, and then reasoning from a false base."

"Well, Prof. B. is perhaps the strongest reasoner in this country. I am a student in the institution in which he is a teacher in Chicago. I am a Congregationalist minister. If you think him weak I don't know who you would think an able man."

"We do not call him weak, the trouble is with his theory. The stronger the man the weaker his subject appears when he attempts to sustain error. Have you seen Mr. Constable's Review of Prof. B's. book?" we asked.

"No. Who is Mr. Constable?"

"He is an Episcopal minister, of some note, in Cork, Ireland, a destructionist. He has given a short review of Prof. B., which will cause his ears to tingle."

"Have you seen Mr. Landis' work on the Soul?"

"Yes, and we find him in the same condition with Prof. B., and less satisfactory to his readers."

"Have you seen Dr. Mattison's work on the Immortality of the Soul?" he asked.

"Yes, a young lady recently converted had it loaned to her by her minister to indoctrinate her, and she wished me to read it and give my objections, if I had any, to the following—'That the human soul is immortal is shown by the sympathy and affection we feel for our kindred after they die. If the soul was not immortal all interest and affection would cease for them the moment they die.' I read this proposition of Dr. Mattison's, then asked the young lady, 'Did your father ever kill a calf?' 'Yes,' was the reply, with surprise. 'Did its mother ever moan for it after its death?' This simple illustration was palpable. The young lady replied, 'Yes, and if the doctor's proposition is good, then the cattle and other animals have immortal souls.' All can see this."

"Our posted clergyman had fully endorsed the doctor's proposition when I repeated it, but when he saw it exploded by this simple figure of the dead calf, his self-confident spirit broke down; but after resorting to some low talk he resumed the subject.

"Can you read Hebrew and Greek?" he asked.

"No, I cannot read either, but I have seen men who could, and consulted books of some such. I suppose you can read both."

"Yes, I can, and if you could, you would see that the original proves the soul immortal."

"Why then do not our linguists and lexicographers so translate and develop the original? If you can read Hebrew, you of course know that the term nephesh chaiyah, translated 'living soul' in Gen. 2: 7, is the same in Gen. 1: 20, 21, 24, 30, and 7: 22, and shows that all animals are souls."

"No, I never examined it."

We now thought best to test his posting. "Have you read Prof. Hudson's 'Debt and Grace'?" we asked.

"No. Who is he? I never heard of him."

"He was a Congregationalist minister, and a Prof. in one of your colleges. This work has been extensively circulated among scholars, and is admitted an able work. Have you seen Panton Ham's work on the Nature of Man?"

"No. Who was he?"

"He was a Congregationalist minister in England, who taught the mortality of the soul. Have you read Whately, White, Moncrief, McCullough, Leask, whose works are extant, and who are admitted to be men of sound learning? They all teach that the soul is mortal, and eternal life can be had through Christ."

"No, I have never seen any of these works."

"But you claimed to be posted; and on such great subjects as these, where long and thorough discussion is being had, it becomes us to read what can be said on both sides. Have you ever read any work on the subject of man's mortality in opposition to the immortality of the soul?"

"No, we have not."

"Will you read one? I have Whitmore on 'The Doctrine of Immortality.' I will give you a copy. It is better to be posted."

He took the book and moved to a distant seat. Our conversation closed. I pray the Lord to post him in the truth in Christ.

"I AM WATCHING YOU."

L. J. ADAMS.

"I am watching you," said a young friend to me, little thinking of the impression the words would make on my heart. I love Jesus, and am trying to do his will. My life is consecrated to his service, and I want to live so that those who associate with me will not only know that I have been with Jesus and learned of him, but will also be made better by associating with me. And to-night as I sit alone in the gathering twilight, with tear-dimmed eyes, thinking of loved ones who are unsaved, whom I have sought to win to Christ, and of the responsibility resting upon me as a professed follower of Him who came to seek and save the lost, the words of my friend come home to my heart. I remember, too, that other eyes (the eyes of the Lord) are watching me, and ask myself the question—

"What of thy life?
What relating
By its influence through the years?
[illegible]y praying graced with watching, saying one with doing;
[illegible] thy life the golden picture of the God thy soul reveres?
If not, vain the lip's confession
When the thought-book is revealed;
Life is love in thought and action,
God's decision unrepealed."

And from my heart ascends the prayer—O Lord! help me to live to thy glory. "Teach me to do thy will, for thou art my God." Take away everything that is unlike the Christ my heart loves. Breathe over me the spirit of prayer and watchfulness. Make me like Jesus, patient, gentle, loving, tender-hearted and forgiving; and may it ever be the aim of my life to follow in the footsteps of Him who yielded up his life on Calvary for sinners, and live so that those who see my life will be constrained to acknowledge that there is a reality in the religion of Jesus.

To a greater or less extent we are exerting (unconsciously perhaps) an influence over those around us. And if our life is consistent with our profession we may under God be instrumental in leading them to Jesus, the Savior of sinners. While on the other hand, if we are not living in obedience to God's requirements, we are not only sealing our own destruction, but also helping seal the destruction of others, God alone knows how many, who are stumbling over our inconsistencies.

"No act falls fruitless; none can tell
How vast its power may be,
Nor what results enfolded dwell
Within it silently."

Beloved in the Lord, are we occupying the position it is our privilege and duty to occupy? Do we "shine as lights in the world?" Do we seek to conform to the will of God in everything, and feel it a privilege to deny self for Christ's sake? "Ye are my witnesses, saith the Lord." Who? Only those whom God has called to preach the gospel? No, all who love Jesus. Do we tell the story of the Cross to the perishing ones around us, and beseech them in Christ's stead to be reconciled to God?

"A whispered word may touch the heart,
And call it back to life,
A look of love bid sin depart,
And still unholy strife."

God has commanded us to let our light so shine before men that they may see our good works, and glorify our Father which is in heaven; and if we fail to do it, we shall "fail of the grace of God;" and when Jesus comes to gather his jewels, receive our portion with the hypocrites and unbelievers. Let us "abstain from all appearance of evil," and "lay aside every weight, and the sin which doth so easily beset us, and let us run with patience, the race set before us, looking unto Jesus, the author and finisher of our faith; who, for the joy that was set before him, endured the cross, despising the shame, and is set down at the right hand of the throne of God."

RICHES.

All men desire them.

No man possesses them.

This last is a startling statement, and will be contradicted by all readers of it. The aim of this paper is to maintain it.

The richest man is he who has the fewest ungratified desires; who in himself carries, independent of externals, the largest proportion of all he values.

The desires of a man expand with the increase of his means to acquire; so that the more his wealth abounds, the more do his desires superabound.

A man, then, is poorest in that of which he possesses the most; for, as his wishes expand in a geometrical ratio to his acquirements, the more he has the larger is his want.

Thus, a man begins by desiring to possess a house. He obtains his wish. Is he content? On the contrary, he is now looking with a longing mind on several houses. So that possession, instead of extinguishing desire, inflames it. The tendency in any one direction, which may be called the hobby, is like a plant which, at first putting out two small leaves, or cotyledons, is nourished till it grows into a tree, with branches on every side, all abounding in leaves.

The writer knew a man in London who owned a thousand houses there, besides many in the provinces, and whose eagerness to add to the number was inordinate. He began life on a tailor's board.

The writer, having no house, does not wish to possess one, being content with the occupation of one which he does not own.

But the writer remembers when he first began to buy books. He got together half a dozen volumes, and his desires were bounded by one or two more. He afterwards became possessor of twenty-five thousand volumes, and then eagerly searched every critical review, every sale catalogue, within reach, and every second-hand bookstore, and his desires were unbounded and insatiable.

He had to part with all, and owns himself richer to-day, with a few volumes, than he was with many; for now he has all he wants.

This illustrates what was said at the beginning: No man possesses riches. For if the word be interpreted to mean as much as will circumscribe desire; it is contended that possession enhances instead of diminishing desire; and it follows, of course, that whatever the favorite object, that in which a man has most attained to abound in, is also that in which his ungratified desires do most superabound.

Theology says, riches do not make happiness.

Experience says the same thing.

The Bible precedes both in like teaching. "The happiness of man consisteth not in the abundance of that which he possesseth."

Universal practice walks its own way in utter disregard of the teaching of religion, philosophy and experience, for the commonest instinct says, "get as much as you can."

But now, to suppress the contemptuous sneers of money hunters at the utterance of such unworldly lore, I am willing to let them decide the matter themselves from the experience of their own lives.

This is a land where such an appeal will be peculiarly right and decisive.

In Europe the rich are often also the men of rank, and as they have inherited their title and estates, and never remember a time in which they were not in possession of the distinction which wealth confers, they can make only an imaginary comparison of themselves with those men who are in very different, or opposite circumstances. But here, in California, there is probably no rich man who was not once poor, and in the majority of cases, not long ago. His memory is still fresh of the former life; he can recall all the state of mind, and the way of life he had, when he was poor, and now that he is rich, shall one, who is not rich and who never was, make an attempt to speak for such a man, merely from the basis of such a knowledge of our common nature as experience of various fortune has given?

A man starts out to get his living and earns enough to pay his way. Sometimes employment fails and he has to do with scanty food and raiment, but want stimulates him to exertion, and as venter mater est artium, to invention. He strikes, here and there, something which yields more than his bare needs require, and these successes have all the effect of triumphs. He rejoices over them; he wins patiently a victory over each difficulty; and while it is before him and unconquered, he has more real interest and pleasure in it than when the contest is ended in victory. Then, somehow, he feels that although while success was unachieved, the pursuit stimulated him with victory; with the attainment of his object comes a collapse. He owns a feeling of disappointment in the dissolving diorama of his ambition; the object he sought seems to have vanished, and another object arisen in its place.

Can it be true that the difficulty makes the zest rather than the removing it? Or, are the two things so set one against the other, mutually antagonistic forces, and the antagonism necessary to the mental equilibrium, so that if one force be gone the mind feels relaxed and displaced?

The time comes, to such a man, when all these things, which were formerly won by perseverance, keen thought and contrivance, and about which depression alternated with patient hope, can be obtained without anything else than money, at last, is owned in abundance; but there is alas! now, no pleasure in the accumulation of things, one of which was almost unattainable in poorer days.

A man was known to the writer whose business energy was great, and who, being speculative, would not unfrequently find himself in the morning thus:

He had ten thousand pounds to pay before three o'clock in the afternoon, and knew not where he could, certainly, lay his hands on ten. He raked around, schemed, contrived, and made his payment in due course, and then would go home to his country villa joyous, triumphant; eat his dinner with a relish and enjoy his bottle of sound old port with his friends, and with a gusto unfelt by the same man when his bank account was strong enough for any pull upon it.

The very possession of wealth is a burden, and the very administration of it a toil and vexation.

We know a man in England whose vast estate compelled him to make this bargain with himself: He visits his ancestral mansion—a sumptuous palace in a beautiful romantic park, and filled with works of art, some of them of world-wide renown—only six weeks in each half year; and all that have business with him must come to him on these occasions. At such times he begins early in each day, and continues without intermission as arduous a plodding as any over-worked clerk, auditing his steward's accounts, interviewing his tenants and the workmen who do his numerous jobs; and as soon as the six weeks are expired he tears himself away, leaving a large balance for transaction by his steward, or to stand over for decision on the next half year. This he rigorously adheres to, for otherwise his property would claim all his life. He is well in his generation, but would he not be much better if he were poorer?

Look at the men who are the richest among us. Can they enjoy themselves with the airy freedom of the poorer class? They are way-laid at every turn, besieged in their places of business, invaded in their homes, and seem delivered as a prey to the teeth of every kind of men who wish a share of their money. They look jaded, weary and overworked, and in fact are so; and they will admit that, whatever the triumph of their position, whatever the distinction and consideration it gives, they pay a heavy penalty for it in the labor it imposes, and the loss of the light and shade, the picturesque freshness of their former life; while they feel an alienation of friends, and the miserable substitution of equals in wealth—since they are sought not for what they are, the truest choice of all, but for what they have. In moderate circumstances, money was his servant and his friend; now he has become the slave of his money, in the enjoyment of which he probably has a smaller share than the poorest man he pays, who, having no ambition beyond his day's work, relishes his food and sleeps soundly after his work, which insures him a good digestion.

THE CHILDREN'S KING.

King of glory and of grace,
Low we bow before thy face;
Heart and voice in concert sing
Songs to Christ the children's King.

Once in Bethlehem's manger-bed
Sheep and oxen round him fed;
Now, exalted over all,
At his feet the angels fall.

We with seraphs join to sing
Praise to Christ the children's King;
Gladly swell the joyful strain
To the Lamb for children slain.

HARRY'S SIXPENCE.

The story that I am going to tell you is a true one, and happened a good many years ago in the city of Philadelphia.

It was a beautiful Fourth of July morning; the bells were all ringing, troops were marching in long procession, and every little boy in Philadelphia, who was old enough to be allowed in the streets, was prepared to celebrate the day in the noisiest manner that he could devise. Quite early in the day, if you had been there, you might have seen two little boys walking briskly down one of the quarter streets of the city. They were about equal in size, but vastly different in appearance. One, a fine-looking little fellow was handsomely dressed, in the most approved boy custom of the day; the other, every whit as handsome as his companion in form and feature, though comfortably dressed, certainly did not present a very gay holiday appearance. You would have known by one glance at the plain, neat little suit which he wore, that its owner had no rich papa to buy his boy fine clothes, but that he must have a kind mamma, who knew how to make the coarse ones neat and comfortable.

"I say, Harry," said our finely dressed little gentleman, "I say, what are you going to do to-day?"

"Oh, I don't know; follow the soldiers, I s'pose; what are you going to do, Fred?"

"Oh, hosts of things," said Fred. "I don't like following the soldiers all the time. I mean to spend my money the first thing."

"How much have you, Fred?"

"So much," said Fred, and he drew from his pocket a bright, new five dollar bank note. "How much have you, Harry?"

"Not much," said Harry.

"Show," said Fred.

Harry plunged his hand down into his pocket, and drawing it slowly forth, displayed to his companion a little shining sixpence. It was all he had. How small it looked compared to Fred's big bank note. Harry thought he had never noticed before how very little a sixpence was.

"That isn't much," said Fred. "I wish you had more, Harry."

But just at this moment the boys came in sight of the grand procession of soldiers. Fred rushed forward, and soon lost all remembrance of Harry and his sixpence, in the excitement of the day. Not so with Harry. The soldiers had lost their charm for him. Why had Fred five dollars and he only a sixpence? Why had some people so much and others so little? I don't care so much for to-day, thought Harry, for I can get along very well with sixpence, but it is the same in everything. Fred can have more books than I. Fred can go to a better school than I. But how is it going to be helped?—that's the question. There are so many of us at home, and I am sure I have my share. I've no right to complain, that's true; but I wonder if a fellow couldn't do something for himself? I've heard of boys who did a great deal; but the trouble is, there doesn't seem anything for me to do.

And so Harry went thinking aloud until he came to his uncle's store. Harry's kind uncle soon noticed the cloud on the little boy's face, and asked what troubled him. Then Harry told him all about it.

"Well, never mind," said he, when Harry had finished his story; "run round the corner and buy all the apples you can for your sixpence. I will lay one of the window shutters over a couple of barrels just outside the door, and you can stand there and sell your apples. There will be plenty of customers, I'll warrant, and by night you'll have three or four sixpences."

The idea pleased Harry. He went to work; and sure enough, when night came, he had quite a little handful of sixpences. The next day he tried it again with success; and so he went on for weeks and months, until he sold not apples only, but pins, needles, thread, tape, and quite an assortment of knick-knacks.

All this time Harry studied hard every night, and made rapid progress at his books. He found, that by using diligently all the spare hours he had, he could get along quite as fast with his studies as many boys who had nothing but studies to attend to. He was a kind little tradesman, too. Many a poor little boy or girl went away from his stand with a bright, red apple, or a sweet, round cake—the gift of Harry's generous hand.

After a while, Harry's uncle offered him a shelf inside the store; and then Harry began to be a merchant in earnest. He worked like a man; and after years of hard toil had passed by, Harry's uncle received him into partnership. The business increased until the little store became a wholesale establishment, and Harry was a rich man. But this was not all. Harry was a kind and good man, too.

Strange as it may seem, the very same Fred whom he knew when a boy, came to him asking employment. Harry had not forgotten him. He received him kindly, and gave him all the aid he needed.

Now, I do not want any little boy who reads this to become discontented, and imagine that he hasn't half as much as he ought to have, and grumble about it. Oh, no! Only do what you can, do all that you can, and do it well. Do it, because it is every boy's duty to be just as great, and wise, and good as he can be. Learn while you are young to "be diligent in business, fervent in spirit, serving the Lord"—Presbyterian.

Little Indian Girl.—Some of the children in the Cuddapah-mission school were laughing and making a noise, which evidently disturbed a little Indian girl; for she said,—"Lord Jesus, will you quiet these children? they make such a noise! and I have spoken to them until my mouth is sore; and I can't pray with such a noise. Do make them quiet and good; for, if I cannot pray to you, who else have I in this world?"

HARD BEDS.

The idea that the soft side of a plank makes the best couch when one gets used to it, was long ago exploded. People who know "what is what," who read the newspapers, and mean to be somebody, don't believe a word of it. Those who have settled down to a Diogenes-in-the-tub life, accept the doctrine. It is true that a tired man will sleep soundly on a hard bed, and habit will make the hardness dear to him. It is also true that Napoleon's soldiers slept while on their march homeward from Russia, and some of them may have become attached to locomotion and sleep united. Notwithstanding all this, those who have once felt the almost human kindness and warmth of a hair mattress beneath them cannot go back to husks and straw without a pang.

Look at the matter physiologically. The spinal column is composed of twenty-four pieces of bone, fastened together by cartilage, with a little cushion of highly elastic cartilage nicely fitted in between each to prevent friction and to permit perfect freedom of movement. The spine is not straight, but curves in, as everybody knows, at the small of the back, and curves out again. In a perfect bed, every part of this vertebral column will be supported; but in a hard, unyielding surface, this is not possible. One portion of the body rests firmly on the bed beneath it, while another in a line with it receives no support. Sleep on such a bed will not restore the wearied frame nearly so well as repose on an elastic couch where every part of the body is equally supported.

We do not recommend softness, but elasticity. Feathers are unwholesome, because they retain an excess of warmth about the body, and also because they absorb the insensible perspiration thrown off by the pores, and permit the body to re-absorb the excrementitious matter. A bed of soft, fresh straw, evenly distributed and covered with a thin cotton or woolen mattress, may be a good resting-place, and furnish sweet sleep. But how can man or woman rise refreshed from a couch of straw, or a shuck mattress, which has been in nightly use without renewal for a series of years? Yet there are portions of this very land of plenty where travelers are put to sleep upon just such beds as this.

Every man in grazing districts may own a dozen or two coarse wooled sheep. These and their increase will in a short time give him wool mattresses, than which none are more pleasant, more wholesome, or durable. The tag-locks washed and carded should be hoarded by every farmer's wife for this purpose. In cities and villages, and in the more populous parts of our country, those who can afford good sleeping places generally have them. The degree of refinement and cultivation, as well as wealth one has attained, may be easily read by one glance at their sleeping apartments. Cleanliness and comfort are perfectly consistent with honest poverty, for straw and water are cheap everywhere in the country, and within the reach of all.

As a general rule, the better care a man takes of his body, in feeding it with skill, clothing it with discretion, and giving it due and refreshing sleep, the more work he can do, and the higher quality of his work. A vigorous, energetic, and hardy body may patiently endure for a series of years gross violations of its fundamental laws, but the day will come when it will demand full retribution for every dishonored requisition. The rules of physical well-being are like those laws that Moses received on the granite of Mount Sinai. Tobacco, broken sleep, bad fare, cold, dampness, miasms, will tell on every frame at last; and when Nemesis comes, he requires eye for eye, tooth for tooth, stripe for stripe, burning for burning.

Onions.—Dr. Hall says that the onion is one of the most nutritious, healthful, and delectable articles of food in the market. He further adds that a few grains of coffee eaten immediately afterward or a teaspoonful of vinegar swallowed, removes the odor of the breath; and that if onions are half boiled, and then put in a soup to be boiled till done, the odor will be but little noticed. We have seen it mentioned that onions and salt are considered a specific in all cases of snake bite; and that when onions are sliced and kept in sick rooms, but frequently changed, they are good disinfectants. But also they are thought by some persons, when thus used, to remain and communicate the virus absorbed for many weeks. By their power of absorption they may thus prevent the spread of an epidemic, but it would also seem that during a prevailing epidemic it would be safer to avoid them as an article of food.—Ex.

"IN DUE SEASON."

The harvest fields lie bleak and brown,
Beneath the winter snows;
There is no breath of violet,
No fragrance of the rose;
Of birds or brooks no roundelays—
O weary days!

Yet somewhere, in her sweet content,
Spring waits God's loving call,
And sets her buds, unquestioning,
Since He is over all:
Beneath the snows that fall to-day,
Sleep blooms of May.

O patient souls, storm-beat and driven,
And robbed by wintry blast,
Who hold, through all God's chastening,
His promises so fast—
Or soon or late His love shall bring Eternal Spring!

THE THOUSAND YEARS.

B. T. PRICE.

Bro. Grant:—As I see now and then an article in your valuable paper ignoring altogether the thousand years between the first and second resurrection, I will endeavor to give my views in regard to the same. I will take Mal. 4: 1–3—"For behold, the day cometh that shall burn as an oven; and all the proud, yea, all that do wickedly, shall be stubble; and the day that cometh shall burn them up, that it shall leave them neither root nor branch. But unto you that fear my name shall the Sun of Righteousness arise with healing in his wings, and ye shall go forth and grow up as calves of the stall. And ye shall tread down the wicked, for they shall be ashes under the soles of your feet in the day that I do this, saith the Lord of hosts." I believe the first verse refers entirely to the wicked that are living on the earth at the coming of Christ, and that after they are burned up they will remain ashes under the soles of the feet of the saints in the new earth during the thousand years spoken of in Revelations; this being their first or Adamic death, although by fire; yet they will be restored to life to receive their second death at the end of the thousand years. They will be placed on the same footing with all the wicked that have died since Adam; "for as in Adam all die [the Adamic or first death], even so in Christ shall all be made alive"; the righteous in the morning of the millennium, or day of the Lord, which is the seventh thousand year; the wicked being ashes under the soles of the feet of the saints, and by them being trodden down until the evening or end of that day—one thousand years. Then will the rest of the dead (all the wicked) live again, and the devil that deceived them here will be loosed from his prison, who will still deceive them, and marshal all the mighty host; for they shall come up on the breadth of the earth, or "four quarters of the earth [it being their first resurrection], Gog and Magog to battle, the number of whom is as the sand of the sea; and they went up on the breadth of the earth, and compassed the camp of the saints about, and the beloved city; and fire came down from God out of heaven and devoured them." Rev. 20: 8, 9. That will be their second death, from which there will be no resurrection. It is the lake of fire spoken of in Rev. 21: 8; the holy city is only spoken of as being on the new earth, and of course this wicked host must be there to surround it, and compass the camp of the saints about.

We find in Rev. 20: 3, that the devil is cast into the bottomless pit and shut up, and a seal set upon him, that he should deceive the nations no more, till the thousand years should be fulfilled, and after that he must be loosed a little season. For what purpose is he to be loosed? Verses 7–10 tell the story. Where are the nations? They are in the four quarters of the earth; they are the ashes spoken of in Malachi, that are trodden under the soles of the feet of the saints, and as such will be preserved until the end of the thousand years; then they will be brought forth to see the glory of the saints and the holy city, all of which is forever lost to them; but under their leader, the devil, they will make an attempt to drive out the saints and take the city; but fire comes down from God out of heaven and devours them. They are the wicked on the outside of the city (Rev. 29: 15); "for without are dogs, and sorcerers, and whoremongers, and murderers, and idolaters, and whosoever loveth and maketh a lie." Also Rev. 21: 8. Such as shall have their part "in the lake which burneth with fire and brimstone, which is the second death." 20: 5, 6. "But the rest of the dead lived not again until the thousand years are finished. Blessed and holy is he that hath part in the first resurrection; on such the second death hath no power; but they shall be priests of God and of Christ, and shall reign with him a thousand years." Here is the only place where we get the time between the first and second resurrection, the resurrection of the righteous and of the wicked.

I will here give one or two precedents to the above. We find in Isa. 61: 2—"To proclaim the acceptable year of the Lord, and the day of vengeance of our God." Is there any space of time given here between the proclaiming of the acceptable year and the day of vengeance? We would naturally suppose from their connection that they were to be given at the same time; but we find in the fulfillment (Luke 4: 18, 19) only the first part was carried out. Why is the year of vengeance left off in the fulfillment of this prophecy? Because there is a long period of time to take place before that event occurs; the first part proclaimed at his first coming, the last at his second coming.

We will notice the signs that were to take take place just previous to his coming, apparently simultaneously,—the darkening of the sun and moon (1780), the falling stars (1833), the sea and waves roaring at the present time, the balance yet in the future, yet close at hand; for the generation living when the signs commenced are nearly all gone. The numbers also relating to the world's history are nearly all run out. Therefore we may expect soon to see the fulfillment of what is yet to come.

I merely bring these prophecies as specimens to show their connection does not necessarily make the fulfillment of them to take place at one and the same time. Just so I view the prophecies in regard to the resurrection of the righteous and the wicked. The time is not given until you come to the thousand years spoken of in Revelations. There you get the particular details in regard to these two great events.

The above remarks have been brought out by reading Bro. Boutell's article which appeared in the Crisis some time since, as well as others that I have noticed heretofore. I see no good reason yet for abandoning the good old platform.

THE BLOOD OF JESUS.

J. W. THOMAS.

"The blood of Jesus Christ his Son cleanseth us from all sin."—1 John 1: 7.

The blood of Jesus. It cleanseth from all sin. Sin—this is just what we want to get rid of. It is this that condemns; that separates us from God; that spoils our peace; that fills us with sorrow. Sin—transgression of God's law; sin—disbelief of God's word; sin—neglect of doing what we know is right. Sin—how hateful. It is leprosy; "palsy, plague, and fever, and madness all combined." How terrible is this disease. How it sticks to us. How it springs up within us. How it torments us. Is there no way to get rid of it? Yes, blessed be God! here is the remedy—"The blood of Jesus Christ his Son cleanseth us from all sin."

That Christ shed his blood for some purpose is very evident. That he did not die to atone for his own sins is plain, for he was "holy, harmless, and undefiled." Then he died for sinners. Yes. "He who knew no sin was made sin for us, that we might be made the righteousness of God in him." There was no other way. Man was lost. The blood of bulls and goats only answered to the purifying of the flesh; but the blood of Jesus, who offered himself without spot to God, purges the conscience from dead works to serve the living and true God. Is not this good news? Here is a remedy for the worst cases—"Whosoever will." Yes, that means me; it means you; it means everybody that will accept it. This remedy is a sure cure. It has been tried in thousands of hard cases and proved efficacious every time. The prescription is found in the Bible. It is applied by the hand of faith. He that believeth shall be saved.

The blood of Jesus. This was the price paid for our redemption. What a price! Mountains of gold and silver could not suffice. No. Had the earth itself been one solid lump of gold it would been nothing; it could not have paid the ransom price. How precious then must be the blood of Jesus. "Ye were not redeemed with silver and gold from your vain conversation, but with the precious blood of Christ, as of a Lamb without blemish and without spot." Surely, then, there is nothing in this world so valuable as the church of God. It has cost him such a great price it must be very dear to him. The least member of that church is of more value than all the gold of the universe. Never can he leave one unnoticed. Each saint has been purchased at an amazing cost.

The blood of Jesus. This is what gives us peace. He has made peace through the blood of his cross. Peace with God. Peace deep, pure, and flowing steady as a river. Peace that makes earth's desert places bloom and smile.

The blood of Jesus. This is what brings us nigh. Once we were far off. Strangers to God and one another, wandering like lost sheep, but now we are brought nigh by the blood of Christ. This breaks down every wall of separation and makes God's people one.

The blood of Jesus. This is what secures eternal redemption. The church has been purchased, yet she is subject to sorrow and death. The earth has been purchased, yet it groans beneath the curse. The redemption of the purchased possession will bring a resurrection of the dead, and a restitution of the forfeited inheritance.

The blood of Jesus. This is the keynote of the new song—"Thou art worthy, for thou wast slain, and hast redeemed us to God by thy blood, out of every kindred, nation and tongue, and hast made us kings and priests unto God, and we shall reign on the earth."

— One living, earnest christian, who can offer the prayer of faith, be he ever so poor, is worth more to the cause of Christ than a thousand worldly-minded and carnal professors, be they ever so rich.

SUNDAY SLEEPERS.

"Awake! thou that sleepest, and arise from the dead, and Christ shall give thee life."—Eph. 5: 13.

Sleep it out? Yes, you do, friend. Wherefore doze away one, two, three hours more on the Lord's day than on other days of the week? Any justice, mercy, or truth in it? Have you less work to perform on the first day of the week than on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, Friday, or Saturday? Are temporal things of greater moment than spiritual? earthly than the heavenly? Is the mortal part of more consequence than the immortal? Are things eternal of less value than the things that perish with their using? Man, woman, or child, in the church, where are you? Sleeping, dozing, dreaming, while angels are tuning their golden harps, singing Glory to the eternal King? Up! up! thou Jonah. "What meanest thou, O sleeper? Arise, and call upon thy God." "O sluggard, when wilt thou arise out of thy sleep?"

"Up! 'tis no dreaming time! Awake! awake!
For He who sits on the high Judge's seat,
Doth in his record mark each wasted hour,
Each idle word."

"Lo! while ye trifle, the light sand steals on,
Leaving the hour-glass empty, and thy life
Glideth away; stamp wisdom on its hours."

Where was Mary on the first day of the week ere the dawning light? At the tomb of her risen Lord. What did she receive for early rising, seeking her crucified and risen Savior—Lord of heaven and earth? A blessing unspeakable and full of glory. Is it not shameful, wickedly so, for professed disciples of the Lord Jesus to doze away precious golden seasons, more precious than gold, that should be grasped for God's glory, for searching the Scriptures, prayer add praise? that their souls may be fire for good? Up, wake up, ye dozy, drowsy sleepers and dreamers, up and on your knees!

"Wake, while yet the sparkling dew-drops
Gem each floweret's tiny bell,
While the joyous woodland warblers
Loud their grateful chorus swell;
Kneel with calm and thankful spirit,
Kneel and breathe thy morning prayer."

The morning air, how sweet, delicious, charming! No season is so precious, so sacred, so well calculated for reading, composing, meditating, prayer, and praise. Hail! lovely morning, precursor of a brighter day.

"Sweet is the breath of morn, her rising sweet,
With charm of earliest birds; pleasant the sun
When first on this delightful land he spreads
His orient beams on herb, tree, fruit, and flower,
Glistening with dew."

"The freshness of the lip is one of the surest signs of health." Would you be well, enjoy health, life, vigor of soul and body? have your heart dance joyfully like the April breeze, and your blood flowing like an April brook? Up with the lark! inhale the pure sweets of early dawn. Breakfast on the morning air fresh with the odor of budding flowers, and all the fragrance of the maiden spring. Up! wake up ere the glorious king of day streak the east.

"Nature herself ever shows her best
Of gems to the gaze of the lark,
When the spangles of light on earth's green breast
Put out the stars of the dark.
If we love the purest pearl of the dew,
And the rich breath of the flower,
If our spirits would greet the fresh and the sweet,
Go forth in the early hour."

If it is important to rise early on week days to provide nourishment for our temporal necessities, and food for our bodies, what we shall eat, what we shall drink, wherewithal shall we be clothed, how infinitely more important to rise early on the first day of the week, to provide food for the soul,—the bread of heaven, whereof if a man eat he shall never die. "Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it with thy might; for there is no work, nor device, nor knowledge, nor wisdom, in the grave whither thou goest." Reader,

"Awake! why sleepest thou my soul?
All nature cries awake!"

It is remarkable what numerous examples we have of early rising in the Scriptures. Let any one take a Concordance and look out the passages where it is mentioned, and he will be surprised at their number. Are not such examples binding on christians—on all? Abraham arose up early in the morning to offer sacrifice. "Early will I seek Thee," said the Psalmist. Shall not christians early rise to pay their vows unto God? "Very early in the morning" the holy women came to the sepulchre to embalm the Savior; and shall not his disciples seek their risen Lord early in the day? Christian! when are you most apt to neglect prayer, or perform it hastily or unprofitably? Is it not when you omit early rising? When are you most prone to neglect reading the Bible, or peruse its sacred pages negligently? Is it not when you act the sluggard, and waste precious hours in repose? At what season do you peruse God's word with delight, and call upon his name with fervor? Is is not when you early rise to pay your sacrifice? Nature, then, as well as Scripture, indicates the value of the morning for religious meditation, reading, and prayer.

All the most eminently distinguished for elevated piety and usefulness have been early risers. The Lord Jesus, our great Exemplar, not only spent whole nights in prayer, but also "in the morning, rising up a great while before day, he went out, and departed into a solitary place, and there prayed" (see Mark 1: 24); and no doubt this was his frequent custom. Mark, too, those who first visited the tomb of our blessed Lord. Who were they? what the hour of this visitation? before the dawn, "while it was yet dark." Both Mary Magdalene and the other Mary were at the sepulchre of Jesus "as it began to dawn, towards the first day of the week. . . . And the angel answered and said unto the women, Fear not ye; for I know that ye seek Jesus, who was crucified. He is not here; for he is risen as he said, Come see the place where the Lord lay. . . . And they departed quickly from the sepulchre, with fear and great joy, and did run to bring his disciples word. And as they went to tell his disciples, behold! Jesus met them, saying, All hail! And they came and held him by the feet and worshiped him."

Were not their souls joyfully lighted up in a flame most holy? Reader, go thou and do likewise, and the same unspeakable blessing is yours.

"Oh, not in vain, when oft we meet,
The record of his love
To search, does not our Jesus greet,
And bless us from above?
Though we may here oft reap reward,
Not till we higher go,
To be forever with the Lord,
Fullness of joy we'll now."

D. F. Newton, Author of "Apples of Gold."

WHEN DID THE JEWISH WAR END?

C. E. BARNES.

The discussion concerning the continuation and termination of the Jewish war has called forth several articles, which have recently appeared in the Crisis. It has been claimed by some that the war closed with the destruction of Jerusalem, and by others that it continued some two years after that event. In the Crisis of Feb. 21st, in a brief letter from G. W. Brown, the point is very clearly proved, by quotations from Josephus and Dr. Clarke, that the fall of Jerusalem "entirely completed this war."

I wish to present a brief argument confirmatory of this. In the reign of Numa, second king of Rome, a temple was built in honor of Janus, the most ancient king of Italy. This temple was to be kept open during times of war, but when universal peace prevailed, its gates were to be closed. Peace prevailing at the time of its completion, its gates were closed; but soon after, Rome becoming involved in war, its gates were thrown open, and were not closed again for about five hundred years, and then at the termination of the first Punic war. The third time we find the temple closed is after the defeat of Antony and Cleopatra, by Augustus; the fourth time, about four years after this, when he returned from a successful expedition into Spain; and the fifth time was in this year, under the reign of the same Augustus. See Prideaux' Connection, vol. 4, pp. 749–50.

The next time the temple was closed was during the reign of Vespasian, during which reign Jerusalem was destroyed. As the temple was to be closed only in times of universal peace, it follows that when it was closed this time, all wars in which Rome had been engaged must have ceased. The temple was closed directly after the fall of Jerusalem, as the following will show: Upon the destruction of the Jewish capital, Titus returned to Rome, whither his father had already gone, and together they were honored with a triumph; such was the condition of the affairs of the empire at this period that the temple of Janus was closed, thus testifying to the fact that peace prevailed throughout the Roman empire; hence at this time the Jewish war must have been ended.

That this conclusion may be more clearly seen, let me suggest the following syllogism: The temple of Janus was to be closed only in times of universal peace; but it was closed during the triumph given to Vespasian and Titus directly after the destruction of Jerusalem; therefore at that time the Jewish war was ended and peace prevailed.

From this conclusion there can be no escape, and I think all will accept it, except those whose theory of certain prophetic dates will be spoiled by so doing. I hope, however, that they may be inclined to make their theory conform to facts, rather than attempt to warp facts to suit their theory.

SPEAK FOR JESUS.

An obligation to bear testimony to the worth of religion rests upon every christian. "Ye are my witnesses," is said to every one who has experienced the blessedness of a new life. To "speak for Jesus," then, is just as binding upon the child of God as any other work of piety. The command—"Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature," is not enjoined upon the christian ministry alone. It has a wider and more practical signification. It bids every one who has tasted the love of God to go and proclaim that love to others, invite his friends and neighbors to the gospel feast. Whether our field of labor be New England or Hindostan, we are to go out into the world and declare to every unconverted man and woman the glad news of the gospel message. This is practical Christianity.

Do we seek for examples in the past history of the church? let us learn of Jesus, preaching to the Samaritan woman as he sits on Jacob's well, or to Nicodemus at the unseasonable hour of night. Let us learn of Paul, as with burning language he declares, "I ceased not to warn every man, night and day, with tears." Do we seek for examples in our modern Zion? let us learn of Carvosso, or a Harlan Page, whose song in glory will blend with that of a hundred others, saved from wrath to come through the instrumentality of his direct personal efforts.

By the phrase "speaking for Jesus," we have especial reference to personal effort for the salvation of souls. We are to preach Christ by the wayside, in the work-shop, and in the seclusion of home. Wherever we find an unconverted heart, there is an audience; and in the spirit of love and meekness we are to repeat to that sin-burdened heart the sweet words of Jesus—"Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest." We are to speak for the Master not only on the Sabbath, but Monday and Tuesday, in the midst of the cares and business of life. Whenever and wherever we find men exposed to the wrath of God, then and there we are to be witnesses for Christ. It is true there are times when it would be indiscreet to introduce into our conversation the subject of religion. But there are exceptions. Guided by the Spirit of God, the cross-bearing christian may know invariably when and where to speak for Jesus. There is little danger that we shall be "out of season" in declaring the "counsel of God"; but on the other hand, we have reason to tremble lest we should neglect golden opportunities to lead the sinner to the Savior. "Speak for Jesus."

My brother, have you not some unconverted friend or neighbor whom you have never invited to come to the "Friend of sinners"? Oh, go at once to that perishing one, and with tender entreaty, with the melting accents of christian love, urge him to "flee from the wrath to come." Say not, "The cross is heavy, I cannot bear it." Hath not the Master said, "My grace shall be sufficient for thee"? Is not his strength "made perfect in weakness"? Then speak for him boldly and earnestly, accompanied by a strong and grasping faith, and your efforts will be and must be successful.

"Then will I tell to sinners round
What a dear Savior I have found;
I'll point to thy redeeming blood,
And say, Behold the way to God."

EASTERN AND WESTERN SALARIES.

I. C. WELLCOME.

The vital truths of the gospel have never met the patronage of the popular classes, therefore never sustained by church salaries; but, while preached by self-sacrificing and God-fearing men, have been blessed of God in converting and elevating the people, being sustained in the Lord's way, that he might have the glory. Dispensational messages—as those of Noah, Lot, Isaiah, Jeremiah, John the Baptist, Christ and his Apostles, and that of the midnight cry or Second Advent message—have been especially of vital importance to the generations to whom they were sent. They have been about equally unpopular, and the laborers have fared much alike. The cross, the reproach, the hate, the intrigue and opposition, have been the obstacles in the way; but all these, cheerfully borne for the truth's sake, have brought rest of soul, peace of mind, and joy in the Holy Spirit, such as no other class of persons ever knew, while the crown of glory is yet to come.

We, who have been engaged in publishing the glorious message of our Lord's second coming, have learned but little of the suffering part that some of the ancient ones endured (see Heb. 11); but we have sometimes thought we were enduring about all we could; yet who of us would wish it blotted out, and change our experience for that of any class of men we know? I think none of us are ready for that. Some of us have spent thousands of dollars we had on hand when we heard that the Lord was soon coming. Others of us have preached and worked and earned thousands, and put that in; preached until it was spent; then earned more and preached that out. The incidents of trial, toil, burden, privation, temptation, agonizing prayer, tears, straitened condition, murmuring of wives, of children, condemnation and hard speeches of friends and kindred, with all the infamous stories, gossip, and lying about us, as a people, are too numerous to record; but the Lord has seen it all; no one else knows it; and none but we who have experienced it know how to praise the Lord for his grace which has kept us in these trials, and for opening such ways for us, and comforting us so abundantly in all our afflictions. Truly the Lord has been with us.

Many of us east have worked as long with as small salary as Bro. Moore mentions; yet this ought not so to be. I knew a man (he was in the body) above fourteen years ago, who spent eight years preaching Sundays, and much of the week time, who kept a team to travel with, circulated thousands of tracts bought with the Lord's money, and received less than twenty-eight dollars per year. I know of a number of men now who do not receive one half what it costs to support their families, and they live prudently. They work to get the balance. Thus they improve the way the Lord opens for them. If the Lord's people do not sustain their preachers, the Lord opens the way for the preacher to earn it, and gives the people leanness of soul. But the Lord has some faithful ones who are always ready to do for the gospel minister.

I remember to have traveled several months constantly preaching in new fields, sowing the seed which has since sprung up, and received some five dollars in three months. I went one journey of fifty miles, by request of a good sister; preached seven days; some were converted; several embraced the truth; received $1.25. I next went thirty miles to attend a funeral, and received nothing. I was then strongly tempted to give up preaching. I cried to the Lord to keep me. Was led to start on another tour. Called and took dinner with a brother, who, when I was about to leave, gave me $25. I had not alluded to my temptation nor my poverty. Thus the Lord works and gets the glory. He will lead us through, and give us eternal rest soon. Amen.

The Eclipse of the Soul.—The Moon in an eclipse complained to the Sun:

"Why, O my dearest friend, dost thou not shine upon me as usual?"

"Do I not?" said the Sun; "I am sure I am shining as I always do; why do you not enjoy my light as usual?"

"O! I see," said the moon, "the earth has got between us."

"Why, O Savior," says the backsliding christian, "do I not, as in former days, walk in the light of thy countenance?"

"I am sure, troubled soul, I have not changed. The rays of my love are as warm and bright as ever; what can prevent them from reaching thee?"

It is the world, troubled Christian, that has got between thee and Christ.—Ex.

LOVE OR FEAR?

G. H. WALLACE.

"If ye love me, keep my commandments."—John 14: 15.

Not, if you are afraid of that horrid place of torture so generally taught in the past as the cream of the gospel; but "if ye love me, keep my commandments." Love we find to be the great principle which should actuate us in the performance of all christian duties. Men may for fear of punishment abstain from a great many outbreaking sins. In fact, they may go to such an extent as to become externally religious, and yet lack the great vitalizing principle of the gospel of Christ; which is Love.

We think we have seen this principle illustrated in children. As the parents place certain restrictions upon the child in certain things, he feels a disposition to disregard those restrictions, if it were not for fear of punishment. He may lack that reverence and love for his parents which makes self-denial for their sakes a pleasure; and their restrictions, so far from changing this disposition, make duty loathsome. In the same way we find many who profess godliness indulging in many things prohibited by our heavenly Father, feeling all the while partial condemnation, a fearful uncertainty of all being right. Upon close investigation the cause will generally be found to be a lack of love for the author of the restrictions placed upon us, and to such an extent that some do not care to learn his will in regard to certain things. Then we find them holding on to some cherished habit, tradition, or idol, regardless of what Jesus says about it. O for a fresh baptism of the love of God, a love which makes christian duties a pleasure; which enables us to glory in tribulation; which gives the child of God success in self-denial; which will actuate us to search his word daily for his commandments, and having found them will earnestly pray for grace to keep them all!

When the professed church occupies that position, love is without dissimulation. Church strifes and jealousies flee before it, like dew before the sun. It is not hard then to love the brethren. It is not hard to love enemies and pray for them, or practice self-denial. It is not hard then to suffer with Jesus a little, that we may reign with him on the deathless, sorowless shores of eternity. May it be the earnest prayer of every heart that this great principle—love for God and his Word—may be deepened in our hearts, that when he comes we may be found of him in peace, without spot and blameless.

NO CHRISTIAN "SYSTEM."

We are told, in one of the Arabian stories which charmed our childhood, of a fairy tent which a young prince brought, hidden in a walnut-shell, to his father. Placed in the council-chamber, it grew till it encanopied the king and his ministers. Taken into the court-yard, it filled the space till all the household stood beneath its shade. Brought into the midst of the great plain without the city, where all the army was encamped, it spread its mighty awning all abroad, till it gave shelter to a host. It had infinite flexibility, infinite expansiveness.

We are told, in our sacred books, of a religion given to man, which, at its first setting forward, was less than the least of all seeds. It was the true fairy tent for the spirits of men. It grew till it embraced a few Jews of every class; and men thought, "Now it will do no more; it can never suit the practical sense of the Roman, nor shelter beneath its sway the subtile intellect of the Greek. To do one is improbable, to do both is impossible." Curious to say, it did both. It made the Roman more practical; it made the Greek intellect alive again. When Rome fell, and during her long decay, some may have said: "This boasted religion may suit civilization, but it can never adapt itself to barbarism." But it expanded in new directions to embrace the transalpine nations, and took new forms to suit them with an unequaled flexibility. Soon it covered Europe with its shadow, and in a continent where types of race are oddly and vitally varied, it found acceptance with all. It has gone abroad since then, and reached out its arms to the Oriental, the African, the American tribes, and the islands of the seas. And however small may have been its success at present, there is one thing in which it differs from every other religion—it has been found capable of being assimilated by all, from the wild negro of the west coast, to the educated gentleman of India. I speak of the teaching of Christ, not of unyielding christian systems; and nothing is more remarkable in that teaching than the way in which it throws off, like a serpent, one after another, the sloughs of system, and spreads undivided in the world, and operates unspent, by its own divine vitality.

Now it is this extraordinary power of easy expansion, this power of adapting itself to the most diverse forms of thought, which is one strong proof of the eternal fitness of Christianity for mankind.

It has these powers, first, because of its want of system.

Christ gave ideas, but not their forms. We have one connected discourse of his, and there is not a vestige of systematic theology in it. Nay, more, many of the statements are so incapable of being grasped by the intellect acting alone, and so ambiguous and paradoxical to the pure reason, that they seem to have been spoken for the despair of systematizers.

What is one to do with a sentence like this: "Blessed are the pure in heart, fot they shall see God"? We cannot make a dogma out of it; we cannot get it into a system; it breaks down under logical analysis. "What is it to be pure in heart?" asks some defining person; "does it refer to general cleanliness from all sin, or freedom from the special sin of unchaste thought? What is it to see God? That question is insoluble, unknowable."

We cannot call a teaching systematic which in this way leaves aside the understanding unless first instructed by feeling, which appeals first of all to certain spiritual powers in man which it declares to be the most human powers he possesses. Such phrases have no intellectual outlines; purity of heart has nothing to do with the region of the understanding; God is not an intellectual conception. But if man has distinctly spiritual emotions and desires, words like these thrill him like music. * * * * * * *

Men must form systems, it belongs to our nature to do so. Fifty years did not pass after the death of Christ before christianity was cast into a mould, and intellectual propositions formed around it. But even then St. Paul cast it into one mould, and St. John into one quite different. It was flexible to both, and retained in both these men its root ideas and its spiritual influence, so that its spirit through St. John had power upon the Oriental, and through St. Paul upon the Western world.

A century afterwards the modes of representing Christianity changed, and continued to change from generation to generation in that intellectual time, till there were as many systems of christianity as there were nations in the church. Its flexibility was proved to be almost infinite. And it has continued so up to the present time. It is systematized in three or four forms in England at this moment, and they may all have perished in a century; but the spirit of Christ's teaching will have remained, expanding to suit the new thoughts of men, and the progress of the whole nation. Therefore, it is contained in the idea of Christianity that its outward form should be not only subject to continual change, but should even be different at one and the same time in different nations.

Hence, the fighting and opposition of sect to sect which has been objected to christianity is one of those things which flow from its very nature. If its Founder left it unsystematized, it was sure to be systematized in different ways, and these differences would produce contention. Contention is an evil, but it is a less evil than the spiritual stagnation which would have followed upon a hard and fast system.—Rev. Stopford A. Brooke.

ADVENT PUBLICATIONS.

A. BOYNTON.

"But to do good, and to communicate, forget not; for with such sacrifices God is well pleased." Heb. 13: 16. "Gather up the fragments that remain, that nothing be lost." John 6: 12.

We wish to call attention to one particular which is not perhaps considered (being a little thing) of as much importance as the subject demands,—the use we make of our tracts and papers. Is it not a fact that very many of them are used as waste paper about the house and shop, when there are thousands in our land who would be glad to receive and be benefited by reading them? We may need some waste paper, but would it not be better to buy it by the pound for a few cents, than to use valuable reading matter? Some papers as a whole may be objectionable; use the scissors on such; select, and lay aside choice pieces to be used as occasion may offer, to send to friends in letters, etc. True, it may cost some sacrifice, some painstaking and time for this matter; some money for postage, etc., but remember how much has been done for you; how much reading and hearing to bring you to "the faith." Publications properly directed and left at the office of delivery will be generally delivered gratuitously, and to send them by mail the cost is only a trifle (eight cents per lb).

Brethren and sisters shut up to home duties can do much in this silent yet effectual way to spread the truth and save men. Get half an ounce of gum-arabic (five cents), a large-mouthed three-ounce vial, a small brush, insert it in the cork; fill the vial with soft water to dissolve the gum; some waste paper your postmaster will give you, and you are furnished for sowing the good seed of the kingdom broadcast. Pattern after the world in this direction, and you will do well,—they scatter their trash everywhere.

In many places there are loud calls for preachers. I tell you, brethren, we can fill the land and world with preachers,—send them into every school district, and into every hamlet; preachers, too, that will give the trumpet its "certain sound." Shall we not, one and all, engage more earnestly in this work? A little denial of self will furnish the means, and prayer and meditation will direct the effort, that a remnant may be gathered in while yet the door is open and mercy lingers. Read over our text, and if you think the subject appropriate, "go thou and do likewise."

I would no more dare to hoard up precious truth, or be prodigal in its use, while multitudes are famishing for the same, than I would dare to heap up gold and silver, and should expect a like denunciation.

WHAT IS NEEDED.

Not eloquence in the pulpit nor wealth in the pews, but the reviving influence of the Holy Spirit. Spurgeon says:—"The Holy Spirit is able to make the word as successful now as in the days of the apostles. He can bring in by hundreds and thousands as easily as by ones and twos. The reason why we are not more prosperous is, that we have not the Holy Spirit with us in might and power as in early times. If we had the Spirit sealing our ministry with power, it would signify very little about our talent. Men might be poor and uneducated; their words might be broken and ungrammatical; there might be none of the polished periods of Hall or glorious thunders of Chalmers; but if the might of the Spirit attended them, the humblest evangelist would be more successful than the most eloquent of preachers. It is extraordinary grace, not talent, that wins the day. It is extraordinary spiritual power that we need. Mental power fills a chapel; but spiritual power fills the church. Oh! we know some before whom we shrink into nothing as to talent, but who have no spiritual power, and when they speak they have not the Holy Spirit with them; but we know others—simple-hearted, worldly men—who speak their country dialect, and who stand up to preach in their country place, and the Spirit of God clothes every word with power. Hearts are broken, souls are saved, and sinners are born again. O, Spirit of the living God, we want thee! Thou art the life, the soul, the source of thy people's success. Without thee they can do nothing; with thee they can do everything.—Ex.

NEVADA, CAL.

We arrived in Nevada, Cal., Thursday evening, April 11th, just one year from the time we first entered the city. We bid adieu to dear friends at Sacramento at 1 P. M., arrived at Colfax at 5.25, where we were met by Bro. C. L. Percival, who took us to Nevada, a distance of sixteen miles, where we found a good home at Bro. Thomas Shurtleff's, the son-in-law of Bro. Percival. As we left Sacremento, with its beautiful fields of flowers in rich profusion; its white, yellow and scarlet roses, climbing about pleasant homes, presenting a most charming sight, in connection with other handsome flowers, we looked in the distance and saw the snow-capped Sierras, and wondered at the contrast. Here it looks like the middle of June in New England; yonder, on the mountains, like mid-winter. In a few hours we can pass from one to the other.

On our way to Colfax, we passed several pleasant mining villages, and fields of the early mining, where they obtained gold by hand-washing, which is not done much now, except by some Chinamen, who are washing over old grounds. One is astonished at the vast amount of earth that has been moved in search for gold. Now the mining is carried on mostly by wealthy companies, who use heavy machinery for washing away banks, or in digging the golden ore from deep quartz mines. Nevada is in the heart of the mining interests. This has been a very favorable year for the Placer mining, because of the abundance of rain to supply the needed water. Four miles from Nevada is Grass Vallley, another mining town containing also about six thousand inhabitants. Nevada is very hilly, and rather wild in its appearance, but Grass Valley is much less so. Peaches, pears, strawberries, grapes, and other fruits, are abundant, and of fine quality. Homes are cheap. This would be a good field for a faithful minister. The climate is healthy and agreeable. The land was originally covered with very heavy pines. The water is good. They have but little snow—not enough for sleighing. The summers are dry, when vegetation suffers for lack of rain. This is true of the whole State. The road to Nevada from Colfax is the most crooked we ever traveled. We go almost double the distance we should if the road was straight. We have to take a zig-zag way to get around the hills, and from one valley to another. Those who love wild scenery would feel quite gratified in this section. Through Nevada runs Deer Creek, across which is a suspension bridge, three hundred and twenty feet long, and sixty feet above the river.

Our meetings were in the theatre, which holds more than either of the churches. The religious standard appeared to be low, and the mass of the people seem to care but little about religious matters. Places of amusement were well patronized, while prayer-meetings, and the Sabbath congregations were generally small. Satan holds the chief sway, and needed to make but little effort to keep the control. We soon commenced an attack on his pet doctrine, the immortality of the soul. This, of course, aroused the powers of darkness, and an earnest conflict commenced. We also exposed Spiritualism, which has taken deep root in this place, as well as in nearly all parts of the State. It is invading all countries, and gathering into its folds all who are opposed to Christ, and the pure christian religion. It affords an asylum for all backsliders, and all classes of wicked men and women, and offers to unite with all the religions of the world, on the common dogma of the immortality of the soul, making a belief in that doctrine the only test of fellowship. We are very glad to be left outside.

At the close of each discourse, we allowed any one to ask questions, and the opportunity was well improved, which only served to make the truth shine more brightly. It is amusing to see the confidence with which some attack the foundations of our faith, expecting to remove them with but very little effort; when, to their surprise, they find insurmountable difficulties, which increase as they advance, till at length they are obliged to fall back in confusion, astonished at their ignorance in relation to the subject. When the evidences that sustain our hope are presented, they are surprised to learn that such passages are in the Bible. Their attention had never been called to them before. They wonder why preachers have not presented them to their congregations, and thus shown the harmony of the Scriptures. Oftentimes they go to the minister, and ask him for his opinion, when they are usually informed that it is not best to pry into these things, for "great is the mystery of godliness." The minister is also careful to caution them against going to hear those who preach that man has no immortal soul, calling such "heretics," "fanatics," "infidels," "quack preachers," etc.; telling them there is enough that is plain, without prying into hidden things; and yet, when asked for one passage of Scripture that teaches the immortality of the soul, they say "it is taken for granted," and hence no revelation was needed to teach the doctrine.

A deep interest was awakened on this subject in Nevada. Dense fog was removed from many minds, giving place to the clear light from the Sacred Scriptures. Men who had lost all interest in the study of the Bible, and religious meetings, are now among the most attentive persons in the audience. In this class are some of the first men and best thinkers in the city. They see a tangibility to the reasons of our hope that they have seen in favor of no other one. Their common sense is addressed, and their best judgment, so that they could not get away from the conclusions to which we come, without doing violence to reason and facts. They are rejoiced to find this the true state of the case. They had supposed the doctrine of the Bible was not in harmony with science and reason; but they find they were mistaken, and that their former theological views were opposed to the plain teaching of the Bible, and all other reliable sources of information.

We found Bro. Wirth, the Baptist minister, to be a candid man, willing to hear, investigate, and think for himself. He is searching to see if these things are true and Scriptural. He manifests an excellent spirit, and we think he will see the whole truth. Some of the members of his church and congregation are settled in the belief that man is mortal, that the wicked will be destroyed, that the new earth will be the saints' future home, and that the coming of Christ is near at hand. The reasons for believing these things are so strong and abundant, that people have only to give them a careful investigation to become convinced.

Let every one praise the Lord that the light is spreading in all directions among christian people, showing them that the Lord is soon coming, as well as the other great truths just named. We shall not be shunned by christian men and women in the various churches much longer, as we have been in time past, for believing in the sleep of the dead, the destruction of the wicked, and the coming of Christ. Devoted members in all churches are opening their hearts to receive these truths, and are giving noble help in spreading them far and near. Those who try to stop them, will find themselves departing from the road of blessings. Their opposition will do the most harm to the opposer. It is true they may turn some back, and lead them astray, but will only give strength to the faithful, true lover of Jesus; while the bitter opposer of these great truths named will find his pathway growing darker instead of brighter. We have watched this closely for over twenty-five years, and have seen so many such results, that we feel certain that in proportion to the bitterness of the opposition does the opposer lose ground in divine life, till he is left in barrenness. The fact is, God is with us in proclaiming these important truths, that have been so long obscured by human traditions and fables. Of this fact we are certain. We dare not say less, if we would speak the truth on this subject. There are no "ifs" in our mind. We have no doubts about the matter. It is settled—settled for ever. The evidence is continually brightening. Our fears are all gone. Jesus is with us in power, to assist by the Holy Spirit in declaring these all-important truths. Dear Brn., let us not falter in the least; but with these truths, present holiness of heart as essential to salvation. Preach it, and live it every day. Christ is coming soon.

WORTH KNOWING.

During our late visit to California, earnest and continued efforts were made to destroy our influence, and keep the people away from the meetings. While some have been thus kept from coming, others have been more anxious to hear. There is a principle in human nature which leads one to desire to go in where the sign is up—"NO ADMITTANCE." There are many men in California who do their own thinking, and who do not always follow the advice of the minister, or what they find in the religious papers. Among them are noble-hearted ones, who have lost their confidence in much that is covered with a religious cloak; and are sighing for a higher-toned christianity than much that is seen at the present day. The following information published in the San Francisco Baptist Evangel may be worth knowing:—

BE NOT DECEIVED.

Dear Evangel:—Once again Elder Miles Grant is in our State; this time operating in Sacramento, but in the same role, and with indications of very much the same results as characterized his work in San Francisco. He claims to be an Adventist, and is generally thus accepted to the popular antipathy of christians against Second Adventism. Many a bitter fling have I heard, with unfeigned sorrow, directed against 'Adventists' by brethren, both in the pulpit and out of it, which I was persuaded grew out of the heresy of Grant, with that of the sect denounced.

For the correct information of all your readers I wish to state exactly what the faith of Evangelical Adventism of to-day is. You will see that Rev. M. Grant, may with as much consistency call himself a Baptist because he immerses his converts—or that the Mormons may likewise be Baptists, and that our Baptist denomination may be reproached with all the heresies of both these errorists, as may the Adventists be stigmatized with or on account of the eccentricities of this independent wandering comet. What Miles Grant believes, you in San Francisco know too well already. I only wish the Evangel would by some San Francisco pen inform its interior readers of these facts. What Evangelical Adventism really is I will give you, in the language of their own organ, the Advent Herald, of Boston, Mass., published by the American Millennial Association:—

"As a herald of the Coming One this paper is specially devoted to the advocacy of the speedy, personal, pre-millennial advent of our Lord Jesus Christ, the glorification of the church at that epoch, the dissolution of the heavens and earth by fire, their renewal as the everlasting inheritance of the redeemed, and the establishment of the kingdom of God; and while rejecting—as it has from the commencement of its existence—the doctrine of the unconscious state of the dead and extinction of the being of the wicked, it will aim to present the truth pertaining to the cross and crown of Christ in such a way, as to make one of the best family papers, and lead its readers onward in the life of God, that they may escape the doom of the lost, and be "a people prepared for the Lord."

If I mistake not, such Adventism will include a large number of our best and truest brethren of the Baptist faith and churches, and is utterly and forever antagonistic to the heresy of M. Grant, above alluded to.

Fraternally yours for and in the Baptist faith, J. P. LUDLOW.

THE CHINESE.

The Chinese are a peculiar people. As servants, they are faithful in their work, but are said to be not very trusty. They are quick to learn, neat in their persons, and respectful in their demeanor to their employers. They work cheaper than others, and yet lay up more, because they live on a plain diet, of which rice forms a prominent part. The laboring classes of other nations are quite unfriendly towards them, and frequently abuse them. The Chinese do not appear to be a quarrelsome people, yet they have fightings among themselves. They are very plenty in California, especially in San Francisco, which is their headquarters. There are two sects, or parties, which are quite bitter towards each other; and whenever there is opportunity, the members of either party consider it right to kill any one belonging to the other company. We do not know the origin of this bitter feeling, but learn it is of long standing.

The Chinese are idolaters, and very superstitious. They adhere to their religion with great firmness. It is very rare that one is converted to Christianity. Considerable effort has been made for their conversion; but if the same labor was bestowed upon other people, much better results might be obtained. Their religion is of the devil, taught by demons, and allows them to gratify all their natural passions and appetites as they please, just as does Spiritualism, which is from the same source.

The Chinamen are scattered all about California. Some of them are said to be wealthy. They do not trade with Americans if they can avoid it. They have their own stores, markets, and groceries, which furnish their supplies of provision and clothing. Their garments are made mostly of cheap material, and without the foolish trimmings that abound so lavishly upon the dresses of Americans. They are gradually conforming to the fashions of this country. Their coats are shaped quite like a loose shirt. They are mostly without any collar, excepting a narrow binding for the neck. Their sleeves are large and long. They wear white stockings, and shoes with wooden soles about three-fourths of an inch thick. The shoes for the women are very small, so that the heel of the foot projects some distance out of the shoe. They are about as awkward for walking as skates. They wear no bonnets when they go out, but have their hair done up with much care, and considerable taste. The women are idle, and seem to be but little noticed by the men. They appear to be treated as worthless characters, which is a very correct estimate as to their true merit. The less there are of them, the better for society.

"THE WORLD MOVES."—The secular papers are giving notes of warning in relation to the signs of the times, while many watchmen are asleep, and giving no alarm to the careless and lukewarm professors. The following is from the New York Herald:—

"If the heavens have not departed as a scroll, and the mountains been moved from their places, it has to be admitted that the kings of the earth, and the great men, and the rich men, and the chief captains, and the mighty men, have been made to tremble. The papacy, the most ancient of all existing European monarchies, the power which more than any other has given shape and character to our Christian civilization, is now the dependant of Italy. . . . It is not to be denied that the fall of the temporal power of the papacy is one of the greatest historical events in many centuries. That the Holy Father is comfortably provided for we are satisfied; that as the spiritual chief of a large religious body he will continue to be useful, we must admit; but the thunders of the Vatican will never again terrify the nations. Like the divine right of kings, the lofty pretensions of the papacy must be abandoned forever."

FEMALE SUFFRAGE.—Mrs. Frost gave a lecture in Sacramento, by request of the members of the Legislature, on the subject of female suffrage. She argued that female suffrage tended to degrade women and demoralize society generally, while no possible benefit could be derived from it. The fact that the tendency of the female suffrage movement is to annihilate the Bible and the marriage contract, is, in the estimation of the lecturess, sufficient to condemn it.

We believe the law of universal suffrage will prevail, whether right or wrong. A tremendous revolution is at hand, and no human power can stay its progress.

THE RAINBOW, edited by Dr. Wm. Leask, 34 Sandringham Road, Kingsland, London, Eng., is filled with able articles, from men of strong minds. In the March number, we find the following: "For many ages only a half-gospel has been preached, even by those who professed earnest regard to the evangelic and puritanic element; and when we remember that even this half-gospel—'the sufferings of Christ' without his return in glory to subdue and rule the world—was obscured by the preposterous belief that man by nature is immortal, and terribly burdened by the infamous falsehood of eternal torment to the unsaved, it is absolutely astonishing to think that it has had so many adherents."

BISHOP HORSELY, a well-known Hebrew scholar, says no one "who compares the two passages (viz., Gen. 2: 7, and Eccl. 12: 7) can doubt that 'the breath of life' which 'God breathes into the nostrils of man' in the book of Genesis, is the very same thing with the 'spirit which God gave' in the book of Ecclesiastes."

THE BELOVED CITY.—Is the beloved city, spoken of in Rev. 20: 9, and the holy city spoken of in Rev. 21: 2, one and the same?
S. WHITNEY.

We so understand the subject.

THE BOASTING GOLIATH.—In the "Religio-Philosophical Journal," a Chicago Spiritualist paper, we find the following from E. V. Wilson—"Resolved, That the New Testament sustains modern Spiritualism. What Christian minister will take it up? He must be a man of good moral character, and in charge of a congregation."

As he requires that his opponent "must be . . . . . in charge of a congregation," we are shut out from meeting this Goliath. We arranged to discuss with him in Chicago, and went at the appointed time, but he did not appear.

He is denominated the "Sledge Hammer of the West." Is there not a David somewhere, who will take a few stones of truth, and go out and meet this Goliath, in the name of the God of heaven?

HEATHENISM RETURNING.—In Spiritualism we have the return of heathenism, as to religion. Mr. E. V. Wilson, a noted Spiritualist lecturer, when speaking of the death of A. B. Whitney, says—"To-day he is with the gods, meet companion for the great souls of the spirit-world." So the heathen teach.

"I SHALL GO TO HIM."

BRO. GRANT:—Please explain 2 Sam. 12: 23.—H. M.

The passage reads as follows—"But now he is dead, wherefore should I fast? Can I bring him back again? I shall go to him, but he shall not return to me." This is a saying of David at the death of his child. Before his death David had fasted and prayed, and refused to be comforted, hoping the Lord would spare the life of his child; but when he knew he was dead, he said, "I shall go to him, but he shall not return to me." David could not have been a Spiritualist, and speak as he did. But there are some who think they find proof that the child was still alive, because David said he should "go to him." We think this is a very strange conclusion. First, it is said of the child, "Now he is dead." If it was said the child had gone to heaven, or was alive in some other place, then there might be reason to think David is still alive; because he said he was going to the child; but as the child was "dead," it follows that when David went to him he went there dead, like the child. The record of David's death, and what was said of him after death, makes the matter very plain.

In 1 Kings 2, we read of the death of David. In view of his approaching death, he said—"I go the way of all the earth." Verse 2. "So David slept with his fathers, and was buried in the city of David." Verse 10. Where was David then? With his dead son. There he will remain till he is raised from the dead. Before his death, when looking forward to the future life, he said—"I shall be satisfied when I awake with thy likeness." Says Peter—"David is not ascended into the heavens." Acts 2: 34. Then where is he? Let Peter answer—"Men and brethren, let me freely speak unto you of the patriarch David, that he is both dead and buried, and his sepulchre is with us unto this day." Acts 2: 29. Says Paul—"David, after he had served his own generation by the will of God, fell on sleep, and was laid unto his fathers, and saw corruption." Acts 13: 36.

Now it is plain that the child of David did not go to heaven at death; for if he did, David did not go to him, because "David is not ascended into the heavens." David did go to the child, therefore neither of them went to heaven. David's child died, and was buried; David died and was buried in the same family burying ground; therefore his statement that he should go to the child, "but he shall not return to me," was in harmony with all the facts connected with their death and burial. We do not see how anything could be further removed from the idea that David and his child never died. It would be just as reasonable to say they never lived.

LET US KNOW.

So have many of my friends, brethren and sisters said to me as we have clasped the hand in farewell, and to redeem my word, I now write. Many of you know that for some time I have thought of coming West to labor, where, as my brother Nat—pray that he may be converted—says, "they bore with a big auger," and where there is not so much danger of conflicting appointments as East.

Well, I took a seat in the cars at North Stratford, Saturday evening, April 7th, and arrived in Montreal C. E., Sunday morning, and at once made my way to the hall, No. 6 Bleury Street, where the Advent wing of the Lord's host in this city, worship, if indeed He has a host here: found them breaking—no administering, for I did not notice that the brother broke bread, and so commemorating the sufferings of our Savior. A good, sweet spirit was manifested, but the query arose in my mind, as the thought was advanced, that it should be a weekly observance, why was it not equally and certainly as scripturally urged that bread should be broken. There is no need of hunting for a hobby in this thing, but let us take the Scriptures as far as we can, both generally and specifically.

By request I spoke to the people in the evening; had a good hearing; found the church awake on the signs of the times, and "looking for that blessed hope;" may the Lord bless them. Monday morning, off for Adrian, Mich, where I arrived Tuesday night. (Advice—Never buy your tickets over the Grand Trunk R. R., if you can possibly avoid it. I give this advice; the Company does not pay me for it; rough roads, and snobbishness are not so pleasantly endured, where there is a better way; I have traveled enough to know something about the rights of travelers, and hence I speak.) Found my uncle in Adrian, whom I do not remember to have ever seen before; he is a Spiritist of the most radical stamp; believes in eternal progression, mediumistic powwows, and uncertainty, and disbelieves in the Word of God, Son of God, and kingdom of God; gave him some few thumps, but remembered something about "braying in a mortar," and concluded to keep peace by quietness. He is a machinist, well-to-do in the world, and withal I had a very pleasant visit at his house. From there to Chicago, to the Office of the W. A. C. P. Association, No. 11 South Canal St., right in the heart of the city, easy of access; and remember, dear friends, all express trains stop here, so in passing through you have an opportunity of calling.

At night went out to Norwood Park, six miles from the city limits. This is where the work of publishing and the real muscle and brain work of the body of Adventists in the West, is kept up by help from this house, under the Lord's hand, by the diffusion of light and counsel, by tracts, papers, books, and letters; here is where the Times is printed, having just removed from Buchanan, Mich., nearer to the metropolis of the West, giving greater facilities than heretofore enjoyed.

In Chicago found Bro. Burr, with a faithful band of waiting ones around him. He is a noble man, scorning anything inconsistent with the highest idea of right, refusing to cater to petty jealousies, and living and looking for the Lord from heaven.

From Chicago to Oneida, Ill., where I am at present. Pray for me. L. F. COLE.

CHRIST IS COMING.

How this assurance thrills the hearts of the earnest lovers of Jesus! Our dearest Friend, and greatest Benefactor, is coming from the skies to drive death from the land, and dry up the tears of his weeping followers, obliterate sin, and fill the earth with eternal joy. For this event the dear saints have waited, longed, and prayed; and yet their expectations have not yet been realized. Some have grown weary of watching, and have allowed the spirit of slumber to dim their vision. Yet he is coming "to be admired in his saints." For a long time his friends have been saying—"He is coming soon." But that word "soon" is becoming too indefinite, too elastic, to suit some of the warm-hearted friends of Jesus, who, like the early disciples, are intensely anxious for an affirmative answer to the question—"Lord, wilt thou at this time restore again the kingdom to Israel?" And who shall rebuke this feeling of insatiable desire for redemption? And though past experience has taught us that there is a liability of substituting dogmatism for evidence, we should not allow this fact to depreciate the true merits of the arguments adduced.

It is well to allow caution to induce us to analyze any theory before adopting it; but that species of caution that leads its possessor to discard whatever he fears may not be correct, or hopes may prove untrue, before a candid investigation, is a spurious article. Some "love the appearing of Christ," who seem to love it the best at the greatest distance off. This is not the love that prompted John to pray that Jesus might "come quickly." When we pause to consider what Jesus is to do for us at his coming—receive us unto himself—our love for his coming should be augmented, and become so intense that we shall not be content to know that he will come sometime, or that his coming is approximately near, but emphatically impending.

Past inaccuracies in computation should not deter us from a candid and thorough search for the whole truth upon this point. While we are careful, and ought to be careful about receiving every speculative idea about the matter that may be suggested by sincere but mistaken friends, we should not be so careful as to reject light when it shines. Some are looking with deep interest to A. D. '73, '75, or '80, for Jesus to come; nor are some of these points void of weighty considerations in their favor, as points of probability, to say the least.
W. S.

THE CHRIST OF GOD.

The term "Christ" signifies anointed. Christ is God's Anointed One, and destined hereafter to be King. "The kings of the earth stood up, and the rulers were gathered together against the Lord, and against his Christ. For of a truth against thy holy child Jesus, whom thou hast anointed, both Herod, and Pontius Pilate, with the Gentiles, and the people of Israel were gathered together." Acts 4: 26, 27. Reference is here made to a statement found in the second Psalm, where the information is given that this kingly aversion to the Lord's anointed shall be succeeded by his reign on Zion's hill—"The kings of the earth set themselves, and the rulers take counsel together, against the Lord, and against his Anointed, saying, Let us break their bands asunder, and cast away their cords from us. He that sitteth in the heavens shall laugh: the Lord shall have them in derision. Then he shall speak unto them in his wrath, and vex them in his sore displeasure. Yet have I set my King upon my holy hill of Zion." Ps. 2: 2–6.

We here learn the following facts:—

1. The person called "his Christ" by Peter, is called "his Anointed" by David; showing that Christ signifies Anointed.

2. The office to which this anointing entitles him, is indicated in these words—"Yet have I set my King upon my holy hill of Zion;" from which we learn that he is anointed to be King, just as David was, a long time before he was crowned. Samuel was sent to the house of Jesse to anoint one of his sons king over Israel. One by one they passed before Samuel, being successively rejected. Finally a little lad who was watching the sheep in the field, called David, was sent for, and Samuel anointed him king over Israel; but a long stretch of years rolled away before he was crowned, or began his reign. So, though Jesus is now the Anointed, he has not yet been crowned, but is still "mediator;" but being the Lord's Anointed, he is as sure to reign at last, as David was; but not till the seventh trumpet shall sound—"And the seventh angel sounded; and there were great voices in heaven, saying, The kingdoms of this world are become the kingdoms of our Lord, and of his Christ [his Anointed]; and he shall reign forever and ever." Rev. 11: 15.

He is the anointed One now, but his reign is to begin when the seventh trumpet sounds, or at the coming of Christ, agreeing with Jesus' own statement—"When the Son of man shall come in his glory, and all the holy angels with him, then shall he sit upon the throne of his glory." Matt. 25: 31. "Jesus Christ" signifies Jesus, the Anointed—the one anointed to be King hereafter. W. S.

"FEED THE FLOCK OF GOD."

A flock cannot live unless they are fed on some kind of food; and cannot thrive unless they are fed on the kind of food that will nourish them. If we begin to feed them on the milk of tradition, merely colored with the "milk of the word," they will pine away; and if a part of them make out to live, it will be a weakly flock. If we feed them on animal excitement, when that is succeeded by trials, they are left without nourishment, and lack a relish for the healthful food of the gospel when offered them. It is just as possible for members of the great Shepherd's flock to acquire a relish for the milk of tradition, as for men to form the habit of using tobacco; and sometimes it is about as hard for them to dismiss the ruinous practice. As we are chosen to salvation "through sanctification of the spirit and belief of the truth," we should use the unadulterated "milk of the word," which will cause the weak ones to "grow" till they can use "strong meat" (food). This catering to the taste of traditionized theologians, or smothering the truth of heaven to suit the relish of fable-lovers, does not meet the approbation of the God of truth.

While we should refrain from exercising the combative spirit, we should always deal out the truth of heaven, to animate those who already believe it, and to enlighten others. But in presenting the truth, we must not make one feature of truth monopolize, or suppress all others.

Practical truth, and prophetical truth, as well as doctrinal truth, should be fed to the "flock of God." And those who cannot relish searching practical themes, need to have the sanctifying fire of consecration kindled in their hearts; while those who cannot relish the pure "doctrine of God," need to have their understandings enlightened. It is not God's will that we should be ignorant concerning his glorious plan. He has revealed to us his system of truth to feast our hungry souls. And he who fully grasps the plan of Jehovah, and who not only understands it, but allows it to take hold of his affections, is drawn toward the kingdom by a strong cord, for "he heareth the word of the kingdom, and understandeth it" and relishes it. And when the sanctifying sunlight of divine love shines into his heart, earth loses its charms, and he sighs—"Thy kingdom come." Talk to him about the kingdom, and it feeds him. Talk to him about holiness as a qualification to enter it, and he relishes the theme. Talk to him about its immediate establishment, and it gladdens his heart. Such truths "feed the flock of God." W. S.

INTERROGATIONS AND REPLIES.

"DEAR BROTHER:—(1) Please answer this question—Did not Christ exist before he came into this world? as some preach that he did not. Mark: he prays the Father—'Glorify thou me with thine own self, with the glory that I had with thee before the world was.' John 17: 5. Not with the glory which thou hadst with me; but 'the glory which I had with thee.'

(2) Again—'All things were made by him, and without him was not anything made that was made.'

(3) 'And God said, Let us make man in our own image after our likeness.' 'In the mouth of two or three witnesses let every word be established.' How do we know that it was only in purpose? May God give us wisdom and direct us into all truth.
JOSIAH WILLOUGHBY."

1. We agree with our brother that Christ, in his divinity, existed before the birth of his humanity. Nor do we believe, as some argue, that he existed merely in the sense that Levi existed in "the loins of his father Abraham"—an unorganized nonentity—for that would make Christ pray for a return to nonentity. If the glory which he "had" was only prospective, that prospect was still before him. If it was real, but before emanating from the Father, then Christ is made to pray that he might cease to be a personality, and be merged in the Father. "I had." The "I" of the present was the "I" of the past, having "took upon him the seed of Abraham."

2. All things were make by Christ in the same sense in which God will judge the world by Christ.

3. "Let us made man." As it is often affirmed that Christ took a part in the work of creation, and nowhere said that the angels helped, the term "us" must refer to God and his Son; and the term "us" cannot signify a personality and a principle; but if one is a personality, so with the other as really. Nor is it true that the term "us" here indicates but one, for it was afterward said—"The man is become as one of us to know." Gen. 3: 22. So "us" indicates a plurality of persons that possessed knowledge. W. S.

"CHRONOLOGICAL."—In my article of last week, second column, fourth paragraph, read—Now the forty years of the sixteenth jubilee added to this interregnum of eleven years, and the fifty-two years of the reign of Azariah, make, etc. On second page, first column, first paragraph, for "Christ's age—thirty-one," read thirty. For "five hundred and forty-seven," read five hundred and forty-eight, etc.

The mistake corrected at the end of the article, happened from the number 2604 having been miswritten 4604. WM. HOBBS.

"THE COMING REIGN OF TERROR; OR, THE COMMUNE." By W. N. Pile. I have just read a tract with the above title, and here pronounce it a work of much importance for this present time. I wish it might be circulated extensively among the working classes who claim to believe the Bible. It would put some on guard against uniting with societies and associations which are preparing for universal slaughter, or "the battle of the great day of God Almighty."

ELDER GRANT.—Editor Transcript:—The meetings at the Theatre are deeply interesting, and there is a very good interest manifested, notwithstanding the unfavorable weather. The Elder not only presents the great subject of life and salvation through Jesus Christ with a simplicity, clearness, and earnestness most refreshing, but he attacks with a giant hand the grand, pet theory of almost universal Christendom—the immortality of the soul; showing it to be not only a great mistake, but the fruitful source and cause of nearly every real evil in religious and spiritual things in the world. The Elder is either in the right or in the wrong. If he is wrong, then every man who teaches in religious things ought to be there, and use their best efforts to disprove his teachings and save the people from the effects of his erroneous doctrines. But if he is correct, then most certainly they ought to come, hear and investigate, not only for their own good, but also for the good of those who look to them for religious instruction. Any one may ask questions with perfect freedom. "Prove all things, hold fast that which is good."—A LISTENER.—Transcript, Nevada City, Cal.

THE TRACT FUND.

The Advent Christian Publication Society, at a meeting on Springfield Camp-ground, August 23d, 1871, voted to raise Two Thousand Dollars for the free distribution of Tracts the ensuing year; and they invite the help and co-operation of all lovers of the Lord and of his truth, in the furtherance of the good cause. The times are ominous of coming events, and admonish us to diligence in the Master's work. The Lord is at the door, and what we do must be done quickly. Let the contributions be prompt, hearty, and liberal. The Lord will reward the liberal giver.

Correspondence.

From Sr. C. Tuller.

BRN. AND SRS.:—Again I communicate to you the reception of your noble gifts, and also give a report of what they have helped to accomplish, since in early fall. I think it is not egotism to say, that a systematic, well-organized school, numbering in all, both night and day scholars, over fifty, has been sustained twenty-one weeks. The teacher, and, since Christmas, son and orphan girl, have been fed. The debt on the house of one hundred dollars has been paid, the house repaired and made more comfortable, and a cook-stove obtained. The old man and children have been made much more comfortable. Two ragged boys have each a strong new suit. The old man who needed a cabin has been sick almost all winter, and could do nothing towards building; but a good Providence ordered the place to fall to a man who will let him stay till he can build. He is better now, and came to see me the other day. The man who killed his horse gave him almost enough to get another, and he asked me to let him take two dollars and fifty cents to make the balance. I gave it, and he held it up in his fingers and said, "Missus, I tell you true, I have worked hard all my days, and I nebber had this much gived me before; and if I had been well I would not need it now. Now I am old and feeble, and can do but little, but the good Master has helped me." I told him the money had been sent especially for a house, and it must be sacredly kept for that purpose; and what shall I tell those kind friends? "Tell them I thank them a thousand, thousand times, and just as soon as my crop is laid by, if the Master gives me health, I shall go at it." I have now enough to help him to a good cabin, and it is laid safe till he is ready. Have spoken for the lumber, and you have no idea of their pleasure in prospect of a home of their own. In addition to this, I have helped another worthy family to a cosy home, which they can occupy two years free of rent, besides a little here and there.

Now, friends, if any good has been done, it belongs to you mostly, and the Lord that moved your hearts will reward. I love this work, but could not sustain myself. I inherited a few hundred dollars from husband and father, for which I am under legal bonds and promise to keep intact. I thought to have my home here would give more facilities for teaching and other work, so invested it in an old slave place. It gives homes, large gardens and pasture, to two families free of rent. What I get from the land they crop, does not clear me enough to pay the tax. But it gives me a healthy resting-place, and many opportunities for usefulness, which I could not have if I went home in the summers, besides the expense of traveling. God has given me so many good friends, and has so wonderfully sustained me in the school now for three winters and last summer, that I have been encouraged to hope that my way was directed. I have had application to go to Elizabethtown at a salary of thirty dollars per month. The colored people there are much better off than here. Here they are scattered and very poor, and could not raise enough to pay a teacher; and I cannot feel it right to leave them yet. I take but a small tuition, but that comes so hard; but I teach all that come. Many people at the North say "those colored people have been free long enough to help themselves to schools and not be so poor"; I wish such could live here awhile; they would alter their minds, if they were unbiassed. The land is worn, but with Yankee skill might be made productive. As it is, the crops are poor, and on these hills yield but a pittance; and wages are so low, and hard to get after earned, that it is impossible to get above their poverty. As I realize the condition of the country, and growing no better, I often say, "Come, Lord Jesus!"

While he tarries, I know it is our high privilege to ameliorate as much as possible their condition, and scatter the knowledge of the gospel of the Son of God. I feel a great pleasure when I can get these children and youth to reading the Testament, which I use as a class book invariably. The last day of school, just as I was dismissing, a young man twenty-six years old handed me a slate, on which was written in a plain hand, and spelled well, the following—

"Mrs. Tuller, I am sorry to have school close. I would not take $10,000 for what I have learned, and if the rest have learned as much as I have, and as they might, your school has been worth $100,000, and may God bless you."

Two years ago this man spent his money for whiskey, and was often drunk on the street. One year ago he came to school seven weeks, and got nicely started. The very effort seemed to give him a new idea of life, and he left off drinking. This winter he has been ten weeks, and such diligence and manly deportment I have never seen excelled, and I must hope he will be a christian ere long. Two of my young men, who were converted last year, give precious promise of useful lives. One has been adopted by home friends, and sent to a training school in this State, the best in the land, founded by ——*. He wrote me—

"If at the end of life's race-course you have done nothing more than to find such a young man and bring him under christian cultivation, you will have cause for eternal rejoicing."

I write these things, friends, to let you know that your money has not been wasted. I could fill many sheets with interesting incidents, but fear the dear old Crisis will tire.

Now I have been resting my eyes four weeks, in my log-house home, back in the country, but cannot feel easy much longer. I want to gather the scattered ones among these hills as I did four months last summer. They are very poor, but want to learn. There is also an interesting young man and wife, whom I want to take into my school and train so as to go out into these by places. He learned to read in the army, and came to the Point the winter before I did, and started the children in spelling, and called my attention to the place. He might have succeeded well, but he loved a pretty octoroon and married her. They went to town, and have just made a living. Last fall he was converted, and now feels that he has something to do for the Lord, and wants to teach, but has not cultivation enough to give him confidence. I have felt that he had work to do for his race, and my mind is much drawn to take him this summer and give him the instruction he needs, and by fall he would be able to go out without fear of incompetency. At the same time he could be useful in Sabbath school work, and his wife could be taught. But I have nothing to feed them with. I have laid the matter before the Lord, and if it is pleasing to him, some of the stewards will be moved to send something for that purpose. I want to do nothing, or take no steps, but what are plainly indicated by the Master.

* Could not make out the name.—ED.

From Bro. I. C. Wellcome.

I am constantly being asked, by letters and by word of mouth, what I think of the 1873 time arrangement; and, "What do you think of Bro. J. S. White's criticisms?" and, "What do you think of Bro. O. R. Fassett's letter of caution on the time question?" I wish to be right in all things, but I may not be. However, I will try to answer a host of these questions in short. I think much more of the 1872 time argument than of 1873. All prophecy and all signs show beyond a doubt in my mind that the end of this dispensation and the advent of Christ are close upon us. I think it more liable to come in this year, than to be further off. It may come this month, this week, this day. It would not surprise me at all. It is duty to be ready, then work and watch. I see no new light on 1873 that I did not see twenty-five years ago. There is a plausible argument for that date to terminate the periods of Dan. But it is by no means certain, and much that is presented in the efforts of brethren to prove it certain causes great mortification of the careful, thinking friends of the cause, and great sport for our enemies. Bro. White has given many valuable thoughts and criticisms, though I do not endorse his day theory. Bro. Fassett has stated many plain, wholesome truths and important advice, which we all do well to heed.

Extracts from Letters.

BRO. C. H. WILLIAMS writes:—"My services with the people in Wolcott are now concluded. My stay in this region has been agreeable in some respects, and I am sorry to leave the true friends of Jesus, but my labors have not been so extensively blessed as when I labored in the capacity of an evangelist. In my weakness and ignorance I have asked God for strength and wisdom, believing that 'all things shall work together for good to them that love the Lord,' and having endeavored to strengthen the things which remain, and win souls to Christ, I am assured that the great judgment day will reveal the fruits. I now return to my former field of labor in northern New York, to resume the work of an evangelist, hoping to enlist new recruits under the royal ensign of Immanuel, and I earnestly solicit the prayers of all who wait for God's dear Son from heaven. May the good Lord hide me behind the cross, and render special aid in preaching Jesus.

The brethren in the northern part of this State, who have so repeatedly and earnestly solicited my services, will please be patient, and Providence permitting I will favor all as soon as circumstances will allow. Hereafter let all communications addressed to me be directed to my present home, West Martinsburg, Lewis Co., N. Y."

BRO. R. E. GORTON writes:—"Through a kind friend, I have received now and then a copy of the Crisis, and among all the Second Advent publications I have been permitted to read the last twenty-five years, the Crisis is the only periodical which so nearly coincides with my view, that I feel free to distribute at random among my friends and acquaintances. Without the Crisis I feel in the dark as to being posted in regard to great events which are transpiring in our world. I study the 'sure word of prophecy' a great deal, and amid privations, sorrow and care, I read—'Behold, I come quickly,' and in response echo the prayer of the great exiled on the Isle of Patmos—'Amen, even so come, Lord Jesus.' I love to spread the glad tidings. I have been telling the same glad news the last twenty years, and now so much the more as I see the day approaching; and often I weary my friends with the oft-repeated tale, and especially ministers of the gospel (?) whom I approach with the subject, and who turn away and drop the conversation, saying, by their actions at least, as of old—'It seems like an idle tale.' Is it possible that professed ministers of Christ have no longing for the return of their Lord, and the bride no desire for the return of her spouse? Does the church intend to follow in the train of their old harlot mother in their preference to reign without Christ? They may say—'I am rich and increased in goods, and have need of nothing'; but God says—'As many as I love, I rebuke and chasten'; and if Gentile churches are not sifted soon, I do not understand the prophetic word. Our gold is not yet purified and fit for the kingdom. It must be purified, and the bride must be spotless before she enters the New Jerusalem, hence the necessity of the 'fiery trial,' the purifying process. 'Judgment must begin at the house of God.' 'Blessed is he that endureth temptation, for when he is tried he shall receive a crown of life.'"

BRO. P. S. W. DEYO writes:—"Since my last I have been to Tama Co., about twenty-five miles south of Waterloo, and preached five days, where Bro. P. S. Converse, from Westford, Conn., lives. I arrived there March 24th, and found that after they sent for me the Methodists had commenced a meeting. The preacher was sick, and they called on me to preach. I spoke from Acts 26: 28. The school-house I was to hold meetings in was in the next district west, a new and pleasant house. Bro. Converse had not been idle, for before I went there he had kept up a prayer meeting, given out tracts, etc. Two desired baptism. We baptized six into the death of Christ. The last day I organized a church of fourteen members. Six more united that evening; also took under the watch care of the church those who pledged for baptism. It was good to see twenty stand up till their names were taken for the purpose. Of this number there were about six who professed and enjoyed religion before I went there. Some were reclaimed from the Baptist, Free-Will Baptist, Methodist, and Presbyterian churches, and all but eight or ten were heads of families. The whole family started in many cases. I organized them into a 'church of Christ.' How I love the principle of union on so broad a basis that all christians can unite under one common head, Jesus Christ. Bro. Enoch Converse and wife were baptized. How good the Lord is to bless his word, and bring so many into his fold in so short a time. Pray for us and the Mission work of Iowa."

BRO. J. HAMILTON writes from Hamburg, Iowa:—"The books I received some time ago are nearly all distributed. They are read with interest. Several have received the truth into good and honest hearts; but as there is no Advent preacher in this vicinity, we cannot tell to what extent these truths have been received. The sects are getting restless and preaching against the doctrine. One 'Disciple' preacher spent a week at this place preaching against soul-sleeping. Thinks he can break it up. Our friends are established in the truth, and seeing the inconsistency of his doctrine, they are the more confirmed in the present truth. We hope and pray that the time will soon come when we can have the assistance of some able defender of the truth. I gave some tracts to a preacher of the 'United Brethren.' I have been informed by a reliable person that he burned them. If he reads Paul's letters to the Thessalonians, I am fearful that he will burn his Bible next. Should any of the Advent preaching brethren come near this place, they are solicited to call and preach. I am satisfied good can be done in south-western Iowa. Hamburg is situated in the south-west corner of the State, at the junction of the Burlington and Mo. Council Bluffs and St Joseph railroads, fifty-five miles south of Council Bluffs. This point and Council Bluff are both about the same distance from Chicago."

BRO. P. E. POWERS writes:—"When we look with an eye of human wisdom at the mistakes in time, which the Advent Christians have made, and the scattering of the flock, and 'many going back and walking no more with them,' it does look as if the mistakes had done harm; but let us look with the eye of faith. God tells us in his holy word that he will cause 'the wrath of man to praise him, and the remainder he will restrain.' Will such a God permit the mistakes of his children to injure his cause? Nay, verily not. Was the teaching of Christ wrong because many went back on account of it, and 'walked no more with them'? Impossible! Hear the words of Jesus—'They were not of us; for if they had been of us, they would doubtless have remained with us.' 'My sheep hear my voice, and they follow me; and a stranger will they not follow.' 'Fear not, little flock, for it is your Father's good pleasure to give you the kingdom.'"

BRO. W. SWEET writes:—"I like the Crisis as an old true and tried friend of mine, to read in times of trial and dark hours of temptation, to help us on to the end. The times are so hard here this year I do not see how I can do much to circulate the Crisis. I hope if we live to see another harvest we shall be able to do more for it. I am preaching to a small church here, and some in other places, and am striving to meet the Lord in peace at his coming."

SPAIN.

THE INSURRECTION.

MADRID, April 26th. The situation in Spain has become very serious. The government has resolved to adopt the most vigorous measures to suppress the insurrection. Nothing is certainly known of the whereabouts of Don Carlos. There is a vast increase in the number of Carlist bands throughout the kingdom. Fifteen thousand persons are now engaged in the insurrection. A royal proclamation has been issued, declaring many places in a state of siege. The government refuses to furnish the press any information relative to its or the Carlist movement. There is a great demand from the provinces; where the Carlists are the most active, for troops to assist in driving out the disturbers. Serrano, with 6000 troops has gone to Navarre. His presence, at the head of this force, has checked the operations of the Carlists in that department. Serrano will be appointed generalissimo of the forces operating against the insurrectionists. Concha will also be given a high command. It is believed that the future of Spain now depends upon the course of the Radicals, and if they co-operate with the partisans of Don Carlos, the revolution will be successful.

LATER—AFFAIRS GROWING WORSE.

The Carlist insurrection is assuming formidable proportions. Since the intelligence of the arrival of Don Carlos across the frontier, many thousands have joined the movement; and the body of Carlists now in the field and ready for active service has been vastly augmented. It is reported that the Carlists have the entire support of the Republicans, who will actively co-operate with them in the insurrectionary struggle. The Spanish army continues loyal to the government, notwithstanding the numerous efforts which have been made by the Republicans to produce disaffection among the troops. Marshal Serrano has been appointed generalissimo by King Amadeus, and invested with supreme control in the military movements during the present troubles. He left this city yesterday for Navarre, where the insurgents are massed in threatening numbers. His Majesty has already appointed Don Jose Concha to an important military command. Great anxiety is felt in this city in consequence of the increasing gravity of the situation. A collision between the government troops and the revolutionists is considered probable at any moment.

April 28. An attack of the insurgents has been reported at Sumbrier. Many were killed, wounded and taken prisoners by the Government troops.

Catalonia has been declared in a state of siege.

A band of Carlists were defeated last week at Porteacch, with a loss of sixteen killed and thirty wounded. The insurgents were dispersed. The number of submissions are increasing.

The Carlists are concentrated in considerable numbers only in Navarre, Guipuzcoa and Biscay. The other provinces are quiet. The insurgents hold no important point, and generally keep to the mountains. No engagement of any account has taken place.

Marshal Serrano has sent to Catalonia to direct operations. He is well acquainted with the country, and will take prompt action for suppressing the rising before the enemy can concentrate. A telegram announces his safe arrival in the disturbed district.

A PROCLAMATION FROM DON CARLOS.

MADRID, April 29. A proclamation signed by Don Carlos is circulating in this city. In it the pretender exclaims: "Thank God I am once more permitted to kiss the sacred soil of my country, and be again among Spaniards." He earnestly appeals to the people to rise in arms, and declares that he will deliver Spain or die in the attempt.

ITALY.

THE ERUPTIONS OF VESUVIUS.

NAPLES, April 26. A fresh crater opened in Vesuvius to-day. Ashes and lava threaten the village on the mountain side, and the inhabitants are removing their household goods. Thousands are encamped in the fields. The ministers have been summoned to make provision for the houseless people.

A TERRIBLE SCENE.

The scene is grand and terrible beyond description. The flames at times shoot up to a great hight, and masses of rock are ejected with earthquake shocks which are distinctly felt in this city.

FURTHER PARTICULARS.

ROME, April 26. At the sitting of the Chamber of Deputies this evening Prime Minister Sanza read a dispatch dated Naples, this afternoon, saying: The eruptions of Vesuvius are increasing and becoming more serious. Two hundred persons have been burned by the lava. The flames burst from the earth under the feet of the inhabitants. Tone Del Greco is in danger of destruction, and the people are flying from the town. Temporary provision is made for them by the authorities.

April 28—2 P. M. The fires of Vesuvius are slackening. A new crater was opened near Tersigna to day, but with every fresh opening now the violence of the eruption seems to abate.

Yesterday the entire mountain was concealed from sight by smoke. This morning the heavens were darkened by dense clouds of smoke and ashes, and the winds carried the burning cinders and old scoria as far as Scofate and Palermo.

The precaution was taken to flood the government powder magazine at Scofate.

The volume of the stream of lava near San Sebastiano is sixteen feet deep, and the village is still in danger.

The King, who arrived in Naples yesterday, has gone to San Sebastiano to direct measures for the relief of the inhabitants.

The devastation has been terrible. Thousands of acres of cultivated lands have been overwhelmed by ashes and lava, and vineyards and farms buried out of sight.

The loss of life must have been heavy, but it is impossible to ascertain the number of victims.

NAPLES, April 29—2 P. M. Showers of sand have succeeded the rain of ashes which was falling this morning. The eruption is now accompanied by fearful electric phenomena. Lightning darts incessantly from the summit of the volcano, and the quakings of the mountain are more violent and frequent. The thunder is continuous. Burning cinders, stones and scoriæ are falling fast and thick in the town of Mass di Somma, which is entirely deserted.

DOMESTIC.

MISSOURI.

GREAT EXCITEMENT AT HOLDEN.

Holden, Mo., April 26. The greatest excitement prevails here to-night on account of the repeated threats of the mob in Cass county. Squads of suspicious characters have been seen within a few miles of the town, and it is not known at what moment it may be attacked. A number of patrolmen are stationed, and all the citizens are on the alert, and will defend their homes to the utmost.

A report reached Kansas City last night, that Judge Forsyth, another of the county justices, was shot and his body hanged to a tree. Great excitement prevails throughout the county, and it is feared that still others will be murdered. The perpetrators of the massacre claim that they have a thousand men in their organization.

FALL OF THE COLISEUM.—Last evening at eight o'clock a squall swept over the city, and completely destroyed what work had been accomplished on the new Coliseum. The whole of the westerly end, including the three towers, was up, and the first of the great trusses had been placed in position and secured. The squall struck the fabric on its broad end and it fell at once, carrying with it the truss and all the supporters which held it, and the ruin is now complete. One hour after the accident the wind tempest had subsided, the accompanying clouds had disappeared, and the moon nearly at her zenith, came out full and bright, making the vast ruins as visible as though it were mid-day. Thousands of people at once gathered to the spot, attracted by the great noise, and lingered there until nearly midnight. No delay, however, was permitted by the executive committee, who were in session at the St. James Hotel at the time of the accident. No sooner was the trying intelligence communicated to these gentlemen, than they at once prepared to meet the exigency with that pluck and energy which the occasion demanded. The contractors, architects and engineers were at once summoned to join the committee. Plans were immediately discussed and adopted for beginning this morning to rebuild the Coliseum. The committee was a unit in sentiment, and nothing was permitted to interfere with the great purpose. At the present moment active gangs of men are at work clearing up the grounds and preparing for the new structure.—Globe, 27th ult.

MOUNT VESUVIUS is the only active volcano of any account on the European continent. A mere pimple on the face of the earth as compared with Etna, its eruptions have yet been attended with vastly greater loss of life and property. Its base, including that of Monte Somma, covers an area of about eight miles. The mountain itself rises from a level and luxuriant plain to a height of 3918 feet above the level of the sea. The lower portion is covered with stones and scoriæ, the cone being formed of black stones rising up nearly 3500 feet. The summit of the cone is 2000 feet in diameter, the crater being five hundred feet less, with a depth of five hundred feet. The first eruption of which we have any authentic account, occurred in the year A. D. 79. This was heralded by an earthquake sixteen years earlier. It was during this eruption that the cities of Stabiæ, Herculaneum and Pompeii were destroyed. For nearly nine hundred years after the people rested secure, and the fate of the ancient cities was almost forgotten. Then came the terrible discharge of liquid lava in 1036. From that time until the present there have been at least a dozen eruptions, some of them violent in their nature, but none of them equaling in their ruinous effects the first one mentioned.—Globe.

In Brief.

—— In a recent interview with some traveling Americans, the Pope is reported to have said that if he should ever leave Rome, he would be glad to take up his residence in New York, because no city in the world contains more earnest Catholics, or those more devoted to the highest and best interests of the Church.——By recent reports from Syria it appears that two thousand persons were killed by the recent shock of earthquake.——Meriden, Conn., suffered to the extent of $55,000 by a fire, 28th ult.——San Franciscans have subscribed $4500 for the Inyo sufferers.——Rochefort is employed in the kitchen at Fort Boyart, where he serves out his term of imprisonment. He is allowed two hours daily to read and write. He is in good spirits, but frequently complains bitterly that he is not allowed any newspapers.——The Empress Augusta, of Germany, left Berlin on the 29th ult. for England, to visit Queen Victoria. She is to be absent about ten days.——M. Lesseps, the projector of the Suez canal, has just submitted his annual report to the stockholders, wherein it appears that the rumors to the effect that the canal is filling up, are entirely without foundation. On the contrary, the success of the canal is now established beyond a doubt.

OUR LAST EFFORT.

"The Judge standeth before the door."—JAS. 5: 9.

The evidence points to 1873 as the time when Christ shall come, and we shall be called to give an account of our stewardship. The warning must go forth. Immediate action is demanded to give a distinctness to the cry—"Behold! the Bridegroom cometh!" We are already engaged in this work, and are sending out tracts; also receiving funds for this purpose. Let all who have hearts that beat in this direction, pray to the Lord of the harvest to send forth laborers into his harvest. Send funds or pledges for this purpose to GEO. T. ADAMS, Agent of the Adv. Chris. Pub. Society, or to L. T. CUNNINGHAM.

L. T. CUNNINGHAM ... $500.00

THE pledges to Mass. Conference at the Annual meeting, should be paid to the Treasurer, Charles Goodrich, Crisis Office, 160 Hanover St., Boston. L. BOUTELL.

THERE are two families living on the Springfield camp-ground, and it has become necessary to expend some $75 to make two houses, Sr. Holden's and Bro. Sharp's, comfortable, with chimneys, and an addition to Bro. Sharp's house. Now we feel safe from thieves breaking in hereafter, and carrying off what they pleased, leaving the houses there open. I have paid a part of the expense, and owe some $60. I want those having property there to help me pay it. Bro. Sharp has paid $15, besides giving the use of his house. What the friends see fit to send, please do so as soon as you can, either in pledges or in cash, as it must be paid soon. Direct to me at Chicopee Falls, Mass.

IT is time now to begin to arrange for Tent Meetings. Those in Maine who wish meetings held in their respective places, should consult those expected to aid in the work, and correspond with the undersigned, saying when you wish meetings. NEW AND ORIGINAL HYMNS.

BY CLINTON COLEGROVE.

A collection of hymns entirely new and original, the large majority being on the Second Advent of Christ, the nature of man, the sleep of the dead, the resurrection, the penalty of sin, and Christ the Life-giver. The hymns have been carefully prepared, and where an opinion has been expressed to the writer, have been highly approved. The book is a little volume of about 74 pages, and will be sent postpaid for 25 cents a copy, or $2.50 per dozen. Address CLINTON COLEGROVE, Sardinia, Erie Co., New York.

AT a special meeting of the church in Springfield, Mass., held Friday evening, April 12th, it was voted unanimously to invite the brethren and sisters scattered abroad to meet with them on Wednesday, May 8th, and continue over the following Lord's day. The forenoons (in part at least) will be devoted to business, including the consideration of the expediency of forming a Life and Advent Conference. The afternoons and evenings will be devoted to preaching, prayer, conference and general spiritual improvement. The evidences of the speedy coming of our Lord and the kindred truths we hold so dear call upon us for an earnest effort to spread them abroad, that others may rejoice with us in the glorious prospect. All are most cordially invited. The church in Springfield will care for all who come. R. E. Ladd, T. R. Weaver, J. K. Winter, A. W. Bradford, W. N. Pile, Committee.

THERE will be a Conference in Hallowell, Me., commencing Thursday, May 9th, and hold over the following Sunday. A general invitation is given to all who love God. H. B. SEVEY.

NEW TRACT.

Second Edition, Revised and Enlarged, IS NOW READY.

We have just received a new tract of 24 pages, entitled, "The Coming Reign of Terror, or the Commune," by W. N. Pile. The writer shows that the "Reign of Terror" of 1792 was produced by the workings of Socialism, Spiritualism, Infidelity, Free-Love, and the Commune; and then reasons that as these elements are now at work everywhere, they must produce the same results. The tract treats of the living issues of the present, reveals the awful condition of society, and shows that we are on the verge of "the battle of that great day of God Almighty."

NATURE OF MAN.

CLINTON COLEGROVE.

To Adam God the Maker said, Of all the trees you see,
One only you must never touch, but all the rest are free.
Knowledge of evil and of good is in the fruit of this;
Beware! the thoughtless taste will bring a fall and an abyss.
Eat not of it, for in the day its subtle taste you try,
O Adam, made of earthly dust, you must decay and die!
To Eve, fair partner of the man, a subtle shape appears,
And with persuasive cunning speaks a falsehood in her ears.
"Yea, hath God said," queried the voice, "all these are free but one?
Believe me this of all the trees is quite the paragon.
O, Eve, you shall not surely die; eat, eat; be not afraid;
For eating, you shall be as gods"—the cunning liar said.
From whence it came to pass, alas! the happy couple fell,
And o'er the earth in deadly sweep, there blew a breeze of hell.
From whence it also came to pass, that men began to dream,
That when the dead are still and cold, they are not what they seem.
And though their bodies turn to dust, their souls the foe defy,
And men though dead, are quite alive, and do not truly die.
But we believe the word of God, and honor what he said—
The penalty of sin is death, and all the dead are dead,
And out of death the only way for men to be restored,
Is by the power of Jesus Christ, and his Almighty word.
When in his majesty he comes, and flames adown the sky,
Then only will the dead revive, and live, no more to die.

A STORY OF GRACE.—No. 14.

S. S. WILLARD.

THE LOAN TO THE LORD—GLEANING.

While in process of finishing our house in Summit Grove, it was suggested to the mind of my husband that if the partition were left out, the spacious room over the parlors would make a commodious hall for meetings. We sought the mind of the Lord, and being convinced it was pleasing to him we thus appropriated it; it was accordingly finished, and having suitably furnished, we dedicated it to the Lord in the spring of 1861, by opening it to his blessed service in public meetings and Bible class. Of his gracious acceptance we were not left without tokens; his saints being filled from time to time with the comforting influences of the Holy Spirit insomuch that at times they would shout aloud and rejoice in that their steps had been directed hither. All who loved Jesus seemed to feel at home here; and so frequent were their congratulations in earnest supplication before the Lord in our behalf in view of this our "loan" to the Lord that it quite surprised me, and I named it to a christian friend in the family, saying, I did not understand it! She instantly replied—"I understand it. It is because you need it." O, thought I, what a Master we serve to be thus mindful of his unworthy children!

The voice went out to all about us—"Ho, every one that thirsteth come ye to the waters, and he that hath no money." The gospel was made without charge; the house lit and warmed and the feast spread without tax to any but simply to come and partake. Indeed, a feeling possessed me that naught of the things we possessed were our own, but a disposition to hold all free to God's call as his stewards. He graciously gave us access also to the firesides of our neighborhood to read and explain the precious word to them, with prayers and tears, exhorting them to break off their sins by righteousness, and get ready for the coming judgment; showing them upon charts in Bible testimony that the time draweth near.

The signs were sometimes favorable and our hopes high that our labor was not in vain; again, all was dashed, and nothing to cheer us but faith in these words—"knowing that your labor is not in vain in the Lord." The result of all this, however, the judgment only will reveal. But how my heart rejoiced as I stood by the dying couch of one of these for whom I truly felt that we had done what we could, as the dim hope buoyed us up that he had been snatched from a drunkard's grave and the resurrection morning might present him faultless in Christ Jesus! Did we regret our days and nights of labor, our fastings, prayers and tears in his behalf amid the unbelief and scorn in his case? Nay, verily; and when at his funeral the minister with a complacent air said—"I am a stranger to the deceased" notwithstanding he had passed his humble cot many times, and the deceased had for many years been a member of that church and the wife still a member—ah! we thought, bless God, I am not a stranger to him here and hope not to be in the world to come; but be it mine the privilege there to introduce him to his minister. Glory be to the blood of the Lamb, that can cleanse the drunkard's stains as well as the minister's; and if I ever realize its power it is in such depths of degradation that covers from all human sympathy only as the Spirit of Christ seeks and saves that which is lost. How my heart glows with love as I write! Let me find such lost ones as all human eyes have ceased to seek after, or human hearts to hope for. Let me tell them Jesus loves them—that he has died for them and is waiting to save them—even them. How good it is! it fills my soul with joy and with youth. O Jesus! Jesus! evermore give us of this thy Spirit. Evermore make my feet like hinds' feet to seek and to save that which is lost. O Glory! We'll have a shout in glory when these lost ones come up and see to what they are redeemed; and it may be from what they were redeemed. Lord, hasten it in its time. Amen.

The Lord having so summarily disposed of our work in Jerusalem, so to speak, we were left free to go to the "regions beyond"—the highways and hedges. There was a rumor at this time that a christian colored woman living some miles from us was very anxious for meetings and Bible reading in her neighborhood. This rested heavily upon my mind and I waited upon the Lord to open my way. At last with horse, buggy, and guide, I started out to find the said "Aunt Judy." A ride of five miles brought us to the spot and we were cordially received by our sable sister. Upon stating my errand she was evidently much surprised and could not see what put it into my mind to come! I told her it was Jesus who inclined me and she must give him all the thanks. Her husband soon came in and we found him quite intelligent, and withal a devout christian. On proposing prayer they both freely acceded and joined with us in supplication. As they were urgent that we come again, I finally proposed a meeting in two weeks. This being the first time that all the responsibility of an appointment among strangers rested upon me I felt some little anxiety; yet was assured that the Lord would stand by me, for he knew why I had done this.

One night awaking from sleep I felt a strong prompting to rise and seek a solitary place and there pray. I did so, and my Savior's words to Mary came forcibly to my mind—"Go to my brethren, and say unto them, I ascend unto my Father and your Father, and to my God and your God." Then this message for myself was given—"Go tell them I am coming back!" Joy and praise filled my soul. This message I thought far exceeded that of Mary's in good cheer to the saints of God. If this was what my Lord would have me say—by his grace I could say it; and in the joy of my heart I longed for the time to come. Our eldest son, his uncle and two others accompanied me. To those acquainted with human nature, it is needless to say that while I appreciated the interest manifested, their presence but added to my embarrassment; but my every breath was prayer. We found a small room well filled with both white and colored people. I arose and in broken tones began to speak; but after a shower of tears was calm, and gave my message with pleasure to myself, and, I trust, to the comfort and wooing of some. At the close "Aunt Judy" prayed that the Lord would fight my battles and keep my mouth open for him. This encouraged me.

Let us not despise the day of small things. Like the lad sold into Egypt who wrought such great deliverance, so this simple incident, like the prison to Joseph, was made the means of introducing us into a very different field—a large white house with double parlors thrown open for our use—and well filled with attentive listeners. A young man who made no profession of religion heard of this humble effort, we having kept it up through the summer, with a Sunday School, and it so worked upon his mind to think there was no better place provided, that he applied to his father-in-law to open his house. Consent was given; and this young man with his wife walked three miles and a half in the evening to one of our meetings on the "highways" and invited us to come to their father's house. He then went from house to house in that neighborhood announcing the appointment and inviting all to come. One Methodist sister inquired of him who we were. To which he replied he did not know, but believed, let us be called what we would, that we were christians.

"Oh," said she, "Henry, I do not think I shall go."

"Why?" he asked.

"Because they are not Methodists," was her frank reply. Of this, to her credit be it recorded, she was soon ashamed and retracted, promising to come.

Here, my husband had liberty in speaking from the word of God, and good interest was manifested. Our colored sister followed others in prayer. At the close some were in tears. This was the first meeting held in that neighborhood for years—and many desired to have meetings continued—and it was proposed to open a Sunday-school in the school-house the following Lord's day. This greatly encouraged us, and in this also we tendered our support. The wife of the young man before mentioned was the first one gathered from the world. The Methodist sister and her husband, in the course of a few months avowed their faith in a soon coming Savior, and life only in Christ. He was chosen Superintendent of the Sunday-school and continued faithful in the discharge of that duty. Others saw the light, and in the following December five willing souls followed Christ in baptism.

But the war demon snatched away our precious young friend who had been so active in opening the well-spring of salvation to others, and we saw him no more. He fell a victim to typhoid fever and died with his head pillowed on the lap of his devoted wife, who, on hearing of his sickness, hastened to him at Washington. A light kindled in his dying eye as he recognized her, but utterance was past. His last letter, however, greatly consoled his friends; he so heartily rejoiced that his wife had given herself to Jesus and he hoped soon to be at home to join her in his blessed service. His body was brought home and there, in those very parlors, did his death speak more loudly than his life had done—"Prepare to meet thy God!"

It would seem as if hundreds might have been brought in, in the time and labor already expended here; but shall we be discouraged that the results are so small? Let us remember we are gleaners; and gleaners work hard and have but little to show. Ruth gleaned all day for an ephah of barley and this after these kind words had prepared her way. "Let her glean even among the sheaves . . . . . . and let fall also some of the handfuls on purpose for her." We also found some of these precious grains, else our show would have been still less.

We are living in the "supper time." The many have already been waited upon in these words—"Come, for all things are now ready." They have also with one voice turned away the servant with this message—"I pray thee have me excused." Then the imperative word went forth from the indignant Master of the house—"Go out quickly into the streets and lanes of the city, and bring in hither the poor and the maimed, the halt and the blind." Another report is given—"And yet there is room." Now comes the last command to the willing servant—"Go out into the highways and hedges"; long walks, and diligent search for here and there a straggler, and when found they have to be compelled to come in, that the house may be filled; for the fiat has gone forth that none of those men that were bidden shall taste of the supper.

This compelling process takes time and patient toil. It is more exhausting than all the previous messages. In the first case the servant gave his message, heard the excuse, and returned word to his master. In the second, he went to a class who would be rather glad of the invitation to a good meal; but the third is very different, they are on the highways and care not to turn aside; it is hard to get their attention, and if gotten, to make them understand that you are a friend, and that your offer is of any value. Those in the hedges are intent upon some concern of their own and care not to be disturbed. They have hidden themselves away because they wished not for communion with the outer world and are well satisfied with their retreat, hence great pursuasion is needed to induce them forth, but the patient and faithful servant remembered the mandate—"compel them to come in that my house may be filled," and he labors on, he urges, he entreats, he weeps, he prays; he tells them the supper is waiting, not a moment to lose; yet they are unmoved; they must be laid hold of like the angels upon the hands of Lot, his wife and daughters, and compelled to come in; even then some, like Lot's wife, will persist in turning back to their own destruction. But our work is to do the Master's bidding and leave the results with him.

THE WRONG TRAIN, BUT THE RIGHT TRACK.

HIRAM MUNGER.

It is as bad to be on the wrong train as to be on the wrong track. In all my traveling I never was so completely nonplussed or disappointed as I am to-day, April 20th. Here I am by the side of the railroad track writing this letter, in an awkward fix. I started early Saturday morning to go to Athol. Got to Palmer, at eight A. M. Was told to take the last northern train. Supposing it the next that went on the same track, got on board, took off my new rubbers to warm my feet, and all went well until the conductor called for my ticket. On seeing it he said—"You are on the wrong train, sir." This posed me. On inquiring what I could do, he said he would stop the train and let me off, and the other train would be along in a few minutes, and I had better flag it, and perhaps it would stop. Having a red handkerchief I tried my luck. The engineer whistled "down brakes," but they went ten to fifteen rods by me. The conductor, seeing an old man, rang the bell, and off they went, before I got half way to them.

After taking a long breath I began to reflect on my situation. Just then I missed my new rubbers I had left in my hurry in the first train, and were on the way I knew not where. I struck for the turnpike, hoping to get a ride back to Palmer, two miles and a half where I started from. Being lame, I sat down to rest on a stone beside the road. Soon a colored man came along, the wrong way for me to ride, and gave me to understand I would have to go back and wait nine or ten hours before another train would pass. While thinking, and sweating (for my valise and heavy overcoat were a burden for a lame man), a man came along with a team. I asked him for a ride. Whether he was French and did not understand me, or deaf, or did not like my looks, I know not, but he did not take me in. But I got back to Palmer, and found I must wait until six o'clock P. M.

This confused trouble led me to reflect on our old prophetic track. Some got into the old Mosaic train that ran only to the Gentile depot. There they sit yet, while others changed cars, with a new conductor, under a new arrangement or covenant, and wonder why those behind did not discover on their ticket that that train was the "schoolmaster's" train, and only went to the Cross. Such are in the wrong train, but on the same prophetic track, only going part way. Another class of prophetic expositors started on Daniel's prophetic track that runs through to the kingdom, but being careless switched off on to the old Syrian track, and landed in the Antiochus depot, and there they are. As such have not seen the prophetic beauty on the track through the Roman territory, which has been full of light-posts all the way, they must foot it back, and take the right train that starts on the same track.

Opposition to our plans sometimes leads to a new train of thought and action, whether it is better or not. I went to Athol. Had a good full house. God blessed the meeting, which is best of all.

REPORT.

R. I. AND E. CT. CONFERENCE.

Wyoming, R. I., April 3d, 1872. Met at the appointed time at the house of worship owned by the Advent Christians. P. M., a social meeting, and preaching in the evening.

Thursday, April 4th. After an hour spent in social prayer and conference, Bro. A. Durfee, Chairman, called to order for business. Minutes of last meeting being read and approved, the Treasurer's report was made and accepted.

REPORT OF CHURCHES. But few of the churches reported constitutionally, others were reported by brethren who have preached to them, but were not delegates, and still others were not heard from. Some churches never fail to report by letter or delegate, while some others seldom notice these quarterly sessions. (Brn., is this right? We should be faithful in small things,—though this is not small, as it is a special duty for every church to report according to the Constitution by which they are members. Brethren, be faithful. The Conference needs your help, and encouragement.)

It would be cheering to give letters in full that were received from churches, but it would be a burden to the Crisis. A. C. Green, Church Clerk at River Point, reports—We have received four members. Cruel death has robbed us of two, but the faithful will meet again to die no more. We are scattered so our meetings are few, but the Lord is with us. Preaching once a month. Putnam, Ct., H. N. Reed, Clerk—Still trying to hold up the standard of truth amid many discouragements. Preaching every Sunday. Congregation not very large. Lafayette, J. T. Arnold, Clerk—Still pressing for the kingdom. Few in number. Social meetings very interesting. Have had preaching most of the time. Escoheag, J. P. Hazard, Clerk—Strong in the faith. Are looking anxiously for the consummation of the blessed hope. Have passed through severe trials. Social meetings once a week. Three have been added by letter. One has been excluded. Present number nineteen. North Scituate, by N. A. Angell, Clerk—Some have moved away. Some have lost all interest; others are holding on, looking for that blessed hope. Preaching every Sunday.

Wyoming reported by delegate—Nineteen members. Not in a very growing condition. Preaching once a month. Social meetings twice a week. West Gloucester by Bro. J. S. Eldridge—Meetings well attended. One young man has been converted. Deep conviction prevails. East Gloucester by the same—Has been very low. Is now in a much better condition. Some twelve are laboring in the cause.

Preachers present—A. Durfee, J. J. Northup, J. S. Eldridge, Peter Noka, S. Kenyon, and Sr. E. L. Crumb. Reports from them of their labors were very interesting. The following resolution was offered by J. P. Hazard in behalf of Escoheag church—

Resolved, That we cheerfully and cordially invite Sister Crumb to put on the whole armor of a preacher of the gospel, by ordination.

After a spirited discussion, Voted, to lay the resolution on the table till next session. Voted, to adjourn to meet at Escoheag, R. I., at the regular time, first Wednesday in July, 1872. N. A. ANGELL, Clerk of Conf.

CONSECRATION.

S. D. SINCLAIR.

A holy heart, to feel the flame,
Must be renewed in Jesus' name,
Full sacrifice on altar laid,
Withholding nothing, well arrayed,
With humble zeal and bowing low,
See all upon the altar go;
Then bound with cords of threefold ply,
Faith, Hope, Charity, to corners tie; *
Ye are not your own, are bought with
The bleeding Lamb of sacrifice;
No houses, lands, nor jewels own,
He is but steward of the Son;
The love of God in holy shower
Immerses all with Godhead power;
The man of God goes forth in mail,
Strong in his strength, and shall prevail.
The Holy Spirit now his guide,
The gospel weapon by his side,
And shield of faith, of glory bright,
He is acknowledged "God's delight."
Out from "perfection" God has shined,
Witness his pure and holy mind.
'Tis rare he goes to merry feasts,
Because his fellowship is Christ;
The tongue of fire chooses to own,
Alhough reported quite undone;
With godly fear, and truth his guide,
He runs to seek his Master's bride;
His heart with holy love o'erflows,
He speaks the things he wisely knows.
Seeking communion now with saints,
Behold what beauty on him paints!
And from his lips with holy zeal
The gospel of the Son reveal;
Enchanting beauty round him blends,
Confirming him to all his friends,
A terror made to evil ones,
A joy and praise to God's dear sons.
He shuns the gay and laughing crowd,
Where sin is mixed, and language loud;
To worldly gods he will not bow,
The prince of God is conqueror now.
With hands uplifted, head unbent,
He runs the way the prophets went;
'Mid scoffs and scorn, and menace bold, †
He goes with treasures, not with gold,—
What brighter jewels can be shown,
Than that which from the gospel's thrown?
Richer than rubies, wealth outdone,
Eternal truths of God's dear Son,
The Holy Ghost gives power and might;
He walks by faith, and not by sight,
Proclaiming to the world around
The gospel is no fickle sound;
Sheds power and grace, and goodness shows,
And heavenly balm for all our woes;
Proving the gospel message pure,
To all who to the end endure.

* "God is the Lord, who hath showed us light. Bind the sacrifice with cords, even unto the horns of the altar."—Ps. 118: 27.

† "They hate him that rebuketh in the gate, and they abhor him that speaketh uprightly."—AMOS 4: 10.

LETTER FROM BRO. GEO. THOMSON.

BRO. GRANT:—I desire to pen a few lines to my dear brethren and sisters, the readers of the much-prized Crisis. I feel very grateful to my heavenly Father that in the midst of bodily affliction I can still serve and praise my dear Lord. He sustains me wonderfully. He fills my heart with love, and keeps my mind in sweet peace; and although crippled so that I can walk but very little, and cannot dress or undress myself, yet the Lord still permits me to preach his word, and enables me to write a little, though it is with much difficulty. We have a living little band of believers here. They are very kind, and the Lord blesses them. I have just closed a meeting six miles from here, at Helena Station. The Lord was pleased graciously to pour out his Spirit and revive his work, and quite a large number, for the size of the place, turned from the broad into the narrow way. The tavern-keeper and two fiddlers were among the number gathered in. The place had been notorious for its dances, but the last one, appointed while our meeting was in progress, failed for want of fiddlers, so I was informed. Over twenty covenanted to walk together as a Church of Christ. Pray for them, that they may hold fast till Jesus comes.

We are looking forward with pleasing anticipations to our Spring campmeeting, and if unanimity of desire is any criterion, we should say that it was the Lord's will for Bro. Grant to be present on that occasion.

I have said that God in his great goodness still enables me to write some. While this privilege is still granted me, I wish to use my pen to the glory of God and the furtherance of his cause. I am now preparing a work (which will soon be ready for the press) designed more especially for the ministry at large, on the evidence of the soon coming of Jesus, and the necessity for preaching it. I should like to see every lover of Jesus and his appearing interest themselves in this work. Experience has taught us that when a minister of the gospel becomes interested in the "present truth," he represents more than a unit. And if he brings no converts, he soon makes some. Our dear Brn. Collins, of Minnesota, Marston, of Illinois, Bowman, of South Carolina, Phelps, of New York, some recently in Georgia, and other parts of the South, as a result of Bro. Sheldon's labors, another recently in Wis., together with a number of converts, and others in various places,—all these are illustrative of the truth of the above. Jesus is soon coming. The end is drawing very near. Let us employ every possible instrumentality to awaken a slumbering church and world. This is the time for toil. Rest will be sweet when Jesus comes. I covet the commendation—"Well done!" Pray for me.

Arena, Wis., April 15th.

Gems.

— It is a mark of the soundest wisdom not to pry into a secret, and, when found, of the purest honesty not to reveal it.

— The more grace here, the more glory hereafter; the higher in grace, the higher in glory. Grace differs nothing from glory but in name; grace is glory in the bud, and glory is grace in the full; grace is glory in the flower, and glory is grace in the fruit; grace is glory militant, and glory is grace triumphant.

— To judge without reserve of any human action is a culpable temerity, of all our sins, the most unfeeling and frequent.

— The Bible is a mine of wealth, but no mine will yield its treasures without labor.

Spurn what thou canst not claim; the flatterer's Dross throw back; and learn how little is thine own.

— Life is a stage play, and it matters not how long we act, so we act well.

— Blessed is he who employs all his time profitably, is silent on subjects that do not concern him, and passes through this tumultuous world like one that is dumb and heareth not, for the Lord's sake.

— He that takes up a burden that is too heavy for him, is in a fair way to break his back.

— Self-knowledge is the hardest of all knowledge, and is the best of all when known.

LIKE most garments, like most carpets, every thing in life has a right side and a wrong side. You can take any joy, and by turning it around, find troubles on the other side; or you may take the greatest trouble, and by turning it around find joys on the other side. The gloomiest mountain never casts a shadow on both sides at once, nor does the greatest of life's calamities.

THE FULNESS OF JESUS.

The fulness of Jesus is communicable. He can communicate his blessings to the members of his body which make his church. The weakest member in his church should be full of his love and spirit. What we want to see in these days is a richer, deeper, sweeter experience among the people of God. We want to see a growing acquaintance with Jesus. The frame-work of our religion may be good enough, but it wants the filling of spirituality to make it passable in the judgment day. How earnestly the apostle Paul desired this for his brethren. "For this cause I bow my knees unto the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, of whom the whole family in heaven and earth is named; that he would grant you, according to the riches of his glory, to be strengthened with might by his Spirit in the inner man; that Christ may dwell in your hearts by faith; that ye, being rooted and grounded in love, may be able to comprehend with all saints what is the length and breadth and depth and height, and to know the love of Christ, which passeth knowledge, that ye might be filled with all the fulness of God. Now unto him that is able to do exceeding abundantly above all that we ask or think, according to the power that worketh in us; unto him be the glory in the church by Christ Jesus throughout all ages, world without end."—Herald of Salvation.

A PRINTER'S PROVERBS.

☞ Never send thou an article for publication without giving the editor thy name, for thy name oftentimes secures publication to worthless articles.

☞ Thou should'st never read the copy on the printer's case, or the sharp and hooked container thereof.

☞ When thou dost enter into the editor's office, take heed unto thyself that thou dost not look at what may be lying open and concerneth thee not, for that is not meet in the sight of good breeding.

☞ Neither examine thou the proof sheet, for it is not ready to meet thine eye that thou mayst understand.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.—Write legibly, with black ink, on only one side of the paper. . . .

Sign your name to everything you write, whether you wish it published or not.

Do not ask other papers to "please copy"—other papers may not see what you want copied; when we chance to do so, we "copy," with the usual editing, if it is needed.

Avoid expletives, and be concise. Essays and the like should generally be printed in pamphlets, not newspapers.

Do not correspond with an editor who is not an honorable man and master of his situation; if he is, do not think ill of him if he abridges, corrects, or declines your communications; remember that he is more likely to err in your favor than against you, as he naturally wishes to retain your good-will; you ought, therefore, to honor him when he has the patience to correct your faulty, or the good sense to abridge your prolix, or the kindness to decline your worthless, communication.

Bear in mind that your revenge in withholding your favors, or stopping the paper, or working against it, is not the less wicked because it is weak; a man may be a great simpleton, while he is not less a sinner.—Christian Advocate.

GRANDMAMMA'S BIRTHDAY.

There are red young lips on a wrinkled cheek,
Counting out grandmamma's birthdays there,
Eighty, the years that the kisses speak—
And now there's a hand on the snowy hair.

"Why! grandmamma, really it seemed to me
I never, never should reach the end;
How awfully tired you must be
To have had the eighty years to spend!"

"So I have been thinking, my little son,
The years seemed never so long before
As when, in counting them one by one,
Your lips touched lovingly at fourscore.

"But God has given me strength for all—
All the way to the eightieth stair;
I'm resting on it, ready to fall
Softly asleep on the breast of Prayer."

THE LITTLE ONES.

"Send the little ones happy to bed," some one sings; and we respond a hearty Amen! Send them happy to bed; don't let them lie down under a great overhanging cloud, to be haunted in their dreams by goblin griefs that we might have banished; don't let them fall asleep under a burden of childish troubles, heavier than we are able to realize until we recall our own childhood; let their last waking hours be as full of sweet peace as we can make them. O, yes, "Send the little ones happy to bed!" and then call them up happy in the morning. Wake them, if you must, with kisses and tender words of love. Don't break too suddenly into the rosy May time of childhood's dream-land with the bleak December of reality.

Said a wee one, rising from her little bed one wintry morning, and holding up her night-dress carefully with her tiny hands: "I've got berries!" and her disappointment was as real as you or I have ever known, when she found that the berries of her dream had vanished.

Let us fill all the hours of the little ones with as much brightness as we may. It is the prerogative of childhood to be happy; and the sky of every child life has more or less of the couleur de rose according as we are careful or heedless to drive away the little clouds, "no bigger than a man's hand" perhaps, but clouds still. We may be up on life's bleak mountain-top where the clouds have their constant dwelling; but, oh, let us help, if we may, to make sunshine always in the valley where the little ones are. They must climb in their turn to the heights of life, and battle with its ills. They must, if spared, travel by and by the weary road of care and sorrow; let them have sweet memories to cheer them on as they strive for the bright Beyond, or come to them with softening power when they wander from the way.—Home Magazine.

"ROCK OF AGES."

One Sabbath a poor drunken man walked into one of our wealthy and fashionable congregations, and seated himself near the pulpit. He came in just at the close of the first hymn, and his shabby appearance and uncertain gait attracted general obbservation.

The minister had scarcely commenced preaching, when the stranger sunk into a deep sleep; his loud snoring almost drowned the voice of the preacher, and one of the officers of the church approached to lead him out of the building.

"Let him remain," said the minister; "he does not disturb me. If he does you, try and bear with him. I hope he may hear some word before he leaves that will persuade him to seek a new life. The man is not in his senses; there is some influence which we do not perceive that has led him here. I believe the Lord sent him."

The man continued to sleep on, but more quietly. The pealing of the organ and the singing of the choir at last aroused him. He started to his feet and gazed in bewilderment around. It was the old hymn, "Rock of Ages," which they were singing. He sat down and buried his face in his hands. What memories came thronging upon him, who shall say? That he was affected might be seen by his flowing tears. He listened to the prayer that followed—a touching petition that all might repent and seek the Savior, and that each one might find pardon and peace.

The next Sabbath he was again in church. This time he was an attentive listener. Although still shabbily dressed, he paid some regard to his attire. He continued to attend and improve in his appearance. In one of the prayer-meetings he arose and said he hoped that he had become a christian. He had had a pious mother; her great desire was that he might become a christian. Since her death he had become a victim to intemperance. For years his course had been downward. On the Sabbath when he first entered the church, he had heard the singing and paused to listen. A voice seemed to bid him enter. He thought it might be the voice of God speaking to him for the last time. Half overcome with drink and almost in rags, he entered the church. He heard part of the hymn, "Rock of Ages"—the hymn sung by his mother on her death bed. The prayer which followed seemed meant for him. He resolved to leave off his old habit, and by the grace of God he had kept his resolution.

He became a sincere and devoted christian. Of that church he became a member, and subsequently a deacon. "I do not know," said his pastor, "a man more earnest or more successful in doing good, than he."—Sunday School World.

BLACK, BUT BRAVE.

A master-cooper called upon a black man in Ohio, and wished to purchase some stave-timber. The black asked for what purpose he wanted the timber, and received for an answer, "I have a contract for a thousand whisky barrels."

"Well, sir," was the prompt reply, "I have the timber for sale, and want money, but no man shall buy a stave from me for that purpose."

The cooper was indignant to meet with such stern reproach from a black, and called him a "nigger."

"That is very true," mildly replied the other. "It is my misfortune to be a negro; I can't help that; but I can help selling my timber to make whisky barrels, and I mean to do it."

Hygiene.

"This is for your Health."

SICK-ROOM HINTS.

A sick-room should have a pleasant aspect. Light is essential. Blinds and curtains may be provided to screen the eyes too weak to bear full day, but what substitute makes up for the absence of that blessed sunshine without which life languishes? The walls should be of a cheerful tint; if possible, some sort of out-door glimpse should be visible from the bed or chair where the invalid lies, if it is but the top of a tree and a bit of sky. Eyes which have been traveling for long, dull days over the pattern of the paper-hangings, till each bud and leaf and quirl is familiar and hateful, brighten with pleasure as the blind is raised. The mind, wearied of the grinding battle with pain and self, finds unconscious refreshment in the new interest. Ah! there is a bird's shadow flitting across the pane. The tree-top sways and trembles with soft rustlings; a white cloud floats dreamily over the blue; and now, oh delight and wonder, the bird himself comes in sight and perches visibly on the bough, dressing his feathers and quivering forth a few notes of song. All the world, then, is not lying in bed because we are, is not tired of its surroundings—has not the back-ache! What a refreshing thought! And though this glimpse of another life, the fresh natural life from which we are shut out—that life which has nothing to do with pills and potions, tip-toe movements, whispers, and doctors' boots creaking in the entry—may cause hot tears to rush suddenly into our eyes, it does us good, and we begin to say with a certain tremulous thrill of hope: "When I go out again, I shall do so and so."

Ah, if nurses, if friends knew how irksome, how positively harmful, is the sameness of a sick room, surely love and skill would devise remedies. If it were only bringing in a blue flower to-day, and a pink one to-morrow; hanging a fresh picture to vary the monotony of the wall, or even an old one in a new place—something, anything—it is such infinite relief. Small things and single things suffice. To see many of his surroundings changed at once, confuses an invalid; to have one little novelty at a time to vary the point of observation, stimulates and cheers. Give him that, and you do more and better than if you filled the apartment with fresh objects. It is supposed by many, that flowers should be carefully kept away from sick people—that they exhaust the air or communicate to it some harmful quality. This may, in a degree, be true of such strong, fragrant blossoms as lilacs or garden lillies, but of the more delicately-scented ones no such effect need be apprehended. A well-aired room will never be made close or unwholesome by a nosegay of roses, mignonette or violets, and the subtle cheer which they bring with them is infinitely reviving to weary eyes and depressed spirits.—Scribner's for April.

WHEN TO BATHE.—Constitutions and temperaments differ, and the best hour for one person to bathe may not be the best for another. Besides, persons must accommodate themselves to their occupations and circumstances. About three hours after breakfast is a suitable time for almost any one to bathe who can make it convenient. Many must of necessity have their bath either on rising in the morning, or on retiring at night.

Generally, morning is to be preferred for women, who then begin active life. It is not well to rise and take a bath, and then sit down to read, write, sew, or lounge about. It may be well if one can, instead of exercising, go back into the warm bed for three-quarters of an hour. Some persons who always feel miserable after morning bathing are favorably affected by an evening bath. Such should follow their bent.—Laws of Life.

MAKE HOME BEAUTIFUL.—You should spare no pains in beautifying your homes and improving the roads that lead to them. What a beautiful picture is a dwelling embowered in trees, its door-yard filled with fragrant flowers, the woodbine or the honeysuckle encircling the door and windows! How grateful to the traveler is a road free of stones and gulches, and shaded by the cleanly maple or the graceful elm! Make your homes radiant within with every social virtue, and beautiful without by those simple adornments with which nature is everywhere so prolific. The children born in such homes will leave them with regret, and come back to them in after life as pilgrims to a holy shrine; the town on whose hills and in whose vales such homes are found, will live forever in the hearts of its grateful children.

THE teeth in the insane are prone to undergo certain changes. Dr. Langdon Down, who read a paper on this subject recently before the Odontological Society, states therein that from the examination of nearly one thousand cases, he has found that he could in a majority of instances state the period at which the imbecility of insanity began.

SPONGE paper, made by adding finely divided sponge to paper pulp, has been used in France for dressing wounds. It absorbs water readily and retains moisture for a long time; it is therefore applicable to many purposes in the arts and manufactures.

The "Crisis" is devoted to the exposition of all Bible truth; especially the doctrine of the immediate, personal coming and reign of Christ on the earth; holiness of heart; the unconscious state of the dead; their literal resurrection, and final destruction of the wicked.

WAITING FOR JESUS.

"It is not he loves the coming of the Lord who asserts that it is near, or he who asserts that it is not near; but he rather who, whether it be near or afar off, waits for it in the sincerity of faith, the firmness of hope, and the ardor of love."—Augustine.

"The dark stream of evil is flowing apace,"
Awake and be doing, ye children of grace.
Let's seek with compassion the souls that are lost,
Well knowing the price their redemption has cost,
While singing with rapture the Savior's great love,
And waiting for him to translate us above;
"It may be to-morrow, or even to-night,"
Let our loins be well girded, and lamps burning bright.
We're journeying on to the realms of the blest;
We're nearer each day to our heavenly rest;
But when we reach home, and its regions of joy,
No labors of mercy our hands can employ;
No mourning ones there shall we meet to console,
No wand'rers to rescue, or sick to make whole,
No weak ones to cherish, no lost ones to find—
These labors of love we shall all leave behind.
The house, and the land, and the wealth in the chest,
Give many occasions for ministries blest;
Let's use them to lessen the poor widow's grief,
And to fatherless children give welcome relief;
The doubting and fearful, to them let us bring
Those tidings of mercy that cause us to sing.
Then let us "to-morrow, and even to-day,"
Be true to our mission while down here we stay.
Yes, let us with ardor the present redeem,
Our joy and our glory to imitate him,
The Shepherd, who traveled his lost sheep to save,
And his blood for our ransom on Calvary gave.
Self was never his object, himself he denied,
For others, each moment, he lived and he died!
We are left here to learn, and to copy his grace,
While he in the heavens prepares us our place.
Then, Lord, while my spirit so yearns to get home,
I'd learn to be patient till thou for us come;
E'en now is my portion so happy in thee,
I can bear here to tarry till thou call for me.
In the patience of hope I will spend thy delay,
'T would be selfish to wish e'en to hasten the day,
Assured thy long-suffering alone stays the hour
When the "day of the Lord" shall display its dread power.
My Master! I pray thee to purge from my breast
All hard, selfish pining for ease and for rest;
Oh, make me delight in thy service of love,
My heart all responsive to thy heart above.
The time of my sojourn, how soon it may end!
Instruct me more wisely its "twelve hours" to spend;
That be it "to-morrow, or be it to-night,"
To win thy approval be still my delight.

—Prophetic Times.

THE COMING OF THE LORD.

L. BOUTELL.

This is a subject of the greatest importance; it cannot be over-estimated; and it requires a prayerful study of the prophecies of the Bible, and a deep research of history, with a careful application of the same to the prophetic mould, to present the same to the public in a frank, open, liberal expression of deductions and sentiments void of all dogmatical declarations; as all the "wise" do not come to the same conclusions.

We have a great sum written in the Crisis on the time of the advent. The columns are open for free discussion on this important subject, hence you see a variety of sentiments uttered. Some writers are sanguine that their application is the very right one, and all honest eyes will see just as they do. Others still more positive venture to give their laborious investigations, comparing history with prophecy, and they feel satisfied that their conclusions are logically sound and true, and that all must see the light as they do, and walk with them confessing it, or something is wrong. So there is a tendency to measure one another by our standard instead of the Bible. And that standard is what we believe and write from on the time and ending of the days.

Now while I would encourage investigation on the time of the Lord's coming and all Bible truth, I would discourage all unpleasant controversy; for it will only tend to unchristianize and divide the living body. The very differences among good, honest brethren, show that it is not so plain and easy to apply historical data to prophecy relating to events and dates. Thus it seems to me that with eyes anointed with eye-salve, and the whole being sanctified to Christ, with the heart filled with the love of God shed abroad by the Holy Ghost, we could be patient with one another, letting our moderation be known to all men; for "the Lord is at hand." I have ever looked and still do look with deep solicitude to this blessed yet solemn event. All my interests and hopes are there. But I should deplore that positiveness that would measure everybody by one's conclusions; for, not being inspired, they may fail; but the word of the Lord will endure forever.

I never expect to see those Advent believers, who have been brought into a disappointment by believing definite time, moved as they once were. If they believed as strongly, they would not act as they once did, for their experience would interfere. Suppose God had said to Abraham the second time—"Take thine only son Isaac, and get thee up to the mount, and offer him upon the altar"; there would have been a secret thinking—The Lord will provide a sacrifice.

Let love be the ruling principle of all, with a strong desire to do good to all, specially to the household of faith, and all will go well. The Bible should be our text book, and what is therein written we should believe; and it should never be so interpreted as to make one portion conflict with another. So with the Lord's coming. In the first place, the Lord is coming. In the second place, he is coming soon. This we know, for the "signs"—of which the Lord said, when we see them take place we should know he was near, even at the doors,—have transpired, and spoken biblically and chronologically. Other events none the less positive have had their fulfillment, and from them all we know the coming One is near, even at the doors. This we may know. This we do know. We have seen the things take place in their order by which the Bible says we may know he is near, and even then we do not know the definite time. What shall be done here? Jesus says—"Watch." Why watch? "Because ye know not when the time is." Watch, because ye know not when the Son of man cometh, whether in the evening, at midnight, at cock-crowing, or in the morning. With a literal exposition of the Bible truth, with the proper application of the same, we find a harmony in the Scriptures not easily broken.

The principle involved is this: The disciples that are to live in that generation, who witness the coming of the Lord, knowing by the fulfillment of prophecy, and the signs of the times, that we are near that event, and not knowing when, are to "watch"; and our safety depends on watching. So this verse finds its place here—"Be ye also ready, for in such an hour as ye think not the Son of man cometh." "Ye" refers to the church that are not in darkness, but in the light; and the Lord teaches that he may come in an hour they think not. "Watch, therefore." Why? "For ye know not what hour your Lord doth come." So the church must watch.

Watching implies a readiness for his coming; filled with the love of God, a love of Jesus and his appearing, with all in readiness; then every succeeding sign of his near approach will cheer you, and fit you for every duty, every good work for Jesus and his blessed cause; suffering for it, if need be. In this blessed condition of watching and waiting, you are to be just as ready, not knowing the watch, or time, as the good man of the house, who knew the hour the thief was coming, and so saved his goods. This is Bible teaching to me. Then we find a place for all Jesus' declarations, and all fit in their proper place. "So shall the coming of the Son of man be." "Then [at that time; what time? When the Son of man cometh] shall two be in the field; the one shall be taken, and the other left." "Two women shall be grinding . . . . one shall be taken, and the other left." "Two shall be in on bed; the one shall be taken, and the other left."

And now, dear brethren, we are in this time of speedy expectation. The signs that called us out as a distinct people, with heads uplifted, knowing redemption is near, still urge us to be hasting. They have told the true story—the history of the old Roman world, from Babylon to the rise and fall of him who should speak great words against the Most High, and exalt himself above all that is called God. He was to wear out the saints of the Most High, for a time, times, and an half. The papal tribulation identifies this wicked work by that abominable power, till sixty millions and more of the saints yield to their martyrdom, and seal our homeward-bound passage to the everlasting kingdom of glory. The sun immediately responds to the inspired word, and refuses his light. And this generation will not pass away till Jesus comes, and comes to reign.

O! how we ought to be stirred to that self-consecration and earnestness in the work of saving our fellow men, by the proclamation of that sweet message—Jesus, the way, the truth, and the coming life. "Blessed are those servants whom the Lord when he cometh shall find so doing." My heart beats high for the coronation hymn, with the full chorus, "Crown Him Lord of all!" Amen.

TRUST IN GOD.

W. H. ROBINSON.

"Although the fig tree shall not blossom, neither shall fruit be in the vines; the labor of the olive shall fail, and the fields shall yield no meat; the flock shall be cut off from the fold, and there shall be no herd in the stalls; yet I will rejoice in the Lord, I will joy in the God of my salvation."—Hab. 3: 17, 18.

This is one of the grandest passages in the whole Bible. It was the favorite of Daniel Webster, who thought it the finest in literature. It is worthy our earnest and prayerful thought, as it points out our true resting-place in times of calamity and pestilence. Would that the weary sufferers whom repeated and severe trials and sorrows have made heart-sick, could see God through their blinding tears, and rejoice in Him who "bindeth up the broken in heart."

The prophet here gives us a picture of utter desolation. He assumes the absence of those things characteristic and necessary to eastern life. The trees have forgotten to blossom, and stand naked and cheerless as disrobed by the stormy blasts. The vine, proverbial of eastern lands, is destitute of its accustomed supply of fruit. The olive has failed to yield her oil to gladden the darkness of night. The corn and wheat of the field appear only as blades of grass. And to add to the loneliness, the shepherd's flock, his constant and loving companions, comes no longer at his call, and the lowing of his herd reminds him no more of "the cattle upon a thousand hills."

As the prophet contemplates this scene of desolation, he remembers Him who is above the reach of storm, and fire, and pestilence, and destruction, and yet who stoops to recognize the wants and woes of the creatures of his hand, and to pity them in their weakness, "as a father pitieth his children." And as these thoughts fill his mind, he breaks forth in this song of triumphant trust—"Yet I will rejoice in the Lord. I will joy in the God of my salvation."

This passage was designed to teach us a very important lesson. It is this—Trust in God, however dark and discouraging the circumstances of your life may appear. Though every thing of interest to you seems draped for the grave, trust in God. Though you are called to bury your fondest hopes and plans in a life of self-denial, and to tread in weariness the path of suffering and neglect, still trust in God. Though you can see no pleasant providences to remind you of the care of a watchful Father, yet look up and say, I know that my Redeemer liveth, and I will trust in him. "Weeping may endure for a night, but joy cometh in the morning."

"Judge not the Lord by feeble sense,
But trust him for his grace;
Behind a frowning providence
He hides a smiling face.
Blind unbelief is sure to err,
And scan his work in vain;
God is his own interpreter,
And he will make it plain."

PURE RELIGION.

J. B. CLARK.

What is pure religion? In the first place it is not a belief, or intellectual assent to any theological dogma or creed whatever; it is no idle, inactive, inoperative, fabulous belief in tenets of doctrine; but it is that belief through the heart into righteousness, which begets in us the faith that worketh by love and purifies the heart, which shows itself in love to God and our neighbor, and brings our wills into complete obedience to the will of God in all the duties of this life. It is a sound, pure, spiritual condition, which enables us to pray—"Thy kingdom come."

The natural man cannot please God. There must be a conversion, a change, a turning round. Before conversion a man is going hell-ward, but on being converted he is faced about, and is in a condition to set out for the heavenly country. The work is now fairly begun. The man is tempted of the devil, and wonders if he was really ever converted to God. The battle waxes hotter, and the man thinks his new heart is but little if any better than his old one; and so he doubts, and fears, and prays that he may receive the blessing of sanctification, or something that will place him in that condition where he never will have another trial, or be so tempted of the devil. The work is but just begun; the wilderness must be crossed before we reach the promised land. We should not be contriving how to escape temptation and trials, but how to overcome and be purified by these adversaries.

The Lord permits many things to try us, that we may be purified and fit for that holier state of the redeemed. It is our conduct that develops character, and by our characters we are known, and it will decide our future destiny. If our characters correspond with the Bible, then our religion is pure, our faith in God, our hope a good one. We are to do the commandments of God, and not say them merely. Such as do the will of God are governed by principle, have eternal life abiding in them, because they believe on the Son of God. We have the witness of his Spirit, and we can know that we have passed from death unto life, and that we possess this good religion that guides us in this wicked world and will save us in the world to come.

SOME THOUGHTS ON MATT. 24.

J. B. MOONEY.

"And Jesus went out and departed from the temple, and his disciples came to him for to show him the buildings of the temple. And Jesus said unto them, See ye not all these things? Verily I say unto you, There shall not be left here one stone upon another that shall not be thrown down."

These words created a desire in the disciples to know more about the future. "And as he sat upon the mount of Olives the disciples came unto him privately saying, Tell us when shall these things be, and what shall be the sign of thy coming and of the end of the world." He did not upbraid them for asking questions, but proceeded to give them an outline of events that should take place between that time and the end of the world. Among other things Christ cautions them to let no man deceive them; then spake of wars, famines, pestilences, earthquakes, sorrows, afflictions, hatred, betrayal, false prophets, iniquity, and the love of many waxing cold, "but he that shall endure unto the end, the same shall be saved. And this gospel of the kingdom shall be preached in all the world for a witness unto all nations; and then shall the end come." This may embrace the whole gospel dispensation, but more particularly the time of the end.

We have now reached the end of this dispensation. He now takes us back to the commencement of the little horn power and says, "When ye therefore shall see the abomination of desolation spoken of by Daniel the prophet stand in the holy place (whoso readeth let him understand), then [an adverb of time] let them which be in Judea flee into the mountains." When you see the abomination of desolation stand in the holy place. When was that? A. D. 538, many of our brethren tell us, and it could not have been much before that; if it had, the 1335 days would have ended before this time. It is thought by some because christians in Judea are advised to flee into the mountains when they see the abomination stand in the holy place, that it refers to the destruction of Jerusalem; and the abomination is the Roman army; the holy place was the city or temple. If they will compare Luke 21: 20, 21 with Matt. 24: 15, 16, they will see that they do not mean one and the same thing; for in Luke they are advised to flee when they see the city encompassed with armies. The army is not in the holy place while outside of the city wall, if the city or temple is what is meant by the holy place. When the Roman army got in there they must flee a second time. The abomination is something different from the Roman army; and standing in the holy place means something quite different from standing in the city.

In my opinion, Paul's man of sin, "who opposeth and exalteth himself above all that is called God, or that is worshiped, so that he as God sitteth in the temple of God, showing himself that he is God," is what is meant by standing in the holy place. "Let him which is on the housetop not come down to take anything out of his house." Why? because if seen with a load of his household effects making towards a mountain, it would cause suspicion. So with the man in the field, and the women, in the eighteenth and nineteenth verses, if they made any move that was not common. "But pray ye that your flight be not in the winter, neither on the Sabbath day." If in the winter, it might cause a great deal of suffering; if on the Sabbath, it might be against the law, and there would be more to notice their flight, as they were not employed about their daily avocations.

"For then shall be great tribulation, such as was not since the beginning of the world to this time, no, nor ever shall be." Some think this was also fulfilled at the destruction of Jerusalem, which was destroyed for the wickedness of its inhabitants. Was this the greatest time of trouble that ever was or ever should be? The antediluvians were destroyed for the same cause, and were much more numerous probably; for the earth had been inhabited between sixteen and seventeen hundred years. The cities of the plain also were destroyed for their wicked works, and quite likely the number of their inhabitants was as large as that of Jerusalem. But as this is not positive proof that the inhabitants of Jerusalem were not the greater sufferers up to the time of their overthrow or dispersion, we will now turn to Dan. 12: 1—"And at that time shall Michael stand up, the great prince which standeth for the children of thy people; and there shall be a time of trouble, such as never was since there was a nation even to that same time; and at that time thy people shall be delivered, every one that shall be found written in the book." This time of trouble is in the future, but is to be such a time of trouble as never was since there was a nation. The tribulation spoken of in Matt. 24: 21, was such as never was before, and never should be after it. How to get these two troubles upon the same class of people without making the Bible contradict itself, I do not know; but if the tribulation in Matthew is upon christians, all is plain. The persecution by the abomination, or Paul's man of sin, was to be the greatest that ever was, or ever should be, upon God's people.

"And except those days should be shortened, there should no flesh be saved; but for the elect's sake those days shall be shortened." What does Jesus mean by "those days"? He referred to Dan. 12: 11—"From the time that the daily sacrifice shall be taken away, and the abomination that maketh desolate set up, there shall be a thousand two hundred and ninety days." This seems to be the passage referred to by our Savior, but he does not tell us here how much they shall be shortened. But in his revelation to John on the isle of Patmos this same persecuting power is spoken of as continuing twelve hundred and sixty days, or years. As these are year-days, which have been proved by their fulfillment, which is thirty short of the number given in Daniel, if the 1290 are shortened to 1260 they must have the same starting point; and if the end of the 1260 is marked, as it is thought to be, by the taking of the pope by a French general, who carried him to France in 1798, where he died and his kingdom was made a republic; if this be the end of the 1260, we know where the 1290 ended without any particular event to mark their termination. "For wheresoever the carcass [recorded in Luke—body] is, thither will the eagles be gathered together." Heb. 10: 5—"Wherefore when he cometh into the world he saith, Sacrifice and offering thou wouldest not, but a body hast thou prepared me"; referring to Christ. Ex. 19: 4—"Ye have seen what I did unto the Egyptians, and how I bare you on eagles' wings and brought you unto myself." Rev. 12: 14—"And to the woman were given two wings of a great eagle, that she might fly into the wilderness into her place." This looks as though the saints might be compared to eagles.

"Immediately after the tribulation of those days shall the sun be darkened, and the moon shall not give her light; and the stars shall fall from heaven, and the powers of the heavens shall be shaken." There are a few yet living who remember the darkening of the sun and moon, and many that saw the stars fall; yet there are but few who take them as signs of the coming of the Lord. What are the powers of the heavens? May they not be the laws that govern the heavenly bodies? It is admitted by old people that we cannot foretell the weather by signs as we could a few years since.

"And then shall appear the sign of the Son of man in heaven; and then shall all the tribes of the earth mourn, and they shall see the Son of man coming in the clouds of heaven with power and great glory." There are different opinions in regard to this sign. Some think the other signs taken collectively constitute the sign of the Son of man; others, that it will be a light that will precede his coming; and a few think it may be the departing of the heavens named in Rev. 6: 14—"And the heaven departed as a scroll when it is rolled together [this coming in immediately after the other signs and what follows in this chapter]; and every mountain and island were moved out of their places. And the kings of the earth, and the great men, and the rich men, and the chief captains, and the mighty men, and every bondman, and every freeman, hid themselves in the dens and in the rocks of the mountains, and said to the mountains and rocks, Fall on us, and hide us from the face of Him that sitteth upon the throne, and from the wrath of the Lamb; for the great day of his wrath is come, and who shall be able to stand?" This looks like all the tribes of the earth mourning, or being in despair.

"Oh that thou wouldest rend the heavens, that thou wouldest come down." Isa. 64: 1. "So man lieth down, and riseth not; till the heavens be no more they shall not awake nor be raised out of their sleep." Job 14: 12. According to these scriptures, the heavens will depart before the resurrection. "And he shall send his angels with a great sound of a trumpet, and they shall gather together his elect from the four winds, from one end of heaven to the other." This gathering of the saints is after the Son of man is seen coming in the clouds of heaven.

"Now learn a parable of the fig-tree. When his branch is yet tender and putteth forth leaves, ye know that summer is nigh; so likewise ye, when ye shall see all these things, know that it [he] is nigh, even at the doors. Verily I say unto you, this generation shall not pass till all these things be fulfilled." If the generation that saw the darkening of the sun and moon do not all pass away till the Lord comes, we certainly have reason to believe that time will soon close up. "Heaven and earth shall pass away, but my words shall not pass away."

RESURRECTION AND LIFE.

"I am the resurrection and the life; he that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shall he live."

Blessed words of comfort. How soothingly they fall on the stricken heart. Death shall not always fold our sleeping ones in his icy arms. He who burst the fetters of death and ascended to the "right hand of the throne of the Majesty on high," is coming again, and

"Will bring his saints all back, as he hath risen,
With life and being, endless as his own."

Weeds of mourning will give place to robes of gladness, tears to smiles, and bitter sighs to songs of praise. The death-knell shall never fall on the ear, nor the funeral dirge be borne on the passing breeze. All faces will bear the impress of fadeless beauty.

"Leaves have their time to fall,
And flowers to wither at the north wind's breath,
And stars to set—but all,
Thou hast all seasons for thine own, O death!"

The helpless infant and the strong man lie side by side in the narrow charnel-house. The blooming maiden and the aged grandmother rest together beneath the clods of the valley. Death lays his withering hand upon the infant in its mother's arms. How anxiously she watches its painful struggle with the unequal foe. How closely she folds it to her bosom as though she would give it of her own life, and shield it from death's icy touch. Words cannot tell the anguish of the mother's heart. She suffers with her suffering child. And when it breathes its last in her arms, and sinks into the death sleep, how bitterly she weeps to think that the life but just begun should end so soon. Mother! "refrain thy voice from weeping, and thine eyes from tears; for thy work shall be rewarded, saith the Lord; and they shall come again from the land of the enemy."

In the midst of joy and gladness, the sad notes of the church-bell fell on the ear, telling each listener that death had taken another from the busy scenes of life. Yesterday in health, the comfort and support of loved ones, to-day numbered with the pale nations of the dead, cut down in the strength of manhood, without warning. Death did its work so suddenly that he had not been missed from his accustomed place. A struggle and a groan, and then his eyes closed in death. Paralyzed with grief, loved ones gazed upon the marble features of the dead for the last time, and bore him to his resting-place beneath the willows. Parents infirm with age bowed beneath their great sorrow; a brother's tears fell on his coffined form, and a loving sister wept over his untimely death (if the death of one who falls asleep in Jesus can ever be called an untimely one). Sister! "thy brother shall rise again."

"Bury the dead, and weep
In silence o'er thy loss;
Bury the dead, in Christ they sleep,
Who bore on earth his cross;
And from the grave their dust shall rise
In his own image to the skies."

"Sown in corruption, raised in incorruption."

"Oh, change! stupendous change!"

"They which shall be accounted worthy to obtain that world, and the resurrection from the dead," shall live forever. Stricken heart, look up! "Weeping may endure for a night, but joy cometh in the morning." Even now the orient sky is radiant with the coming glory. Soon the voice that of yore called Lazarus from the embrace of death, will call to life our sleeping ones.

"Asleep in Jesus, blessed sleep!
From which none ever wake to weep."

The home circle is broken now. Two of its number have passed from its sacred precincts to the rest of the grave. O, it was so hard to leave them sleeping the death sleep, and go back to the home that they had made so happy, to miss their smiling faces through all the long years. Father, mother, and darling sister, you may weep, for

——"When sudden grief was rending
Human hearts in sorrow bending,—
When he saw the sisters weeping,
Where the brother's form was sleeping,
Jesus wept."

He sympathizes with you in your great sorrow. He knows how much you loved them, and how sadly you miss them. Look to him for comfort and consolation, and let not the glorious future be forgotten in the sorrows of the present.

"Beyond the flight of time—
Beyond the reign of death—
There surely is some blessed clime,
Where life is not a breath;
Nor life's affection's transient fire,
Whose sparks fly upward and expire!
There is a world to come,
Where parting is unknown;
A long eternity of love,
Formed for the good alone;
And faith beholds the dying here
Translated to that glorious sphere!"

This deep affliction is one of the "all things" which "work together for good to them that love God."

"O, the mists of doubt are all scattered by faith,
For it sees the dead live again;
From this world of sin, when the earth shall quake,
From the shadow of death our dead shall awake,
Together with them we'll ascend."

Tears dim my eyes as I think of them. We were friends and playmates in childhood, and ere sin's alluring pleasures had thrown its chain around us, we gave our hearts to Jesus, and became sisters by adoption into the family of God. Together we knelt in prayer, and read, sung, and talked of Him who came to seek and save the lost, little thinking that death would soon separate us. I miss them, oh! so sadly, yet would not call them back. They have passed beyond the reach of sorrow and suffering. The eyes, whose look of love brought sunshine to my heart, are closed in death. The hands that used to smooth my aching brow so tenderly are folded for the dreamless sleep. The lips that were pressed to mine so many times are cold and silent now. I listen in vain for the tender, loving words which used to greet my ears, and then my thoughts turn to that happy future,

"Where the links that bind our souls by death,
Shall never be broken more;
But a better life, with its quickening breath,
Shall every charm restore."

Savior! come and gather us to that blessed land.

"Roses bloom and then they wither,
Cheeks grow bright, then fade and die."

Life had many charms for them, and they shrank from death's cold embrace; but the arms of Him who said, "Lo, I am with you alway," encircled them, and he passed with them down the steep declivity to the river of death, and stood beside them, and comforted them till its cold waves rolled over them.

After weeks of pain and suffering, one fell asleep when the winter snows were falling. The other lingered till the month of roses, then she too fell asleep, and stricken hearts laid her to rest beside the sister whose grave was yet wet with her tears. And now, though the impress of death rests on them, they are in the sacred keeping of the Lord of life. I mourn for them, yet not without hope—

"For I trust that we shall meet again,
On that river's radiant shore,
Where there's no more death, nor grief, nor pain,
And they say 'Good by' no more."

When the voice of the archangel awakens the sleepers they will come again, blooming with immortal beauty.

"Then sweet it will be in that beautiful land,
When free from all sorrow and pain,
With songs on our lips, and harps in our hands,
To meet one another again."

CHEERFULNESS.

A. L. ADAMS.

Cheerfulness is a cardinal virtue, and one of the principal ingredients of happiness; the best of medicines. All religion that habitually wears a long face, and moves only in a cloud of death-like solemnity, is extraneous to true piety. The disciple of Jesus has much to make him sad, but far more to make him happy. "Sorrowful, yet always rejoicing," is Paul's brief but forcible summary of the christian's state of mind.

That the All-Father is pleased to have his children be cheerful, I have no doubt. All happiness is in the mind alone; the heart gives expression to the features. We should cultivate the art of cheerfulness in severe trials. That vessel is of but little worth that cannot outride the storm. Gloom thickens sorrow, but a smile drives away trouble. It should be our chief delight to offer acceptable praise to heaven; but there can be no giving of thanks that will meet the divine favor that is not rendered with a willing and cheerful heart.

There is no credit in manifesting a sweet temper when the stream of life runs smoothly. That faith is of little worth that cannot look above perplexities up to the shining courts of heaven, and say, "Thy will be done"; I will trust Thee.

Contentment is the twin-sister of Cheerfulness. Faith is her father, and Love is her mother. Hope is her brother; and to make all around her happy is her mission. I would not be forever looking through a microscope to discover a neighbor's darkness, but rather looking through a telescope to behold the joys of heaven. There is nothing that will reproduce itself so surely and so quickly as a healthy smile and a loving word, unless it be a frown and a scold.

There is no other key so adept in unlocking human hearts as cheerfulness coupled with kindness. Try it and prove me. Virtue never wears a frown. Satan often wears a very pretty smile, but it is only a counterfeit. Heaven never will admit a gloomy doubt. Look up and smile from the heart. Remember—"A merry heart doeth good like a medicine; but a broken spirit drieth up the bones."

REMEMBER JESUS.

J. W. THOMAS.

"This do in remembrance of me."—Luke 22: 19.

What a privilege it is to gather around an earthly board and celebrate the death and sufferings of our blessed Lord. Never do I administer that sacred ordinance or partake of the broken emblems of His body, but deep solemnity fills my heart; yet there is joy mingled with it. Solemnity as I remember the past, and joy as I contemplate the future. O! that my heart might melt in tenderness and my eyes overflow with tears as I think of the love of my dying Lord. How can I ever forget that long dark night when the Savior left the upper chamber and wended his way to the lonely garden of Gethsemane? No wonder his soul was "exceeding sorrowful, even unto death," as the hour of darkness rolled upon him. Well might he pray for the cup to pass, as the tragic scenes of Calvary come up before his mind. His sufferings no tongue can tell or pen describe, yet in meekness he bore them all and gave his life for his enemies.

It was on the night of his betrayal that he instituted the ordinance which we call the Lord's Supper. He was going away. His disciples could not go with him, nor follow him; but he wanted to leave something for them to observe by which they might always keep him in remembrance. When they had made ready and were all seated around the table in the upper room, then Jesus took bread and gave thanks, and brake it, and gave to them, saying—"This is my body which is given for you; this do in remembrance of me." Likewise also the cup after supper, saying, This cup is the new testament in my blood, which is shed for you." This ordinance was to be observed then in commemoration of an absent friend. That friend is Jesus. This do in remembrance of me. Over eighteen hundred years have passed, but Jesus is not forgotten. There are some who still keep him in remembrance. If we go away on a long journey, to be absent some time, it gives us pleasure to know that our friends keep us in remembrance. Must it not then be pleasing to Jesus to look down and see his friends observing this ordinance in remembrance of him?

By this act we also confess our faith. Paul says—"For as often as ye eat this bread, and drink this cup, ye do show the Lord's death till he come." This is an outward and visible act by which we show to all around us that we believe in the death of Christ as the foundation of our faith, and in his coming again as the consummation of our hope. What a blessed attitude is this—standing in grace with our faith resting on the cross and our hope on the crown. Many do not understand this. They can see his death, but they have no hope in his second coming. But so it reads—"As oft as ye do it, ye do show the Lord's death till he come."

Let us keep him in remembrance. Only a little while, and he will come again. How glad his saints will be to see him. Then he will wipe away their tears. O joyful day! when our absent Brother comes back.

CORRECT LANDMARKS.

F. BURR.

As I was riding over the open prairies of Illinois, east of the village of New Rutland, one fine spring morning, I came across some men who were tearing and digging the earth, in the road and by its side, with picks and shovels, as if they were searching for something very valuable that was covered there somewhere. I asked them what they were searching for so carefully. They told me they were trying to find a small stone that was covered there somewhere. Now in the east this would be needless, for stones are plenty there, and it would seem strange to find a place where there were none, but on these prairies they are seldom seen. There was one near where these men were digging, but they could not easily find it. It was only a common stone. I asked them what they wanted it for. They said it was put there for a landmark, and they wanted to find it so they could run a straight line from it, and measure off a piece of land.

I asked them why they were so particular. A few inches was not much in the starting point. But they said it would make many acres difference in the result. They would not measure a single chain until they found that stone, if it took them days to find it.

I asked them how they knew there was a stone there. They said the records gave an account of its being there, and the records were true. I went on and left them, and when I returned in the afternoon the stone had been found, and the line measured for the land.

And as I rode on I was led to reflect on this as an illustration of the necessity of being careful of the old landmarks and measurements. The Lord has laid down certain landmarks of truth by which we are to be guided in our service to him, and yet how often men get careless about them.

Christ and his teachings are the landmarks laid down for us. And yet men think they can get along very well without Christ. They think they can choose some other guide and do just as well. But the result in the end will show their folly. As it is impossible for men to measure land correctly without due regard to the starting point and landmarks, so it is as impossible to arrive at correct results in the way of life without beginning with Christ, and following the directions given in the record, which is the Bible.

These men were looking for a particular stone in a paticular spot. No other would do, for that place was marked by that one stone alone. So in the christian's life, Christ must be found, and no other. And he occupies the very place the record indicates, and no where else. As other stones might be found to closely resemble the one these men were looking for, so other characters may be found resembling Christ and deceive many.

But as these men wanted the stone that lay in that particular place, so we must find the Christ of the Bible if we would be correct. And as a slight variation from the stone at starting would produce serious results at last, so unless we start with Christ we shall certainly fail at last.

Then let us be particular in this work. Have we found Christ? Is he the Christ of the Bible? And are we working upon the line the record gives us? O that men would be as faithful in eternal things as in temporal! The kingdom of God is to be reached. A little deviation and we may miss it. Let us be prayerful. Some have tried to hide the landmarks. Let us find them again. Search on and have faith, as these men had, that the record is true.

O for a church with overcoming faith! Then we shall have the correct landmarks.

— A hidden light soon becomes dim, and if it be entirely covered up, will expire for want of air. So it is with hidden religion. It must go out. There cannot be a christian whose light in some aspect does not shine.

NEVADA.

We closed our meetings in Nevada, the California mountain-city, last evening, April 21st. The theatre was crowded to hear the evidences that show we are near the second coming of Christ. The audience was intelligent, and included many of the leading men of the city. The attention was all a speaker could desire. The hour was solemn, and a deep impression seemed to rest upon the people that these things are true, and demand the serious and immediate attention of all candid persons. A strong representation from the various churches appeared in the congregation. A goodly number of these have become well convinced that we have been preaching the true doctrine of the Bible. An intelligent lady and church member was heard to remark in substance as follows—"What shall we do? Shall we confess and support the truth, as we have heard it preached of late in the theatre by Elder Grant? or shall we uphold our ministers, who oppose him and preach what we now see is not taught in the Sacred Scriptures?" We have not heard the decision. It is a serious question, and important results are involved. It is very evident that many ministers occupy the same relation to the people as did the Pharisees at the first advent of our Savior. One minister in Nevada was heard to say that he would not go to hear us preach, if we staid seven years. Is such an one prepared to judge correctly of what we preach? Some of his members were much quickened and benefited by attending. Another minister, who would not come, proposes to review us when we are away. Some thought he would be better prepared to do so, if he had heard before he commenced his review.

At the commencement of the meetings, we found much indifference about religious matters; but a blessed change has taken place. We heard it remarked by a careful observer that the Bible had been read more in the city last week than within two years. There has been earnest searching for proof of the immortality of the soul, but to their surprise none has been found. The people begin to wonder where the ministers find proof to sustain the doctrine they have been teaching. They think it is time to call for a reason of their hope. They wish to know whether it is founded upon a "thus saith the Lord," or upon human fables and opinions.

The prospect is very encouraging for Nevada. Several have joined the "covenant," and a union prayer-meeting is appointed for Sabbath afternoon. Prominent church members are satisfied that we have preached the truth, and are ready to give their sympathy and material aid for its support. The Baptist minister is deeply interested, and is giving the subject a careful examination. He is much fettered by surrounding circumstances, but we hope he will be able to overcome all obstacles, and hold up the light before the people. He needs and deserves the prayers of the faithful. The superintendent of his Sabbath school is firmly settled in the "blessed hope," and is ready to do what he can to help spread these glorious truths. We found him a true-hearted man. Bro. and Sr. C. L. Percival are here from Canada. Their hearts are in the work. Bro. P. has made a new consecration of his all to Jesus, and stands ready to do anything that he knows would be pleasing to his Lord. He has preached in former years. He thinks of returning soon to his home in Massawippi, Canada.

We have reason to thank the Lord for our visit to Nevada. We hope to see some in the kingdom as the fruits of the meetings. There is a great change for the better in the minds of many. Satan has a strong hold of the people in these mining districts. The love of money has been the ruling passion, and the roots of evil that have sprung from it have been abundant. Most of the original miners are but wrecks financially, physically, and morally. Nevada is a healthy city, and a good place for an invalid, especially a consumptive, to recover his health. The scenery is wild, very hilly, but rather romantic and pleasant, because it is ever-varying. But for the gold, no one would have thought of making a home here at first. This year has been very prosperous to the miners, because of the abundance of rains, which are so necessary for the placer mining. As we took our last look at the city, we felt assured that our hope was of more value than all the gold ever taken from the mines.

"THE COMING OF THE LORD."—Under the above heading, our readers will find an excellent article from Bro. Boutell.

HOMEWARD BOUND.

We are now (9.30 A. M., April 23d) about half way from San Francisco to Ogden, where we hope to arrive to-morrow morning, about 6½ o'clock. The weather is fine, quite warm enough to be pleasant. We are passing through the Humboldt Valley, surrounded by mountains whose tops are covered with snow. There is so much alkali in the soil of the plain that it cannot be made very productive of grass or grains. Sage brush is the principal thing that grows. The surface of the soil looks as white as it would if covered with lime. Cattle will do pretty well on this brush. Some parts of the plain produces grass, where large herds of cattle are fattened for market. The beef is said to be very good. This extensive plain is over four thousand feet above the level of the sea. There are no trees on the plain or the surrounding mountain. In wet places there are a few bushes. All seems like a barren waste, and will probably thus remain till the end of time.

We left Nevada for Colfax yesterday, about one P. M., in company with Bro. Percival, who took us there by private conveyance. On our way we passed through Grass Valley, where extensive mining has been carried on for over twenty years. This place is four miles from Nevada, and twelve miles from Colfax. At the latter place, is the R. R. station for Nevada and Grass Valley. The teams for transportation consist of six and eight horses or mules, with two huge wagons fastened together. A railroad is much needed to Nevada. We took the cars about 6 P. M., and commenced our winding course up the mountains, passing through Gold Run and Dutch Flats, well known as rich mining towns, where a vast amount of earth has been washed away in pursuit of gold. At the Dutch Flat station, we had the pleasure of shaking hands with Bro. and Sr. Wolcott Ford, who formerly lived in West Winsted, Ct. We were together much during our early christian experience, and enjoyed precious seasons in prayer and class-meetings. He has been in California for many years. We only had time for hearty greetings, but felt thankful for this favor. He put four nice apples into our hands, and we gave him two copies of the Crisis, said "good bye," hoping to meet again in the kingdom of God.

Before reaching Gold Run, when about two and one half miles above Colfax, we passed the famous Cape Horn, where we ride in a groove around a spur of the mountain, and can look down from the cars two thousand feet into the awful chasm below, where the American river is seen running like a silver cord between the towering mountains on either side. Such sights are rare, and pay well for the fatigue of a long journey. As we pass on, other scenes of sublimity are multiplied by the way, presenting a view which is said to be unsurpassed. Those who love to look at mountains and deep ravines, combined upon a grand scale, will have a rare feast when they take a rail-road trip to California. To form some idea of this wonderful scenery, suppose a number of mountains crowded together, some two thousand five hundred feet high, which are split from top to bottom, having the sides covered with pines and cedars, while others grow up from the deep bottom, a few rods wide. One might suppose these mountains had been split open by earthquakes. Imagine several railroads cut in various directions through high mountains, and you would get a very good idea of the shape of these canyons, as they are called. The trees and shrubbery add greatly to the beauty of this wild scenery, and afford very fine studies for the skillful landscape painter, which some have improved. We think Bro. Samuel Walker, of San Francisco, who painted for us a fine view of the "Golden Gate," would have a rich feast among the Sierra mountains. We will not detain our readers longer with these things, but really wish they could see them. They can't be appreciated till they are seen. If any wish to travel to witness rare natural sights, go to California.

As we have been riding to-day across this western wild, we have been thinking over the happy seasons we have enjoyed with our choice friends on the Pacific coast. They seem specially dear to us, because of their ardent attachment to Jesus and his word. They have a warm place in our affections. How gladly would we greet them again on the shores of time; but if not, we hope to see them soon, with other dear ones, where the sorrows of parting will be forever unknown, and where friendship's joys will be eternal.

AT HOME.—We arrived home in safety, Wednesday evening, May 1st, and found all things well, for which we thank the Lord.

HOW END SIN?

"Sin when it is finished bringeth forth death."—JAS. 1: 15.

Where there is free agency, there are but two ways to end sin: (1) do right voluntarily; (2) destroy the sinner. The Lord offers us our choice. So long as man is a free agent, the Lord cannot force him to do right. Men set a high value upon their freedom, and all the world are seeking to secure it, where it has been crippled by usurpers. The Lord invites us into the way of holiness; he entreats us to come; and after all this, some men are so unreasonable as to blame him because he does not force them to come; thus taking away their free agency, one of the noblest gifts to man. We prize the power of choice. If we choose the broad way to destruction, it is our own fault; for the Lord has urged us to take the other road that leads to life eternal. He says: "Turn ye, turn ye, from your evil ways, for why will ye die?" This is the voice of a friend.

Why not turn and live for ever? Why compel the Lord to destroy, when he is so anxious to save us? Sin must be finished after the judgment. It is for ever settled in heaven that sin shall not continue eternally. This is right. No fault can be found when a worthless object is destroyed. There is no way to end sin, only to destroy all who will not confess and forsake their "evil ways." It will soon be decided whether we shall live for ever, or die the second death. Let us be the disciples of Christ, and secure eternal life.

OUR PRIVILEGE.

It is our privilege to enjoy "perfect love" which casts out all fear. It is our privilege to have a clear evidence that we are cleansed from all sin; to live without condemnation every day in the year. If such is our privilege, is it not also our duty to be in such a condition? It is the privilege of wicked men to obtain pardon of all their sins; is it not as truly their duty? All are commanded to repent, and all are commanded to be holy. "Be ye holy, for I am holy," saith the Lord. Then it follows that it is our privilege to be holy, which is certainly a very exalted and desirable one. We love to have clean clothes, and clean persons; shall we have a weaker desire for a clean heart? Is the Lord pleased with us when we are contented to remain in sin? Christ "was manifested to take away our sins, and in him is no sin." Shall we not willingly come to a position where he can do this great work for us? Is it possible that any one, who truly believes in the speedy coming of Christ, can be opposed to preaching the doctrine of holiness of heart, perfect love, freedom from sin and condemnation? "There is therefore now no condemnation to them which are in Christ Jesus, who walk not after the flesh, but after the Spirit." If one can be in this happy condition, why not all? If one is required to be pure in heart, all are. When it is said that without "holiness" "no man shall see the Lord," can we expect to see him unless we are holy? Satan knows full well that we cannot be saved in our sins; hence he is doing all in his power to suppress the doctrine of holiness of heart. He would have the followers of Jesus believe that they cannot live without sin; but he is a deceiver, and resorting to all possible means to prevent any interest in the doctrine of holiness of heart. Thank the Lord that so many are waking up to this all-important subject; and many know from happy experience what it is to have a clean heart.

We wish those who know the peace and joy that arise from a pure heart would write out condensed accounts of their experiences for the Crisis. Those who truly love Jesus are always deeply interested in such articles. Their effect is blessed. These reports should be given, because they magnify Jesus, showing what he can do for us. The more he does, the more we should tell it to the world, that others may be encouraged to draw near to the Lord. A half-hearted christianity does not do honor to Jesus. It is freely admitted that he pardons all our sins at the time of conversion; then can he not keep us clean? It is certainly a Bible doctrine, that Christ's disciples may live free from sin and condemnation. We cannot be without condemnation till we are free from sin.

We believe there is no subject that should receive the special attention of those looking for the speedy coming of Christ more than that of holiness of heart. Whenever a church takes hold of this subject, harmoniously seeking for perfect love and purity, the blessing of the Lord is sure to follow. It pleases our Redeemer to see his children presenting their bodies a living sacrifice. Let us all do it, and thus be ready to meet our dear Savior.

WHY NEGLECT IT?

It is encouraging to know that many are waking up to the importance of studying the book of the Revelation, as given to St. John. In the Pacific, an able religious paper, published in San Francisco, we find the following, in that paper dated March 14th, 1872:

WHY NEGLECT THE BOOK OF REVELATION?

Is there not a general antipathy to the book of Revelation in the churches? Are not the reading and study of it generally neglected by ministers and christians? Ought this to be so? Because reckless commentators and enthusiasts have abused it and made fools of themselves in its interpretation, or used it to prop up absurd theories, is that any reason why it should be abused by sober christians?

Is it not the word of God? Is there not a special blessing pronounced upon those who read, hear, and keep the things written therein? To what other book of the Bible is there prefixed such a promise? Does not the promise mean something? Is it not worth regarding?

Is there not a general agreement as to the object of the book—to map out the future history of the church, and assure believers of the ultimate success and glorious triumph of that kingdom for which we are laboring and looking?

And is there not also a substantial agreement among the best expositors, as to the meaning and general application of its symbols? Leaving out erratic and designing writers who are committed to a theory, and taking the more judicious, and common sense commentators, and the difference of views is not wide,—not so wide as to annul or seriously damage the profitable study of the book. The fact that plain sense, an unprejudiced mind, and prayer, are the best helps in understanding the Bible, is as fully applicable to the book of Revelation, as to any other book of the Bible; and if so read and taught, it cannot but be of great profit to both pulpit and pew.

The progress of events in these last days, the rapid changes and advancement of nations, the success of the gospel, the wide facility of transit and diffusion of knowledge, the condition of the papacy, the waning of papal kingdoms, the Jewish world in its relation to prophecies yet future, and new forms of unbelief—all tend to awaken the interest of intelligent christians in this book, whose prophecies in these very events are having their fulfillment.

Why should we not strive—not to peer into the future—but to keep pace with the fulfillment of prophecy as the events make them evident, or at least be so familiar with the book as to be in a condition to recognize striking fulfillments when they do occur. Does not the author of the book demand this of his people?

It is not only evident that the prophecies in the book of Revelation have been neglected, but also the prophecies of Daniel. It is high time that these all-important portions of the sacred scriptures should receive increased attention from the pulpit and the press. Their last jots and titles are fulfilling before our eyes; and yet but few watchmen dare say anything on these subjects lest they be thought to favor those who are looking for the speedy coming of Christ. A desire for worldly honor has a powerful influence over the pulpit in these last days. Satan well knows the strength of this feeling, and when and where to turn it to his advantage. This is the time for the preacher of the gospel to be dead to the praise or censure of a scoffing world. Let him seek only to please the Lord. If his good name must be sacrificed for Jesus and his word, let him do it cheerfully. The day is at hand when the faithful steward will receive his welcome into his paradise home. Till then, let him face the storm without a murmur.

THE END.—The end of the present dispensation must be near. Bro. B. Taylor inquires for our views in relation to the coming of Christ in 1873. We can heartily say, so far as we are personally concerned, we should be greatly rejoiced to be satisfied he would come as soon as 1873; but the evidence presented does not convince us that we shall see the Savior next year. We see a large "IF" in the way. We think the evidence for 1875 much stronger. There are certain events which we think must transpire before the coming of Christ. When we see those in process of fulfillment, then we may expect his immediate coming. We do not say they cannot transpire between now and the close of 1873, but we think more time will be required. Let us all wait and watch and pray.

NEW TRACT.

Second Edition, Revised and Enlarged,
OF
"THE COMING REIGN OF TERROR,"
Or, The Commune.
BY WM. N. PILE.

The first edition of five thousand copies of this work being exhausted, a second edition is now published. It contains about twelve pages of entirely new matter, besides retaining all the more important matter of the first edition. The past working of Spiritualism, Infidelity, Socialism, Free-Love, and the Commune, are shown to have produced the "reign of terror" of 1792 in France, and then the analogies between that period and the present are drawn, to show that we are on the verge of another "reign of terror." Special attention is given to the "International Society," and its latest developments shown. This tract is well calculated to awaken an interest in the speedy coming of the Lord. Notwithstanding the increased size, the price is unchanged.

For sale at this office. Price, by mail, single copy, 7 cts.; five copies, 30 cts.; ten copies, 50 cts.; fifty copies, $2.00; one hundred copies, by express, $3.50. AG'T.

Also sold by the author at Springfield, Mass.

BOSTON.—We had a good day with the Boston church yesterday (May 5th), at the corner of Causeway and Lowell streets. The audiences were large, and the interest excellent. Some six or eight rose for prayers in the evening.

CALIFORNIA DISCUSSION.—In the Advent Review and Herald of the Sabbath, for April 30th, we find a report of our discussion of the Seventh-day Sabbath question in San Francisco, with Eld. M. E. Cornell, which contains his statements in his last speech, concerning which, we have received the following, signed by fifty persons who attended the debate:—

"To whom it may concern:—This is to certify that Elder M. E. Cornell's last speech in his debate with Elder Miles Grant, in this city, was a series of misrepresentations of Elder Grant's remarks and positions."

THE Cincinnati liberal political convention nominated Horace Greeley, editor of the New York Tribune, for the next President of the United States; and B. Gratz Brown, of Mo., for Vice President.

OUR DIGESTION.—This is the title of a new book by Dr. Dio Lewis, of Boston. The work is very neatly bound, containing 407 octavo pages. It is one of those books that should be in every family, because it contains valuable information that all persons really need to secure the highest degree of physical, mental, and spiritual welfare. The Dr. very properly remarks: "What we want is a christian table, and a public sentiment which shall instinctively apply the words christian and unchristian to our food as well as to our morals." Those who wish to make the most of this present life, cannot afford to be without this book. For sale at the Crisis office. Price postpaid, $2.50.

A NEW BOOK.—Bro. D. F. Newton, of New York, is about to issue another new book. Judging from the title, and our knowledge of what Bro. N. has written, we think the work will be valuable to those who wish to live a pure christian life. The following from the title-page, will give some idea of the character of the book:—

"Digging Roots. Lying and making Liars. White Lies and Black Lies. Satan in the Pulpit—in the Press. Swords and Fires, Fires and Swords. Gospel Fires—Fires of the Gospel. And Little Mary in a Nut Shell. Illustrated. Price per copy, gilt, $1.50; plain, $1.00; in paper covers, 75 cts. Postage, 15 cts. Large discount to agents. Address D. F. NEWTON, 303 West Twentieth Street, New York.

SOMETHING TO EAT.—Those who wish to get meals at a good dining saloon, in Boston, will do well to try the one at Nos. 16, 18, and 20, Marshall St., near our office. It is kept by Bro. B. B. Hoitt, Bro. R. F. Means, and A. Johnson.

THE jealousy with which the various European powers regard each other at the present time is perfectly obvious. People are prognosticating another war during the coming summer, nor does it seem entirely improbable.

THE BEST NEWS.

The people of this world have an insatiable relish after news. They can hardly wait for the latest news. "What's the news?" is the first query after the ordinary salutation, upon the meeting of friends. Even the lightnings are converted into messengers to carry the news to and from the remote parts of the globe, and still there is a call for news, news, NEWS. But all this pertains to news concerning temporal matters—news concerning the present world in its fallen and sinful state. But the best news that earth's inhabitants ever heard relates to the world to come, where life will never close, the people never grow old, never become sick, never feel pain, never know sorrow, never shed tears, and where friends once dead shall greet us in immortal vigor; a world to begin at the coming of the great Messiah in Kingly grandeur from the skies, to arouse the slumbering saints, and exterminate evil. And though this is to be the greatest event that has ever been seen by human eye, and an event, too, that shall put an end to worldly affairs, but little attention is paid to this great item of news. This feature of news is not a false rumor, but an item of truth.

Better news could not be told. Could a country be found where, by some mysterious charm, death could be effectually and infallibly warded off from all its inhabitants, and perpetual health characterize the people, the telegraph wires would flash the intelligence in every direction, and the daily papers would be monopolized with the thrilling news. But the news which we are speaking about far surpasses this picture, for it embraces the whole earth as the area of the scene, and excludes all sin as well as death. It is the "good news" from heaven, concerning the good time to come; and the message is true. Why, then, does it not thrill the world with joy, and elate all hearts with ecstasy? The solution is easy: this arrangement is averse to carnality; and men prefer some arrangement that is congenial to their relish. They are loth to believe what they would prefer not to have true.

But there is a class who have a relish for this kind of news above all other news. They believe and love the message. To them it is always new, and always true. They sigh for the "redemption of the body," and the immortal state, when death shall be thought of only as a fallen foe, from whose power the saints shall have escaped. The best news is not believed by the worldly throng, but it will soon prove itself true. W. S.

DIVINE SACRIFICE.

An Iowa brother who has just come into the truth, and who has never heard an Advent sermon, thus writes:—

"Bro. Sheldon:—Will you give your views on the divinity of the sacrifice, through the Crisis, and oblige?"

My views differ from the views which represent divinity as coming into the world for the express purpose of dying for man, and finally eluded the stroke of death, leaving only the human part to die. This would leave us with a human sacrifice—nothing more nor less. To suppose that one human being could meet the penalty for millions of human beings—thus having the death of one exempt millions from death who were of the same grade—is intensely absurd. To suppose that a thousand privates, doomed to be shot, could be exempted from their fate by having a general shot in their stead, instead of another private, is a principle that all can understand. So if the Son of God, a being of a higher grade than man, is accepted in the place of sinful man, as the one on whom the penalty for sin should fall, and men thereby be exempted on conditions, we can easily see how the death of one could save a race. That Christ, the divine Son of God, was "made a little lower than the angels for the suffering of death," is a revealed fact; but just how divinity and humanity were blended, thus rendering it possible through this miracle for divinity to die, is an unsolved mystery; but not half so great a wonder as the popular opinion that one human sacrifice can save millions of deathless souls!!

It is often said that divinity suffered, but only humanity died. That is virtually yielding the whole question, for that which can suffer, can as really die, death being the culmination of suffering, and suffering being a producing cause of death. Have we a divine sacrifice? Then a divine being certainly died. Our bodies are "flesh and blood," and Christ "took part of the same" (Heb 2: 14); so his body was not divine. If only his body died, we are left without a divine sacrifice. "We are reconciled to God by the death of his son." The Son of God died as really as the son of Mary." I cannot explain how God's miraculous power could make this possible, nor yet how he can do many other seeming impossibilities; but this argues nothing against the fact of a divine sacrifice. There are some mysterious facts. W. S.

"FELLOW HEIRS."

Paul speaks of the unfolding of a mystery concerning the ancient plan of God, which was, that the Gentiles should be fellow heirs, and of the same body, and partakers of his promise in Christ by the gospel. Eph. 3: 6. "The promise made of God unto our fathers" (Acts 26: 6) was the basis of Paul's hope. We are "heirs" to what God has promised, not to the nominal Jew, void of faith; for "he is not a Jew which is one outwardly, ... but he is a Jew which is one inwardly" (Rom. 2: 28, 29), and also promised to the believing Gentiles, who by faith have become "fellow heirs" with the Jews "who are of faith." The unbelieving Jew is not an heir at all, and the believing Gentile becomes an heir by faith, and belongs to the "same body" with believing Jews, for Christ "hath made both one, and hath broken down the middle wall of partition between us" (Eph. 2: 14). "Know ye, therefore, that they which are of faith, the same are the children of Abraham. . . . So then they which be of faith are blessed with faithful Abraham. . . . And if ye be Christ's, then are ye Abraham's seed, and heirs according to the promise" (Gal. 3: 7, 9, 29).

These heirs have the promise of a certain "land" which will be jointly possessed by Abraham and his "Seed, which is Christ," together with all who can claim a relationship to Abraham on the principle of faith through Christ. A blood relation to Abraham, void of faith, is not an heir. And all who are "the children of Abraham," on the principle of faith, will be immortalized at the resurrection; and therefore they will enter the promised land in a deathless state. Until this epoch, the promised land will be in the possession of enemies. But the time will come when God "shall have put down all rule and authority and power" in the land, which God promised to Abraham, which Paul says is "the world." Rom. 4: 13. Then the saints will take the kingdom "under the whole heaven," and possess it forever. Then the "fellow heirs"—believing Jews and believing Gentiles—will be made fellow-possessors of the promised land. Abraham, now dead, will be there, a living and deathless man; and the same trump that awakens Abraham will also awaken every heir; and then God will fulfill his oath to the father of the faithful—"All the land which thou seest, to thee will I give it, and to thy seed forever. Gen. 13: 15. Yet during his lifetime, "he gave him none inheritance in it, no, not so much as to set his foot on." Acts 7: 5. The fulfillment of this promise involves the resurrection, and the resurrection involves the coming of the Lord. W. S.

"HOLY VIOLENCE."—We hear often about "holy violence", and when we inquire for the foundation of such an idea, we are referred to this text—"And from the days of John the Baptist until now the kingdom of heaven suffereth violence, and the violent take it by force." Matt. 11: 12. This is often applied to a blessing received in answer to prayer. But is there any suffering connected with the reception or giving of a blessing? Can a man suffer a blessing? Campbell renders it—"The kingdom of heaven is invaded, and the invaders take possession by force." The Diaglott reads—"Forcibly assailed, and the violent seize it." Whiting reads—"The violent seize it." Wiclif—"Violent men reach it." Some component element of the kingdom here as elsewhere, is called the kingdom. The prospective subjects of the kingdom incurred the violence of opposition, and so did Christ, the prospective King. They said—"This is the heir; come let us kill him, and let us seize on his inheritance." Matt 21: 38. Thus more than one element of the kingdom suffered violence, and an effort was made to reach the territory from the true Messiah. These elements, now in an unorganized state, will soon be organized into an everlasting kingdom, where violence can never come. W. S.

NEBRASKA.—Eld. G. G. Godfrey, from Wisconsin, has removed to Nebraska, where he will proclaim the gospel of the kingdom. He is a true man of God, and an earnest preacher, and will exert a good influence wherever he goes. Wisconsin parts with him regretfully, but Nebraska may well rejoice. W. S.

WHAT THE FIGURES MEAN.—A sister writes: "On the Crisis sent me, on the blue slip, I see June 25—72. What does it mean?" It means that it is paid for up to that date. All can thus tell how far they have paid in advance, or how far they are in arrears. W. S.

ANOTHER TIME CONFERENCE.

I have been interrogated as to when I was going to have another time conference? The feeling manifested at the close of the Worcester meeting was one of anxiety for another meeting of like character, as soon as practicable, to be held in some convenient locality. I am not situated at my place to call such a meeting here, as but few could be accommodated. But if brethren at Providence, R. I., or Portsmouth, N. H., or Springfield, Mass., are desirous of having such a gathering, either of the above named places, I think, would be good localities. The church at Worcester was benefited by the late time conference there, as was stated by Bro. E. G. Higgins at the Chelsea conference. It was felt and expressed there, by intelligent and substantial brethren, that the subject was just opened at that meeting (i. e., at Worcester), and that several such meetings were imperatively needed and called for. Now, who will respond and open the door for such another meeting? I think the rules of debate, or discussion, at such meetings should be made by the conference after coming together. Harbingers of the coming judgment are ominous. It is no time now to sleep over this thrilling question. For the cause of our coming King I speak.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LIBRARIES.

The Second Advent believers have found it a difficult task to find books suitable to put into Sunday school libraries, for their children, as nearly all S. S. books teach the dogma of the immortality of the soul, and other heathen notions. We wish to call the attention of all S. S. librarians to "Sunbeam Stories, written and prepared by H. L. Hastings." Ten volumes, neatly and prettily bound in cloth. Price, $2.50.

These are among the best books we have ever seen for S. S. libraries for little folks. We ought to have a hundred volumes of this character for our Sunday schools. Those who obtain these will feel thankful for them. Now is the time when teachers and superintendents are seeking for books for schools. Do not forget to call for "Sunbeam Stories."

ELDER GRANT'S LECTURES.—Ed. Transcript:—A good congregation met on Tuesday evening, despite the very unpleasant weather, to listen to the Elder's exposition of the question, "What is man?" In a very plain and forcible manner, he showed that, according to the uniform testimony of the Scriptures, the intelligent, responsible being called man, was made of dust; made in the image of his Creator; that he was called man before he became a living man, after he dies, while he lies in the grave and in the sea, and that he is to be called from thence at the last day, to be judged and rewarded according to his works; that nothing was added or given to him to make him a living soul or living man but the breath of life, which is common to all the animal creation, and that whenever this breath of life leaves him, or returns to Him who gave it, he dies and returns to the dust from whence he came, there to wait in unconscious silence the resurrection at the last day. He showed also, that a belief in the continued existence of the soul, separate from the body, is the very foundation and sole support of Brahmanism, Buddism, Mohammedanism, Catholicism, Mormonism, and lastly Spiritualism with all its monstrous doctrines, and that if this great error could be blotted out from the human mind, all these false systems would instantly fall to the ground. Several objections were offered and answered. The Baptist minister was present, and many persons wish they all would be there to oppose the error or learn the truth, as the case may prove to be. Subject for this evening, "the resurrection of the dead."—A Listener.—The Daily Transcript, Nevada City, Cal.

THE TRACT FUND.

The Advent Christian Publication Society, at a meeting on Springfield Camp-ground, August 23d, 1871, voted to raise Two Thousand Dollars for the free distribution of Tracts the ensuing year; and they invite the help and co-operation of all lovers of the Lord and of his truth, in the furtherance of the good cause. The times are ominous of coming events, and admonish us to diligence in the Master's work. The Lord is at the door, and what we do must be done quickly. Let the contributions be prompt, hearty, and liberal. The Lord will reward the liberal giver.

Correspondence.

From Bro. H. H. Tilley.

BRO. GRANT:—I am happy to announce to you that the candlestick is once more set up in the national metropolis, and the Second Advent candle once more lighted, not to be extinguished, I trust, until its light is merged in that of the Sun of Righteousness. You are aware that, after your services here with the tent several years ago, a little band of us obtained the use of the City Hall, and kept up meetings for some time. But as we lay so far beyond the orbit of most of our preachers, and some, both from abroad and in our midst, who undertook to edify us failed to do so acceptably, the cause languished, one after another dropped off, until, on the inauguration of Dr. Bray's enterprise of an independent church, on what we understood to be a Second Advent basis, it was thought best to give up the City Hall, and cast our lot in with him. Failing to find the home there that we expected, we withdrew, and each one sought spiritual nutriment where he could best find it, as we had done before your visit. Last fall, however, Sr. E., a poor widow, but a devout lover of the gospel of the kingdom, who had long mourned and prayed over the desolation of our Zion, returned from the Springfield campmeeting thoroughly awake to the importance of letting our light shine during the short remaining hour of the morning watch. Calling on a few of those brethren and sisters who had "kept their garments," and by personal appeals, got them to come together, with a view to reorganization. We hired a hall for a number of Sabbaths, and were favored with the visits of Brn. Wilfong, Phelps and King, and Sister Hastings, whose christian zeal and counsel did much to reinspire us; but owing to our inability to procure a suitable hall, we were not able to give them an opportunity to reach the people. Our efforts to go forward also were paralyzed, as it were, by some who, though they were among us, were not of us, and yet assumed to dictate, and obstinately opposed an organization on the basis of the "covenant" which we adopted at your suggestion when you were here, and by which we wished to identify ourselves with the Adventists throughout the country.

This element, however, finding it could not rule us, has at length withdrawn, and publicly disclaimed any connection with us; and having, through the kindness of Chief Justice Carter, been permitted to re-occupy our old quarters (the Supreme Court Room, City Hall), we are in a position to "move upon the enemy's works." Srs. Stoddard and Jennings have been preaching to us nearly every evening, with good acceptance, for over a week; and though concerts, lectures, and other entertainments, have conspired to draw away the multitude, many strangers (among them some of the active members, lay and clerical, of our Y. M. C. Association, in whose meetings our services were several times announced), have attended night after night. Last Sabbath, although there were several popular preachers in town—including Mrs. Livermore, of your city, we had about as many as we could seat. The papers have given reports of one or two sermons, and the interest seems to be increasing. I trust you will be able to favor us with a visit on your return east, and perhaps a discussion can be arranged with some one of the prominent advocates of popular theology. As the different orthodox denominations and the Catholics are exerting themselves to erect "Metropolitan" churches or cathedrals here, it would seem that Bible theology should at least maintain a light-house, however humble, to warn the unwary off the rocks.

Washington, D. C., April 19th, 1872.

POSTSCRIPT.

April 30.—Since writing the above, Sister Stoddard and Jennings have been preaching for us in the City Hall nearly every evening, and twice on the Sabbath. By dint of liberal advertising (one of our brethren, who is a printer, striking off some six thousand small hand bills gratis, which we sowed broadcast) announcing the meetings in the Y. M. C. A. daily prayer-meeting, and personal invitations to our friends in other denominations, we succeeded in making their presence pretty generally known, and in getting out many who heard our distinctive tenets for the first time, and some of whom showed their interest by following up the meetings, night after night. Among others, several clergymen (not at present pastors) and others of intelligence and education, attended repeatedly and expressed their warm approval of the discourses, together with their regret that the sisters could not speak in some church or larger hall. As some of these were active workers in the Y. M. C. Association (of which I am an "active" life member) I asked our General Secretary, Rev. G. A. Hall, if he would not like to have them speak in "Lincoln Hall," (in the new Association Building, and the hall of the city) under the auspices of the Association. He said he would like well enough to have them, as he was a Methodist, and had no prejudice against women's speaking in public; but as some influential members of the Association had, he did not feel at liberty to invite them. Determined that the public should have no excuse for not hearing these sisters on the score of the place where they spoke, several of the brethren engaged Lincoln Hall, issued posters and advertised in three daily papers, that they would preach there on Saturday evening last; Sr. Stoddard, who had purposed leaving, having consented to remain over another Sabbath. As the weather proved threatening, we did not have as many out as we had hoped, but as quite a number were new ones, who came to hear for the first time, and Sr. S. preached an excellent discourse, we did not consider our expenditure of money or effort lost, but trust the seed sown will spring up "in due time."

Sister S. preached again at the City Hall Sabbath morning, and Sister Jennings in the evening, to a crowded house, which we had not had before. At the conclusion of the discourse, she administered the communion, and I think the strangers who remained and looked on with much interest, gained a new view of the gospel simplicity and impressiveness of the ordinance as we conduct it, compared with the hierarchal method. Among the audience this evening were a number of our colored friends, and two of them (one a member of the Metropolitan Police force, in his uniform) sat down at the board with us, in response to Sr. J.'s liberal invitation, and gave in an earnest testimony for Christ. Bro. Willfong, from Philadelphia, was also with us last week, and spoke several evenings, with good effect, to a large and attentive crowd at the corner of Penn. Avenue and Seventh St. (where the Y. M. C. Association hold open air meetings every evening through the summer). Bro. W. also gave a little account, at the prayer-meeting of the Y. M. C. A., Sunday evening, of the wonderful revival now in progress, and at which he had just been assisting, in Concord, N. H., under the labors of Brn. Hook and Lutz. Cannot they, or some one there, cheer the hearts of your readers by a short report of it? I enclose a report, from the daily National Republican, of Srs. S. and J.'s last three discourses. H. H. SERMONS BY WOMEN.

On Saturday evening, Mrs. L. M. Stoddard preached in Lincoln Hall, from 2 Chron. 6: 18—"But will God, in very deed, dwell with men on the earth?" As an answer to the question, she cited the promise of Christ that the meek shall inherit the earth (which H. W. Beecher had confessed he could not understand), and the passage in Revelations—"Behold, the habitation of God is with men, and he shall dwell with them." She then proceeded to prove that the new earth was to be the everlasting abode of the righteous.

Yesterday she preached at the City Hall, from Rev. 2: 17—"To him that overcometh will I give to eat of the hidden manna, and will give him a white stone, and in the stone a new name written, which no man knoweth, saving he that receiveth it." Speaking of the manna eaten by the Israelites, she said it was a type of Christ, on whom we were to feed in our hearts by faith, which would make us immortal. On the subject of overcoming, she said, we were to fight against "wicked spirits in the heavenly places," which she understood as referring to the phenomena of Spiritualism, as she considered them to be produced, not by the spirits of the dead, but by demons such as Christ cast out when on earth.

Last evening Mrs. Jennings preached to a crowded house from Isa. 25: 9—"And it shall be said in that day, Lo! this is our God; we have waited for him, and he will save us; we will be glad and rejoice in his salvation." The day referred to is the day of judgment, and only those who had accepted Christ as their Savior would be able to adopt the language of the text. The children of God are to be waiting for Christ at his second coming. There are only two comings spoken of; hence he does not come at the conversion or death of individuals. The salvation was to be of what was lost, including a restoration to our Eden home, forfeited by Adam's fall.

At the conclusion of the discourse the ordinance of the Lord's Supper was administered.

BRO. A. W. SIBLEY writes from Sandy Hill, N. Y., April 29th, 1872:—"Yesterday was a good day for the Advent Christian church of this village. We buried eight happy souls in the Hudson river, who now are rejoicing in the hope of eternal life through Christ. Five of them were heads of families. As they were planted in the likeness of Christ's death, may they also be in the likeness of his resurrection."

INYO OUTDONE.

A POPULOUS PHILIPPINE ISLAND SHAKEN TO PIECES.

Mails from Madrid bring the news of the destruction by an earthquake of the town of Cotta-bato, capital of the Spanish East Indian island of Mindanao. The following is from the letter of a resident of the town:

At ten minutes past six in the afternoon of Dec. 8th, Cotta-bato was a joyous place, whose inhabitants walked tranquilly by the banks of the beautiful river which bathed its feet. At twenty minutes past six—that is to say within ten minutes—it was a heap of ruins. A fearful but short trembling of the earth, of an intensity unknown in the Philippines, destroyed in one moment the industry of years. The subterranean rumbling which preceded it, the noise of hundreds of houses falling, the horrible spectacle of the earth waving as if it were a liquid, and the sad conviction that no one could fly (for the place is situated in a delta), inspired terrors in the inhabitants utterly impossible to describe. The open fields, the trees, and the hillocks, served as a dangerous lodging-place for the natives. A pitiless rain-storm was falling, accompanied by lightning and shaking of the ground. The accidents would have been great but for the serenity of the garrison—due to their military discipline—so useful in such cases. After attending to the invalids of the hospital, which fell down, they in twenty minutes covered the fields with hundreds of tents, under which they and the people took shelter. By this means the casualties were limited to sundry persons contused and one boy killed.

The night was awful through the constant oscillations of the earth. Frightful confusion reigned, augmented by the idea which ran through the populace that the surrounding hills might be converted into volcanoes, as happened not many months ago in a neighboring island. At midnight the rain ceased, and then commenced the moving spectacle of an entire population on the march, traversing over ruins, chanting a fervent litany; the European confounded with the native, the master with the servant, the officer with the soldier.

Next morning (9th) which may be said to have been a continuation of the previous night, commenced with a fog so great that it was hardly possible to see anything ahead. This caused fears of fresh misfortunes. At half-past seven the earth, as if moved by the hand of a giant, became more agitated than it was the previous night. The aspect all around was desolating; the ruins seemed to boil, the still standing walls fell down, and lamentation, crying and praying completed the most afflicting picture that could be conceived.

The earthquake presented the singular phenomena of being repeated six times. Fearing a general caving in of the ground, the navy, represented on this occasion by two gunboats in the river, offered to convey on board as many as their boats could carry. The governor, Brigadier Fernandez de Cordova, ordered the embarkation of as many females as possible. His wife and other ladies offered the brave spectacle of refusing to leave their husbands on shore. One afflicted mother of two young cadets, clung to them so closely that force had to be used to separate her and to carry her on board.

Fortunately the tremblings ceased; but every hour we felt some slight rumbling, from which I gather that the subterranean gasses had not found a means of escape through any of the numerous extinct volcanoes in the neighborhood. This risk and uncertainty, which the authorities tried in vain to hide by music and Te Deums, spread consternation to all the inhabitants in this unhappy land. The native Indians fled in canoes and rafts, but the garrison, with an abnegation and patriotism worthy of all praise, remained true to their posts, determined to sink with this piece of earth, gained at the cost of Spanish blood, rather than abandon it to the thousands of savages who, from the opposite banks, waited an opportunity for seizing on this important place.

Obituaries.

PURRINTON. Died in Lisbon, Me., Feb. 11th, Bro. Joshua Purrinton, aged seventy-four years.

Bro. P. was a faithful christian in the early part of life among the F. W. Baptists. In 1843 he heard and embraced the proclamation of Jesus' soon coming. This added greatly to his joy in hope, and gave him new life and courage. His house has ever been a home for all pilgrims. He looked with ardent desire and scriptural watchfulness for the return of the Lord. His sufferings were great at times, but he endured all with patience, and calmly fell asleep, leaving a widow and three daughters, with many friends, to mourn their loss. He will be greatly missed in his neighborhood. But the Lord will soon bring him back to live forever. I. C. WELLCOME.

HORR. Fell asleep in Jesus in Prescott, Mass., March 2nd, 1872, of consumption, Nelson Horr, aged sixty-four years.

Another of God's dear ones has fallen asleep in Jesus, while a dear companion and three sons mourn his loss; but they have hope in his death, and believe he will soon come from the land of the enemy, and they will meet him again.

May the God of all grace comfort and sustain the fatherless and widow in this their great and sore affliction; and may we all so live that when the morning dawns, and the saints are all gathered, we may hear the blessed Savior say—"Come, ye blessed of my Father; inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world." L. B. WEAVER.

AUSTIN. Died in Manchester, Vt., March 31st, 1872, of pneumonia, Sr. Olive Austin, wife of Bro. Jno. W. Austin, in the sixty-ninth year of her age.

In early life Sr. Austin sought and found the Savior, and joined the Congregational church in Granville, N. Y., her native town. In 1826 she removed to Poultney, Vt., and united with the M. TERRIBLY DESTRUCTIVE STORM.

LONDON, May 2. Bombay telegrams received here announce that steamers and other vessels arriving at that port from Zanzibar convey information of a terrible hurricane which devastated that region on the 15th of April last. The gale raged for a whole day and night, and it is estimated that nearly one-half of the entire property on the island of Zanzibar was destroyed. Hundreds of houses were uprooted from their foundations, and dashed in pieces by the violence of the wind. Many of the inhabitants are believed to have been crushed to death by the falling dwellings. The sea rose to a great height, and in some places encroached upon the land to such an extent as to compel the people to recede further into the interior. One hundred and fifty vessels, comprising the larger portion of the shipping of Zanzibar, were swept from their moorings and swamped by the storm in the harbor or carried out to sea and wrecked. The total damage is estimated at upwards of £2,000,000 sterling. A large number of seamen perished in the storm.

TURKEY.

RIOT AT SMYRNA.

CONSTANTINOPLE, May 2. Advices from Smyrna state that that city has been the scene of a bloody and desperate riot. The report in some way gained credence that the Jews had sacrificed an infant in some of their religious rites. This report caused great excitement among the Greeks, between whom and the Jews there is at all times an antagonism, which requires but the least exciting cause to bring on an open conflict. In this case, the Greeks gathered in throngs, and, vowing vengeance on the Jews, assaulted the latter, accompanying the onslaught with hideous outcries. It is not known how many were killed, but it is stated that the number of fatalities was great, while many more were seriously wounded. The authorities were enabled to disperse the rioters, and the latest accounts state that comparative quiet reigned. It was feared, however, that the riot would be renewed, and it was proposed to post a military force in the city to quell disorders that might arise.

FRANCE.

COURT MARTIAL.

PARIS, May 5. A court martial, to continue about one hundred days, for the trial of Marshal Bazaine, who was censured by the committee on capitulations for his conduct at Metz, will be held at Versailles beginning the latter part of April. Twelve hundred witnesses will be summoned before the court. The government will allow Bazaine to employ as counsel Mr. Tachard, the well-known advocate.

THE HEALTH OF THE PRESIDENT.

Care and anxiety are breaking the health of President Theirs. Those interested in his administration express much anxiety. A new revolution would follow his death or his retirement.

MORE COURT MARTIALING.

The government has decided to bring Generals Wimpffen and Uhlrich to trial by court martial, on certain charges connected with their action during the late Franco-German war.

ITALY.

AFFAIRS AT ROME.

ROME, May 5. The city is very unhealthy. Many Americans are now here. The Pope holds a political conference with his advisers to-morrow. His proposed removal from this city is still agitated.

SPAIN.

MADRID, May 5. Senor Emilio Castelar, the well-known Republican leader announces that a general Republican rising throughout Spain is imminent. It is understood that it is the intention of the Republican deputies in the Cortes to resign their seats in that body and openly adhere to the new movement. Uninterrupted communication is maintained between the various Carlist and Republican organizations, and it is stated that the insurrectionary movement is rapidly extending. The declaration of Senor Castelar, announcing his support, has been the means of adding much strength and influence to the Republican cause. The Carlist troops, notwithstanding the tone of recent despatches announcing the disorganization and partial collapse of the Carlist Republican coalition, still remain massed in considerable force in Navarre, Andalusia and other districts. Disaffection has been discovered to exist to a certain extent in the army, and the government is apprehensive that in the event of a general Republican rising the troops would join the revolt. The actions and movement of army officials and others whose fidelity is suspected, are being subjected to the closest scrutiny. Reliable information has just been received in this city announcing the arrival of Don Carlos in Navarre. It is also added that he will at once proceed to place himself at the head of his supporters, and begin offensive operations against the government troops in that province. Hundreds are flocking to his standard, and his presence has inspired renewed courage and fresh hopes of the ultimate success of the campaign. It is said that the priests are at the bottom of the Carlist insurrection, and are endeavoring to inaugurate a religious war, which, if they succeed in giving it the importance they aim to give it, will be a most sanguinary and relentless strife on both sides.

It is now announced that Don Carlos is in Spain at the head of his "volunteers," and Don Alphonso, his brother, is with him. The proclamation signed by him which was circulating in Madrid was genuine. There is a deep uneasiness in Madrid.

LATER.

Evening. It is now said that Don Carlos entered Vera, a town in Navarre, on the Bidassoa river, which forms a part of the boundary line between France and Spain, on Friday. His entry was greeted by ringing of church bells and the cheering of the people. The full force of the revolution is upon us. Carlists are burning and destroying in all directions. The warfare is entirely of a guerrilla character. Arrests are made daily in this city.

STILL LATER.

Midnight. The following is the latest news of Don Carlos' movements and of the state of affairs in Spain: Don Carlos arrived at Vera, in Navarre, forty miles north of Pampeluna, on Thursday. He immediately issued two proclamations, one of which begins, "Spaniards, soldiers, the watchword is God and coutry. The King appeals to your honor on God's altars to annihilate the foreigner. He promises peace, abundance and liberty."

LATEST.

May 6. A dispatch just arrived here announces that a general engagement has occurred between the Carlist and Royalist forces at Navarre. Gen. Palacia, commanding a division of the government troops, attacked the Carlist army near Carao, in the province of Navarre, last evening, and, after a severe and determined battle of nine hours' duration, gained a complete victory over the rebels. The losses sustained on both sides during the engagement are reported to have been very heavy. It is stated that Don Carlos himself is among the prisoners taken. The news has created the wildest excitement here.

In Brief.

—— A train on the Nashville and Chattanooga railroad was stopped on the 18th inst. by a hail-storm. The engineer says that at one time he could not see the smoke-stack of his engine. The brass-works on the domes of the locomotive were badly shattered, and indentations were made even in the iron jacket which covers the boiler.——The second track through Mont Cenis tunnel has been laid and opened, and the double track is now in actual use.——One hundred and ten thousand Bedouin pilgrims visited Mecca this year. A health officer from Constantinople enforced sanitary regulations, and no cholera or other epidemic disease manifested itself among them.——A tubular bridge has been planned to extend across San Francisco bay. It is an immense iron tube intended to be sunk from twenty-eight to thirty feet below the surface, and held in place by its own boyancy and by cables and mushroom anchors. The tube is to be twenty feet in diameter, and made of boiler iron, strengthened by an internal framework of iron beams. The invention is based upon the idea that the buoyancy of the tube will be equal to the weight of a train of cars, and that in the absence of this weight the cables and anchors will hold the tube in place.——The Council General of Corsica has confirmed the election of Prince Napoleon as a member of the council.

IMPORTANT CONFERENCE OF INTERNATIONALS.

LONDON, May 6th. A conference of prominent members of the International Society is being held in this city to-night, for the purpose of deciding upon a plan of action against certain continental powers, more especially those governments which have recently inaugurated measures for the suppression of the society. The meeting is a secret one, and the proceedings will not be given to the public. Representatives from several foreign branches of the society are in attendance.

NEVADA.

We closed our meetings in Nevada, the California mountain-city, last evening, April 21st. The theatre was crowded to hear the evidences that show we are near the second coming of Christ. The audience was intelligent, and included many of the leading men of the city. The attention was all a speaker could desire. The hour was solemn, and a deep impression seemed to rest upon the people that these things are true, and demand the serious and immediate attention of all candid persons. A strong representation from the various churches appeared in the congregation. A goodly number of these have become well convinced that we have been preaching the true doctrine of the Bible. An intelligent lady and church member was heard to remark in substance as follows—"What shall we do? Shall we confess and support the truth, as we have heard it preached of late in the theatre by Elder Grant? or shall we uphold our ministers, who oppose him and preach what we now see is not taught in the Sacred Scriptures?" We have not heard the decision. It is a serious question, and important results are involved. It is very evident that many ministers occupy the same relation to the people as did the Pharisees at the first advent of our Savior. One minister in Nevada was heard to say that he would not go to hear us preach, if we staid seven years. Is such an one prepared to judge correctly of what we preach? Some of his members were much quickened and benefited by attending. Another minister, who would not come, proposes to review us when we are away. Some thought he would be better prepared to do so, if he had heard before he commenced his review.

At the commencement of the meetings, we found much indifference about religious matters; but a blessed change has taken place. We heard it remarked by a careful observer that the Bible had been read more in the city last week than within two years. There has been earnest searching for proof of the immortality of the soul, but to their surprise none has been found. The people begin to wonder where the ministers find proof to sustain the doctrine they have been teaching. They think it is time to call for a reason of their hope. They wish to know whether it is founded upon a "thus saith the Lord," or upon human fables and opinions.

The prospect is very encouraging for Nevada. Several have joined the "covenant," and a union prayer-meeting is appointed for Sabbath afternoon. Prominent church members are satisfied that we have preached the truth, and are ready to give their sympathy and material aid for its support. The Baptist minister is deeply interested, and is giving the subject a careful examination. He is much fettered by surrounding circumstances, but we hope he will be able to overcome all obstacles, and hold up the light before the people. He needs and deserves the prayers of the faithful. The superintendent of his Sabbath school is firmly settled in the "blessed hope," and is ready to do what he can to help spread these glorious truths. We found him a true-hearted man. Bro. and Sr. C. L. Percival are here from Canada. Their hearts are in the work. Bro. P. has made a new consecration of his all to Jesus, and stands ready to do anything that he knows would be pleasing to his Lord. He has preached in former years. He thinks of returning soon to his home in Massawippi; Canada.

We have reason to thank the Lord for our visit to Nevada. We hope to see some in the kingdom as the fruits of the meetings. There is a great change for the better in the minds of many. Satan has a strong hold of the people in these mining districts. The love of money has been the ruling passion, and the roots of evil that have sprung from it have been abundant. Most of the original miners are but wrecks financially, physically, and morally. Nevada is a healthy city, and a good place for an invalid, especially a consumptive, to recover his health. The scenery is wild, very hilly, but rather romantic and pleasant, because it is ever-varying. But for the gold, no one would have thought of making a home here at first. This year has been very prosperous to the miners, because of the abundance of rains, which are so necessary for the placer mining. As we took our last look at the city, we felt assured that our hope was of more value than all the gold ever taken from the mines.

"THE COMING OF THE LORD."—Under the above heading, our readers will find an excellent article from Bro. Boutell.

HOMEWARD BOUND.

We are now (9.30 A. M., April 23d) about half way from San Francisco to Ogden, where we hope to arrive to-morrow morning, about 6½ o'clock. The weather is fine, quite warm enough to be pleasant. We are passing through the Humboldt Valley, surrounded by mountains whose tops are covered with snow. There is so much alkali in the soil of the plain that it cannot be made very productive of grass or grains. Sage brush is the principal thing that grows. The surface of the soil looks as white as it would if covered with lime. Cattle will do pretty well on this brush. Some parts of the plain produces grass, where large herds of cattle are fattened for market. The beef is said to be very good. This extensive plain is over four thousand feet above the level of the sea. There are no trees on the plain or the surrounding mountain. In wet places there are a few bushes. All seems like a barren waste, and will probably thus remain till the end of time.

We left Nevada for Colfax yesterday, about one P. M., in company with Bro. Percival, who took us there by private conveyance. On our way we passed through Grass Valley, where extensive mining has been carried on for over twenty years. This place is four miles from Nevada, and twelve miles from Colfax. At the latter place, is the R. R. station for Nevada and Grass Valley. The teams for transportation consist of six and eight horses or mules, with two huge wagons fastened together. A railroad is much needed to Nevada. We took the cars about 6 P. M., and commenced our winding course up the mountains, passing through Gold Run and Dutch Flats, well known as rich mining towns, where a vast amount of earth has been washed away in pursuit of gold. At the Dutch Flat station, we had the pleasure of shaking hands with Bro. and Sr. Wolcott Ford, who formerly lived in West Winsted, Ct. We were together much during our early christian experience, and enjoyed precious seasons in prayer and class-meetings. He has been in California for many years. We only had time for hearty greetings, but felt thankful for this favor. He put four nice apples into our hands, and we gave him two copies of the Crisis, said "good bye," hoping to meet again in the kingdom of God.

Before reaching Gold Run, when about two and one half miles above Colfax, we passed the famous Cape Horn, where we ride in a groove around a spur of the mountain, and can look down from the cars two thousand feet into the awful chasm below, where the American river is seen running like a silver cord between the towering mountains on either side. Such sights are rare, and pay well for the fatigue of a long journey. As we pass on, other scenes of sublimity are multiplied by the way, presenting a view which is said to be unsurpassed. Those who love to look at mountains and deep ravines, combined upon a grand scale, will have a rare feast when they take a rail-road trip to California. To form some idea of this wonderful scenery, suppose a number of mountains crowded together, some two thousand five hundred feet high, which are split from top to bottom, having the sides covered with pines and cedars, while others grow up from the deep bottom, a few rods wide. One might suppose these mountains had been split open by earthquakes. Imagine several railroads cut in various directions through high mountains, and you would get a very good idea of the shape of these canyons, as they are called. The trees and shrubbery add greatly to the beauty of this wild scenery, and afford very fine studies for the skillful landscape painter, which some have improved. We think Bro. Samuel Walker, of San Francisco, who painted for us a fine view of the "Golden Gate," would have a rich feast among the Sierra mountains. We will not detain our readers longer with these things, but really wish they could see them. They can't be appreciated till they are seen. If any wish to travel to witness rare natural sights, go to California.

As we have been riding to-day across this western wild, we have been thinking over the happy seasons we have enjoyed with our choice friends on the Pacific coast. They seem specially dear to us, because of their ardent attachment to Jesus and his word. They have a warm place in our affections. How gladly would we greet them again on the shores of time; but if not, we hope to see them soon, with other dear ones, where the sorrows of parting will be forever unknown, and where friendship's joys will be eternal.

AT HOME.—We arrived home in safety, Wednesday evening, May 1st, and found all things well, for which we thank the Lord.

HOW END SIN?

"Sin when it is finished bringeth forth death."—JAS. 1: 15.

Where there is free agency, there are but two ways to end sin: (1) do right voluntarily; (2) destroy the sinner. The Lord offers us our choice. So long as man is a free agent, the Lord cannot force him to do right. Men set a high value upon their freedom, and all the world are seeking to secure it, where it has been crippled by usurpers. The Lord invites us into the way of holiness; he entreats us to come; and after all this, some men are so unreasonable as to blame him because he does not force them to come; thus taking away their free agency, one of the noblest gifts to man. We prize the power of choice. If we choose the broad way to destruction, it is our own fault; for the Lord has urged us to take the other road that leads to life eternal. He says: "Turn ye, turn ye, from your evil ways, for why will ye die?" This is the voice of a friend.

Why not turn and live for ever? Why compel the Lord to destroy, when he is so anxious to save us? Sin must be finished after the judgment. It is for ever settled in heaven that sin shall not continue eternally. This is right. No fault can be found when a worthless object is destroyed. There is no way to end sin, only to destroy all who will not confess and forsake their "evil ways." It will soon be decided whether we shall live for ever, or die the second death. Let us be the disciples of Christ, and secure eternal life.

OUR PRIVILEGE.

It is our privilege to enjoy "perfect love" which casts out all fear. It is our privilege to have a clear evidence that we are cleansed from all sin; to live without condemnation every day in the year. If such is our privilege, is it not also our duty to be in such a condition? It is the privilege of wicked men to obtain pardon of all their sins; is it not as truly their duty? All are commanded to repent, and all are commanded to be holy. "Be ye holy, for I am holy," saith the Lord. Then it follows that it is our privilege to be holy, which is certainly a very exalted and desirable one. We love to have clean clothes, and clean persons; shall we have a weaker desire for a clean heart? Is the Lord pleased with us when we are contented to remain in sin? Christ "was manifested to take away our sins, and in him is no sin." Shall we not willingly come to a position where he can do this great work for us? Is it possible that any one, who truly believes in the speedy coming of Christ, can be opposed to preaching the doctrine of holiness of heart, perfect love, freedom from sin and condemnation? "There is therefore NOW no condemnation to them which are in Christ Jesus, who walk not after the flesh, but after the Spirit." If one can be in this happy condition, why not all? If one is required to be pure in heart, all are. When it is said that without "holiness" "no man shall see the Lord," can we expect to see him unless we are holy? Satan knows full well that we cannot be saved in our sins; hence he is doing all in his power to suppress the doctrine of holiness of heart. He would have the followers of Jesus believe that they cannot live without sin; but he is a deceiver, and resorting to all possible means to prevent any interest in the doctrine of holiness of heart. Thank the Lord that so many are waking up to this all-important subject; and many know from happy experience what it is to have a clean heart.

We wish those who know the peace and joy that arise from a pure heart would write out condensed accounts of their experiences for the Crisis. Those who truly love Jesus are always deeply interested in such articles. Their effect is blessed. These reports should be given, because they magnify Jesus, showing what he can do for us. The more he does, the more we should tell it to the world, that others may be encouraged to draw near to the Lord. A half-hearted christianity does not do honor to Jesus. It is freely admitted that he pardons all our sins at the time of conversion; then can he not keep us clean? It is certainly a Bible doctrine, that Christ's disciples may live free from sin and condemnation. We cannot be without condemnation till we are free from sin.

We believe there is no subject that should receive the special attention of those looking for the speedy coming of Christ more than that of holiness of heart. Whenever a church takes hold of this subject, harmoniously seeking for perfect love and purity, the blessing of the Lord is sure to follow. It pleases our Redeemer to see his children presenting their bodies a living sacrifice. Let us all do it, and thus be ready to meet our dear Savior.

WHY NEGLECT IT?

It is encouraging to know that many are waking up to the importance of studying the book of the Revelation, as given to St. John. In the Pacific, an able religious paper, published in San Francisco, we find the following, in that paper dated March 14th, 1872:

WHY NEGLECT THE BOOK OF REVELATION?

Is there not a general antipathy to the book of Revelation in the churches? Are not the reading and study of it generally neglected by ministers and christians? Ought this to be so? Because reckless commentators and enthusiasts have abused it and made fools of themselves in its interpretation, or used it to prop up absurd theories, is that any reason why it should be abused by sober christians?

Is it not the word of God? Is there not a special blessing pronounced upon those who read, hear, and keep the things written therein? To what other book of the Bible is there prefixed such a promise? Does not the promise mean something? Is it not worth regarding?

Is there not a general agreement as to the object of the book—to map out the future history of the church, and assure believers of the ultimate success and glorious triumph of that kingdom for which we are laboring and looking?

And is there not also a substantial agreement among the best expositors, as to the meaning and general application of its symbols? Leaving out erratic and designing writers who are committed to a theory, and taking the more judicious, and common sense commentators, and the difference of views is not wide,—not so wide as to annul or seriously damage the profitable study of the book. The fact that plain sense, an unprejudiced mind, and prayer, are the best helps in understanding the Bible, is as fully applicable to the book of Revelation, as to any other book of the Bible; and if so read and taught, it cannot but be of great profit to both pulpit and pew.

The progress of events in these last days, the rapid changes and advancement of nations, the success of the gospel, the wide facility of transit and diffusion of knowledge, the condition of the papacy, the waning of papal kingdoms, the Jewish world in its relation to prophecies yet future, and new forms of unbelief—all tend to awaken the interest of intelligent christians in this book, whose prophecies in these very events are having their fulfillment.

Why should we not strive—not to peer into the future—but to keep pace with the fulfillment of prophecy as the events make them evident, or at least be so familiar with the book as to be in a condition to recognize striking fulfillments when they do occur. Does not the author of the book demand this of his people?

It is not only evident that the prophecies in the book of Revelation have been neglected, but also the prophecies of Daniel. It is high time that these all-important portions of the sacred scriptures should receive increased attention from the pulpit and the press. Their last jots and titles are fulfilling before our eyes; and yet but few watchmen dare say anything on these subjects lest they be thought to favor those who are looking for the speedy coming of Christ. A desire for worldly honor has a powerful influence over the pulpit in these last days. Satan well knows the strength of this feeling, and when and where to turn it to his advantage. This is the time for the preacher of the gospel to be dead to the praise or censure of a scoffing world. Let him seek only to please the Lord. If his good name must be sacrificed for Jesus and his word, let him do it cheerfully. The day is at hand when the faithful steward will receive his welcome into his paradise home. Till then, let him face the storm without a murmur.

THE END.—The end of the present dispensation must be near. Bro. B. Taylor inquires for our views in relation to the coming of Christ in 1873. We can heartily say, so far as we are personally concerned, we should be greatly rejoiced to be satisfied he would come as soon as 1873; but the evidence presented does not convince us that we shall see the Savior next year. We see a large "IF" in the way. We think the evidence for 1875 much stronger. There are certain events which we think must transpire before the coming of Christ. When we see those in process of fulfillment, then we may expect his immediate coming. We do not say they cannot transpire between now and the close of 1873, but we think more time will be required. Let us all wait and watch and pray.

NEW TRACT.

Second Edition, Revised and Enlarged,
OF
"THE COMING REIGN OF TERROR,"
Or, The Commune.
BY WM. N. PILE.

The first edition of five thousand copies of this work being exhausted, a second edition is now published. It contains about twelve pages of entirely new matter, besides retaining all the more important matter of the first edition. The past working of Spiritualism, Infidelity, Socialism, Free-Love, and the Commune, are shown to have produced the "reign of terror" of 1792 in France, and then the analogies between that period and the present are drawn, to show that we are on the verge of another "reign of terror." Special attention is given to the "International Society," and its latest developments shown. This tract is well calculated to awaken an interest in the speedy coming of the Lord. Notwithstanding the increased size, the price is unchanged.

For sale at this office. Price, by mail, single copy, 7 cts.; five copies, 30 cts.; ten copies, 50 cts.; fifty copies, $2.00; one hundred copies, by express, $3.50. AG'T.

Also sold by the author at Springfield, Mass.

BOSTON.—We had a good day with the Boston church yesterday (May 5th), at the corner of Causeway and Lowell streets. The audiences were large, and the interest excellent. Some six or eight rose for prayers in the evening.

CALIFORNIA DISCUSSION.—In the Advent Review and Herald of the Sabbath, for April 30th, we find a report of our discussion of the Seventh-day Sabbath question in San Francisco, with Eld. M. E. Cornell, which contains his statements in his last speech, concerning which, we have received the following, signed by fifty persons who attended the debate:—

"To whom it may concern:—This is to certify that Elder M. E. Cornell's last speech in his debate with Elder Miles Grant, in this city, was a series of misrepresentations of Elder Grant's remarks and positions."

THE Cincinnati liberal political convention nominated Horace Greeley, editor of the New York Tribune, for the next President of the United States; and B. Gratz Brown, of Mo., for Vice President.

OUR DIGESTION.—This is the title of a new book by Dr. Dio Lewis, of Boston. The work is very neatly bound, containing 407 octavo pages. It is one of those books that should be in every family, because it contains valuable information that all persons really need to secure the highest degree of physical, mental, and spiritual welfare. The Dr. very properly remarks: "What we want is a christian table, and a public sentiment which shall instinctively apply the words christian and unchristian to our food as well as to our morals." Those who wish to make the most of this present life, cannot afford to be without this book. For sale at the Crisis office. Price postpaid, $2.50.

A NEW BOOK.—Bro. D. F. Newton, of New York, is about to issue another new book. Judging from the title, and our knowledge of what Bro. N. has written, we think the work will be valuable to those who wish to live a pure christian life. The following from the title-page, will give some idea of the character of the book:—

"Digging Roots. Lying and making Liars. White Lies and Black Lies. Satan in the Pulpit—in the Press. Swords and Fires, Fires and Swords. Gospel Fires—Fires of the Gospel. And Little Mary in a Nut Shell. Illustrated. Price per copy, gilt, $1.50; plain, $1.00; in paper covers, 75 cts. Postage, 15 cts. Large discount to agents. Address D. F. NEWTON, 303 West Twentieth Street, New York.

SOMETHING TO EAT.—Those who wish to get meals at a good dining saloon, in Boston, will do well to try the one at Nos. 16, 18, and 20, Marshall St., near our office. It is kept by Bro. B. B. Hoitt, Bro. R. F. Means, and A. Johnson.

THE jealousy with which the various European powers regard each other at the present time is perfectly obvious. People are prognosticating another war during the coming summer, nor does it seem entirely improbable.

THE BEST NEWS.

The people of this world have an insatiable relish after news. They can hardly wait for the latest news. "What's the news?" is the first query after the ordinary salutation, upon the meeting of friends. Even the lightnings are converted into messengers to carry the news to and from the remote parts of the globe, and still there is a call for news, news, NEWS. But all this pertains to news concerning temporal matters—news concerning the present world in its fallen and sinful state. But the best news that earth's inhabitants ever heard relates to the world to come, where life will never close, the people never grow old, never become sick, never feel pain, never know sorrow, never shed tears, and where friends once dead shall greet us in immortal vigor; a world to begin at the coming of the great Messiah in Kingly grandeur from the skies, to arouse the slumbering saints, and exterminate evil. And though this is to be the greatest event that has ever been seen by human eye, and an event, too, that shall put an end to worldly affairs, but little attention is paid to this great item of news. This feature of news is not a false rumor, but an item of truth.

Better news could not be told. Could a country be found where, by some mysterious charm, death could be effectually and infallibly warded off from all its inhabitants, and perpetual health characterize the people, the telegraph wires would flash the intelligence in every direction, and the daily papers would be monopolized with the thrilling news. But the news which we are speaking about far surpasses this picture, for it embraces the whole earth as the area of the scene, and excludes all sin as well as death. It is the "good news" from heaven, concerning the good time to come; and the message is true. Why, then, does it not thrill the world with joy, and elate all hearts with ecstasy? The solution is easy: this arrangement is averse to carnality; and men prefer some arrangement that is congenial to their relish. They are loth to believe what they would prefer not to have true.

But there is a class who have a relish for this kind of news above all other news. They believe and love the message. To them it is always new, and always true. They sigh for the "redemption of the body," and the immortal state, when death shall be thought of only as a fallen foe, from whose power the saints shall have escaped. The best news is not believed by the worldly throng, but it will soon prove itself true. W. S.

DIVINE SACRIFICE.

An Iowa brother who has just come into the truth, and who has never heard an Advent sermon, thus writes:—

"Bro. Sheldon:—Will you give your views on the divinity of the sacrifice, through the Crisis, and oblige?"

My views differ from the views which represent divinity as coming into the world for the express purpose of dying for man, and finally eluded the stroke of death, leaving only the human part to die. This would leave us with a human sacrifice—nothing more nor less. To suppose that one human being could meet the penalty for millions of human beings—thus having the death of one exempt millions from death who were of the same grade—is intensely absurd. To suppose that a thousand privates, doomed to be shot, could be exempted from their fate by having a general shot in their stead, instead of another private, is a principle that all can understand. So if the Son of God, a being of a higher grade than man, is accepted in the place of sinful man, as the one on whom the penalty for sin should fall, and men thereby be exempted on conditions, we can easily see how the death of one could save a race. That Christ, the divine Son of God, was "made a little lower than the angels for the suffering of death," is a revealed fact; but just how divinity and humanity were blended, thus rendering it possible through this miracle for divinity to die, is an unsolved mystery; but not half so great a wonder as the popular opinion that one human sacrifice can save millions of deathless souls!!

It is often said that divinity suffered, but only humanity died. That is virtually yielding the whole question, for that which can suffer, can as really die, death being the culmination of suffering, and suffering being a producing cause of death. Have we a divine sacrifice? Then a divine being certainly died. Our bodies are "flesh and blood," and Christ "took part of the same" (Heb 2: 14); so his body was not divine. If only his body died, we are left without a divine sacrifice. "We are reconciled to God by the death of his son." The Son of God died as really as the son of Mary." I cannot explain how God's miraculous power could make this possible, nor yet how he can do many other seeming impossibilities; but this argues nothing against the fact of a divine sacrifice. There are some mysterious facts. W. S.

"FELLOW HEIRS."

Paul speaks of the unfolding of a mystery concerning the ancient plan of God, which was, that the Gentiles should be fellow heirs, and of the same body, and partakers of his promise in Christ by the gospel. Eph. 3: 6. "The promise made of God unto our fathers" (Acts 26: 6) was the basis of Paul's hope. We are "heirs" to what God has promised, not to the nominal Jew, void of faith; for "he is not a Jew which is one outwardly, ... but he is a Jew which is one inwardly" (Rom. 2: 28, 29), and also promised to the believing Gentiles, who by faith have become "fellow heirs" with the Jews "who are of faith." The unbelieving Jew is not an heir at all, and the believing Gentile becomes an heir by faith, and belongs to the "same body" with believing Jews, for Christ "hath made both one, and hath broken down the middle wall of partition between us" (Eph. 2: 14). "Know ye, therefore, that they which are of faith, the same are the children of Abraham. . . . . So then they which be of faith are blessed with faithful Abraham. . . . And if ye be Christ's, then are ye Abraham's seed, and heirs according to the promise" (Gal. 3: 7, 9, 29).

These heirs have the promise of a certain "land" which will be jointly possessed by Abraham and his "Seed, which is Christ," together with all who can claim a relationship to Abraham on the principle of faith through Christ. A blood relation to Abraham, void of faith, is not an heir. And all who are "the children of Abraham," on the principle of faith, will be immortalized at the resurrection; and therefore they will enter the promised land in a deathless state. Until this epoch, the promised land will be in the possession of enemies. But the time will come when God "shall have put down all rule and authority and power" in the land, which God promised to Abraham, which Paul says is "the world." Rom. 4: 13. Then the saints will take the kingdom "under the whole heaven," and possess it forever. Then the "fellow heirs"—believing Jews and believing Gentiles—will be made fellow-possessors of the promised land. Abraham, now dead, will be there, a living and deathless man; and the same trump that awakens Abraham will also awaken every heir; and then God will fulfill his oath to the father of the faithful—"All the land which thou seest, to thee will I give it, and to thy seed forever. Gen. 13: 15. Yet during his lifetime, "he gave him none inheritance in it, no, not so much as to set his foot on." Acts 7: 5. The fulfillment of this promise involves the resurrection, and the resurrection involves the coming of the Lord. W. S.

"HOLY VIOLENCE."—We hear often about "holy violence", and when we inquire for the foundation of such an idea, we are referred to this text—"And from the days of John the Baptist until now the kingdom of heaven suffereth violence, and the violent take it by force." Matt. 11: 12. This is often applied to a blessing received in answer to prayer. But is there any suffering connected with the reception or giving of a blessing? Can a man suffer a blessing? Campbell renders it—"The kingdom of heaven is invaded, and the invaders take possession by force." The Diaglott reads—"Forcibly assailed, and the violent seize it." Whiting reads—"The violent seize it." Wiclif—"Violent men reach it." Some component element of the kingdom here as elsewhere, is called the kingdom. The prospective subjects of the kingdom incurred the violence of opposition, and so did Christ, the prospective King. They said—"This is the heir; come let us kill him, and let us seize on his inheritance." Matt 21: 38. Thus more than one element of the kingdom suffered violence, and an effort was made to reach the territory from the true Messiah. These elements, now in an unorganized state, will soon be organized into an everlasting kingdom, where violence can never come. W. S.

NEBRASKA.—Eld. G. G. Godfrey, from Wisconsin, has removed to Nebraska, where he will proclaim the gospel of the kingdom. He is a true man of God, and an earnest preacher, and will exert a good influence wherever he goes. Wisconsin parts with him regretfully, but Nebraska may well rejoice. W. S.

WHAT THE FIGURES MEAN.—A sister writes: "On the Crisis sent me, on the blue slip, I see June 25—72. What does it mean?" It means that it is paid for up to that date. All can thus tell how far they have paid in advance, or how far they are in arrears. W. S.

ANOTHER TIME CONFERENCE.

I have been interrogated as to when I was going to have another time conference? The feeling manifested at the close of the Worcester meeting was one of anxiety for another meeting of like character, as soon as practicable, to be held in some convenient locality. I am not situated at my place to call such a meeting here, as but few could be accommodated. But if brethren at Providence, R. I., or Portsmouth, N. H., or Springfield, Mass., are desirous of having such a gathering, either of the above named places, I think, would be good localities. The church at Worcester was benefited by the late time conference there, as was stated by Bro. E. G. Higgins at the Chelsea conference. It was felt and expressed there, by intelligent and substantial brethren, that the subject was just opened at that meeting (i. e., at Worcester), and that several such meetings were imperatively needed and called for. Now, who will respond and open the door for such another meeting? I think the rules of debate, or discussion, at such meetings should be made by the conference after coming together. Harbingers of the coming judgment are ominous. It is no time now to sleep over this thrilling question. For the cause of our coming King I speak.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LIBRARIES.

The Second Advent believers have found it a difficult task to find books suitable to put into Sunday school libraries, for their children, as nearly all S. S. books teach the dogma of the immortality of the soul, and other heathen notions. We wish to call the attention of all S. S. librarians to "Sunbeam Stories, written and prepared by H. L. Hastings." Ten volumes, neatly and prettily bound in cloth. Price, $2.50.

These are among the best books we have ever seen for S. S. libraries for little folks. We ought to have a hundred volumes of this character for our Sunday schools. Those who obtain these will feel thankful for them. Now is the time when teachers and superintendents are seeking for books for schools. Do not forget to call for "Sunbeam Stories."

ELDER GRANT'S LECTURES.—Ed. Transcript:—A good congregation met on Tuesday evening, despite the very unpleasant weather, to listen to the Elder's exposition of the question, "What is man?" In a very plain and forcible manner, he showed that, according to the uniform testimony of the Scriptures, the intelligent, responsible being called man, was made of dust; made in the image of his Creator; that he was called man before he became a living man, after he dies, while he lies in the grave and in the sea, and that he is to be called from thence at the last day, to be judged and rewarded according to his works; that nothing was added or given to him to make him a living soul or living man but the breath of life, which is common to all the animal creation, and that whenever this breath of life leaves him, or returns to Him who gave it, he dies and returns to the dust from whence he came, there to wait in unconscious silence the resurrection at the last day. He showed also, that a belief in the continued existence of the soul, separate from the body, is the very foundation and sole support of Brahmanism, Buddism, Mohammedanism, Catholicism, Mormonism, and lastly Spiritualism with all its monstrous doctrines, and that if this great error could be blotted out from the human mind, all these false systems would instantly fall to the ground. Several objections were offered and answered. The Baptist minister was present, and many persons wish they all would be there to oppose the error or learn the truth, as the case may prove to be. Subject for this evening, "the resurrection of the dead."—A Listener.—The Daily Transcript, Nevada City, Cal.

THE TRACT FUND.

The Advent Christian Publication Society, at a meeting on Springfield Camp-ground, August 23d, 1871, voted to raise Two Thousand Dollars for the free distribution of Tracts the ensuing year; and they invite the help and co-operation of all lovers of the Lord and of his truth, in the furtherance of the good cause. The times are ominous of coming events, and admonish us to diligence in the Master's work. The Lord is at the door, and what we do must be done quickly. Let the contributions be prompt, hearty, and liberal. The Lord will reward the liberal giver.

Correspondence.

From Bro. H. H. Tilley.

BRO. GRANT:—I am happy to announce to you that the candlestick is once more set up in the national metropolis, and the Second Advent candle once more lighted, not to be extinguished, I trust, until its light is merged in that of the Sun of Righteousness. You are aware that, after your services here with the tent several years ago, a little band of us obtained the use of the City Hall, and kept up meetings for some time. But as we lay so far beyond the orbit of most of our preachers, and some, both from abroad and in our midst, who undertook to edify us failed to do so acceptably, the cause languished, one after another dropped off, until, on the inauguration of Dr. Bray's enterprise of an independent church, on what we understood to be a Second Advent basis, it was thought best to give up the City Hall, and cast our lot in with him. Failing to find the home there that we expected, we withdrew, and each one sought spiritual nutriment where he could best find it, as we had done before your visit. Last fall, however, Sr. E., a poor widow, but a devout lover of the gospel of the kingdom, who had long mourned and prayed over the desolation of our Zion, returned from the Springfield campmeeting thoroughly awake to the importance of letting our light shine during the short remaining hour of the morning watch. Calling on a few of those brethren and sisters who had "kept their garments," and by personal appeals, got them to come together, with a view to reorganization. We hired a hall for a number of Sabbaths, and were favored with the visits of Bro. Wilfong, Phelps and King, and Sister Hastings, whose christian zeal and counsel did much to reinspire us; but owing to our inability to procure a suitable hall, we were not able to give them an opportunity to reach the people. Our efforts to go forward also were paralyzed, as it were, by some who, though they were among us, were not of us, and yet assumed to dictate, and obstinately opposed an organization on the basis of the "covenant" which we adopted at your suggestion when you were here, and by which we wished to identify ourselves with the Adventists throughout the country.

This element, however, finding it could not rule us, has at length withdrawn, and publicly disclaimed any connection with us; and having, through the kindness of Chief Justice Carter, been permitted to re-occupy our old quarters (the Supreme Court Room, City Hall), we are in a position to "move upon the enemy's works." Srs. Stoddard and Jennings have been preaching to us nearly every evening, with good acceptance, for over a week; and though concerts, lectures, and other entertainments, have conspired to draw away the multitude, many strangers (among them some of the active members, lay and clerical, of our Y. M. C. Association, in whose meetings our services were several times announced), have attended night after night. Last Sabbath, although there were several popular preachers in town—including Mrs. Livermore, of your city, we had about as many as we could seat. The papers have given reports of one or two sermons, and the interest seems to be increasing. I trust you will be able to favor us with a visit on your return east, and perhaps a discussion can be arranged with some one of the prominent advocates of popular theology. As the different orthodox denominations and the Catholics are exerting themselves to erect "Metropolitan" churches or cathedrals here, it would seem that Bible theology should at least maintain a light-house, however humble, to warn the unwary off the rocks.

Washington, D. C., April 19th, 1872.

POSTSCRIPT.

April 30.—Since writing the above, Sister Stoddard and Jennings have been preaching for us in the City Hall nearly every evening, and twice on the Sabbath. By dint of liberal advertising (one of our brethren, who is a printer, striking off some six thousand small hand bills gratis, which we sowed broadcast) announcing the meetings in the Y. M. C. A. daily prayer-meeting, and personal invitations to our friends in other denominations, we succeeded in making their presence pretty generally known, and in getting out many who heard our distinctive tenets for the first time, and some of whom showed their interest by following up the meetings, night after night. Among others, several clergymen (not at present pastors) and others of intelligence and education, attended repeatedly and expressed their warm approval of the discourses, together with their regret that the sisters could not speak in some church or larger hall. As some of these were active workers in the Y. M. C. Association (of which I am an "active" life member) I asked our General Secretary, Rev. G. A. Hall, if he would not like to have them speak in "Lincoln Hall," (in the new Association Building, and the hall of the city) under the auspices of the Association. He said he would like well enough to have them, as he was a Methodist, and had no prejudice against women's speaking in public; but as some influential members of the Association had, he did not feel at liberty to invite them. Determined that the public should have no excuse for not hearing these sisters on the score of the place where they spoke, several of the brethren engaged Lincoln Hall, issued posters and advertised in three daily papers, that they would preach there on Saturday evening last; Sr. Stoddard, who had purposed leaving, having consented to remain over another Sabbath. As the weather proved threatening, we did not have as many out as we had hoped, but as quite a number were new ones, who came to hear for the first time, and Sr. S. preached an excellent discourse, we did not consider our expenditure of money or effort lost, but trust the seed sown will spring up "in due time."

Sister S. preached again at the City Hall Sabbath morning, and Sister Jennings in the evening, to a crowded house, which we had not had before. At the conclusion of the discourse, she administered the communion, and I think the strangers who remained and looked on with much interest, gained a new view of the gospel simplicity and impressiveness of the ordinance as we conduct it, compared with the hierarchal method. Among the audience this evening were a number of our colored friends, and two of them (one a member of the Metropolitan Police force, in his uniform) sat down at the board with us, in response to Sr. J.'s liberal invitation, and gave in an earnest testimony for Christ. Bro. Willfong, from Philadelphia, was also with us last week, and spoke several evenings, with good effect, to a large and attentive crowd at the corner of Penn. Avenue and Seventh St. (where the Y. M. C. Association hold open air meetings every evening through the summer). Bro. W. also gave a little account, at the prayer-meeting of the Y. M. C. A., Sunday evening, of the wonderful revival now in progress, and at which he had just been assisting, in Concord, N. H., under the labors of Brn. Hook and Lutz. Cannot they, or some one there, cheer the hearts of your readers by a short report of it? I enclose a report, from the daily National Republican, of Srs. S. and J.'s last three discourses. H. H. SERMONS BY WOMEN.

On Saturday evening, Mrs. L. M. Stoddard preached in Lincoln Hall, from 2 Chron. 6: 18—"But will God, in very deed, dwell with men on the earth?" As an answer to the question, she cited the promise of Christ that the meek shall inherit the earth (which H. W. Beecher had confessed he could not understand), and the passage in Revelations—"Behold, the habitation of God is with men, and he shall dwell with them." She then proceeded to prove that the new earth was to be the everlasting abode of the righteous.

Yesterday she preached at the City Hall, from Rev. 2: 17—"To him that overcometh will I give to eat of the hidden manna, and will give him a white stone, and in the stone a new name written, which no man knoweth, saving he that receiveth it." Speaking of the manna eaten by the Israelites, she said it was a type of Christ, on whom we were to feed in our hearts by faith, which would make us immortal. On the subject of overcoming, she said, we were to fight against "wicked spirits in the heavenly places," which she understood as referring to the phenomena of Spiritualism, as she considered them to be produced, not by the spirits of the dead, but by demons such as Christ cast out when on earth.

Last evening Mrs. Jennings preached to a crowded house from Isa. 25: 9—"And it shall be said in that day, Lo! this is our God; we have waited for him, and he will save us; we will be glad and rejoice in his salvation." The day referred to is the day of judgment, and only those who had accepted Christ as their Savior would be able to adopt the language of the text. The children of God are to be waiting for Christ at his second coming. There are only two comings spoken of; hence he does not come at the conversion or death of individuals. The salvation was to be of what was lost, including a restoration to our Eden home, forfeited by Adam's fall.

At the conclusion of the discourse the ordinance of the Lord's Supper was administered.

Bro. A. W. Sibley writes from Sandy Hill, N. Y., April 29th, 1872:—"Yesterday was a good day for the Advent Christian church of this village. We buried eight happy souls in the Hudson river, who now are rejoicing in the hope of eternal life through Christ. Five of them were heads of families. As they were planted in the likeness of Christ's death, may they also be in the likeness of his resurrection."

INYO OUTDONE.

A POPULOUS PHILIPPINE ISLAND SHAKEN TO PIECES.

Mails from Madrid bring the news of the destruction by an earthquake of the town of Cotta-bato, capital of the Spanish East Indian island of Mindanao. The following is from the letter of a resident of the town:

At ten minutes past six in the afternoon of Dec. 8th, Cotta-bato was a joyous place, whose inhabitants walked tranquilly by the banks of the beautiful river which bathed its feet. At twenty minutes past six—that is to say within ten minutes—it was a heap of ruins. A fearful but short trembling of the earth, of an intensity unknown in the Philippines, destroyed in one moment the industry of years. The subterranean rumbling which preceded it, the noise of hundreds of houses falling, the horrible spectacle of the earth waving as if it were a liquid, and the sad conviction that no one could fly (for the place is situated in a delta), inspired terrors in the inhabitants utterly impossible to describe. The open fields, the trees, and the hillocks, served as a dangerous lodging-place for the natives. A pitiless rain-storm was falling, accompanied by lightning and shaking of the ground. The accidents would have been great but for the serenity of the garrison—due to their military discipline—so useful in such cases. After attending to the invalids of the hospital, which fell down, they in twenty minutes covered the fields with hundreds of tents, under which they and the people took shelter. By this means the casualties were limited to sundry persons contused and one boy killed.

The night was awful through the constant oscillations of the earth. Frightful confusion reigned, augmented by the idea which ran through the populace that the surrounding hills might be converted into volcanoes, as happened not many months ago in a neighboring island. At midnight the rain ceased, and then commenced the moving spectacle of an entire population on the march, traversing over ruins, chanting a fervent litany; the European confounded with the native, the master with the servant, the officer with the soldier.

Next morning (9th) which may be said to have been a continuation of the previous night, commenced with a fog so great that it was hardly possible to see anything ahead. This caused fears of fresh misfortunes. At half-past seven the earth, as if moved by the hand of a giant, became more agitated than it was the previous night. The aspect all around was desolating; the ruins seemed to boil, the still standing walls fell down, and lamentation, crying and praying completed the most afflicting picture that could be conceived.

The earthquake presented the singular phenomena of being repeated six times. Fearing a general caving in of the ground, the navy, represented on this occasion by two gunboats in the river, offered to convey on board as many as their boats could carry. The governor, Brigadier Fernandez de Cordova, ordered the embarkation of as many females as possible. His wife and other ladies offered the brave spectacle of refusing to leave their husbands on shore. One afflicted mother of two young cadets, clung to them so closely that force had to be used to separate her and to carry her on board.

Fortunately the tremblings ceased; but every hour we felt some slight rumbling, from which I gather that the subterranean gasses had not found a means of escape through any of the numerous extinct volcanoes in the neighborhood. This risk and uncertainty, which the authorities tried in vain to hide by music and Te Deums, spread consternation to all the inhabitants in this unhappy land. The native Indians fled in canoes and rafts, but the garrison, with an abnegation and patriotism worthy of all praise, remained true to their posts, determined to sink with this piece of earth, gained at the cost of Spanish blood, rather than abandon it to the thousands of savages who, from the opposite banks, waited an opportunity for seizing on this important place.

Obituaries.

Purrinton. Died in Lisbon, Me., Feb. 11th, Bro. Joshua Purrinton, aged seventy-four years.

Bro. P. was a faithful christian in the early part of life among the F. W. Baptists. In 1843 he heard and embraced the proclamation of Jesus' soon coming. This added greatly to his joy in hope, and gave him new life and courage. His house has ever been a home for all pilgrims. He looked with ardent desire and scriptural watchfulness for the return of the Lord. His sufferings were great at times, but he endured all with patience, and calmly fell asleep, leaving a widow and three daughters, with many friends, to mourn their loss. He will be greatly missed in his neighborhood. But the Lord will soon bring him back to live forever. I. C. Wellcome.

Horn. Fell asleep in Jesus in Prescott, Mass., March 2nd, 1872, of consumption, Nelson Horn, aged sixty-four years.

Another of God's dear ones has fallen asleep in Jesus, while a dear companion and three sons mourn his loss; but they have hope in his death, and believe he will soon come from the land of the enemy, and they will meet him again.

May the God of all grace comfort and sustain the fatherless and widow in this their great and sore affliction; and may we all so live that when the morning dawns, and the saints are all gathered, we may hear the blessed Savior say—"Come, ye blessed of my Father; inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world." L. B. Weaver.

Austin. Died in Manchester, Vt., March 31st, 1872, of pneumonia, Sr. Olive Austin, wife of Bro. Jno. W. Austin, in the sixty-ninth year of her age.

In early life Sr. Austin sought and found the Savior, and joined the Congregational church in Granville, N. Y., her native town. In 1826 she removed to Poultney, Vt., and united with the M. E. church, with which she remained for many years a devoted member. She was a true Bible Christian, and for the last twelve years believed in the soon coming of Jesus, in whom she now sweetly sleeps. The funeral services were at Poultney.

Powers. Died at Underhill, Vt., April 16th, 1872, Emma M., daughter of Calvin E. and Sarah A. Myers, formerly of Bristol, Vt., and wife of G. S. Powell, aged twenty-one years, two months, and twenty-six days.

She was esteemed most highly by those who knew her best. She sleeps in Jesus, leaving a husband, father, sister, brothers, and child, with numerous friends to mourn her early death. They sorrow not as those that mourn without hope. E. S. Sheldon.

Aldrich. Died at Whitefield, N. H., April 16th, Bro. Moriel Aldrich, aged seventy-four years.

Bro. A. has been a firm supporter of the Advent cause in W. for many years. Not only do his widow and seven children experience a great loss, but the church and community at large. He has remembered the poor, and often relieved them. His last work was to warn all who came to his bedside to meet him on the new earth. His hope made him exceeding joyful. N. Wheeler.

Jewell. Died in Rutland, Vt., Feb. 20th, Mary, only daughter of Sr. Octavia Jewell, aged twenty-two years and ten months.

Mary was converted more than a year ago, and was baptized by Bro. Boutell. Since then she has lived a consistent christian. By her death, her mother is deprived of an only daughter, yet she expects in a little while to meet her in the new earth, where partings never come. Funeral attended by Eld. C. H. Leverton.

Simonds. Died at East Acworth, N. H., March 18th, 1872, of consumption, Bro. Geo. H. Simonds, son of Bro. John S. Simonds, aged twenty-two years, ten months, and two days.

Eight weeks before his death, George found peace in believing. He was very patient in all his sufferings. "He sleeps, but not forever." Funeral attended by the writer. C. H. Fletcher.

Hilliard. Died at Great Falls, N. H., April 6th, 1872, Sr. Amelia Hilliard, in her seventy-first year.

Funeral attended by the writer on the 9th inst., at the residence of her son-in-law, Geo. A. Jackson, in Portsmouth, where she was brought for burial. She rests in hope. J. T. Dixon.

Kidder. Died in Belmont, N. H., April 8th, Sr. Emily, wife of Eld. Abiel Kidder, aged sixty-three years.

She made the good profession, and was baptized by Eld. Moses Winchester, forty-three years ago. She leaves Bro. Kidder and an only daughter, who deeply mourn their loss, but they mourn not as those who have no hope. She sleeps in Jesus. O. J. Wait.

Emmons. Died in Orange, N. H., April 15th, 1872, Bro. Moses S. Emmons, aged sixty-nine years, one month and seven days.

Avery. In Hill, N. H., April 2nd, Sr. Almira Avery, aged seventeen years and one month.

TERRIBLY DESTRUCTIVE STORM.

London, May 2. Bombay telegrams received here announce that steamers and other vessels arriving at that port from Zanzibar convey information of a terrible hurricane which devastated that region on the 15th of April last. The gale raged for a whole day and night, and it is estimated that nearly one-half of the entire property on the island of Zanzibar was destroyed. Hundreds of houses were uprooted from their foundations, and dashed in pieces by the violence of the wind. Many of the inhabitants are believed to have been crushed to death by the falling dwellings. The sea rose to a great height, and in some places encroached upon the land to such an extent as to compel the people to recede further into the interior. One hundred and fifty vessels, comprising the larger portion of the shipping of Zanzibar, were swept from their moorings and swamped by the storm in the harbor or carried out to sea and wrecked. The total damage is estimated at upwards of £2,000,000 sterling. A large number of seamen perished in the storm.

TURKEY.

RIOT AT SMYRNA.

Constantinople, May 2. Advices from Smyrna state that that city has been the scene of a bloody and desperate riot. The report in some way gained credence that the Jews had sacrificed an infant in some of their religious rites. This report caused great excitement among the Greeks, between whom and the Jews there is at all times an antagonism, which requires but the least exciting cause to bring on an open conflict. In this case, the Greeks gathered in throngs, and, vowing vengeance on the Jews, assaulted the latter, accompanying the onslaught with hideous outcries. It is not known how many were killed, but it is stated that the number of fatalities was great, while many more were seriously wounded. The authorities were enabled to disperse the rioters, and the latest accounts state that comparative quiet reigned. It was feared, however, that the riot would be renewed, and it was proposed to post a military force in the city to quell disorders that might arise.

FRANCE.

COURT MARTIAL.

Paris, May 5. A court martial, to continue about one hundred days, for the trial of Marshal Bazaine, who was censured by the committee on capitulations for his conduct at Metz, will be held at Versailles beginning the latter part of April. Twelve hundred witnesses will be summoned before the court. The government will allow Bazaine to employ as counsel Mr. Tachard, the well-known advocate.

THE HEALTH OF THE PRESIDENT.

Care and anxiety are breaking the health of President Theirs. Those interested in his administration express much anxiety. A new revolution would follow his death or his retirement.

MORE COURT MARTIALING.

The government has decided to bring Generals Wimpffen and Uhlrich to trial by court martial, on certain charges connected with their action during the late Franco-German war.

ITALY.

AFFAIRS AT ROME.

Rome, May 5. The city is very unhealthy. Many Americans are now here. The Pope holds a political conference with his advisers to-morrow. His proposed removal from this city is still agitated.

SPAIN.

Madrid, May 5. Senor Emilie Castelar, the well-known Republican leader announces that a general Republican rising throughout Spain is imminent. It is understood that it is the intention of the Republican deputies in the Cortes to resign their seats in that body and openly adhere to the new movement. Uninterrupted communication is maintained between the various Carlist and Republican organizations, and it is stated that the insurrectionary movement is rapidly extending. The declaration of Senor Castelar, announcing his support, has been the means of adding much strength and influence to the Republican cause. The Carlist troops, notwithstanding the tone of recent despatches announcing the disorganization and partial collapse of the Carlist Republican coalition, still remain massed in considerable force in Navarre, Andalusia and other districts. Disaffection has been discovered to exist to a certain extent in the army, and the government is apprehensive that in the event of a general Republican rising the troops would join the revolt. The actions and movement of army officials and others whose fidelity is suspected, are being subjected to the closest scrutiny. Reliable information has just been received in this city announcing the arrival of Don Carlos in Navarre. It is also added that he will at once proceed to place himself at the head of his supporters, and begin offensive operations against the government troops in that province. Hundreds are flocking to his standard, and his presence has inspired renewed courage and fresh hopes of the ultimate success of the campaign. It is said that the priests are at the bottom of the Carlist insurrection, and are endeavoring to inaugurate a religious war, which, if they succeed in giving it the importance they aim to give it, will be a most sanguinary and relentless strife on both sides.

It is now announced that Don Carlos is in Spain at the head of his "volunteers," and Don Alphonso, his brother, is with him. The proclamation signed by him which was circulating in Madrid was genuine. There is a deep uneasiness in Madrid.

LATER.

Evening. It is now said that Don Carlos entered Vera, a town in Navarre, on the Bidassoa river, which forms a part of the boundary line between France and Spain, on Friday. His entry was greeted by ringing of church bells and the cheering of the people. The full force of the revolution is upon us. Carlists are burning and destroying in all directions. The warfare is entirely of a guerrilla character. Arrests are made daily in this city.

STILL LATER.

Midnight. The following is the latest news of Don Carlos' movements and of the state of affairs in Spain: Don Carlos arrived at Vera, in Navarre, forty miles north of Pampeluna, on Thursday. He immediately issued two proclamations, one of which begins, "Spaniards, soldiers, the watchword is God and coutry. The King appeals to your honor on God's altars to annihilate the foreigner. He promises peace, abundance and liberty."

LATEST.

May 6. A dispatch just arrived here announces that a general engagement has occurred between the Carlist and Royalist forces at Navarre. Gen. Palacia, commanding a division of the government troops, attacked the Carlist army near Carao, in the province of Navarre, last evening, and, after a severe and determined battle of nine hours' duration, gained a complete victory over the rebels. The losses sustained on both sides during the engagement are reported to have been very heavy. It is stated that Don Carlos himself is among the prisoners taken. The news has created the wildest excitement here.

In Brief.

—— A train on the Nashville and Chattanooga railroad was stopped on the 18th inst. by a hail-storm. The engineer says that at one time he could not see the smoke-stack of his engine. The brass-works on the domes of the locomotive were badly shattered, and indentations were made even in the iron jacket which covers the boiler.——The second track through Mont Cenis tunnel has been laid and opened, and the double track is now in actual use.——One hundred and ten thousand Bedouin pilgrims visited Mecca this year. A health officer from Constantinople enforced sanitary regulations, and no cholera or other epidemic disease manifested itself among them.——A tubular bridge has been planned to extend across San Francisco bay. It is an immense iron tube intended to be sunk from twenty-eight to thirty feet below the surface, and held in place by its own boyancy and by cables and mushroom anchors. The tube is to be twenty feet in diameter, and made of boiler iron, strengthened by an internal framework of iron beams. The invention is based upon the idea that the buoyancy of the tube will be equal to the weight of a train of cars, and that in the absence of this weight the cables and anchors will hold the tube in place.——The Council General of Corsica has confirmed the election of Prince Napoleon as a member of the council.

Important Conference of Internationals. London, May 6th. A conference of prominent members of the International Society is being held in this city to-night, for the purpose of deciding upon a plan of action against certain continental powers, more especially those governments which have recently inaugurated measures for the suppression of the society. The meeting is a secret one, and the proceedings will not be given to the public. Representatives from several foreign branches of the society are in attendance.

If not, please give him the name of your minister, the number of members in your church, its services, how, when, and where held; and such other information as may be of interest, or necessary to carry into practical effect the tabulation of our Conference statistics. Sharp's, comfortable, with chimneys, and an addition to Bro. Sharp's house. Now we feel safe from thieves breaking in hereafter, and carrying off what they pleased, leaving the houses there open. I have paid a part of the expense, and owe some $60. I want those having property there to help me pay it. Bro. Sharp has paid $15, besides giving the use of his house. What the friends see fit to send, please do so as soon as you can, either in pledges or in cash, as it must be paid soon. Direct to me at Chicopee Falls, Mass.

IMPERFECT IN ORIGINAL

THE SWORD.

"And take the helmet of salvation and the sword of the Spirit, which is the word of God."—Eph. 6: 16, 17.

For the warfare gird it on;
Not until the fight be won,
And the day's sharp work is done,
Lay it by!

Sharp its edge, oh! use it well;
Strong against the strongest spell
Ever framed in earth or hell,
It will prove!

Bright its blade; oh, keep it bright
For the battle day and night;
Stainless as the flashing light
Let it shine!

With it hew thy onward way,
Through hell's thickest war-array;
Nothing let thy soul dismay
To the last!

Weapon of the true and just,
Trust it strongly, warrior, trust,
Keep it free from earthly rust;
Win it must!

Strike for God, and let each blow
Tell on Satan's overthrow,
Be the ruin of a foe;
Strike for God!

Not for angels was it made,
Man alone can wield that blade,
Soldiers of the great crusade,—
Host of God!

Sword of God, thy power we hail;
He who has thee cannot fail,
He who trusts thee must prevail,
Mighty sword!

Rich in victories untold,
Still the precious sword of old,
Steel and gems and glorious gold,
To the last!

Till the warfare shall be done,
Till the victory be won,
Till the triumph be begun,
Grasp we thee!

A STORY OF GRACE.—No. 15.

E. S. WILLARD.

The bitter cup—The downy pillow—Lazarus—Mount of blessing.

In July of the year 1861, the bitter cup so many were then drinking was suddenly and most unexpectedly pressed to my own lips. How can I drink it? was the question that continually revolved in my mind. I had not thought it possible that it could come even to me; but here it was, and I must drink. In one short week I took the parting hand of my two eldest sons, aged eighteen and twenty-three, and imprinted, as I supposed, the last token of love upon their lips, unless they should be spared to return from the war. But the younger son returned on the following Sunday evening and came into our room in the dead hour of night, with these joyful words—"Mother, do not grieve any more about me, I have given up going." Half my load was indeed gone, and I wept for very gladness, kissed his lips again, then heard his story which was soon told. One of his company was suddenly taken sick and abandoned the idea of enlisting, which caused the whole to give it up. How I saw the hand of the Lord in this, and see it still. How disastrous might such a step have proven to this son, at this tender age.

But his brother came not. Weeks and months rolled on and still he came not. After a time the terrible slaughter at Ball's Bluff was announced. Col. Baker killed, and our son's name in the list of the "missing." Thus we were left in suspense. He might be a prisoner; he might be in the bottom of the angry waters crimsoned with his own, and his comrades' blood. His friend, who with him had left the paternal roof, and was to him as Jonathan to David, lost no time in informing us of the terrible disaster, and of his long and perilous search for our son amid rain, darkness and death; but in vain. Yet this gave hope that he was a prisoner.

After two weeks' suspense, while wrestling with the Lord in the dead of night, he spoke peace to my soul; and the assurance was given me that I should see my son again, that he yet lived; that this war, like the fish to Jonah, had swallowed him up, but in due time he would be cast out unharmed, and made willing to do the Lord's bidding. I could now wait in perfect patience the Lord's time for tidings from him. And on the twentieth day, a soiled, torn and open letter—the most precious script ever received by us—came to hand. As we recognized his well-known autograph, at my earnest request we all fell upon our knees together and offered unfeigned thanks to God for this token of his love. We then read the letter. He was indeed a prisoner in Richmond, Va., but was in good spirits, and as well cared for as the nature of his stay would permit. Here he remained for four months a prisoner, when we had the unspeakable joy of greeting him at home, safe and sound. Friends were present to joy in our joy, and we felt—"This my son was dead and is alive again, was lost and is found." Our happy voices soon rose in a hymn of praise to the great Giver of all good, and many were the thanksgivings that followed from the kneeling circle; and not the least of interest, were those of the returned soldier. One month from this he fulfilled his vows to his espoused and they were united in marriage. We now felt that our son's choice was doubly our daughter, as she was the first fruits unto God of our labors, being one of our first scholars in the Bible class and the first among them to seek and find Jesus. Bless His name! In laboring to save the children of others we saved our own. How good was the Lord in this, for how many, like Rebecca, are left to say—"I am weary of my life because of the daughters of Heth."

As sunshine and shade quickly follow each other so was this bridal scene in this same April moon followed by almost a death-bed gloom; and nothing short of the strong cry of faith in obedience to the apostolic injunction (Jas. 5: 14, 15) saved my husband from death. After the anointing and prayer at his request, by a ministering brother then resident in the family, my pent-up soul gushed forth in importunate prayer; and the case of Hezekiah came to my remembrance; and I asked my God with my whole heart to add fifteen years to the life of my husband, and I believe he heard and answered, and gave me the sign; for on the third day from this (Apr. 17th, 1862), husband walked from his sick room into the kitchen.

This chastisement and healing led us renewedly to consecrate ourselves to our public duties, and to extend our labors to adjoining towns. Every Lord's day was improved, and with the help of our brother above alluded to, the meetings at home and abroad were most assiduously kept up, as also the Bible class.

This year (1862) was emphatically the year of trial to my soul, but at its close it was as emphatically the year of blessing. As the deep waters were passed, and the furnace heated seven times hotter than it was wont, how cheering the cooling shade, how sweet the song of deliverance! It is our God who knows just how to temper all these things to the good of his pilgrim children. It is our God who can say—"When thou passest through the waters I will be with thee; and through the rivers, they shall not overflow thee: when thou walkest through the fire thou shalt not be burned; neither shall the flame kindle upon thee. For I am the Lord thy God, the Holy One of Israel, thy Savior." Isa. 43: 2, 3.

Thus it was with me; I was not injured by any of these things but rather prepared thereby for the greatest blessing of my life—a downy pillow on which to rest my head that so often this year had rested upon the cold ground in earnest supplication to him for help. On the morning of December eleventh, this desired testimony that I pleased God was given me. The blessed family altar was the honored place of its bestowal. As we knelt in the morning service and the prayers were going up from one and another, all at once, as the sun sheds his mellow ray upon the green earth after a gentle shower, did the Holy Spirit shine this sweet testimony into my waiting soul. Every waring element was withdrawn. I was perfectly calm and adoringly happy. The lowest tones of voice were most congenial to me. I rested in God and he in me as never before. We seemed one in spirit. I was made capable of this oneness as never before. Self seemed annihilated. God only lived, and I in him. Earth was naught. My Lord was all. I was ready to go or stay as he willed, but it did seem to me I should soon see his face and be with him. And it proved no illusion of the hour. I could talk of it and it did not vanish; could go about the duties of every day life; could sleep and awake, and it remained a blessed reality. It was my Father's smile; the Spirit's abiding seal; the water which Jesus gave which was in me a well of water springing up into everlasting life. John 4: 14. Not that I have had no wants nor trials since. Oh no! I am just as human, just as frail and needy as ever, but here has been the welling fountain to which I daily and hourly come, the remedy at hand and the power to use it.

During these years the hand of the Lord was upon me in behalf of the colored race, and I sought them out, testifying both in public and in private to the travail of soul that was upon me. Like David I had inquired of the Lord why his heavy war-judgments were upon us as a nation, and the answer was as satisfactory that it was for our sins against this our brother, as was the answer of the Lord to David concerning the three years famine. I felt that God was calling upon us by a drawn sword, pointing at the life blood of the nation to make an atonement* to this people, that they might bless us and intercede for us, as did Job for his three friends, that God's wrath be turned away from us and we be saved alive.

The colored man is the Lazarus of this dispensation as the now rich Gentile was the Lazarus of the Mosaic. As the Jew oppressed the Gentile so now does the Gentile oppress the poor colored man and cast him out from society. In vain has this poor man asked for the crumbs that fell from his master's table, but has been left to die with none to comfort him save here and there one; and they for this have been no better esteemed than those to whom they ministered.

But the angels forgot not Lazarus in his poverty, and he has had bread to eat that his oppressor knew not of; manna, to which the rich man, with all his sumptuous fare, his purple and fine linen, was a stranger. Glory be to God! for his ways are equal; he has respect unto the lowly, and has given commandment to his children that they "mind not high things, but condescend to men of low estate."

It was in this year that the narrow path seemed to lead us up for the first time to our yearly campmeeting at Wilbraham, Mass.—that beautiful mountain, that consecrated spot. A mercy-seat it has been to my soul, and to our children. Here two out of three sons were blessed. How can I but speak His praise! Like David my knees were weak with fasting when I first set my foot upon that sacred encampment, and my first act was to fall before the Lord and seek his blessing upon me and mine while here; and this he gave, for a travail for souls was upon me throughout the meeting; but for my own son, our second, who accompanied us, it was paramount. And the Lord was pleased to give others, strangers though they were, a spirit of labor for him akin to my own, and this continued until Friday morning, where the burden was lifted and with one consent we spoke no more to him of his personal interest that day, nor the next, but turned our hearts unto others.

At the close of Bro. Munger's searching discourse on Saturday night, where my son was quite out of my mind, so intent had I been hearing for another dear soul, I thought I recognized a familiar voice in testimony, and following the example of many before me I sprang to my feet upon the seat, and there he stood, and these his closing words fell dis-upon my ear—"My mind is not as clear as I could wish, but Jesus has said—'He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved.' I believe, and have made up my mind to obey God, and leave the results with him."

With a mother's full soul now I cried—"Brethren and sisters, this is the son for whom I have so earnestly sought your prayers and now they are answered before your eyes." Then went up a shout of praise to God from many an unselfish heart. On Lord's day, "that great day of the feast," when thousands met, with this son on one arm and his young friend upon the other, Eld. Hastings, while singing, walked down into this flowing Jordan, and there in the presence of a vast concourse planted these two, with eighteen others, in the likeness of Christ's death, and raised them up amid many hopes and prayers that they might walk in newness of life.

To encourage parents to use their means to bring their children into the circle of blessing, let me say it was hard to break the ice and to take this son with us, as he was on the eve of entering the State Normal School in Trenton, N. J., and went directly there from the [illegible] son the rest of our days. And I may add, amid boisterous winds and dashing waves that threatened to engulf all, this anchor of God's own planting has held—Glory to his name! and I believe it will until we are safely moored in the haven of rest—

"By our conquering Savior's side."

In 1863 we again attended this meeting, accompanied by our youngest son, now fifteen, who for a year had been hoping in God's forgiving love in Jesus Christ. On both these occasions we set out in time to spend a few days in Boston with those so dear to us by reputation. At this time, while husband met with the dear brethren, I felt pressed in spirit to seek out the colored saints. Met in the morning with the Baptist church and in the afternoon with the Methodist, speaking to them of the great Emancipator—the Lord Jesus Christ—and of his soon coming to this earth again. The campmeeting was a place of God's power. As early as Thursday morning we had the happiness of seeing our son, with nine others, mostly young, buried with Christ in baptism at the hand of Bro. I. Damman; and as the scene closed, what a shout of "Glory to God"! rent the air from his full soul as he stood upon the shore with his little company of recruits around him, and the sacred waters dripping from his person.

On our return we visited our eldest son at Rochester, N. Y. Here we were blessed in the breaking of bread with the children of God. We also met with the colored saints in their large and flourishing Sabbath-school, and the liberty of the Spirit was given me in prayer for them and their race in view of their oppressions and the tokens of their speedy release from bondage. As we rose, they flocked around and received with grateful hearts the words of comfort which were given me to speak.

We now stand where we can fellowship all of God's family. The high, the low, the rich, the poor, colored or white, bond or free. All are our "brother, sister and mother," who do the will of God. Thanks be to God for this platform! It is as broad as earth, as high as heaven,—the Bible position; a position worthy of a God who has revealed himself as a Father to all his children, and no respecter of persons. With sectarianism and ourselves, with the help of God, there is an eternal separation. We stand out free and bold upon God's literal word, to believe and do all that is written therein, despite all human authority. A whole Bible is christian; a half, fourth, or a sixteenth, is sectarian. Give us the whole or none.

After an absence of seven weeks, we arrived safely at home. A Father's gracious care had been over all in our absence. The most consoling assurance was given me at this time that every event, of my life, of whatever character, is working out the desire of my heart, so far as my obligations to them are concerned, in the salvation of my fellow men. I cannot express the sweet comfort this assurance gave. I could say—"Lord! it is enough." Every gale but helps to finish the work thou hast given me to do. The cutting rebuke and the stray word of comfort are alike oars to move on my little bark. The smooth or strong sea bring me, together with my God-given sheaves, to the port of eternal rest. Hence, though I be crushed all the day long, yet will I rejoice; for as the wheat must needs be crushed between the millstones to produce the flour, so must the children of men, before they are fit for the Master's use, be humbled between the millstones of his providence; so they may not lift up their head nor say—"It is I," but give God glory. Says the Psalmist—"My soul, wait thou only upon God, for my expectation is from him." "Oh what a lesson to learn! to wait on God. Our tendency is to run before him. And we learn patience only in the furnace of trial. There we can say—"But thou, oh Lord, art a shield for me; my glory and the lifter up of my head." "I cried unto the Lord with my voice, and he heard me out of his holy hill. I laid me down and slept. I awaked, for the Lord sustained me."

* The Emancipation Proclamation and the "good Samaritan" work that has followed are the accepted atonement.

AM I ALIVE?

It is not a sufficient answer to this question for any christian to say, "I was once converted." There is a great difference between being "made alive," and keeping alive afterwards. Quite too many professors base their hope of being christians—not on what they now are, but on some experience during a revival season in days gone by.

Genuine conversion brings a man into a new state toward God. Old things have passed away; he is a new creature. But he must constantly encounter a strong undercurrent running like a mill-race toward the old state of corruption. No renewed heart will "keep sweet" without a great deal of divine grace. No converted man will stay converted unless he takes care of himself, and the Master takes care of him.

What is conversion? It is the turning of the heart to God; and unless that heart holds fast on God, and God holds fast to him, he will soon fall off into vain confidence, apathy, pride, self-indulgence, or any sin that "doth so easily beset" him. How long do you think that Paul would have been Paul if the power of God had not kept him—through faith? "Not I," exclaims the modest old hero—"not I, but Christ that liveth in me." "I live by faith on the Son of God." . . .

Paul had such a terrible dread lest his evil propensities should get the better of him, that he constantly beat down, with steady and sturdy blows, the unruly appetites and passions. If such was the necessity laid upon the great apostle, who of us has a right to grow fool-hardy and self-confident? The moment a christian begins to feel—"What do I care? let others be afraid, not I;" the moment a christian feels so, he is as near to a disgraceful fall as boasted Peter was in Pilate's hall.

But granting that you were once made alive, kind reader, are you alive to-day? If so, how shall you keep alive?

First of all comes prayer—the daily and hourly course with God. Prayer is just as vital to spiritual life as water is to the monthly rose, whose leaves are now dripping from the refreshing of the pitcher. It is the outlet upwards for gratitude, and yearning desires for blessings; it is the inlet through which the supplies of grace pour downward into the heart. When the channel is allowed to freeze up, I am in the same condition with the housekeeper who inquires—"I wonder why the water does not run to-day?" The plumber is sent for, and he soon explains the difficulty. "Your pipes are frozen up; the connection with the reservoir is stopped." Alas for the christian who has broken his connection with Christ!

Prayer may be also likened to a telegraph with heaven. Our messages go up with the lightning speed of thought. The mercies asked for often flow backward to us with the promptness and velocity of a divine love. Sometimes the blessing sought is ours at once. Sometimes the answer is delayed. Then we can only do our duty and wait. Sometimes the reply comes in the sudden shock of an unexpected trial; it comes like a death-message over the wires! But it is all right. God knows what answer to send. I must take what answer my Father chooses to give. If I put myself into connection with God, I am only responsible for this end of the celestial telegraph; not for the end that lies in the Infinite bosom of love. I must receive just what God sends. "Thy will be done." But trying messages are not so dreadful as to have the telegraph of prayer utterly out of order through long disuse, and the soul cut off from communication with Jesus. Friend! is thy connection with the divine hearer and giver broken off? Then to your knees!

But with prayer the Master also coupled watchfulness. "I say unto all watch!" Never yet have I seen the christian whose heart would not "bear watching." The oversight must be close, constant, and wakeful. If you were set to keep a canary-bird on the open palm of your hand, you would understand what is meant by "keeping the heart with all diligence." You must not take off the spiritual eye for one instant. Have the arm of resolution ever ready to seize it the very first moment that it attempts to fly off into sin.

"Wherefore I say unto all, watch!" Watch the stealthy approaches of the tempter. Watch for the old habits of sin that will steal back again though they have been driven off a hundred times "from the premises."—Theodore Cuyler.

A QUIET MIND.

The following beautiful lines were copied from an old manuscript, supposed to be that of a missionary. They are so perfectly my experience, I would request them to be inserted in the Crisis.

L. Maria Brittan.

I have a treasure which I prize,
The like I cannot find;
There's nothing like it in the earth;
It is a quiet mind.

But 'tis not that I'm stupefied,
Or senseless, dull, or blind;
'Tis God's own peace within my soul,
Which forms my quiet mind.

I found this treasure at the cross;
'Tis there to every kind
Of heavy-laden, weary souls,
Christ gives a quiet mind.

My Savior's death and risen life
To give this were designed;
And that's the root, and that's the branch
Of this my quiet mind.

The love of God within my heart
My heart to his doth bind;
This is the mind of heaven on earth;
This is my quiet mind.

I've many a cross to take up now,
And many left behind;
But present trials move me not,
Nor shake my quiet mind.

And what may be to-morrow's cross
I never seek to find;
My Savior says, Leave that to me,
And keep a quiet mind.

And well I know the Lord hath said,
To make my heart resigned,
That mercy still shall follow such
As have this quiet mind.

I meet with pride of wit and wealth,
And scorn and looks unkind;
It matters nought, I envy not,
For I've a quiet mind.

I'm waiting now to see the Lord,
Who's been to me so kind;
I want to thank him face to face
For this my quiet mind.

Gems.

— Wisdom does not show itself so much in precept as in life—in firmness of mind and mastery of appetite. It teaches us to do as well as to talk; and to make our words and actions all of a color.

— The blossom cannot tell what becomes of its odor, and no man can tell what becomes of his influence and example, that roll away from him and go beyond his ken on their perilous mission.

— The lowest education that reaches self-control is better than the highest that neglects it.

— Make a monument of good deeds as you go, and your dust will not want for friends to see to the marble in after years.

— Rhetoric goes for little in the heavenly court, but sincere groans have a kind of omnipotence.

— One standeth not as on a hill, beckoning to another to follow; but ye toil hand in hand, and carry each other's burdens.

To be resigned when ills betide,
Patient when favors are denied,
And pleased with favors given;
Dear mortal, this is wisdom's part—
This is that incense of the heart
Whose fragrance swells to heaven.

— He who should conquer in battle ten times a hundred thousand, were indeed a hero. But truly a greater hero is he who has but once conquered himself.

— We make very poor almanacs in religion; we have too much variable weather. God has only one dark day in his almanac, and that is when a man is guilty and impenitent before him.

— Greatness lies not in being strong, but in the right use of strength.

— The sorrows of believers are better than the joys of sinners.

— Our brightest moments are frequently those which arrive to us from the bosom of care and anxiety; the gems that sparkle upon the dark ground.

THE CHICAGO STOCK-YARDS.

In practice the tourist bound to California will do well to stop two days in Chicago, and one day in Salt Lake City, in which case he would get to San Francisco in ten days, and with surprisingly little fatigue, and he will have seen several very remarkable sights on the way. For instance, though Chicago itself was burned and is not yet rebuilt, the ruin is worth seeing; and near at hand, accessible by frequent trains, he may find one of the most characteristic sights of our continent, the great Chicago stock-yards—a city whose inhabitants are cattle, sheep, and hogs, and where these creatures, are so well cared for that many a poor human being supposed to have an immortal and amenable soul, living in a New York tenement house, is neither so cleanly lodged nor so well protected against harm or cruelty.

This city of the beasts has streets, sewers, drains; it has water laid on; it is lighted with gas, it has a bank, an exchange, a telegraph office, a post-office, an admirably kept hotel; it has even a newspaper—else it would not be an American city. It has very comfortable accommodations for 118,350 residents—namely, 21,000 head of cattle, 75,000 hogs, 22,000 sheep, with stalls for 350 horses. It contains 345 acres of land, and when all this is prepared for use, 210,000 head of cattle can be lodged, fed, and cared for there at once, and with the certainty that not one will suffer or go astray.

It has thirty-five miles of sewers, ten miles of streets and alleys, all paved with wood; three miles of water troughs, all so arranged that the water may be stopped off at any point, 2300 gates, which are the front doors, so to speak, of the place; 1500 open pens, heavily fenced in with double plank; 100 acres are covered with pens for cattle, and all these are floored with three-inch plank; 800 covered sheds for sheep and hogs; and seventeen miles of railroad track connect this city of the beasts with every road which runs into Chicago. It has two Artesian wells, one 1032, the other 1190 feet deep, which, being spouting wells, send the water into huge tanks forty-five feet high, whence it is distributed all over the place in pipes. Fourteen fire-plugs are ready to furnish water in case of fire; immense stacks of hay and large granaries of corn contain the food needed for the beasts; and, I believe a train of palace cattle cars now bears the emigrant animals from this their city comfortably to the Eastern butchers.

Of course, as the "lower animals" do not help themselves, a considerable force of men is needed, to attend upon those gathered here. The company receives and cares for all animals sent to it. It has thus taken in, penned, fed, watered, littered, and taken account of 41,000 hogs, 3,000 cattle, and 2,000 sheep in a single day, and that without accident, hitch, or delay. From one hundred and seventy-five to two hundred men are constantly employed in this labor; and to accommodate these and their families, numerous cottages have been built, while a town-hall for public meetings and lectures, a church, a Sunday-school, and a well-kept day school provide for their instruction and amusement. The hotel, which has bath rooms, and is in other respects well-fitted, is for the use of the drovers and owners of cattle, whom business brings hither. At the exchange sales are effected, and the news of a sale may be sent to Maine or Texas by a telegraph from the same room, while the money paid may be securely deposited in the bank, which is under the same roof. Thus you will see that this surprising enterprise is completely furnished in every part; and it will not be the least part of your surprise and pleasure to find that this whole business, which about New York often involves painful brutalities, is here conducted as quietly as though a Quaker presided over it, and with as much care for the feelings of the dumb brutes as though good Mr. Bergh was looking on all the time.

It will cost about two millions when it is completed; is a pecuniary success, as it deserves to be; and when you hear that so long ago as 1869 Chicago received and sent off 403,102 head of cattle, 2,661,860 hogs, and 340,072 sheep, and that it will probably remain for years one of the greatest cattle markets in the world, you will see the need for such elaborate arrangements as I have described, and, if you are a humane person, will be pleased that these immense droves of animals are kindly cared for and comfortably lodged and fed on their way to the market. Most of the people employed in the yards are Americans.

Among a multitude of beasts as are here received, Mr. Buckle's law of averages would tell you that there will be a certain few monstrosities; and you will probably be shown one or two Texas steers which look much more like elephants or mammoths than horned oxen; perhaps a two-headed sheep, or a six-legged hog; and, indeed, when I saw the stables, they contained a collection which would have turned the face of a Chatham street exhibitor green with envy.—From California, by Charles Nordhoff, in Harper's Magazine for May.

SANITARY NOTES.

CLINTON COLEGROVE.

Editor Crisis:—Having been formerly a student and practitioner of medicine, I venture a few suggestions which may possess interest to a small portion of your readers. And first, I will submit a hint or two for the benefit of those who may have A PREDISPOSITION TO CONSUMPTION.

The plan I have to suggest as especially well adapted for the benefit of such persons, may prove of comparatively little value to those in whom the dread malady is already developed, yet it may be beneficial in the earliest stages, in a portion of cases. The measure here to be recommended, then, is properly adapted as a prophylactic or preventive, rather than a remedy. We venture to affirm the great value, in all cases of hereditary tendency to consumption, of frequent and habitual inspirations of air, to the full extent of the capacity of the lungs to contain. Let every person who is in the least apprehensive of the future access of this insidious and destructive disease, commence at once with a system of inspirations, at least, three times a day. Let the shoulders be elevated, and the trunk erect (whether in a sitting or standing position, is not so material), and air be inspired to the point of a complete expansion of the lungs. This may be repeated to the extent of a dozen respirations at a time; not, however, so long as to produce soreness or pain. The result of this practice, if properly persevered in, as it should be for months and years, and even all through life, will be to promote the healthy enlargement of the organs of breathing. The lungs are elastic and distensible, and the air cells are capable of almost indefinite multiplication or expansion, by being constantly subjected to the expansive stimulus of healthy air. This is a secret, if so it may be called, eminently worth knowing. Besides, the union of the ribs with the breast-bone is by cartilage, on both sides, and accordingly there is almost unlimited expansibility of the movable and bony framework of the chest.

It is well known that players on wind instruments acquire a greatly increased lung-capacity by the natural expansion produced through copious inhalations of air, in order to produce instrumental sounds. Indeed, frequent expirations of air are productive of a similar result, since the elasticity of ribs and lungs, and the reaction that follows the expiration, produce correspondingly large inhalation to supply the demand of the venous blood in the lungs for air. Primarily, indeed, it is this; to wit, the presence of venous blood in the lungs, which excites the imperative need and demand for air. In this connection, I may mention the utility of an instrument known as the spirometer, or respirometer; literally, a measurer of air. The object of this device is to show the air capacity of the lungs in cubic inches. The variation in this capacity is very great in different persons. Some delicate women hardly reach the extent of a hundred inches, while some large-chested and hearty men have a containing capacity of four hundred, or thereabouts. It is remarkable to observe how, by this test of capacity, the lungs may be shown to have increased in size and volume by practice. The view here submitted in regard to the marked utility of inhalations of air, I recently saw emphatically confirmed in an ably written volume by Dr. Napheys, of Philadelphia, on the "Physical Life of Woman." I have but little doubt that persons predisposed to consumption, who commence this kind of exercise early, and persevere in it faithfully, may in a large proportion of cases, if observing the laws of health in other respects, completely escape an attack of tubercular deposit in the lungs. This deposit is attributed to imperfect nutrition, and accordingly, by directing a larger volume of blood to the lungs, in the exercise recommended, a barrier is provided against such pernicious deposits.

The same exercise is earnestly recommended to all sedentary persons, or those whose habits and employments have prevented a due development of the pulmonary organs. We say to such, commence at once to make amends for the injury done, and give those great life-organs room. Give them air. Provide a larger vascular surface in the membranes of the air-cells for blood-aeration. Be not too impetuous or violent, but be persevering. The God of nature is kind, in giving the peculiar elasticity and expansibility of the lung parenchyma. No part of the body, perhaps, is susceptible of greater growth, or will more kindly yield to persistent effort. This free and full expansion of the lungs is important to the promotion of the general health in various ways. For not only is the deposit of tubercles largely counteracted, and a more perfect purity of the blood realized, by a better aeration, but when the breathing is free and natural, and the play of all the muscles connected with breathing (such as the intercostal and abdominal, and the diaphragm) is unrestrained, then the organs so important to the complete accomplishment of nutrition, such as the stomach, liver, and intestines, are able to perform their function faithfully. But on the other hand, when the respiratory muscles become enfeebled, the digestive organs are not sufficiently assisted by the muscular contractions, and, particularly, through the imperfect peristaltic action of the intestines, constipation supervenes,—a difficulty so widely prevalent, and so often sought to be remedied by both diet and medicine.

In addition to inhalations of air, the growth of the muscles of the chest may be, in some degree, promoted by gentle frictions with the hand, either at night or in the morning, especially the morning. We believe pre-eminently in the necessity of organs, and their functions, to life. Of life without organs we may say we know nothing. These organs, therefore, need room, need exercise, need harmonious co-operation. If it be objected that "bodily exercise profiteth little," we answer, at once, it is true indeed, we a thousand times would prefer the more delightful freedom and perfect action and enjoyment of the spiritual and immortal life to come; yet the exercise of that immortal state, we understand to be connected with some kind of highly exalted material organism,—and even here, is it clear that the apostle was deprecating sanitary bodily exercise, especially in such cases as observation and experience show to unite obviously, an improved religious or spiritual state with improved health? For it is perfectly certain that poor health is often a marked and great detriment to religious liberty and enjoyment.

Flowers as Disinfectants.—Lovers of the beautiful, as manifested in the flower kingdom, will be happy at hearing that flowers, instead of being unhealthy in rooms, are, on the contrary, disinfectants in disease. Professor Mantegazzo has discovered that ozone is developed by certain odorous flowers. A writer in our clever contemporary, "Nature," states that most of the strong smelling vegetable essences, such as mint, clover, lavender, lemon and cherry laurel, develop a very large quantity of ozone when in contact with atmospheric oxygen in light. Flowers destitute of perfume do not develop it, and generally the amount of ozone seems to be in proportion to the strength of the perfume emanated. Professor Mantegazza recommends that in marshy districts, and in places infested with noxious exhalations, strong smelling flowers should be planted around the house, in order that the ozone emitted from them may exert its power. So pleasant a plan for making a malarious district salubrious only requires to be put in practice.

Croup.—Parents should watch their little ones carefully at this season of the year for any symptoms of croup; as the sudden changes that are liable to occur in the spring-time, from warm to cold, will expose our little folks to the danger of contracting "colds," which are so readily converted into that dreaded disease—croup.

Have your children comfortably clad with woolen underclothing, and rubber over-shoes. Do not allow them to wear scarfs or mittens at this time of the year, for they are soon thrown off in the heat of play, and so easily contract "colds."

Always have some unslacked lime among your "family medicines;" and should the child have a cough, and a sort of wheezing in breathing, rub its breast well with sweet oil, bathe its feet in hot water, and put it to bed. Upon the first appearance of that hollow, croupy cough, let it inhale the vapor from a piece of the lime placed in a dish of hot water. This will at once give relief.

LITTLE DANDELION.

Before the cowslip or the daisy, or even the little blue violet, awakes from its long winter nap, brave Dandelion begins to unfold her green leaves and peep up at the bright sun. Although the ground may be hard and frosty, and many of the days chill and windy, caring neither for rain or cold, she thrives and grows, till some warm pleasant day she sends forth a cluster of little green buds, sisters laughing in the sunshine, and nestling close together when a cold rain falls upon them. They swell and expand their small leaves, and at last, one by one, open wide to the genial warmth of spring.

Fast falls the last lingering snow, but under its fleecy tent they merrily chat and count their store of gold. When once more they are able to see the blue sky, they seem more beautiful even than before the cold snow had hid them from view. Each sister, standing on her slender foot, nods her head to the birds; the breezes toss her golden tresses hither and thither, and her gayety and cheerfulness gladden the hearts of all. She tells them that spring is coming and will soon be here; that the trees will before long be clothed in green, and the other flowers more delicate than herself be brightening the earth with their rainbow hues; and so in her own way she is a fairy prophet, though she does not speak a word.

Scattered over the fields are other dandelions as brave and bright as these, and the little children pick them and twine themselves wreaths which on their fair brows look as beautiful as the golden crown of a king. When the days lengthen and the sun grows warmer, the many-colored butterflies, flitting from flower to flower, light on the lowly Dandelion and seem to linger as if they would make it their home; but no, they are soon off again as restless as before. The bee at evening on his way to the hive stops to refresh himself, and the robin from the apple-tree close by pours forth his morning song that Dandelion may listen. But when the long summer days come, and the thirsty sun drinks all the moisture from the soil, withering with its scorching rays, faint little Dandelion closes her eye, and her golden hair turns white. But even when old and gray her work is not all done; she flies away on the summer breezes to other fields and way-sides, where another year her presence will gladden the eye and tell of the brighter days to come; or she is woven into the nest of a robin to help make it soft and downy for the little ones; or perhaps, borne on a strong wind or the wing of a bird, she blooms in other lands far over the sea.

In these and many other ways does the little flower which is so common, and which we do not half appreciate for this very reason, do good and teach us lessons of bravery and cheerfulness.

The little dandelions, so thickly strewn over our meadows and hill-sides, are in other countries cultivated with great care, and the wayside mullein is known across the ocean as the American velvet-plant. So many of our most common and least cared-for flowers are in distant lands considered choice and beautiful.—Our Young Folks.

GOOD USE OF EYES, EARS AND HANDS.

"Think much, and use hands, ears, and eyes;
But little speak, if you be wise."

"Oh, I am so glad to see you, my dear, dear Aunt Jane!" cried Ben, as he ran to the door to meet his aunt, and jumped for joy; for he had not seen her for more than a month.

May was quite as glad as was Ben that her aunt was come; though May spoke not a word; she gave but a smile and a fond kiss to her aunt.

"O Aunt Jane, I will show you all my nice new toys!" cried Ben. And he ran and brought his bat and his ball, his fife and his ball, his fife and his drum, ere his aunt had had time to sit down or to take off her hat.

Ben blew his fife, and beat his drum, and made a great, great noise.

Aunt Jane was much tired,—for she had come a long, long way,—and she could not bear so much noise; though she was so kind, that she did not like to stop Ben's play. But May saw that her aunt put her hand to her head; and May said in a low voice to Ben, "Do put down the drum, and let us be quite still. I see that Aunt Jane has a pain in her head."

May had made good use of her eyes.

"I have hurt my poor foot; I can scarce walk," said Aunt Jane as she sat down on a chair.

"I am so vexed, dear aunt!" cried Ben.

May spoke not a word; but she went for a stool for her aunt to rest her foot on.

May had made good use of her ears.

Ben talked a great deal, and did not leave his aunt to be still and rest. He took her bag; he played with it; he shook it, and out of it fell four or five pence. They rolled, one this way, and one that, on the floor and on the rug; there was fear that some might be lost.

"I am so vexed!" cried Ben. He picked up one,—just one,—and then ran off to his play.

May spoke not a word: but she went down on her knees, and looked on the rug and near the wall, and picked up all the pence, one by one, and put them back in the bag.

May had made good use of her hands.

Which loved Aunt Jane the best; which helped her most,—Ben with his loud talk, or May with her eyes and ears and hands?—(London) Children's Paper.

WORDS.

Words are things of little cost,
Quickly spoken, quickly lost;
We forget them, but they stand
Witnesses at God's right hand,
And their testimony bear
For us or against us there.

Oh, how often ours have been
Idle words and words of sin;
Words of anger, scorn, or pride,
Or deceit, our faults to hide;
Envious tales, or strife unkind,
Leaving bitter thoughts behind.

Grant us, Lord, from day to day,
Strength to watch, and grace to pray;
May our lips, from sin kept free,
Love to speak and sing of thee;
Till at last we learn to raise
Hymns of everlasting praise.

A Little Boy's Prayer.—More than thirty year's ago a godly minister, illustrating the efficacy of prayer, related the case of a little boy with a sore hand, which had become so bad that the physician decided it must be amputated to save the boy's life. The day was fixed for the operation.

On hearing this, the little boy went to a retired spot in the garden, fell on his knees, and begged God for Jesus' sake to save his poor hand.

The next day the physician came and examined the hand, when to the astonishment of all, it was found to be so much better that amputation was unnecessary.

The hand got quite well again, the little boy grew up to be a man, "and," continued the minister, holding up his hand, "this unworthy hand can now be shown to you as a monument of prayer answered through divine mercy."

The Honest Irish Boy.—There was a lad in Ireland, who was put to work at a linen factory, and while he was at work there a piece of cloth was wanted to be sent out which was short of the quantity it ought to be; but the master thought it might be made the length by a little stretching. He thereupon unrolled the cloth, taking hold of one end of it himself, and the boy at other. He then said, "Pull, Adam, pull." "I cannot, sir." "Why," said the master. "Because it is wrong sir," said Adam; and he refused to pull. Upon this, the master said he would not do for a linen manufacturer, and sent him home; but that boy became the learned Rev. Dr. Adam Clarke.—Ex.

Elihu Burritt, in talking to some persons, said, "Boys, you have heard of blacksmiths who became mayors and magistrates of towns and influence. What was the secret of their success? Why, they picked up nails and pins in the street, and carried them home in the pockets of their waistcoats. Now, you must pick up thoughts in the same way, and fill your mind with them; and they will grow into other thoughts, almost while you are asleep. The world is full of thoughts, and you will find them strewed everywhere in your path."

"SHOW ME THY FACE."

Show me thy face—one transient gleam
Of loveliness divine,
And I shall never think or dream
Of other love save thine.
All lesser light will darken quite,
All lower glories wane,—
The beautiful of earth will scarce
Seem beautiful again.

Show me thy face—my faith and love
Shall henceforth fixed be,
And nothing here have power to move
My soul's serenity.
My life shall seem a trance, a dream,
And all I feel and see,
Illusive, visionary;—Thou the one reality.

Show me thy face; I shall forget
The weary days of yore;
The fretting ghosts of vain regret
Shall haunt my soul no more;
All doubts and fears for future years
In quiet trust subside,
And nought but blest content and calm
Within my breast reside.

Show me thy face—the heaviest cross
Will then seem light to bear;
There will be gain in every loss,
And peace with every care.
With such light feet the years will fleet,
Life seem as brief as blest,
Till I have laid my burden down,
And entered into rest.

Show me thy face, and I shall be
In heart and mind renewed,
With wisdom, grace, and energy,
To work thy work endued;
Shine clear, though pale, behind the veil,
Until, the veil removed,
In perfect glory I behold
The face that I have loved.

THE CHRISTIAN'S HOME.

B. W. DAVIS.

"And I saw a new heaven and a new earth; for the first heaven and the first earth were passed away; and there was no more sea. . . . And God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes; and there shall be no more death, neither sorrow nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain; for the former things are passed away."—Rev. 21: 1, 4.

These words of the apostle, descriptive of what he saw, are of deep interest to every child of God at the present time, for they not only bring to view our present experience, which is one of tears and death, sorrow, crying and pain; but also the consummation of the christian's hope—a home in the new earth. And the interest deepens as we near the time of this fulfillment.

When God made the earth, and all that pertained to it, he saw that it was good; but when he had made man in his own image, endowed with a desire and love of home, he pronounced all he had made very good, and purposed to give the earth to man for his possession (Ps. 115: 16); and so he planted a garden in the land of gold and precious stones, and beautified it with every thing that was pleasing to the eye and taste, and fitted it up for man's abode; and then he placed the man in his home to care for and keep it, and planted in the midst of it the tree of life, that by eating of it he might live forever. How long he lived in this quiet and beautiful home, we are not told; but soon we find him disobeying the command of God, thus bringing the curse upon himself and posterity and the earth, and tears, sorrow, pain and death follow as a consequence.

The earth is now filled with violence and sin, and has become unfit for the eternal abode of man; but God was not willing his eternal purpose should be frustrated, so he determined to provide a way for man's redemption from sin and death, by the gift of his Son; create a new earth, and make it more glorious than the first, and give it to all who would accept of the conditions, and so fulfill his original purpose.

Satan seemingly succeeded for a time in his attempts to overthrow this plan; but the apostle saw in vision the new state of things instituted, and we believe the time is near when our hope will be consummated. We see what a terrible thing sin is, causing man so much sorrow, suffering, tears and death, and the destruction of all God had made; but behold his love in the plan of redemption, and of the purchased possession.

"There is a world to come,
Happy and pure;
That is the christian's home,
Long to endure.
O, 'tis a world of light;
No more death, nor woe, nor night;
Faith views it with delight,
Knowing 'tis sure.

There is our paradise,
Eden restored;
All beauteous in their eyes
Who love the Lord;
Wastes that are now so drear,
Like the rose shall blossom there,
And be a garden fair;
Thus saith the word.

O, that bright world to come,
Tongue cannot tell;
Thrice blessed is the home
Where saints will dwell;
Turn, then, from sin away,
And the word of God obey,
Then at the last great day
All will be well."

It is blessed to contemplate the beauty and glory of that place, but what must it be to be there? May the Lord help us all to be ready when Jesus comes to take his people home.

He that has inherited the love of God, what has the world more to give him? What can the world reach to take away from him? He has the chief thing already.

THE COMING STRUGGLE,

Between the Church and the Powers of Darkness, showing a Confederacy of Spiritualists, Catholics, etc., at hand, with the False Christ at their head, and a Persecution attending.

I. E. LOMBARD.

We read in 1 Tim. 4: 1—"The Spirit speaketh expressly that in the latter times some shall depart from the faith, giving heed to seducing spirits and doctrines of devils." We are not informed here how general is this departure of the church "from the faith" into Spiritualism, and how generally the world listens to these seducing spirits, or receives the doctrines of devils; but in other places we find these points more definitely presented, especially in the allusion to the three unclean spirits, Rev. 16: 13–16. We there have an account of three unclean spirits, seen by John in vision, as proceeding "out of the mouth of the dragon, and out of the mouth of the beast, and out of the mouth of the false prophet." In character they are "unclean spirits"—"the spirits of devils, working miracles." Their mission is from the three parties above mentioned "to the kings of the earth, and of the whole world." Their business is "to gather" these kings "to the battle of the great day of God Almighty." But the "spirits of devils working miracles" are the agencies at work in Spiritualism, hence this must evidently denote a work among them; not the origin of the movement, as some would have it, but the last work in Spiritualism, as I shall endeavor to show before I get through.

It appears, too, from the fact that the kings of the earth and of the whole world are led to assemble at the battle of the great day by these spirits, that the kings of the world are at this time Spiritualists. And that the spirits do assemble them to the battle is evident from verse 16, which reads according to the translation of Wesley, Whiting, the Revised, and the Syriac—"They gathered them together"; and according to Wakefield—"The spirits gathered them," etc., which makes it clear that the nations are led by the spirits at this time, hence are Spiritualists. In the eighteenth chapter we find that "the beast and the kings of the earth and their armies are gathered together, to make war against him that sat on the horse [Christ] and his army." And, as to the result of the battle, we find that "the beast was taken, and with him the false prophet that wrought miracles before him, with which he deceived them that had received the mark of the beast, and them that worshiped his image. These both were cast alive into a lake of fire burning with brimstone, and the remnant were slain with the sword of him that sat upon the horse." And the dragon, explained to be the devil and Satan, was bound for a thousand years, that he should deceive the nations no more till the thousand years should be fulfilled. In the account of the three unclean spirits, we read that they were "out of the mouth" of the dragon, the beast, and the false prophet, showing that the spirits go at their command, which makes them the more responsible parties in assembling the nations to the battle. And being more responsible, as the leaders, they are more severely dealt with. Thus the beast and false prophet are "cast alive into a lake of fire," while the dragon, explained to be the devil and Satan, is cast into the bottomless pit, and bound there for a thousand years.

The expression "the beast," occurring in the scriptures quoted above, denotes the papacy, as all will admit. But it makes a conspicuous figure in the preparation for the battle, as exerting a commanding influence among the nations at the time. Hence, in view of its present condition of helplessness, it must have a revival to power and influence before we get to the judgment, in order to fulfill these scriptures. This is further manifest from the assurance in the seventeenth chapter that "the ten horns" are "to agree and give their kingdom unto the beast, till the words of God shall be fulfilled"; in other words, till the battle of the great day.

These ten horns cannot be the petty provinces of Italy, as some have urged, for the reasons that they are not likely to become ten kingdoms, and would be too insignificant if they should. They must be prominent kingdoms on the earth, in view of the conspicuous figure they make in connection with the battle. They are probably "the kings of the earth"—the Roman earth, perhaps—as contained in the expression, "the kings of the earth, and the whole world." And the assurance that they are "to receive power as kings one hour [or, as Croly has it, "the same era"] with the beast"; and that they are to "agree to give their kingdom"—"their power and strength"—"unto the beast, till the words of God are fulfilled," shows that ten prominent kingdoms, at least, are heartily united in support of the beast—the papacy—in connection with the closing scenes of earth's history. This implies that she is destined to have a revival to power and influence again, before the Lord comes, since not one thus supports her now. And then, too, from the association of the beast at this time with "the spirits of devils working miracles," and especially from its using them as its instruments in assembling the nations to the battle, it seems evident that the Catholics have at this time embraced Spiritualism, and are here acting under its influence. But, though acting as by the spirits, it seems to retain its old distinction as "the beast," and hence must be acting in alliance with Spiritualists. This alliance with a miracle-working power seems clear, also, from the passage quoted above. "The beast was taken, and with him the false prophet that wrought miracles before him, with which he deceived them that had received the mark of the beast," etc. Hence, as in the battle of the great day, it is acting in this alliance with a miracle-working power, and also in assembling the nations to the battle, we should look for such an alliance, and for a revival of the power and influence of the papacy, before we look for the battle to take place.

With these general outlines of the subject, as suggested by the passages thus far considered, I will now proceed to show other Bible allusions to the papacy, embracing its whole prophetic career; and then, marking its present whereabouts in prophecy, will introduce the development of Spiritualism among us, and show from the prophecies that it is destined to enter into an alliance with the papacy, bring up the Anti-Christian Confederacy of nations, with the false Christ at their head, and persecute the saints for a short time before the Lord comes.

SANCTIFICATION.

A. N. SEYMOUR.

"This is the will of God, even your sanctification." 1 Thess. 4: 3.

All men by disobedience have rendered themselves sinful, or morally impure, in their thoughts, desires, words, and deeds; hence the necessity of some means to be employed by which an unsanctified race can be redeemed from their sins and transgressions. God, it seems, has foreordained, or predetermined, from the foundation of the world, that in order to secure an endless rest in the kingdom of God all must be sanctified (for this is his will), or utterly fail of the prize. The doctrine of sanctification is a positive truth, and very distinctly revealed in the sacred Scriptures. To sanctify, in a scriptural sense, is to make a personal consecration of soul, body and spirit to God; and this includes the idea of perfect obedience to God's royal government. "Be ye reconciled to God" is an inspired statement, that fully expresses the doctrine of sanctification. When any person refuses to submit to any part of God's revealed will, he demonstrates at once that the seeds of rebellion still exist in the human soul, and must be eradicated before the principle of sanctification can have full power to control its subject. When our wills are all swallowed up in God's will, and when we can fully say, as did Jesus, "Lo, I come to do thy will, O God," it is then, and not till then, that we have achieved the victory of reconciliation to the perfect and divine will of God; all must come to this point of submission in order to secure his special favor.

The prophet Isaiah most beautifully illustrates this point. He says—"Seek ye the Lord while he may be found; call ye upon him while he is near. Let the wicked forsake his way, and the unrighteous man his thoughts, and let him return unto the Lord, and he will have mercy upon him; and to our God, for he will abundantly pardon; for my thoughts are not your thoughts, neither are your ways my ways, saith the Lord. For as the heavens are higher than the earth, so are my ways higher than your ways, and my thoughts than your thoughts." So, then, if we desire to be sanctified, or reconciled to God, and be at peace with him, we must give up our ways and our thoughts, and adopt fully God's ways and God's thoughts. "Sanctify them through thy truth; thy word is truth."

Now let me inquire, Is there more than one way to obtain the blessing of sanctification? I answer, no, by no means. Our heavenly Father has one, and only one divine, plain arrangement, or system of things, and that is complete in all its parts; and all who will consent to be moulded in this heavenly mould will come out of it "without spot, or wrinkle"; but if we try to change the mould from its original design, we are certain to do injustice to it, and produce a botched piece of workmanship, which will only be cast away when the great Detector shall come to "try every man's work," and "to reward" accordingly.

For one, I have no desire whatever to add to or take from this heavenly arrangement; but I do most earnestly desire to be as clay in the hands of the potter, that I may come out of the mould fashioned according to the original design, and ready for the Master's use. The wisdom of this world, which is only foolishness with God, is constantly changing, remodeling, adding to, or detracting from its original purity, beauty, and simplicity; which only demonstrates the fact that such minds are unsanctified, unreconciled, and hence, all true christians should pray, as did Paul, "Be ye reconciled to God."

"THEN COMETH THE END."

In 1 Cor. 15: 23, 24, we have a passage which few readers seem to comprehend. We are very frequently asked to explain it. Some suppose it refers to the end of Christ's kingdom; others suppose the end of probationary time is meant. We will quote the text, and then give an extract from "The Plan of Redemption," which we think fully meets the inquiry. "But every man in his own order; Christ the first fruits; afterward they that are Christ's at his coming. Then cometh the end, when he shall have delivered up the kingdom to God, even the Father; when he shall have put down all rule and all authority and power." The term "every man in his own order" includes the entire race of man; yet the common reader, as he reads on, sees reference made only to "they that are Christ's at his coming," and no reference to the wicked.

"The term 'order'—tagma—is a military term. Tagma,—rank, band, regiment, or division, like soldiers, who come each under his own standard, and in his own division. 'They that are Christ's disciples belong to his division, have chosen his standard, and will come forth 'at the last trump; for the trumpet shall sound, and the dead [in Christ] shall be raised incorruptible.'

"The term 'in Christ,' which is in brackets, is involved in verse 51, and qualifies the terms, 'the dead shall be raised incorruptible,' showing what dead are the subjects of this resurrection. It is 'the dead in Christ.' 'Now this I say, brethren,' . . . 'we shall not all sleep, but we shall all be changed, in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, at the last trump; for the trumpet shall sound, and the dead shall be raised incorruptible, and we shall be changed.'

"'They that are Christ's at his coming. Then . . . the end.' To telos, the end, the last division or portion of the army of the dead—the wicked dead. Not the end of the world, or age, but the perfection, finishing, completion, or consummation of the work of bringing back the race of man from death. Not the termination of Christs reign, as some suppose, but the bringing back from a lost, revolted state, to the original state; a restitution, to merge into the eternal reign of Christ, after disposing of the wicked. The word telos is not the word generally used to signify the end of the age, or world. The learned Dr. Wahl defines telos in 1 Cor. 15: 24, 'the last part, the last—the last of the dead.' Dr. Bretschneider, in his Greek Lexicon, gives the meaning of 'Then . . . the end—telos, the last or rest of mankind.' The words which express 'the end of the age,' are sunteleia tou aionos. The last band or company of the dead is expressed in Rev. 20: 5—'But the rest of the dead,' etc."—Plan of Redemption, pp. 301, 302.

The above facts show that the proposition, "every man in his own order"—band or company, receives due attention and explanation by the Spirit, when it speaks of "they that are Christ's at his coming. Then . . . the end," the other part of mankind, the last, the rest of the dead.

I. C. Wellcome.

NO TIME TO PRAY.

No time to pray!
Oh, who so fraught with earthly care
As not to give to humble prayer
Some part of day?

No time to pray!
What heart so clean, so pure within,
That needeth not some check from sin—
Needs not to pray?

No time to pray!
'Mid each day's danger, what retreat
More needful than the mercy-seat?
Who need not pray?

No time to pray!
Must care or business' urgent call
So press us as to take it all,
Each passing day?

No time to pray!
Then sure your record falleth short,
Excuse will fail you as resort,
On that last day.

What thought more drear
Than that our God his face should hide,
And say, through all life's swelling tide,
No time to hear!

Cease not to pray;
On Jesus as your all rely.
Would you live happy—happy die?
Take time to pray.

"FULFILL HER WEEK."—Gen. 29: 27.

Some are under the impression that "her week" is the additional seven years Jacob was to serve for Rachel. In the Crisis of Jan. 24th is the following sentence: "The first time the word 'week' is used in the Bible it represents seven years." Gen. 29: 27, 28. This is evidently a mistaken view of the passage. The meaning is that Jacob was to fulfill Leah's week of marriage festivity, at or near the close of which he was to receive Rachel in marriage, and subsequently serve seven years for her.

It was customary on such occasions to have a feast which continued a week. Of Samson's marriage it is said that he "made a feast there; for so used the young men to do"; and he put forth a riddle, saying, "If ye can certainly declare it me within the seven days of the feast, and find it out, then I will give you thirty sheets and thirty changes of garments"; and his wife "wept before him the seven days, while their feast lasted; and it came to pass on the seventh day, that he told her, because she lay sore upon him, and she told the riddle to the children of her people."—Judges 14: 10–17.

No one can read with care the narrative of Jacob's marriage to Leah and Rachel, without seeing that he received them both about the same time. See Gen. 29: 15–35.

On the words, "fulfill her week," Bagster says: "The public marriage feast, made on this occasion, seems to have formed the regular method of recognizing the marriage, and lasted seven days; it would therefore have been improper to have broken off the solemnities to which all the men of the place had been invited (verse 22), and probably Laban wished to keep the fraud from the public eye. It is perfectly plain that Jacob did not serve seven years more before he got Rachel to wife."

Dr. Kitto, in his "History of the Bible," says: "When daylight appeared in the morning, and Jacob discovered the deception, he immediately arose, and going to Laban, expostulated with him on the impropriety of his conduct. Laban, who had prepared an answer for the occasion, told him, in a magisterial tone, that it was an unprecedented thing in that country (and would have been deemed an injury to her sister) to marry the younger before the elder; 'but' (continued he, in a milder tone), 'if you will fulfill the nuptial week with your wife, and consent to serve another seven years for her sister, I am content to take your word for it, and to give Rachel to you as soon as the seven days (or nuptial week for Leah) have expired.' This unfair treatment greatly perplexed Jacob, but his distinguished affection for Rachel made him resolve to obtain her, however dear the purchase. He therefore readily consented to his uncle's secondary terms, and when the nuptial ceremonies for Leah were over, he likewise took Rachel in marriage.—S. H. in Advent Herald.

When christians meet in the name of Jesus, he is in their midst; and where he is, there is blessing, counsel, instruction and consolation. But when "two or three" backsliders, hypocrites, dead heads and dead hearts, who have nothing, do nothing, feel nothing and know nothing of the power and grace and work of Jesus Christ, meet together in the name of self, or sect, or party, they are no better together than when apart—nay, they are not as well; one of them alone is bad enough—two are worse, and a hundred are worse yet.

The highest state of christian perfection must necessarily be the nearest possible likeness to Christ himself.

THE NEW DEPARTURE.

To live now, amid the crowding events of the hour, with scenes incongruous and strangely in contrast with one another, hurrying almost wildly by us, involves great responsibility. Now, it is a small thing to die, but never was it a greater thing to live. The signs of the times intimate to us that we are living in the dawn of startling events. We seem to be walking on the edge of some great battle-field. Opposing forces are assuming distinct forms, and taking their places in homogeneous ranks; at almost every moment you can hear the step of the approaching armies; now and then, above the fog that conceals from us the future, appear their banner; the struggle cannot be long postponed. Crime is becoming bold. She demands polite recognition, not only in the lanes and alleys, in the dens of lower life, but in high and honorable places; she demands to sit in the highest seat, and on occasions of distinction to occupy the place of honor. She no longer dwells in poverty, clothed in rags; she carries now no peddler's pack on her shoulder; but, wrapped in purple and fine linen, she fares sumptuously every day. When, in our history as a nation, has crime stepped forth with as brazen a front, with as unblushing boldness, as now? Now she will not be kicked or cuffed; she seizes the very sceptre of power, and asserts her right to rule. When have American politics had such an odor as now? The nations all round the world scent it, and seem at least to grow sick. When have our politicians been such birds of prey as they are now? A thousand Abrams could not keep them from carrying the sacrifice from our altars.

When in our history has there been such a mania for money-making, for realizing sudden fortunes, as now? and what scruples of conscience are shown as to the way of securing the prize? Suppose engines made of rotten iron do explode, killing and wounding hundreds. Suppose rotten bridges do give way, and whole trains plunge to destruction. Suppose rotten steamboats do sink, carrying to the bottom of the sea multitudes of men, women, and children; are not these costly sacrifices, offered on the altar of Mammon? Suppose sixty thousand annually in our land drop into drunkards' graves; shall the liquor traffic cease? Is not gambling a most delightful pastime? is not swearing an accomplishment? is not Christianity becoming feeble? are her days not numbered? has not the world outgrown all such old-wives' fables? don't we need new gospels,—have we not got them?

The religion of the gospel did well enough for us in our minority, when the Fathers led us, or when but the moonlight was ours; but now, in this age of mental lightning, of steam-power behind every thing that moves; now, when the ends of the earth are brought closely together, distance being almost annihilated,—who cares for, who asks, for who would walk in the "old path"? Something new is the order of the day,—a new Bible, religion, a new heaven, and a hell so old that its fires have gone out, and not even its location is known. "New" is the magic word of this age. Such being the condition of things, thoughtful men are compelled to think, to ask themselves the question, "What is to be done,—what means are to be employed?" The high tidal wave of sin threatens to sweep over every obstruction, and make of this heaven-favored land one vast sea of vice. Are we ready to surrender to wicked hands the priceless gifts we enjoy? Are we ready to see the multitudes intoxicated in their carnival of sin, amid boisterous shoutings approach the fatal falls, and we only say, "So let it be; it is God's will"? Are we ready to fly to our caves, now that the storm is hard upon us? or shall we stand at our posts, daring, doing, for God?

How can we escape the flood of vice? I answer, there is but one way: the church must step up higher. This flood poured forth from the dragon's mouth will sweep over her, unless she ascends. And can we not hear, in these terrible surroundings, the voice of God, saying to her, "Come up higher"?

This "great awakening" in the church on the subject of holiness is one of the marked signs of the times; it is the hand of Providence writing on the walls, hat made the wicked of earth tremble. Sensualism, revelry, and deception see in the writing their doom; and it is for the church to interpret to the world its meaning. This higher life is our hope, our anchor, our defence; the enemy must not only be defeated, he must be destroyed; not one inch of heart room be given him, but Christ must be all and in all. This is most emphatically the age for preaching holiness unto the Lord; the character, position, and force of the enemy seem now specially to demand it.

Opposition to Christianity now is of the critical and analytical style; the poisoned wool is quietly woven into the garments so kindly offered her to wear; and, unless she walks in perfect health, she will be infected with the poison. For her to move safely now, amid the religious choleras and fevers that prevail, she must be healthy; she must be able not only to detect, but throw off the infection, as Paul did the viper from his hand, and experience no harm; she must be able, as were the Hebrew children, to walk unhurt through the flames, and, for her defence in this age of peril, God offers her the robes of holiness; let her wear these and she is safe. For the church of God there is no armor like holiness, making her invulnerable at all points; and there is none so dreaded by devils and wicked men as this; and there is no doctrine that needs now to be so pressed home upon the hearts and consciences of men as this.

In this age of free and wonderful thought, the press is the power, and God, by the signs of the times, is saying to us as a church, "Bring your most costly sacrifices to the altar; let the flames reach the heavens, that not only earth, but heaven also, may preach to all, holiness to the Lord." Let our pulpits, in the best, the most persuasive style, in every sermon, present this great doctrine to the people; let the high places of the Lord be pointed out,—the joy and glory of dwelling right with the Master; let the people see and know the way; then shall one chase a thousand, and two shall put ten thousand to flight—Advocate of Christian Holiness.

CAUTIONARY SIGNALS.

H. MUNGER.

The wisdom of this generation has so advanced, with the help of the telegraph, that signs of the weather are very correctly told some time ahead; and by heeding their cautions, much trouble has been saved, and some lives at sea. With the facilities this generation of professors possess, with the caution of God's word to look out for prophetic storms about these times, it is as easy to understand them, as our weather-wise prognosticators can foretell when a storm is nigh. It is sure we have entered the equinoctial squalls in the political and religious world. Never before has there been so many prolific signs seen in so short a time since the first advent of Christ; and while the worldly-wise can discern the face of the sky, they see no signs of the great coming storm which is certainly near.

But we, as a people, need caution, and we get it. Some caution us against being too sure on dates, as we have been disappointed so often. This is all right. Others caution us to be careful lest we put the day off. This is also right. The middle ground is the safest, as it is the most scriptural. Certainly the Scriptures teach us the Lord only will make the exact time known, and our experience has taught us caution. Again, others have backed out altogether, and are hid in the sectarian and worldly rubbish of our times; which fulfill an important part of Christ's caution in the parable of the ten virgins. We are yet in a watching position, instead of a knowing one. Symptoms are to be watched by the watchers, and the prophetic events are the symptoms; and as there are certain unfulfilled prophetic events that have not yet appeared, we cannot expect the Lord until they are seen; hence, many cannot agree with the idea of looking for the Lord any day. That is virtually unhitching from all dates and signs. We cannot expect April until January is past; also February and March.

We can certainly look for the political March winds. Indeed, they already begin to blow up the great storm among the nations, which must come, and has not; hence we cannot properly and wisely say we are looking for the Lord any time; neither can we tell now certainly what day and hour summer begins by the blooming of the fig-trees, or any other trees; but we can tell when it is near. This position Jesus has given us, therefore, we are to watch the events. This is not saying the Lord delayeth his coming, and no well-balanced mind says it is. Nor is it saying we cannot know the time by the prophetic numbers. God has promised to make it known, and as he has reserved that power, the good will all know it together. This is the middle and safe ground.

HERODIANS.

GEO. THOMSON.

"Were the Herodians a religious sect in the time of our Savior?"—Querist.

Let historians answer the question, as their record is better than our opinion in such matters.

"Herodians. A sect of the Jews in our Savior's time (Matt. 22: 16; Mark 3: 6; 8: 15; 12: 13), but as to their particular character there is much diversity of opinion. Prideaux shows that they held doctrines distinct from those of the Pharisees and Sadducees, against which our Savior cautions his followers; and he thinks there can be no doubt that they were the creatures, or domestics, as the Syriac version calls them, of Herod the Great. He judges that their doctrines were reducible to two heads: (1) A belief that the dominion of the Romans over the Jews was just, and that it was their duty to submit to it. (2) That in the present circumstances they might with a good conscience follow many heathen modes and usages. It is certain these were Herod's principles, who pleaded the necessity of the times for doing many things contrary to the maxims of the Jewish religion."—Calmet's Dic. of Bible.

I have italicised the points which make it clear that they were a religious sect. The following, also, from Dixon's Introduction to Scriptures, is to the point. In his article on Jewish Sects, he numbers them four.

"Herodians. This was the name of another sect among the Jews, in the time of Christ. Its origin could not have been more ancient than the reign of the Herods, in Judea. The name of Herodians no where occurs in Josephus and Philo, although frequently in the gospel. As to the author and dogmas of the sect, writers are not agreed. There are some who think that they looked on Herod himself as the Messias; some confound them with the Sadducees; others, in fine, think that they were courtiers of Herod, who either through curiosity, or to please their prince, joined the Pharisees in tempting our Redeemer on the question of the lawfulness of paying tribute to Cæsar. The most probable opinion, however, appears to be, that the Herodians were the same as the disciples of Judas the Gaulonite, or Galilean, who disturbed Judea in the time of Augustus. He taught that the true Israelites, as being the people of God, were subject to no human yoke. His followers were called by some Galileans, because Gaulon, the town from which Judas came, was situated in Upper Galilee; by others they were called Herodians, in consequence of that town being within the jurisdiction of Herod Antipas. They have no peculiar name in Josephus, who merely designates them as the followers of Judas the Gaulonite."

Take these, in connection with the fact that the Savior cautioned his disciples against their leaven (doctrine), and I think it establishes the fact that they held doctrines distinct from the other sects.

If filled with the Spirit, you will be useful.

THE DEVELOPMENT OF EVENTS.

J. E. CLARK.

Do the events of these days—this generation, indicate the speedy coming of our Lord, and the establishment of his everlasting kingdom upon earth? We do not propose to go formally over the prophecies relating to the four universal empires, as set forth in Daniel's prophecies, as those topics have been fully presented before; and there can be no reasonable doubt but those four kingdoms have had their day, and passed away, and that we have been living for many centuries in the divided state of the fourth empire. The politico-ecclesiastical power of Rome is symbolized by a "little horn" having eyes, and a mouth, having eyes as a man, and a mouth speaking very great things. This power is symbolized again in Rev. 13: 1, by a beast rising up out of the sea, having seven heads and ten horns, and upon his horns ten crowns. This description marks the time of the development of the politico-ecclesiastical power of Rome, as coming into existence in the divided state of the fourth or Roman empire, when kingly governments were in existence, as the crowns upon the horns indicate.

In Rev. 17, we are presented with another aspect of the same power, namely, the fourth empire, the politico-ecclesiastical power of Rome, after some of the kingly powers of the divided Roman empire have fallen. So that the scarlet-colored beast, though it has seven heads and ten horns, is present without any mention of crowns at all, having become republicans. It is evident John was shown this power just prior to the judgments of the harlot woman. This harlot woman represents a corrupt ecclesiastical power, sitting upon a scarlet-colored beast—a bloody secular power full of names of blasphemy. To mark its locality on earth, it has seven heads, and ten horns, showing it is the papal, civil and ecclesiastical power combined, having its seat at Rome, as seen in the symbol of a corrupt woman, riding and directing a bloody beast, in a time when republicanism was being, or had been established, at least in some of the horn kingdoms. If this view be correct, it fixes the time of this aspect of the papal power. This beast, upon which the woman sits, had been in "the bottomless pit," but ascended out of it just prior to the aspect it presents in the seventeenth chapter. This same power, under another aspect, Rev. 13: 1, went into captivity in the days of Napoleon Bonaparte, when the papal power was stripped of all its cruel authority. Subsequently, it took on another form, constituting the "eighth" government, though in fact as "of the seventh," i. e., it is the same government, but had now taken on its last form. In this last form, the beast goes into perdition, and the woman receives her judgment, is hated by the ten horns, and they make her desolate, and naked, and eat her flesh, and burn her with fire; that is, they shall take from her the last vestige of power and all her riches, so that she will be perfectly helpless, and dependent, as she now is. I think the history of this papal power during the past century perfectly fulfills the seventeenth chapter of Revelation. The last jots and tittles of prophecy concerning this harlot power are being filled up. What next? The reign of Christ is soon to follow, which is nevertheless in a state of accomplishment. I do not look for a literal burning of the city of Rome before the Lord comes; the language is symbolical. The ten kings are to fulfill the words of God upon this wicked, blood-thirsty, ecclesiastical power, and they were to bring her into a state of lamentation and mourning and destitution. Her destruction is recorded in Rev. 19: 20, and 2 Thess. 2: 8, with the brightness of Christ's coming.

Remember the career of the dragon, Rev. 12, and of the leopard beast, Rev. 13: 1; and also of the scarlet-colored beast, Rev. 17, are all located on the old Roman territory. Each, and all of these characters have seven heads and ten horns, showing they represent the same government, under different forms; namely, Rome Pagan, and Rome Papal, and the last form represented by the beast from the bottomless pit, and thus they symbolize this government to the judgment; for the last form goeth into perdition, and the woman is destroyed amid wailing and mourning. The events of the past two years are very significant. The work of the ten horns has been nearly accomplished. I know of nothing more that can be fulfilled, as I view this harlot power. She is gone, forever gone. Mene is written upon the wall of its palace. God hath numbered the kingdom, and finished it. Tekel thou art weighed in the balances, and art found wanting. The blood of the martyrs slain crieth aloud against thee. Thy doom has come. O thou wicked Antichrist, thy hands shall no more be warmed at the fagot fires.

What next? The visible and glorious appearing of our Lord and Savior will be the next marked event, and the establishment of the everlasting kingdom of God, upon the earth. Let all the saints of God say Amen to this. The time is at hand (Rev. 19: 1,) when a great voice of much people will be heard in heaven, "Saying, Alleluia, salvation, and glory, and honor, and power, unto the Lord our God. For true and righteous are his judgments; for he hath judged the great whore which did corrupt the earth with her fornications, and hath avenged the blood of his servants at her hand. And again they said, Alleluia; and her smoke rose up forever and ever." The moments in which we live are solemn and momentous. The great mass of mankind are sleeping on the brink of eternal ruin. "Blessed is he that watcheth." Rev 16: 15.

"OUR HOMEWARD TRIP."

Our homeward trip from California to Boston was a pleasant one, without the least accident. The Central Pacific and Union Pacific railroads are kept in good repair, and the trains are run with much care, thus affording the passengers a feeling of safety rarely enjoyed by the traveling public. It is quite surprising to find everything connected with these roads of such a substantial character, when we consider the rapidity with which they were constructed. The work must have been done by first-class engineers and business men. The cars are easy-riding, and are well built with modern improvements. The eating stations in the wilds of the west are well kept, furnishing good meals for a dollar. They give twenty-five minutes for meals, so that one can eat with some satisfaction. We never eat at hotels, because we cannot get the food we desire. At Ogden we got permission of the steward to make some oat-meal pudding for our journey. Accordingly we were provided with a kettle and some hot water, but when we went to put it on the stove, the cook ordered us away, so we had to go without the mush; but we remembered that on our outward trip, we found a saloon at Laramie city, in Wyoming Territory, kept by Wm. Clark, a large man, in the rear of the railroad depot, where we were freely allowed to make some mush. He gives good meals for fifty cents. After being driven away by the cook at Ogden, we concluded to try again at Clark's restaurant. We found him just as accommodating as at our first visit; so we made our mush, and went on our way rejoicing in the result of his kindness. Those who wish a good meal for half price will do well to call at Clark's restaurant. The passengers who ate there expressed much satisfaction. While speaking of railroad diet, we we would recommend to those who carry their own food, and have occasion to use milk, to take with them some of Mr. Borden's condensed milk. Two cans, at forty cents a can, afforded us a plenty for our trip, using half a pint at a meal. On our first trip to California we had to pay forty cents a pint for milk at some stations. Two of Mr. Borden's cans afforded us milk, for sixteen meals equal to four quarts of milk. This condensed milk is very pure, and is sweetened so as to be adapted to tea and coffee, without any additional sugar. We use two teaspoonfulls at a time.

Travelers who do not take sleeping cars should provide themselves with a towel, soap, and pocket looking-glass, and comb. It is hoped the time will come when looking-glasses will be provided in the cars. This is the only thing that seems to be lacking, which is found in the cars in the States. Of course we do not speak of the Palace cars, which are supplied with all traveling luxuries.

We found the track all clear, but during the winter, the Union Pacific had a terrible fight with snow drifts. The like has not been known before since the commencement of railroads. The snow has been piled up heaps upon heaps. Nothing short of the most untiring energy could have kept the road open at all, because they were not prepared for such a blockade, from the fact they were not expecting it. Being now forewarned, the managers of the road purpose to be forearmed for another winter. We passed heavy heaps of snow, but they presented a subdued appearance, saying we can do no more, but must waste away upon the mountain plains unlamented.

Instead of drifting snow, we were entertained by raging fires in the old prairie grass, which at night presented a rare sight. Thousands of acres have been burnt over. By the side of the track the fires were dashing along, and in the distance the heavens might be seen illuminated by the sweeping flames on other parts of the vast prairie lands. We were glad to have the opportunity of seeing these extensive night fires. Those who have any buildings are obliged to plow a ring around their homes sufficiently wide to keep off the fire.

We saw many flocks of antelope and elk. In the distance the latter looked quite like mules or horses upon a run. After passing through the extensive range of mountain scenery, so wild and grand as to fill one with awe and astonishment, we then came upon the extreme opposite in the vast Platt river plain in Nebraska, which seems boundless, like an ocean of land. The soil appears to be of excellent quality, and is very easily cultivated. Vast herds of cattle are pastured upon this great prairie, and quite a number of small houses may be seen dotting the plain, a little distance from the railroad. Many acres are being cultivated. They were ploughing and planting when we passed. This Platte river valley is some three hundred and fifty miles long, and from ten to fifteen miles wide, containing probably between four and five thousand square miles. It is the most extensive agricultural plain in the United States, or, perhaps in the world. The soil is said to better than that in Illinois, and is some five or six feet deep. It is claimed that it will produce more wheat, corn, oats and potatoes to the acre than Illinois, and that the wheat is of the best quality. Better onions can be raised there than in Whethersfield, Ct., which is so noted for this crop. They raise from seventy-five to one hundred bushels of corn, and one hundred bushels of oats to the acre. Fruits grow finely. There is but very little wood, but coal can be obtained from seven to twelve dollars per ton. Water is found plenty by digging from five to ten feet. This vast plain slopes about seven feet to the mile towards Omaha. The railroad runs in a strait line on this plain forty miles. The head light of a train has been seen forty-six miles in the distance.

Those who wish to settle on a level prairie land, for farming purposes, can be gratified in Nebraska, going west from Omaha for three hundred and fifty miles. Land can be bought of the Railroad company from five to twelve dollars per acre, at their office at Omaha. Or one can pre-empt one hundred and sixty acres of government land, occupy it for six months, making improvements, then take two witnesses with him to the land office at Omaha to prove he has thus occupied the land, when he can purchase it for two and one half dollars per acre. Having done this, he can obtain eighty acres more by the "homestead law," at a cost of about twenty-eight dollars, after occupying it for five years. Beyond the plain is the rolling prairie, like the land in Iowa. It is said the dry weather affects the crops less in Nebraska than in the states east of the Missouri.

After passing through that rich farming district, we arrived in due time at Omaha, where we crossed over the Missouri river on the new iron bridge, which has been completed since we went west. This bridge is a great convenience to travleer. It is two thousand seven hundred and fifty feet long, and sixty-four feet above the river.

SATAN'S DEVICES.

It seems strange that professors of religion should be so drawn into the snare of the Devil as we see them at the present day. Recently, in a California city, an Hon. gentleman performed in a theatre for the benefit of the "Howard Benevolent Association"; and a masquerade ball was held in another place, a part of the proceeds of which were given to the same "Benevolent Association." The two performances secured to the "Association" $779.25. The "Association" published a card of thanks for these gifts. Thus Satan secures the praise and thanks of a low Christianity. Of course, it would be considered very unkind and ungenerous to say a word against theatres and masquerade balls after such a liberal donation from their purse. He who ventures to preach against such things is considered as some old fossilized Puritan, who should have lived a century in the past, but has no claims for respect from this "progressive age."

Satan is trying to buy up the churches of these last days, or to go into partnership with them, they consenting to let him run their fairs, festivals, etc., on condition that he gives them an occasional share in the proceeds of some of his special performances; they are at the same time agreeing to let his business alone, while he is leading their sons and daughters to ruin; besides many fathers and mothers, whose names are on the church book. Beware of his devices!

THE REIGN OF CORRUPTION.

There has been a sort of lull in the excitement over reports of corruption and dishonesty among public men of late, but the profound impression created by them must by no means be suffered to die out before it has borne fruit in the shape of a resolution to institute a general reform. The very air seems to be impregnated with the vice of the period. Fraud, peculation, plundering, and combined movements for the robbery of the public—these are forced upon us by so many and startling illustrations, that it seems as if it was impossible to trust any body, and that the public mind had become thoroughly debauched. We look at this condition of things above and outside of all political affiliations or interests. It is bad enough that it exists, and that it still goes without rebuke, without provoking for it the defence of anybody by attacking their favorite party. We regard it as a radical evil, which neither a party nor the people at large can afford to tolerate. If public affairs cannot be administered by public agents with integrity, but the most shameless coruptions and frauds must usurp control, then we may sorrowfully take the truth home to our hearts that the doom of republican government is written. No society, political or otherwise, can possibly keep its footing if it is dishonestly organized or operated. Truth, sincerity and integrity are the essential ingredients of anything of that kind which lasts. We must have reform or perish.

The foregoing is an editorial from the Banner of Light, Nov. 4th, 1871. This is quite significant, when it is remembered that it is claimed by the Spiritualists that the world is progressing from a low to a higher plane. They have found much fault because christianity has not made the world better, after its efforts for eighteen hundred years, and have assumed that under the influence of Spiritualism society would be improved rapidly. Now, after twenty-two years trial, we begin to see its fruits in all directions. So far as Spiritualism has gained control over individuals, or society, such may truly say: "We must have reform or perish. The road in which Spiritualism travels is the one that leads direct to destruction. We can see no room for doubt in relation to our conclusion. Spiritualism throws away the Bible, God and Christ, and claims salvation and eternal life without their aid. This is the result of a belief in the immortality of the soul.

Brn. and Srs., let us stand up boldly against that unscriptural doctrine, that lies at the foundation of all false systems of religion in the world. Thank the Lord for the light on his word which is now shining so clearly to show that every part of man is wholly mortal.

A NATION IN SHEOL.

The Hebrew word sheol corresponds with the Greek word hades; both of which, when used in a literal sense, represent the place of the dead. When a nation, city, or government, is cast down to a low, obscure condition, like one buried up, it may be said to be cast down to sheol or hades. This was true of the city of Capernaum: "And thou, Capernaum, which art exalted unto heaven, shalt be brought down to hell" [hades]. Matt. 11: 23. In Isa. 5: 13–15, is another example:—"Therefore my people are gone into captivity, because they have no knowledge; and their honorable men are famished, and their multitude dried up with thirst. Therefore hell hath enlarged herself, and opened her mouth without measure; and their glory, and their multitude, and their pomp, and he that rejoiceth, shall descend into it. And the mean man shall be brought down, and the mighty man shall be humbled, and the eyes of the lofty shall be humbled."

The word rendered "hell" is sheol. In this case the Jewish people were to be "brought down," and "humbled"; and this humiliation is represented as going into hell; which "enlarged herself" to make room for them. The same is true of the parable of the rich man and Lazarus. That represented by the rich man—the Jewish people—goes into hell (hades), a low, obscure, buried condition, in which situation they have been for the last eighteen hundred years. In the literal hades there is no life, knowledge, device, or wisdom. It is a state of utter unconsciousness.

A PROPOSITION.—Sister A. H. Bruce, who was a well-known lecturer on Spiritualism for eighteen years, has recently renounced the whole thing, and given herself to Christ. As a result, her husband, who is a strong Spiritualist, and former friends, have left her with a sick daughter to take care of herself. She is without means to hire halls, but is anxious to give lectures against Spiritualism, relating her own terrible experience when a medium. She is to speak in Lowell St. Chapel next Thursday evening, May 16th. Our proposition is this: Would it not be well for the different churches to give the free use of their chapels for evening lectures, when they are not wanted for other purposes, and take up collections to pay her expenses. We think she may do much good in exposing the awful delusion of Spiritualism. It is the great enemy of Christianity, and she can speak from actual experience. Send invitations to the Crisis office.

CHELSEA.—The church in Chelsea is doing well under the faithful pastoral labors of Bro. Couch. The late conference was made a special blessing to many, and was the means of leading a number to Christ. We spent last Sabbath with this church, and had profitable meetings. Several requested prayers, who are anxious to become christians.

PERSONAL.—Bro. A. A. Phelps is about moving to Vineland, N. J. He is an earnest worker in the vineyard of the Lord. We wish him much success in his new field of labor.

SR. WILLARD wishes to say she has concluded to finish the "Story of Grace" in book form, and hopes to be able to announce in due time the completion of the work.

A TRAVELING VALISE.—When on our way from Omaha to Chicago, we saw a peculiar piece of baggage, that was on a trip from St. Johns, N. B., to San Francisco, Cal., and return. It was a small valise. The following are notes of its journeying: Left St. Johns, N. B., April 11th, 7.40 A. M.; Bangor, Me., April 12th, 8.10 A. M.; Detroit Junction, April 14th, 10 P. M.; Chicago, April 15th, 10 P. M.; Omaha, April 17th, 11.30 A. M.; Ogden, April 19th, 6.50 P. M.; Sacramento, Cal., April 21st, 2.20 P. M.; San Francisco, April 21st, 8 P. M. Returning, it left San Francisco April 22nd, 7 A. M.; Sacramento, April 22nd, 2 P. M.; Ogden, April 24th, 7.30 A. M.; Omaha, April 26th, 3 P. M.; Chicago, April 27th, 5.15 P. M., where we parted with the silent traveler. This shows the time necessary for a living person to make the same trip. Since writing the above, we learn that it arrived home at St. John's, 6 P. M., April 30th, having traveled 7960 miles.

A LUXURY.—We do not know of a greater physical luxury to a healthy man than a Turkish Bath, well administered. We need not say to our readers that these baths have a wonderfullly healing effect upon certain diseases, especially of the rheumatic nature. We think there is no time in a man's life, when he feels so perfectly clean, as after taking a Turkish bath. It puts new life and vigor into the constitution. Those who wish to take such baths in Boston, will find superior accommodations at Dr. Dio Lewis' Hygienic Institute, 17 Beacon St.

"COMMON POLITENESS" is the title of a choice book of 96 pp., that every one should read. It contains common-sense hints on the subject of politeness, adapted to every-day life. It is published by D. C. Colesworthy, who keeps an Antique Book-store, 66 Cornhill, Boston. We are acquainted with no one in the city, in the book business, where we can trade with so much pleasure as with Mr. Colesworthy. His prices are moderate, and he is always pleasant. We think he was a fit man to write the book of "Common Politeness." Price, 50 cts., postage 8 cts. For sale at the Crisis office.

THE BIBLE BANNER.—Our preaching brethren are authorized to offer the Bible Banner six months free to all new subscribers to the Crisis, and to old subscribers paying their indebtedness, or in advance, on the same. If such subscribers wish to stop the Banner at the end of the six months, they will please notify the publisher. The Banner is still offered one year free to ministers of the gospel, of any denomination, who desire it.

"GOOD HEALTH" for May completes the third volume of this valuable and instructive magazine. An examination of the contents indicates no lack of successful effort on the part of its conductors in providing the public with attractive and useful common-sense reading. At the end of its third year it is, if possible, more fresh, vigorous and pleasing than ever. This is an excellent health journal, ably conducted. The regular subscription price is $2.00 per annum, or 20 cents per number. Send to the publisher for sample, or it will be sent three months on trial for forty cents. ALEXANDER MOORE, 2 Hamilton Place, Boston, Mass.

BRO. WM. C. STEWART has moved to Kennebunk Port, Me., where he is to preach each Sabbath, excepting the first in each month.

NEW TRACT.
Second Edition, Revised and Enlarged,
OF
"THE COMING REIGN OF TERROR," Or, The Commune.
BY WM. N. PILE.

The first edition of five thousand copies of this work being exhausted, a second edition is now published. It contains about twelve pages of entirely new matter, besides retaining all the more important matter of the first edition. The past working of Spiritualism, Infidelity, Socialism, Free-Love, and the Commune, are shown to have produced the "reign of terror" of 1792 in France, and then the analogies between that period and the present are drawn, to show that we are on the verge of another "reign of terror." Special attention is given to the "International Society," and its latest developments shown. This tract is well calculated to awaken an interest in the speedy coming of the Lord. Notwithstanding the increased size, the price is unchanged.

For sale at this office. Price, by mail, single copy, 7 cts.; five copies, 30 cts.; ten copies, 50 cts.; fifty copies, $2.00; one hundred copies, by express, $3.50. AG'T.

Also sold by the author at Springfield, Mass.

"SCIENCE and the RESURRECTION."
BY D. T. TAYLOR.

A valuable tract of 16 pages; a good one to give to the objector. Two copies sent by mail for 10 cents. AG'T.

INCARNATION OF DIVINITY.

"Bro. Sheldon:—There is a subject that has been resting on my mind for some time, and desiring to have the truth, I ask you to give an explanation through the Crisis. It is this: If Christ existed before he was born of the Virgin Mary, how could he be born? And what did he do with the body which he had before his birth?" C. W. D.

REPLY.

We should not reject a clearly revealed truth simply because it is mysterious. It is a mystery which mortal man can never explain, how a man that is consumed into smoke, and wafted to remote climes, passing through a thousand changes, can ever be reorganized. And yet one touch of God's miraculous power will accomplish the work. It is a mystery which human wisdom cannot solve, how God can instantaneously transform a mortal man into an immortal being. Yet miraculous power will do just this thing. It is a mystery which human wisdom cannot comprehend, how seven devils could have possessed Mary Magdalene for a time, and subsequently be cast out; and still this is a revealed truth, even though the queery should be raised, What did they do with their bodies? There are many mysterious truths that can be accounted for only on the admission of miraculous power. If we repudiate all that is miraculous, we shall renounce all the fundamentals of revealed truth.

We believe many mysteries that we cannot explain. And if we renounce the incarnation of Christ, because of its mysteriousness, we shall be compelled to repudiate Christ as an imposter for the same reason; for there is a mystery connected with his introduction into the world from any stand-point that can be taken, unless we say that he had an earthly father, thus clashing with Christ's own statement—"I came down from heaven," which, on this supposition, would be just as true of every man as of himself, thus making Christ a deceiver by claiming a higher origin. To claim that Christ was propagated by God, thus on natural principles, having an immortal father and a mortal mother, does not in the least remove the mystery; for even this could not be accomplished without a miracle, as the two natures are not analogous; and it would require nothing more than a miracle to have merged the divine Son of God in the human Son of Mary at conception, his former organization thus being blended mysteriously with the mortal form,—thus rendering it possible for a divine sacrifice to be offered, and without which divinity could not have died, and we should then have been left with a human sacrifice only. This view harmonizes with every text in the Bible on this point, of which texts there are two classes; one speaking of his human origin, dating at his conception; and the other speaking of his divine origin, dating far back into eternity. To make them all speak of his human origin is to throw nonsense into the teeth of inspired witnesses. To allow a part to refer to his past divine origin, does nothing more than to involve a miracle in the incarnation; and just as great a miracle is involved by the claim that divinity was propagated at conception by Deity. We cannot do away with the mystery by presenting another mystery in its stead. W. S.

FLYING SOULS.

To prove that souls take to themselves wings and "fly away" at the death of the body, or "fly away" in a wingless state, we are often referred to the following text—"The days of our years are threescore years and ten; and if by reason of strength they be fourscore years, yet is their strength labor and sorrow; for it is soon cut off, and we fly away." Ps. 90: 10. The text does not affirm that the soul flies away, but "we fly away." Our life "is soon cut off, and we fly away." Can the life of a deathless soul be "cut off"? If it is a disembodied soul that flies away, it must fly away in a lifeless state, after its days are "cut off." The connection gives the true sense—"Thou carriest them away as with a flood; they are as a sleep. . . . We are consumed by thine anger, and by thy wrath are we troubled. . . . We spend our years as a tale that is told, . . . and we fly away." Vers. 4–10. Before the rolling flood of death "we" fly away from the land of the living—the same "we" who are "consumed," and the "we" who "spend our years as a tale that is told"—and then we "are as a sleep."

Whatever part is here spoken of as flying away is also said to have its life "cut off"; hence, if it is the soul that flies away, it is the soul that has its life "cut off"; and thus in order to make the text teach that the soul flies off at death, it must first be made to teach that the soul itself dies. So in setting up one prop to support immaterialism, another one is knocked down. W. S.

WHERE ARE WE?

Are we near the judgment? Have we passed the prophetic landmarks specified in the divine programme, by which we are compelled to believe that we are approximating the dawn of a new era? Is the kingdom of God almost due? And do we sincerely believe all this? Then what is our duty? By what spirit should we be actuated? Our hearts should be fired with zeal, and our souls filled with devotion. It is too late in the day to be dilatory. We are too near the tramp of God to slumber. Soon our work will all be done. Soon will come the day of settlement. Soon the crown and the kingdom will be gained or lost forever. We know all this, but do we lay it to heart? We admit the truth, but does it penetrate our hearts, and breathe itself out through our lives?

Professor, awake and seek a new creation—a new baptism of perfect love. We must live where we can have power with God in prayer—faith that prevails at a throne of grace. Then we shall lose all worldly relish, and human ambition. Minister of Christ, let the Spirit of thy Master so fill thy heart that you will not only be heavenly-minded, but feel a continual anxiety to lead perishing men to the sacred fold. Christ's ministers should be Christ-like. W. S.

AMMUNITION FOR THE ENEMY.

I am constrained to put on record my honest conviction that at least one half of the military stores heaped up by that power of darkness, called Spiritualism, are furnished by the so-called evangelical publications of the day. I have before me "The Infant's Catechism," published by the American Tract Society, and I wish to call attention to the seed which we are invited to sow in the infant mind, and ask, in the light of God's word, where Spiritualists find more aid and assistance in their warfare against Christ and his church, than in the natural and logical fruit to be gathered in due time from such seed in such soil. I give the questions and answers just as they are in the book, calling attention to the fact that no Scripture references are annexed, and stating what I believe to be the truth, that the Bible contains no Scripture proofs of such answers.

Ques. What has God made in you which can love, and think, and wish?

Ans. My soul, or my heart.

Ques. Which part of us is most like God, our souls or our bodies?

Ans. Our souls.

Ques. Whom is God like?

Ans. He is not like any person, but he is greater and stronger than any one.

Ques. What is it to die?

Ans. It is to have the breath leave our bodies, and never come back again.

Ques. Does the soul die too, when these outside bodies die?

Ans. No, because our souls are not made of flesh and blood; and it is only our flesh and blood that can die.

Ques. What becomes of the soul, when the body which is outside of it dies?

Ans. The soul goes out of the body, and goes to God who made it.

Ques. Does our soul then keep on living still?

Ans. Yes, our soul will live always; it cannot die.

Ques. Will God punish anything but the body of those who sin?

Ans. Yes, he has said he will punish the soul, too, that sins.

Ques. How?

Ans. By sending it, when the body dies, far away from himself and from all light and joy.

Ques. Where will the souls of God's children be, while their bodies are in the grave?

Ans. They will be happy in heaven with God.

I will not use more of your paper in quoting such strange doctrines, but with a love for truth, I must say that I cannot endorse such a catechism until I see it backed up by the word of the Lord. The conclusions which an infant must arrive at from a study of this catechism are these:

1. God is not a person, because he is more like our souls than our bodies. 2. Our soul is the same as our heart. 3. Our soul is neither flesh, blood, or breath, and consequently is about as near nothing as it can be. 4. Our soul cannot die. 5. The punishment of sin is the breath leaving the body, and the soul having eternal life away from God and all light and joy. 6. The souls of God's children go to heaven as soon as the body dies. But enough of this; is it any wonder that the enemy, before alluded to, grows strong and defiant, and very bold, under such teaching as this, so contrary to the Bible truth; and with such a foundation in the infant mind, is it strange that many should turn from the true and living God, to serve the devil, by believing that these so called souls can commune with us here on earth? And since these very bewildering doctrines are not found in the Bible, what wonder that the word of God is thrown aside, and the revelations of mediums accepted as comfort, even in the dying hour.

O church of the living God, awake! sound the alarm, speak and declare the truth, lest God remove thy candlestick out of its place. W.

BRO. WM. MCCULLOCK, New Rutland, Ill., writes:—"I am anxiously hoping and expecting soon to enter the harbor. Many a lighthouse has been passed; the old ship is still sailing, but she is near the shore now; yes, very near. Watchmen, awaken all the sailors. It is no time to sleep in sight of land."

THE TRACT FUND.

The Advent Christian Publication Society, at a meeting on Springfield Camp-ground, August 23d, 1871, voted to raise Two Thousand Dollars for the free distribution of Tracts the ensuing year; and they invite the help and co-operation of all lovers of the Lord and of his truth, in the furtherance of the good cause. The times are ominous of coming events, and admonish us to diligence in the Master's work. The Lord is at the door, and what we do must be done quickly. Let the contributions be prompt, hearty, and liberal. The Lord will reward the liberal giver.

THIS LOOKS ENCOURAGING.

There are some ministers in popular churches who oppose popular sins, and are ready to aid in putting them away. A few days since we received the following:

"Eld. I. C. Wellcome, Dear Brother: one of my members, two hours ago, put your 'Church Spectacles' into my hands. I have read it, approve of it, and thank you and God for it. 'It is a tract for the times.' We are having quite a breeze on these things in our church in G——. I ventured to oppose these 'suppers and entertainments' for the support of God, and there is a storm. Your tract came just in time to comfort and encourage me in this hour of trial. I want to scatter it fully in my church and community. Please send me as many as you can for $2, which I enclose, and the the Lord bless you forever. I wish I was able, I would give away tens of thousands among our churches. Yours for full gospel salvation. ** ***

Pastor of M. E. church in ——."

We know of many whose eyes have greatly improved by reading "Church Spectacles—A thrilling statement of facts on Levees, Fairs, Gambling, Dancing, and Banqueting—by church members; with some wholesome instruction." Some whole churches have stopped gambling. We have just published a new edition, adding the poems by Eld. I. K. Lombard, which we originally published on a sheet under the caption—"An Admonition." They should be scattered through all the churches. 24 pp., 40 cts. per dozen; $1 for forty copies. Sold at the Crisis office.

I. C. WELLCOME.

AFTER HIM WITH A SHARP STICK.—Our readers are well aware that Elder Grant delivered a series of lectures at the Theatre, ending on last Sunday evening, and now Revs. Halleday and Wirth are to follow suit in exploding the erroneous ideas advanced by Grant in the course of his lectures. These gentlemen propose to "snatch bald-headed" (not Grant), the doctrines he preached here. The lectures will be delivered on alternate Sunday evenings, at the Congregational and Baptist churches. Rev. Mr. Halleday's programme is as follows:

April 28th. "The immateriality and immortality of the soul."

May 12th. "The moral attributes and accountability of man."

May 26th. "Death and its consequences primitive."

June 9th. "The condition of the departed irreversible."

Those who heard one side of the question are earnestly invited to come and hear the other.

We got the above from the Nevada Transcript of yesterday. The two Reverends who are going after Elder Grant did not announce the fact of their counterblasts until after the Elder had departed from out the borders of Nevada City. Elder Grant killed off the sinners for all eternity, and the others are trying to have that class eternally tortured. Nevada City is in favor of the death that dies quickly, that being the side of interest. No Nevadaite wants to roast through the countless ages of eternity.—Grass Valley (Cal) Union.

AFTER HIM WITH A SHARP STICK.—Yes, yes, Mr. Transcript—pretty good! They're after him, but the trouble is, he's out of the way, "on the road to Boston." Well, it's allowable, I believe, in chickendom, for either cock to crow, even if he's whipped, after the other is out of sight. But, seriously, my dear sir, we who sit under these reverend gentlemen's teachings, would like to know how they are going to review and overthrow Elder Grant's teachings, when they did not hear him? Only one of them was there at all, and he but very little. And again: If they are really, as they claim, watchmen on Zion's walls, how can they justify themselves in allowing us to go, night after night, to listen to a teacher of dangerous heresies, the consequences of which are to run on through the endless hereafter, and not so much as go with us and improve the opportunity, so fairly offered, to state objections, and, if able, show up the wrong and save their flocks from the error and danger. How is this? It don't look just right. However, let the effort be made. We will listen attentively. We want truth! Will they allow, as Elder Grant did, questions to be asked? We shall see.—ONE OF THE "FLOCK."—Nevada (Cal.) Transcript.

THE SOUL IMMATERIAL AND IMMORTAL.—Ed. Transcript:—I listened to the lecture on the above subject, by Rev. Mr. Halleday, on Sunday evening, and deeming that the subject, as presented, calls for a careful re-examination, or review, I undertake, in the absence of the brother who started the investigation, to make that review, or reply. Tomorrow, Wednesday evening, at 7½ o'clock, at the Court House (God willing), I will speak on this subject. All who are interested to know the truth, are invited to attend.—C. L. PERCIVAL.

CIRCULAR.—The Biblical Quarterly having been suspended for the want of adequate patronage; and numerous friends, since its suspension, having expressed a desire for a continuation of the publication, I have concluded to submit the following proposition to all who are interested in the work: $300 in subscriptions, or pledges, will guaranty the publication for a year, either as a Quarterly or Monthly, which ever may be preferred. My experience shows that without an earnest, continued effort on the part of friends, the work cannot be sustained; but if all who are interested will do their whole duty, it will be a success. Pledges are already coming in, and I now most earnestly ask all to respond at once to this call. You need not send any money yet, but let me know what you will do, if the Lord permit; and in due time I will tell you when to remit. Let all speak at once! Address JOHN T. WALSH, New-Berne, N. C.

Correspondence.

From Bro. S. L. Manley.

DEAR BRN. AND SRS.:—During the last year and a half I have been traveling from place to place in Western and Central New York, doing a little business to pay my way, and scattering the truth broadcast in the form of tracts. I have disposed of about eight packages this way, with which the Society has freely furnished me. Thus these messages have found way into stages, steamboats, railway cars, public and private houses; and I trust that some of the seed thus sown will tell in the final harvest day. No doubt this last judgment-bound generation were to be faithfully warned, and it is apparent that no idlers in the vineyard in these days of degeneracy, as in the past, will receive the applaudit of "Well done."

This is no time to lay down our watch. Signs on every hand proclaim the Judge is at the door. The groaning creation sighs for deliverance, when wickedness and misrule shall come to a perpetual end. The righteous Ruler and Governor among the nations will soon be enthroned, and then equity, justice and truth shall gloriously triumph. Sin and sinners shall be no more, when the glory of the Lord shall fill the earth; then the praises of God will resound from shore to shore, and sin, sorrow and death will be forever banished. Do we expect soon to enter the new Jerusalem? Then let us remember that none but the undefiled whose names are in the book of life can enter there. Let us remember the apostle's admonition to deny ungodliness and worldly lusts, and "live soberly, righteously and godly," "lay aside every weight," "press toward the mark for the prize," and "so run that we may obtain." "For many walk that are the enemies of the cross of Christ; whose end is destruction, ... who mind earthly things." "For our conversation is in heaven, from whence also we look for the Savior, the Lord Jesus Christ, who shall change our vile body, that it may be fashioned like unto his glorious body." Therefore "let us hold fast the profession of our faith without wavering, for he is faithful that promised." "And let us consider one another, to provoke unto love and to good works"; be willing and ready to take joyfully the spoiling of our goods, knowing we "have in heaven a better and an enduring substance."

Rochester, N. Y.

From Bro. Richard Mosher.

BRO. GRANT:—I am yet in the field, trying to do what I can to convince men that the Bible is the word of God, and teaches the near approach of Christ to this earth again to reward his saints, in giving them the kingdom under the whole heaven for a possession forever; and also the unconscious state of the dead, and the final destruction of the wicked. If all our knowledge comes through our five senses, then there can be no consciousness without a brain; and if our brain is a battery, there can be no knowledge obtained unless the battery is charged, and an operator to take off the intelligence sent. Therefore, the dead know not anything. But the dead shall be raised, and we shall be changed.

My health has been such, I have visited but few of the churches the past fall and winter. In December, I visited the church in Keene, N. H., and spent four Sabbaths with them. I gave them twenty discourses, baptized one, and administered the communion. We had a good time, and the Lord was with us. In January, I preached three discourses at Saratoga Springs. The church there has been much revived the past winter, and a goodly number added to them. We have had a protracted meeting here (Sandy Hill), and have been assisted by Elder H. K. Flagg. Some three or four have obtained a hope, and others are inquiring the way to be saved. The Lord shall have all the praise. Pray for us. I expect soon to be ready for calls where I may be useful, for I feel confident that time is short, and what we do must be done quickly.

From Bro. G. G. Godfrey.

BRO. GRANT:—I wish to say through the Crisis that I am now located at Blue Springs, Gage Co., Neb. I am here for the purpose of spreading light and truth. Brethren who want meetings will correspond.

Blue Springs, May 6th, 1872.

Extracts from Letters.

LIEUT. J. CRAIG, London, England, writes April 25th:—"I receive the Crisis weekly. The articles about the 'Higher Christian Life' I very much appreciate. O that our whole time and thoughts were continually given to our blessed Master Jesus. He is worthy to receive honor and glory and praise. I believe the Lord is working with great power in many parts of Great Britain. We have, indeed, had many showers of blessing in some parts of England. Praise the Lord, and magnify his glorious name. There has been much work going on for the last year in Newport, Monmouthshire. Many have been brought from darkness to light, from the power of Satan to serve the living God. In London, infidels are trying hard to press their obnoxious doctrines among the people. But I do not fear. Jesus will triumph in spite of infidelity, Spiritualism, and every error under heaven. What a blessed and glorious thing it is to trust him. He is our comfort, our joy, our peace, our all. We shall soon see the King in his glorious beauty. We shall soon behold him who is 'chief among ten thousand,' the 'altogether lovely.' Come, Lord Jesus, come quickly. We are waiting patiently for thy appearing. How very precious the following verses are to my soul: 'Be careful (anxious) for nothing, but in everything, by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving, let your requests be made known unto God. And the peace of God, which passeth all understanding, shall keep your hearts and minds through Christ Jesus.' May God bless you. Amen."

BRO. R. W. WILSON writes from St. Helena, Cal., May 1st:—"I have made arrangements to spend part of this summer at the Bartlett Springs, in the mountains, in Lake Co. Yet if my health were good enough, I would go to Nevada, and try to build up a church there; but my health is too poor to preach. I think with the use of tracts, and conversation with the hundreds of people who will be at the Springs, that I can do more good there than in any other place at present. I have been up in Lake Co. helping Brn. Fassett and Reed in a series of meetings. We found a great deal of prejudice and opposition there, yet the truth has found its way to some hearts that will keep it, and 'bring forth fruit with patience.' I remained there some eight days. The meeting had not yet closed. The interest was increasing. I left in order to go down and preach for Bro. Fassett in Vallejo, which I did, and had a very good day. We intend to leave here for Bartlett Springs on the 8th inst."

WHEN Paul was a Pharisee, he thought he was blameless; when he was a christian, he thought himself the chief of sinners.

Obituaries.

GLEASON. Died in Worcester, of consumption, March 23d, 1872, Mrs. Mary E. Gleason, wife of Alonzo A. Gleason, aged seventeen years and three months.

Sr. Gleason was converted about one year ago, and maintained a consistent Christian course unto the end. She manifested great patience and resignation during her sickness, and contemplated with perfect calmness her approaching death. She selected the text of her funeral discourse. The beautiful hymn, commencing—

"How firm a foundation, ye saints of the Lord,"

was sung also at her request.

She "sleeps in Jesus," awaiting the advent of her Life-giver. She leaves a husband, mother, two sisters and a brother to mourn her loss. Funeral discourse by the writer, from 1 Thess. 4: 13. W. N. PILE.

HUNTRESS. Died in Boston, Mass., April 18th, 1872, Melvin L. Huntress, son of Bro. and Sr. Thomas and Ann Huntress, of Parsonsfield, Me., aged sixteen years and eight months.

Melvin was not a professed follower of the Lord, but in the last hours of his brief illness he desired to be prayed for, and endeavored to pray for himself; and after he could not speak so as to be understood, he made signs that he wished to write, and a pencil and paper were given him, upon which he wrote some, the substance of which was, that he believed the Lord would save him. The funeral services were conducted by Bro. Mark Stevens, who spoke words of comfort from words found in John 11: 25. C. H. HURD.

PHILBRICK. Died in Freedom, N. H., of congestion of the brain, April 25th, 1872, Sister Clarissa, wife of Bro. Frederick Philbrick, aged sixty-one years and three months.

Our sister experienced religion in 1842, and in the summer of '43 was baptized by Bro. J. G. Smith. The proclamation of the speedy coming of our Lord from heaven had reached the ear of our sister a short time prior to her baptism, and she and her companion were among the first to embrace "the blessed hope," and ever after were believers in it. A large concourse of people gathered at the chapel on the occasion of the funeral, when a comforting discourse was delivered by Bro. Mark Stevens, from words found in Rev. 21: 4. C H. HURD.

MESSER. Died in Goshen, N. H., April 19th, 1872, Sister T. Messer, wife of Isaac Messer, aged fifty-nine years.

She was for many years a member of the Free Will Baptist church, of Goshen. She was a faithful wife and mother, and the record of her life, to its closing scene, gave evidence of her piety. "She sleeps in Jesus." Funeral services attended, at the request of the deceased, by the writer. C. H. FLETCHER.

DAVIS. Fell asleep at East Concord, May 2nd, Sister Johanna Davis, aged sixty-six years.

May God's grace comfort, and the blessed hope of life when Jesus comes cheer this mourning circle in this hour of sadness. Words of comfort by the writer. O. W. KIMBALL.

PLUMMER. Died in Dover, Me., March 8th, 1872, of consumption and dropsy, Annie M., daughter of Loring and Sally Plummer, aged thirteen years, two months, and twenty-four days.

She sleeps in Jesus. The words selected by herself to be used at her funeral, were from Ps. 23: 4. Services by Bro. Samuel Ames. L. P.

BECKMAN. Fell on sleep in Seabrook, N. H., April 21st, 1872, Nancy Beckman, aged sixty-eight years and four months.

She leaves a husband and six children to mourn her loss. It is believed that she rests in hope. Sermon at the funeral by the writer, from Isa. 3: 10, 11. A. DAMON.

BEACH. Died in New Britain, Ct., March 9th, of membranous croup, Alfred P., only child of Edward T. Beach, and grandson of Edward H. and Louisa J. Beach, aged three years and eleven months.

Sweet bud of promise! so early plucked,
While yet upon its opening petals lingered
The morning dew-drops.

We wait the dawning of another day to wake its beauty into life again, immortal in the paradise of God. L. J. B.

WHEELER. Died in Victory, May 5th, John S. Wheeler, aged fifty-five years.

Bro. Wheeler was a great sufferer from that dreadful disease, cancer. He bore his suffering patiently, like a christian, willing to rest a little while in the grave. His hope was in the resurrection. He chose the subject of his funeral, and what he wanted sung at the grave—"We may sleep, but not forever"—and died like one going to sleep, without a struggle or a groan. M. R. MILES.

SPAIN.

SOME BANDS STILL ACTIVE.

MADRID, May 7. Some of the rebel bands still hold together, and threaten to make trouble in the future. They will be closely followed, however, by the royal army, and it is probable that all will soon surrender. Reinforcements have been sent to strengthen the government forces, as it is thought that the comparative insignifiance of the Carlist force will lead the latter to abandon hope of success and to quietly disperse. The carbineers, who are acquainted with the country, will pursue what rebel bands may yet remain in Navarre.

THE CARLISTS SURRENDER.

Large numbers of the insurrectionists are constantly arriving at the headquarters of the government troops, and asking the forbearance of the king. They report that the band which escaped with Don Carlos was small and inefficient, consisting of not more than two or three hundred men. They also report that the strength of the insurrection is broken, and the defeated and misguided troops of the pretender are anxious to return to loyal allegiance to the throne.

DON CARLOS.

Don Carlos has not yet been captured, and, although a most vigorous search has been maintained, his hiding place is still a secret. The hunt will be kept up, although it is hardly probable that the fugutive will be found.

AUSTRALIA.

FEARFUL FLOODS.

LONDON, May 7. Latest advices from Melbourne bring accounts of heavy and devastating floods which have occurred in that vicinity. The loss of life has been fearful; no less than four hundred deaths by drowning being reported. Property to an enormous amount was destroyed, in many cases bringing on a condition of poverty among the people bordering on starvation. The damage to the crops was severe, and the flood has had an effect to almost paralyze some branches of business. Active measures have been taken for the relief of the sufferers. Details of this terrible disaster are of a most heart-rending nature, and it is expected that the sympaty of the people of London will take substantial form by aiding at the earliest possible day the efforts of the authorities at Melbourne to redeem the flooded lands, and, as far as possible, bring back the communities which have suffered most to a prosperous condition.

GREAT BRITAIN.

LONDON, May 8. A telegram from Bombay brings intelligence of the most disastrous floods in the southern part of British India. The town of Vellore, in the Presidency of Madras, suffered terribly, and many of the inhabitants were drowned. Fifteen thousand inhabitants of the town lost every thing they possessed, the water having washed away their houses and left them in a perfectly destitute condition. The dispatch of yesterday stating that there had been a flood in Melbourne, whereby four hundred persons perished, is an error. It undoubtedly referred to the above mentioned disaster.

LONDON, May 9. The Globe, in its issue of to-day, makes the announcement that the negotiations which have been in progress some time past looking toward an amicable adjustment of the disputed question of indirect claims, have been suddenly broken off. In connection with this announcement, it may be stated that the rumor is in circulation here to-day, to the effect that the British Ministry have finally decided to withdraw the English case already submitted to the Geneva Board of Arbitrators, and to retire from the arbitration altogether. This rumor is received with general credit in well informed circles.

LATER.

A meeting of the Cabinet was held to-day, when the subject of the Alabama claims controversy was earnestly discussed. At the close of the meeting a telegram was forwarded to Washington, announcing that England refused to proceed with the arbitration unles the claims for consequential damages were entirely withdrawn, and declaring that Great Britain will not consent to any reference to arbitrators of the subject of these claims. This confirms the rumor referred to in a previous despatch that England had withdrawn from the arbitration altogether.

DENMARK.

THE INTERNATIONALS.

COPENHAGEN, May 7. The action of the police authorities in forbidding members of the International Society holding a meeting on Sunday, and the subsequent arrest of the President and Treasurer of the branch here, give rise to great excitement among the members. A large number gathered in the streets and created some alarm by violent denunciation of the government. They were finally dispersed by the police and all is now quiet. It has been deemed prudent, however, to place a military guard around all public buildings and the palaces until the excitement is entirely subsided. The leading members of the society will be prosecuted for high treason. The police are adopting energetic measures to suppress the tumult.

DOMESTIC.

New York, May 11. The radical reformers yesterday adopted a platform which provides for a new Constitution of the United States; a national code of civil and commercial law; abolition of monopolies; one system of money and currency on the basis of public credit; the employment of unemployed persons by the Government; universal government for the whole globe; minority representation, and that this party shall be known as the Equal Rights party.

At the evening session Mrs. Woodhull delivered an address prophesying that from this convention would go forth a power to shake the world. Mrs. Woodhull and Frederick Douglass were then nominated, amid the greatest confusion, candidates for the presidency and vice-presidency of the United States.

The session of the Radical Reformers last night was one of the interesting events of the season. The greatest disorder prevailed, especially when nominations for president and vice-president were made of Mrs. Laura Smith, of California, George Julian of Indiana, Ben Wade, Theodore Tilton, Wendell Phillips, Colonel Blood, Ben. Butler, Henry Ward Beecher, and others were named, but finally Mrs. Woodhull and Fred Douglas were accepted as the ticket of the New Equal Rights party. Delegates suggested Spotted Tail, a heathen Chinee, etc. In case Douglas declined to accept, Wendell Phillips was discussed as an appropriate substitute.

Pittsburg, Pa., May 10. A fire in Somerset, Pa., to-day destroyed six squares in the heart of the town, embracing one-third of the area of the place and two-thirds of its entire value. The buildings destroyed included three hotels, every business house, store and shop but one, both banking houses, both printing offices, the lawyers' offices, Post Office, United States Assessors' office, two churches, the Masonic and Odd Fellows' halls, telegraph and express offices, and over thirty private dwellings. Fifty families are homeless. The total losses are estimated at $1,000,000; insurance, $75,000.

A NEW SOCIETY.—The opponents of the Internationale in France have organized themselves into a society under the rather pretentions name of "The Universal Alliance of Order and Civilization." Their avowed object is to prevent violent social revolutions, by a peaceable and orderly discussion and solution of the great social problems of the day. They seek to extend their membership in all parts of the civilized world, and to absorb the element opposed to the headstrong course of the Internationale. A congress will be held in Paris, beginning June 3d, and lasting five days. The clergy and several prominent members of the French government will participate in its deliberations, and questions of national arbitrations, strikes, trades-unions, wages and education, are to be discussed.

In Brief.

——Compulsory military service is now the law of France, with no substitutes and no exceptions, after the German style in this respect.——An English paper states that there are altogether two hundred and two princes and princesses of royal blood in Europe to-day.——Germany sent almost as much money to the relief of Chicago as did the city of Boston. Good for Germany.——California papers speak enthusiastically of the growing crops. At least double the average production is expected from the agricultural regions this year.——There were forty cases of sun-stroke in New York May 10th, two of them proving fatal. The weather was unprecedently hot and oppressive for the season.——Two acres of forest land on a mountain side near Elkton, Mo., recently sunk to the depth of the tree tops, leaving walls almost as vertical as the sides of a house.——Florida clergymen speak against the habit of church members carrying revolvers.——A revival is reported in the Topeka, Kansas, jail, and seventeen convicts have been hopefully converted.——The Irish Democrat is out for Greeley and Brown. It calls on Irishmen to remember their friend, and not only remember him, but vote for him.——An English locomotive was lately run, experimentally, seventy-seven miles in one hour.——The sugar season is over, and is a failure, not one-third the amount made that there was last year in Northern Vermont.——It appears that the Jesuits own twelve monastic establishments in Germany, and the order is growing so rapidly in Rhenish Prussia that an anti-Jesuit agitation is now going on.——Don Carlos, the leader of the present insurrection in Spain, is twenty-five years old, and enjoys in his own right the title of Duke of Madrid. In 1867 he married a daughter of the Duke of Parma, with whom he received a large fortune, and has a family of one son and two daughters. He is of an Austrian family, and was not born in Spain.——The Protestant missionaries at Pekin have at length translated the English edition of the Bible into the Chinese language and are printing it in that country.——The Spanish Cabinet, which is greatly afraid of the International has, it appears, asked all the governments of Europe to combine for defence against the society, and especially to agree on mutual extradition.——The police authorities of Copenhagen have forbidden the members of the International Society from holding a meeting in that city.——There were more fires the last week in New York than has been known for a year past, and the aggregate loss is estimated at $3,000,000.——A special train was run from Rochester to Syracuse on Friday, a distance of eighty-one miles in eighty-two minutes. This, for the distance, is the fastest time on record.——Nearly all evidences of what Paris has passed through during the war are obliterated, and the city is as wicked, gay and fascinating as ever.——The laws of Germany are interpreted to signify that women can vote in that country, and of course the advocates thereof are jubilant.——In Fuchau, a city of China, embracing with its suburbs about a million inhabitants, there are more than one thousand Christian communicants, connected with churches of different denominations.——The Elmira Gazette calls the passenger trains which reach that city, gambling hells on wheels. On almost every train that arrives, same passenger is robbed by confidence men.——Garibaldi, it is said, has grown old terribly of late. He can walk only with the help of crutches; his fingers are distorted by rheumatism, and he looks as if he never again would be able to leave his residence, except in a litter. He is still cheerful in spite of his crippled state, and his face has preserved its fresh color and genial expession. They have lately introduced into the street lamps of London strips of looking-glass in the roof. The reflection is said to throw three times as much light as the ordinary lamp.

REFORM IN DRESS.—The reformation in dress inaugurated by the Princess Royal of Prussia, has been taken up in England, and an association called "The Guild of Plain Dress," has been formed.

The object of this association, to use their own language, is "to promote modesty of dress, to do away with extravagance, and establish neatness and sobriety suitable to christian women." Many of the most influential and wealthy women of the realm are identified with this movement.

We hope the spirit of reform will extend to our own fair land.

OUR LAST EFFORT.

"The Judge standeth before the door."—JAS. 5: 9.

The evidence points to 1873 as the time when Christ shall come, and we shall be called to give an account of our stewardship. The warning must go forth. Immediate action is demanded to give a distinctness to the cry—"Behold! the Bridegroom cometh!" We are already engaged in this work, and are sending out tracts; also receiving funds for this purpose. Let all who have hearts that beat in this direction, pray to the Lord of the harvest to send forth laborers into his harvest. Send funds or pledges for this purpose to GEO. T. ADAMS, Agent of the Adv. Chris. Pub. Society, or to L. T. CUNNINGHAM.

L. T. CUNNINGHAM	$500.00
E. Wolcott (received by L. T. Cunningham)	75.00

THE pledges to Mass. Conference at the Annual meeting, should be paid to the Treasurer, Charles Goodrich, Crisis Office, 160 Hanover St., Boston. L. BOUTELL.

CONFERENCE AND DEDICATION.—If the Lord will, a special session of the New Hampshire State Conference will be held at Rye, N. H., commencing Wednesday evening, May 22nd, to continue over the following Sabbath. Brn. Couch, Smith, and other faithful laborers are expected, to administer the word of life. The dedication service will be Thursday P. M. It is hoped that preaching brethren, all who can, will attend this conference, as there will be some business to come before the conference. Brethren and sisters from abroad are invited. Those coming on the cars will stop at North Hampton depot. Come to labor together for the Lord. May the Lord greatly bless.
T. W. PIPER.
J. G. SMITH.
C. H. FLETCHER.

DEDICATION.—We shall dedicate to the service of God our new Chapel at Fitchburg, Mass., on Sunday, May 19th, 1872. It is hoped that Bro. Couch will be present to preach the word. Other brethren in the ministry, who can favor us with their presence in the name of the Lord, will be cordially welcomed. Brethren and sisters from adjoining towns are especially invited to come and help us raise the standard of Christ against our common foe. H. F. CARPENTER, Pastor.

☞ Those coming from abroad, will find the Chapel at the corner of North and Cherry Streets.

MINNESOTA STATE CAMPMEETING.—In accordance with a vote of our State Conference, a campmeeting will be held in the beautiful grove, called "Cheatham's Grove," in the town of Utica, in Winona county, commencing on Thursday P. M., June 27th, holding over Sunday, and as much longer as the interest will seem to warrant. The ground is well fitted up for meetings, with a permanent preacher's stand, good seats, and a good well of water, and other conveniences for those wishing to camp on the ground. Brn. and Srs. of the Advent faith, throughout Minnesota, to you a special appeal is made to come out to this feast of tabernacles, and work for God. Come from every quarter. Come with hearts filled with God's love, to work for the salvation of perishing souls. The signs declare the soon coming of Jesus, and shall we not improve this annual blessing as the Lord requires us to do, to his glory, to our own growth in grace, and to the salvation of others? Come, Christians, of every name, and unite in the worship of God for a few days in the tented grove. Brn. and Srs. in the ministry, from far and near, you are invited to come and help sound the glorious message of a soon coming Jesus, whose reward is with him. Come embued with power from on high, a holy unction from the throne, that many sinners may be saved as the result of our meeting.

N. B. Arrangements will be made with the various R. R. companies for half fare tickets from those points where the brethren will notify me this month that they wish them. Those who come to tarry on the ground, should come prepared (with tents if possible), and with bedding and provisions. Probably many can have shelter on the ground in a building erected by others who have used the ground. Come one, come all, and may the Lord give a time long to be remembered on account of his presence.
S. C. WELLCOME, Sec. State Conference.

WISCONSIN CAMPMEETING. — Our Wisconsin campmeeting will be held on the old ground, at Prairie du Sac, Sauk Co., Wis., beginning June 1st, and holding over two Sundays. Those coming on the Milwaukee and St. Paul R. R. (Prairie du chien branch) will stop at Mazomanie, where daily they will find a stage at five P. M. for Prairie du Sac, ten miles. Those coming on the North Western via. Madison, from the east, will stop at Lodi, and take stage at five P. M. for Prairie du Sac, eleven miles. Those coming from the west on the same road; by the way of Baraboo, will stop at Merrimack, and take stage at two P. M. for Prairie du Sac, ten miles. Those coming from the direction of Lacrosse, can stop at Portage city, and take the river boat, or stage, to Prairie du Sac. INWARD VICTORY.

Smite on! it doth not hurt me now,
The spear hath lost its edge of pain,
And piercing thorns that bound my brow,
No longer leave their bleeding stain.

What once was woe is changed to bliss,
What once was loss is now my gain;
My sorrow is my happiness,
My life doth live by being slain.

The birth-pangs of those dreadful years
Are like the midnight changed to morn;
And day-light shines upon my tears,
Because the soul's great life is born.

The piercing thorns have changed to flowers,
The spears have grown to scepters bright;
And sorrow's dark and sunless hours
Become eternal days of light.

PRESENT EXPERIENCE.

F. H. CHAMBERLAIN.

Bro. Grant:—In response to your request or testimony in regard to experience, I take my pen to tell what the Lord hath done for me. I have believed that freedom from sin was attainable, for years past, yet failed to attain the full assurance. Many times I would think I was just stepping in to the full enjoyment of the blessing, and then it would ere long seem far in the future, or quite beyond my reach. I often read the experience of those who wrote of enjoying the "fulness of the blessing," and longed to enjoy the same myself, yet continually fell short. I could blame no one but myself for this. I knew the Lord did all things well. Often these lines seemed to ring in my ears—

"Be as holy, and as happy,
And as useful here below,
As it is your Father's pleasure;
Jesus, only Jesus, know."

And I felt that I was not as holy, nor as happy, nor as useful as I ought to be, or as it was the will of God that I should be. Several times during twenty years past, I thought I had the blessing, but could not retain the assurance. I often thought of the words of Job, where he says—"If I wash myself with snow-water, and make my hands never so clean, yet shalt thou plunge me in the ditch, and mine own clothes shall abhor me." Job 9:30. Yet there was something in this language that I could not adopt, for it seemed to charge the Lord with plunging me in the ditch, and that was my own work. But the substance of the case was just this, I failed to keep my garments white. The Lord was merciful, daily forgiving, and plenteous in mercy, but I wanted to live so as not to need this daily forgiveness. Was this desire wrong? Must all men always, (even the best of men) receive forgiveness daily? Cannot christians live so that they shall feel "no condemnation?" I had been in that state, why not remain there? Was it impossible?

We will let these questions wait an answer while we proceed with the narrative. I think that many can say they have had a similar experience thus far, and now may the Lord help us, one and all, to go on unto perfection. I had heard testimonies both for and against the attainability of holiness, and sometimes almost despaired of finding the treasure. "Wesley on Christian Perfection" was recommended in the Crisis, and I obtained that tract. This seemed the best for my case, of all I had seen. I saw more plainly what this perfection was, and what it was not. Saw how it was adapted to the weakness, the frailties, the ignorance and errors of fallen humanity. Great attainments in knowledge are not indispensable, are not even required, in order to attain and retain this blessing. It is love, love to God according to the requirements of the law and the gospel. The weakest can love; and whoever loves the Lord with all the heart and soul, mind, might and strength, and his neighbor as himself, enjoys this degree of christian perfection. Then the weakest in intellect, and the least and last and lowest, may be first or foremost in love, and this is the test, the true measure. He that loves most is nearest to Jesus. Who will dispute this view of christian perfection? Do not say it is not attainable till you try it. Have you no power to love? A low degree of love is not rejected, but yet here comes the command to love with all the heart. Do this, and you will know what is meant by "perfect love."

The last Crisis (Dec. 6, 1871) contains treasures that are indeed priceless to all who are earnestly seeking after righteousness and true holiness. Read the most prominent thing on the first page, "The Whole Burnt-offering," and respond to it word for word, adopting the language for your own, and you will find the power of God can make even you to rejoice in the "fulness of the blessing of the gospel of Christ."

"My all is on the altar,
"I'm waiting for the fire,
Waiting, waiting,
I'm waiting for the fire."
"To thee, my loving Savior,
I bring my worthless load;
Thy blood shall make it precious,
An offering to God."

Here is where I am to-day, "My all is on the altar," there to remain forever. I feel myself the least and last of all, yet I love Jesus, and I love His people. I rejoice to esteem others better than myself. I take the lowest place in the dust at the feet of Jesus. I will "humble myself" under his mighty hand. I am resolved to go on in the King's highway, the way of holiness. "I press toward thy mark, for the prize of the high calling." Brethren, pray for me, that I may hold fast whereto I have attained, and that the Lord may work in me all the good pleasure of His holy will.

"My all is on the altar,
It burns with sacred fire,
Flaming, flaming,
In sanctifying fire."

TO PARENTS.

If you would be successful in educating your children; if you would have them love and respect you; if you would do your whole duty to them, then become thoroughly acquainted with them, with their wants, and the bent of their minds. Do not approach them in a stiff, formal, unkind, and disinterested way; but with an open heart and cheerful countenance draw them to your bosoms every day. Make them feel that you love them better than your stock or your money. Lift them up. So talk and act with them that they will feel at home in your presence, at liberty to make their wants known to you, and a belief that you are really their best friends. Make them feel that you have confidence in them, and that you expect them to act upon their honor; then shut your eyes rather than follow them with advice upon advice, caution upon caution, pointing out evils that a child would never see and consequently never become corrupted with. Many things you must expect they will learn only by experience; you did the same.

Oh parents! the lever of power in family government is unity on your part and acquaintance with your offspring. Try it. Do not make them feel that you are king and queen, but father and mother. Join in their amusements, and enter with all your hearts into their plays and frolics. Instruct them how to play that they may derive the most benefit from it. In some families and schools children are taught the art of play. You may laugh, but it is no mean nor simple act. Do not expect them to be men and women; neither expect nor wish them to be always serious and long-faced, for that is not piety. Take half the pains to educate them right that you do to get money, then see. Children will love more or less, and it will be more, the more you love them. Let them feel at liberty to come to you with their trials, and never fail to give them that sympathy they need. Be careful how you drive your children into bad society by living with them as if they were strangers to you.

I have addressed these lines to both, but my opinion is that they are more applicable to the father than to the mother. Mothers are generally better acquainted with their family than fathers. Why is it? If your children make their wants known through the mother instead of coming directly to you, it is your fault, and you cannot remedy it by scolding. You may not fully know yourself, but you will be inexcusable if you do not know your children. Remember that your care, above all things, should be first, to lay in your family the foundation of virtue, and to rear thereon the temple of Charity. Example is more powerful than precept.

I would like to say much more on this subject, but this shall suffice for now.

Somers, Conn.

IS THE KINGDOM OF GOD A STATE OR PLACE?

We are half ashamed to ask such a question. We are ashamed for those who should know the true answer. But since there are many who deny the kingdom of God locality and territory, and interpret it to mean a certain state of spirit, quoting the passage, "The kingdom of God is righteousness, peace, and joy in the Holy Ghost," and thus mislead honest souls by the appearance of this Scripture, we must speak a few words to disperse such a fallacy. In order to explain this passage, relied on to prove that the kingdom of God is only a state, consisting of certain principles, we will give a saying parallel with the apostle's. Some months ago, the French empire was lying in tranquility. Her commercial relations with the other nations of the earth seemed almost perfect. Her political situation wore a most serene aspect. No inward troubles convulsed her; she was free from complications with her neighbors. Not a war-cloud, or the vestige of one darkened the sky of her national and imperial prosperity. All was peace and quiet. All was calm. Then the French emperor opened his mouth, and his significant words were, "The empire is peace!" Wires flashed it hither and thither. Journalists fixed the volatile announcement, and sent it in print to their subscribers.

But did Napoleon III. mean by this that the real empire, the literal France, the soil of the Franks, had changed from its substantiality into the mere immaterial abstract quality of peace? Did he mean that the soil had lost its solidity, and had become a condition? No editor said so. No man thinks so now. None imagined that France had changed; but all believed it was there, as real as before, not a whit smaller or different in its parts. All understood the emperor to mean that the element that ruled the national life was peace, and that France desired amicable and friendly feelings with all, in order to "keep the peace." So the apostle must be understood. He does not deny the real kingdom of God; but tells us its main characteristics and most prominent principles. He does not reduce it to a kingdom of conditions, but speaks, in the text, of the moral and social conditions of the kingdom. Is this plain?—Herald of Salvation.

CHEMISTRY AND THE RESURRECTION.

I have seen something.
What have you seen?
A pile of dirt.
Well, that is common enough; what else did you see?
A man washing and sifting it.
What did he get out of it?
Some shining dust.
What did he do with it?
Melted it in a crucible and poured it into a mould.
With what result?
A beautiful gold coin enstamped with his own image and likeness.
A pretty thing, indeed, to come out of a pile of dirt! What did he do with it?
He gave it to me to keep for the present, with the promise that it shall be mine by and by.
Well, take good care of it, for it is a precious loan.

PART SECOND.

I have something else to tell you.
Well, let's hear it.
The man asked me for the coin.
Did you give it to him?
Yes, it was his right to claim it.
True; but what did he do with it?
He dissolved it—turned it into liquid form.
Then your coin is gone!
Oh! I shall get it again.
On what does your hope of regaining it rest?
On his promise.
Good. What else did he do?
Mixed the liquid with clay, and formed the mass into a globe.
Worse and worse! What hope can you now have of getting it back?
The hope that he that gathered it from the dirt in the first place, will now be able to re-collect it from the globe of clay.
Quite a foundation for a hope certainly!

PART THIRD.

Joy, joy! I have something more to tell you.
What is it?
I have my coin more bright and beautiful than ever!
Good; then your confidence in the chemist was not misplaced—he has proved true to his word.
Yes! I shall always believe him after this.

PART FOURTH.

Of what did God make man?
"Of the dust of the ground."
In whose image and likeness?
"In the image of God created he him."
Could God dissolve the man thus made?
"Dust thou art, and unto dust shalt thou return."
Has the Creator promised to bring him to life again?
"I will ransom them from the power of the grave; I will redeem them from death."

Many in these days deny the literal resurrection of the dead partly on the ground that the body decomposes, mingling with the dust, enriches vegetation, is thus eaten by the beast, who in turn furnishes food for man, and so on through numberless changes until identity is completely lost. It must, however, be admitted that not a particle of matter can be lost; and if the chemist can do such wonders with his handful of shining dust, "why should it be thought a thing incredible, that GOD should raise the dead?"—Ex.

REPORT OF DISCUSSION.

Bro. Grant:—I have just closed a discussion with Eld. S. R. Bonham (Christian, or Campbellite), which was held at Lake Butler, about fifteen miles south of Olustee Station, where none of our faith had ever before preached. We debated the following subject: "Do the Scriptures teach that the souls of men exist in a state of consciousness from death to the resurrection of the body?" S. R. Bonham affirmed. Thomas J. Green denied. This discussion commenced on Thursday, Jan. 18th, and closed on the 22nd.

Lake Butler is a new field, where the glorious gospel we profess is but very little known, and all were of opinion that I could not stand before my antagonist an hour; but the people were enlightened and anxious to hear, and turned out each night a goodly number, so that the Court House, where the discussion took place, was filled to overflowing, and the best of attention was manifested by all. Not a soul moved from their seats during the whole time. The Lord greatly blessed me with his Holy Spirit, so that I was enabled to speak the truth with so much power that all agree that it was a grand success for the cause of truth. All were thoroughly convinced (if not converted) that the Scriptures do not teach the immortality of man till the resurrection. Eld. Bonham advanced the passages generally quoted to prove his theory, which were easily refuted by plain scriptures, and proved to be the doctrine the devil first preached to the woman in Eden; next taught by heathen philosophers, and lastly by modern theologians.

The audience were so enraptured at the great ease with which every point my opponent offered was refuted, that they became more anxious to hear, and pressed upon me to give them an appointment, which I agreed to do if they could secure the Court House for me. Here is a great opportunity for much good to be done. Who will come over and help us?

Bro. P. A. Smith is still in Jacksonville, but his health is too feeble to travel in the interior of the State, and the open manner in which the houses in this country are built, renders it impossible for him to travel off the railroads. The dying souls around, and the unfolding of the last signs, admonish us to be up and doing. If no one can come, I make the request that, for the sake of Christ and dying sinners, you receive me as a missionary in this State, allowing me something out of the funds raised for southern missions. I have made many sacrifices already to preach the word, and am willing to do more; but being very poor, with a large family to support, I cannot do much without a small compensation. I want books and tracts, which I am not able to pay for. I am already behind for the Crisis. To order it stopped looks like parting with my best friend; to pay for it at present appears impossible; but will as soon as in my power. The storms last fall swept everything, and farmers in this vicinity are in a distressed condition. Dear brethren, pray for us. Every time you approach the mercy-seat, do send up a plea for me. Yours in hope of the speedy coming of the kingdom that never will end. Thos. J. Greene.

FAITH.

GEO. A. STREETER.

A Virginia circuit preacher gives the following illustration of "faith that would remove mountains," which he heard from the lips of a negro preacher, who was holding forth to his congregation upon the subject of obeying the commands of the Almighty:

"Bred'ren," he said in his broken way, "whatever de good God tell me to do in his blessed book [holding up at the same time an old and evidently much read Bible], dat I'm gwine to do. If I see in it dat I must jump troo a stone wall, I'm gwine to jump at it. Goin' troo it 'longs to God; jumpin' at it 'longs to me."

The above illustration of faith is full of meaning and truth. Taking God at his word, believing he meant what he said, and said what he meant, is just what is needed at the present time; simple trust in him is what we need. Making the attempt, "jumping at it," is ours; and the strength to accomplish is for God to find. It is not for us to stop until we see our way clear before we start. When he says, "Go forward," start, if the Red Sea lies before us. If dark clouds are around, go forward. "Faith" goes "not by sight." Step right out on his word. Bless his holy name, it has held up all who ever stood on it thus far. We need not fear. If we fail, and do his will, he is to blame; but he never did forsake any one yet. "No good thing will he withhold from them that walk uprightly." Glory to his holy name. I find it safe to believe God in days of adversity, as in times of prosperity. Brethren and sisters, believe God. Take the negro preacher's illustration. It is a good one. Let it have its bearing in every place. Amen.

EVIL FOREBODING.

It will be found on a careful investigation of public sentiment that fear is taking hold of the minds of many with regard to those "things which are coming on the earth." The loud call of the pulpit for a manly Christianity is apparently unheeded, either because men have not the elements of manliness about them, or because they have not the courage to go forward in face of the perilous times in which we live. Our best men have no faith in the times. Such abrupt and startling changes take place in both civil and political life, that they seem at a loss to know what to say or do. But this one thing they do know, that we are living at a period in the world's history when any year may usher in events of momentous importance to all the inhabitants of the globe. Somehow it has crept into the current thought—though little is expressed openly—that God will not much longer allow to exist unchecked such wickedness as now prevails in the midst of marvellous light.

Methinks many are troubled, even before the time, by the Spirit of Jesus. Some professed christians shrink with horror at the thought of Christ's coming! They have repeatedly told me that they do not wish to live to see that day. I cannot understand how a person can love Christ and not desire his return to tabernacle with men. These people are good in many respects; but, oh! how we cling to this sin-cursed earth which is old and ready to vanish away.—Ex.

SCIENCE AND BIBLE.

R. B. WELLS.

We have been told by some that science demonstrates the fact that, prior to the creation of Adam, there existed a race of beings on the earth. They tell us that, in the beginning, God created the heaven and the earth. Now, say the advocates of this idea, how long the earth was created before Adam was created, we do not know; it might have been millions of years, and many generations might have lived and died prior to God's bringing it into its Eden-like state, and creating Adam upon it.

Now let us see if this theory will agree with Bible testimony; and if so, it is valid; but if not, then let God's word tell the story, and let God's children believe it. In Genesis first chapter, first verse, we read, "In the beginning God created the heaven and the earth." In the second chapter, verses one, two, and three, we read, "Thus the heavens and the earth were finished, and all the host of them; and on the seventh day God ended his work which he had made, and he rested on the seventh day from all his work which he had made; and God blessed the seventh day and sanctified it; because that in it he had rested from all his work which God created and made."

Now we would ask, what labor was it from which God rested on the seventh day, if it was not from creating the heavens and the earth, and all the hosts of them, and how could God rest on the seventh day from work which he had been millions of years in doing? Well, says one, your argument militates against the arguments of scientific men. Well, if it is God's word it will stand, if it has to frustrate the tokens of the liars, and make diviners mad, and turn wise men backward, and make their knowledge foolishness. Let God's word be true, if it makes every man a liar.

PEACE, TROUBLED HEART.

BY L. C. MCKINSTRY.

Oh heart, all full of trouble sore—
Restless, and pained, and grieving so—
Thorn-pierced, torn, bleeding, will no more
Peace shed her balm to heal thy wo?
'T would soothe thy pain, and ease thy smart,
And make thee whole, poor troubled heart.

Oh, be at peace, thy weariness
Is blighting all thy life away;
Trouble is full of dreariness;
Peace turns dark sorrow into day;
Then be at peace, and rest, poor heart,
And lose at once thy aching smart.

What is it ails thee, that thy grief
So full of sobbings, sighs, and fears,
Finds no brief moment of relief
From all its anguish and its tears?
Oh heart, poor heart, dost thou not know
Thou canst not always bear such wo?

It may be that a treacherous dart
From Satan's quiver's pierced thee through;
Or that some false friend tore thee, heart,
So cruel, when thou thought'st him true;
Sweet peace will bid thy troubles cease,
Oh, be at peace then, be at peace.

It may be that thy sins have torn
And bruised thee, till thou canst not rest;
Christ, then, will hear thy troubled moan;
Oh, rest against his loving breast;
He'll bid thy griefs and sorrows cease,
Sin-troubled heart, then be at peace.

Know thou whatever made thee moan,
Whatever's brought thee all thy wo;
Howe'er to trouble thou art prone,
Thy healing Christ doth wisely know;
Then come to him, poor troubled one,
Thy groans and sighs will then be done.

Now, like a bird encaged thou art,
Weak, fearful, trembling, fluttering so,
Bruised 'gainst the bars, oh poor, sad heart,
Thy Savior's loving comfort know;
He'll bid thy trembling fear depart,
Then be at peace, poor troubled heart.

* * * * * *

He comes to thy relief, and, lo
His soothing words assure thee, heart,
Thy cares and sorrows—how they go;
He bids them all like storms depart;
They feel the might of his great will,
The power of his sweet "peace be still."

Oh that all troubled hearts might know
The glorious wonders of his love;
How he such sweet peace can bestow,
Peace like a soft-winged, gentle dove;
Its wings are folded round thee, heart,
So thou from it will never part.

* * * * * *

Savior, divine, let every heart
Such sweet, calm peace, as fully know;
Bid every anxious care depart,
Thy blessed soothing comfort show;
Then each, in his own quiet hour,
Soothed by thy charms shall know thy power.

Shall know thy love, too, strong and deep;
Thy sympathy, so warm and true;
How thou, who didst for others weep,
Their tears can dry, and peace, so new,
So strong, so beautiful, can give,
And bid them, poor, tried, sad, receive.

TO EPISCOPALIANS.

The subjoined is from a recently published work by Rev. H. S. Warleigh, Rector of Ashchurch, Tewksbury, England, entitled "A Demonstration of the Extinction of evil Persons."

"Mr. Darby and his followers, and thousands of others, may not suspect it, but they are tied and bound with the chains of traditionalism and rationalism on the points before us; and they are employed in tying and binding hundred of thousands of others. The teachers, with few exceptions, of all denominations, are thus tied; and the only church which, in her standards, has repudiated the dogma of endless miseries for the wicked is the Church of England. It is to her glory that she has expugned the doctrines from her articles; and, by her supreme court, she has formerly declared that she disowns it; and it is high time that some one, regardless of his interests and the esteem of his fellows, should boldly proclaim that those of her ministers who preach it have no legal standing within her pale, nor any right to eat her bread; and, when it is known that their doctrine has no standing in the Bible, we may indulge a hope that they will impartially review their opinions upon the sole ground of inspiration, and reform their teachings accordingly."—Pages 7 and 8.

"The attempt, however, to discuss this question, showing as it does a disbelief in the popular doctrine, begets an amazing hostility of feeling. Gentlemen forget their courteousness, ladies their gentleness, and christians their meekness; many of them rail at us, call us by opprobious names, and cast us out as evil, forgetting at the time how little there is in this of the spirit of Christ, and how much of the old man. Others, who shrink from going these lengths, will not inquire into the question, pleading as an excuse that it is too awful and mysterious to investigate, and that it is hidden from us; as if, indeed, we ever attempted to do more than inquire, with reverence and prayer, what it has pleased our heavenly Father to tell us in his revealed word about this subject. Such persons, however, would do well to inquire whether a professed voluntary humility may not veil a sinful apathy in studying the Bible, by reading, marking, learning, and inwardly digesting it, and in their searching after God's truth. It may veil, also, much of that infallibist self-satisfaction which leads poor human nature to think that it cannot be wrong, but far too correct to need the trouble of further thought."—Pages 9 and 10.

Ashchurch Rectory, Tewksbury,
(England), Feb. 3d, 1871.

To Rev. Wm. Griffith, Congregational Minister, Eastbourne, Eng.:—Dear Sir: Somebody has sent me a reprint of your letter to the Eastbourne Gazette. With respect to what the doctrine of the Church of England is on Future Punishment, perhaps you are not aware of two things: 1st.—In the Articles of 1552, forty-two in number, there was one which affirms the immortality of the soul, and the endlessness of the miseries of the wicked. At each of the three revisions of the Articles afterwards, this unscriptural one was left out. 2d.—Then a lawful and authoritative Court has pronounced that endless pain of the wicked is not a doctrine of the Church of England.

God prosper you in upholding this truth. The opposite came from heathenism, and was stereotyped by Popery in the dark ages; for it was found so convenient for purgatory, masses, priestcraft, etc., etc.

The great truth, the extinction of all evil through the cross of Christ, is winning its way. I uphold it in this locality, and, while there are many opposers, there are many friends. I thought you would like to know the above facts. I am, dear sir, yours, faithfully, H. S. Warleigh, Rector of Ashchurch.

Hygiene.

"This is for your Health."

TALKS ABOUT HEALTH.

I have studied the subject of exercise for twenty years. I have invented a system of gymnastics, which has been introduced into nearly all the schools in America, into most of the English gymnasia, and was introduced into the schools of Berlin, a few years ago, with public ceremonies.

I have been the recipient of honorable testimonials from American Colleges, many important educational bodies, and from many sources in England and Germany.

Please excuse this parade. My object in making these statements, is to give a just emphasis to an opinion which I now wish to express. It is this—that walking, when properly managed, is the best of all exercises. None of the artificial exercises can be compared with it. Every important muscle works actively in walking. Notice an active walker. See how every part works—legs, hips, arms, shoulders—the man works all over. Brisk walking gives even the upper half of the body fine play. Then walking costs nothing. You are not obliged to join a class, and employ a teacher. Again, walking takes you into the open air and sunshine, while in gymnastics you are in the dusty atmosphere of a hall; and it is not a small advantage that in walking you enjoy a succession of changing scenes—suggestions of new thought. And walking with a friend, the conversation may be interesting and instructive. All this may be found in natural and active walking.

But if the ankles were shackled, so that the feet could be moved but a few inches, the great value of the exercise would be at an end.

I asked you to note the arms and shoulders of an active walker. Now they swing, and wriggle and wiggle—how thoroughly alive even the upper half of the body is! The physiology of that part of the body in walking is this: that the shoulder is a sort of centre for the muscles of the chest. They start from the shoulder, and spread out in every direction like a fan. These muscles, which run in every direction over the chest, around, about, up, down, crosswise, and interlocking with each other in a wonderful net—these muscles which determine whether the chest shall be full, strong and active, or thin, weak and inactive—these muscles, about the chest, which determine whether the vital organs within the chest shall be large, active and strong, or small, slow and weak—these muscles which may contribute more than any others in the body, to the strength and activity of life—these muscles, I say, depend for their activity, for their development and strength upon a free and vigorous motion of the shoulders. Brisk walking, with a swinging of the arms gives the required movements of the shoulders. Now we understand how it is that active walking contributes so much to the fullness and strength of the chest, and the organs within the chest.

Please put your finger down there, and look out of this front window with me. It is a bright day, and the ladies are out in force.

Now, let us notice how they walk. Why, they don't swing their arms at all! Their arms must be laced down upon their sides! No, they are holding their arms still, and see, they have tucked their hands into those fur rollers which they carry on their stomachs. Their arms look, for all the world, like the wings of a Christmas turkey, all tied down, and ready to be put in the oven.

It must be hard work to walk in that way! It is very hard indeed, and you see they have to walk very slowly, and wiggle their hips.

What a funny motion that wiggle is. I should think fastidious people might call it vulgar and immodest.

Oh, well, that depends upon the fashion. That wiggle-waggle is all the go now.

I should think it would lame them across the back.

It does; there is not a lady in twenty who is not lame across the small of the back. Let a man wear a shawl and hold it together in front with his hands, and he will not walk far before his back will ache. It is a hard strain upon the spine to walk without swinging the arms.

American ladies have muscular legs and hips; but look at their arms (candle-dips No. 8.), their angular shoulders and their flat, thin chests.

A large part of this ugliness and weakness comes of carrying their hands in muffs, or folded in front, or under shawls—in brief, from not swinging their arms in walking. Ah, when those beautiful fur mittens and gloves, which are now becoming fashionable, shall be generally introduced, and our girls are able to walk off in that brisk, bright way, which we all admire, not only will their cheeks take on a warmer hue, but their arms, shoulders and chests, will become plumper, and finer; but better fitted to perform their duties, and enter into the pastimes and pleasures of life.—Dio Lewis, M. D.

For Mothers.—Send your little children to bed happy. Whatever cares press, give it a warm good night kiss as it goes to its pillow. The memory of this, in the stormy years that may be in store for the little one, will be like Bethlehem's star to the bewildered shepherds. "My father, my mother, loved me." Nothing can take away that blessed heart-balm. Lips parched with the world's fever will become dewy again at the the thrill of youthful memories. Kiss your little child before it goes to sleep.

Weak Eyes.—Avoid using them when the use begins to give pain; let them have rest. Don't use weak eyes by any artificial light. If the eyes are matted together after sleeping, the most instantaneous and agreeable solvent in nature is the application of saliva with the finger, before opening the eyes. Never pick it off with the finger nail, but wash it off with the ball of the fingers in quite warm water.

The use of tobacco causes indigestion, palpitation, slowness of intellect, a desire for strong drink, and an intermittant pulse; it destroys the vitality of the blood, produces dizziness, disturbs sleep, makes a man miserable, and prematurely old.

Temperance and labor are the two best physicians of man; labor sharpens his appetite, and temperance prevents him from indulging to excess.

The Children's Corner.

PLEDGE OF THE TRY COMPANY.

We, the Undersigned, hereby pledge ourselves to abstain from Tea, Coffee, Tobacco, and all Intoxicating Drinks as a Beverage.

"LEAD US NOT INTO TEMPTATION."

Two boys, both about fifteen years of age, were employed as clerks in a large grocery, in one of our cities.

Walter Hyde was the son of an invalid widow, and his earnings were her only means of support.

Andrew Strong was the eldest son of a poor mechanic, who had quite a large family depending upon him for their daily bread.

Both the boys were capable and industrious; both were equally well disposed, and both were members of the "Temperance Union" which had been started in their Sabbath school. They had but lately entered upon the business in which they were now engaged, and which promised to be a lucrative occupation.

Walter and Andrew were good friends, and glad of a situation where they could labor together. But they had not long been employed in the grocery before they learned, to their dismay, that Mr. Bates, its proprietor, kept a bar in the store, where he retailed alcoholic drinks.

The two boys conferred together upon the propriety of remaining at a place where stimulants were sold. They had nothing to do with the sale of the liquor, and did not know whether to remain would interfere with their pledge or not.

"Let us talk with our folks at home," said Walter, "they will know best. I shall do just as my mother says."

"And I will ask my father and mother," said Andrew, "I don't know whether they will think it a sufficient reason for me to leave, but I know they will hate me to lose my situation."

"Mother," said Walter Hyde, seating himself beside her easy chair, and leaning his head on his mother's shoulder, "did you know Mr. Bates sold liquor?"

"Why no, my son," said Mrs. Hyde, with a startled movement; "does he?"

"Yes. I didn't know it for a fact until today, though I have mistrusted it before. What do you think about my staying there? I don't have anything to do with the liquor department, but it don't seem exactly right to stay where it is sold. Does it to you, mother?"

For a moment the mother did not answer. Poverty is a hard thing to battle with, and Mrs. Hyde knew only too well what must follow the loss of her son's situation. But as she pondered, there came to her mind from the dim recollections of the past the memory of a boy she had known in girlhood; a brave, high-spirited lad, with the promise of as noble a manhood as lay before her own cherished boy. But how little a thing had wrecked the hopes of his friends, and brought him to a drunkard's grave. It was at first but the companionship of those who loved strong drink.

"Lead us not into temptation." When could those words be more fitly uttered than now?

"My dear boy, let us pray together," said this christian mother. And together they knelt in the cheerful fire-light, and the Lord's prayer was breathed from the lips of Mrs. Hyde.

"I can answer you now, Walter. I would rather starve than have you for a single day exposed to such temptations as beset a drinking house. You may tell Mr. Bates in the morning that you cannot work for him any longer. The bitterest poverty, even starvation, would be preferable to having my boy in danger of becoming a drunkard."

In his home that evening Andrew Strong asked the same question of his parents that Walter had asked of his mother.

"You say you don't have anything to do with the liquor, eh?" questioned Mr. Strong.

"No, sir, but I am right where it it is all the time. I can't help that, if I stay there."

"If we were able to get along without your wages, I wouldn't have you remain another day; but I have so many mouths to feed, and our rent is coming due, and if you leave there you may not get another situation in a long time. What do you think, Anna," he inquired of his wife, "had the boy better leave?"

Mrs. Strong was one of the Marthas; troubled about many things. She keenly felt their necessities, and the more limited their circumstances, the more care and burden fell upon her shoulders. It seemed to the poor weary woman as almost unbearable. She suggested a compromise. "Let him stay a little while," said she, "until we can get the rent paid, and meanwhile be looking up a new situation for him. We won't have him remain any longer than is really necessary."

The next day Walter Hyde resigned his situation, and he and his widowed mother were left without the means of support. But they put their trust in God and he did not forsake them. You have heard the proverb, "Heaven helps those who help themselves." Never was there a truer saying.

Walter, when he found himself out of employment, did not sit down and fold his hands in discouragement, but he went about looking for something to do, ready meanwhile to take any honest occupation that offered itself. He picked up little jobs here and there, performing them well and faithfully, until at last a gentleman struck by his frank, manly countenance, and learning something of his history, interested himself in the boy's behalf, and procured him a clerkship in a large manufacturing establishment, a far better position pecuniarily than the one he had occupied before.

Andrew Strong remained in the store of Mr. Bates. "It was only for a little while," said his father and mother. They intended to find him another situation as soon as possible. His father made inquiries to that effect whenever he thought it advisable, but nothing satisfactory turned up and so Andrew still remained.

At first no apparent evils resulted from his stay, and as familiarity with a danger causes it to seem less dangerous, they finally ceased to feel troubled regarding the temptations that surrounded him.

For a long time Andrew remembered his pledge, and was careful to avoid the liquor department of the grocery. But as day after day passed by and he grew accustomed to the sight and smell of liquor, and became familiar with the men who frequented the bar-room, he would occasionally be persuaded to taste of the intoxicating drink. He no longer frequented the meetings of the "Temperance Union," for the first time he broke his pledge he felt that he had no longer a right to be there. He did not have the courage and resolution to confess his wrong-doing and promise amendment for the future.

Twenty years passed by. In one of our large manufacturing towns, as the wealthy owner of nearly half the mills in the place, was walking along the street one day, he saw a man lying drunk by the road-side. He stopped to see if he could not do something for the poor fellow, for he was a kind-hearted man, ever ready to relieve suffering humanity.

"Do you know this man?" he inquired of a passer-by. It chanced to be the superintendent of one of the factories that he addressed.

"No. He is a stranger in the place. He came to me yesterday morning to hire out in the mill. I hired him, and then he told me he had been out of work so long that he had been unable to get him anything to eat, and that he wanted pay for yesterday's work in order to get him something. I paid him and he spent it for liquor it seems."

"What did he tell you his name was?" inquired the factory owner.

"Andrew Strong," was the answer.

"Is it possible!" The wealthy gentlemen looked long and earnestly at the features of the poor inebriate, then said, "Yes, it must be he." Then turning to the man he had been talking with, he said "Mr. Horton, if you will help me carry this man to my house, I will do you a good turn some day."

Mr. Horton looked surprised, but he did as his employer requested.

When Andrew Strong awoke from his drunken slumber he found himself in a rich and costly apartment, and surrounded by all the appurtenances of wealth; while beside him sat a strange gentleman whom he never recollected of seeing before.

"Where am I? What does this mean?" he demanded as his scattered senses returned to him. "What am I here for?"

"Andrew Strong," said the stranger, "do you remember me?"

"No, I never saw you before," was the answer.

"You are mistaken; then, for you and I were once old friends. Don't you remember Walter Hyde who used to work with you in the store of Mr. Bates?"

"Yes, yes," was the answer "but you cannot be he."

"But I am; the same little boy who talked with you about the expediency of leaving the store because they sold liquor."

The poor inebriate looked with his bleared eyes into the noble face of his companion, and after a long pause said: "Then I suppose you are the Hyde that owns all these factories, and is so rich."

"Yes."

A pause, and then came a groan from the poor drunkard, so deep and heart-broken that the rich factory owner never forgot it to his dying day.

"Oh that my father and mother had laid me in my grave," said he, "rather than have let me remain in that soul-destroying liquor house. Just there is where I went down and you went up. If I had left the place when you did, I might now be an honored and respected man like you. My parents are more to blame for my present situation than I am."

"My poor friend, do not despair," said Walter Hyde. "It is not yet too late for you to reform. I will help you, and I am sure there is manhood enough left in your soul to bring you up again."

And he did help him. And the poor wretched inebriate became again a man, respected by his fellows and a blessing to society.

Parents, do you know what you are doing, when you carelessly permit your children to associate with the wine-bibber and the drunkard, when you allow their tender minds to become accustomed to scenes of dissipation, to look upon the wine when it is red and become fascinated with its glittering sparkle? See to it that ye forget not the petition our Father taught us: "Lead us not into temptation."—Progress.

HOPE IN CHRIST.

J. R. SMITH.

"Hope that is seen is not hope, for what a man seeth why doth he yet hope for?"

We have access to this hope by confessing and forsaking our sins, by believing on the only begotten Son of God, and through faith in our Lord Jesus Christ, "wherein we stand, and rejoice in the hope of the glory of God; and not only so, but we glory in tribulation also; knowing that tribulation worketh patience, and patience experience, and experience hope, and hope maketh not ashamed, because the love of God is shed abroad in our hearts by the Holy Ghost, which is given unto us." Hallelujah to God! This hope is a free gift. Money cannot by it; and I am so glad, for the poor can have it as well as the rich. Merchandise is made of almost every thing that belongs to Christ, but I thank God that the Holy Ghost cannot be bought. This hope is like "an anchor of the soul, both sure and steadfast, and which entereth into that within the vail." This hope is an active, living hope. "Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, which, according to his abundant mercy, hath begotten us again unto a lively hope by the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead, to an inheritance incorruptible, and undefiled, and that fadeth not away." This inheritance is kept in store for those whose robes have been washed, and made white in the blood of the Lamb. This inheritance remains for the pure in heart, and for none other; for none but the pure in heart shall see God. None but the undefiled will ever gain an entrance through the pearly gates of the New Jerusalem. "There shall in no wise enter into it anything that defileth, neither whatsoever worketh abomination, or maketh a lie." This inheritance is reserved in store for those who are looking for this "blessed hope," and "are kept by the power of God through faith unto salvation"; with their wedding garments on, waiting and watching for the glorious appearing of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ.

Dear christian friend, have you the witness of this inheritance? Is your name registered in the Lamb's book of life? Have you an earnest of the hope of your acceptance? Have you that hope, that blessed hope, which is like "an anchor of the soul both sure and steadfast, and which entereth into that which is within the vail"? or are you doubting and fearing? Is your hope big with immortality and eternal life? or are you fainting and halting by the way? Have you a lively hope? or are you hoping that you have a hope? I bless God that it is our privilege to live where we may know that we have this hope, this living hope, that shall be in us as a well of water, springing up into everlasting life. Jesus said, "If ye love me, keep my commandments"; "and he that keepeth his commandments dwelleth in Him, and He in him; and hereby we do know that he abideth in us, by the Spirit which he hath given us." Glory to God! we have the witness in ourselves; for his Spirit witnesses "with our spirit, that we are the children of God; and if children, then heirs; heirs of God, and joint heirs with Jesus Christ; if so be that we suffer with him, that we may be also glorified together." Hallelujah to Jesus! we may be called to suffer some for him here, but "I reckon that the sufferings of this present time are not worthy to be compared with the glory which shall be revealed in us," if only faithful to God. "As it is written, Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love him. But God hath revealed them unto us by his Spirit; for the Spirit searcheth all things, yea, the deep things of God."

This inheritance is reserved in heaven; and is to be given to those who are looking for this blessed hope, and his glorious appearing. This very same Jesus which was seen to ascend up into heaven will in like manner come again, and receive us unto himself; that where he is, there we may be also. Jesus is coming the second time without sin unto salvation. When he comes, every eye shall see him, and they that have pierced him. The day of his coming will be glorious, awful, and sudden. There will be no time for preparation then, "for as the lightning cometh out of the east, and shineth even unto the west; so shall also the coming of the Son of man be." Those who keep the commandments of God, and are looking for him, and have this blessed hope which is both sure, and steadfast; big with immortality, and eternal life; will rejoice with joy unspeakable, and full of glory, when Jesus shall say unto them, "Come, ye blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world." Those who have Christ formed in them, the hope of glory, will inherit that kingdom.

Dear brother and sister in Christ, will you be there? Shall we meet beyond the river, where the surges ne'er shall roll? Shall we meet and cast our anchor by that fair celestial shore? Yes, my brother, yes, my sister, by the grace of God I'll meet you, when our conflicts will all be o'er; and we'll spend that blest forever on that bright celestial shore. Dear, professed follower of Christ, you who have professed a good profession before many witnesses, and do not have a good assurance of hope, the Lord loves you, and desires your salvation. The ear of the Lord is not "heavy, that he cannot hear"; neither is his arm "shortened, that he cannot save." Jesus is almighty to save, and strong to deliver; he is the Lion of the tribe of Judah; he is the root and the offspring of David, the bright and the morning star; and "is able also to save them to the uttermost that come unto God by him." May the Lord help you to "lay aside every weight, and the sin which doth so easily beset" you, "looking unto Jesus." Present yourselves "a living sacrifice, holy, and acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service; and be not conformed to this world." "Give all diligence to make your calling and election sure"; that you "may have right to the tree of life, and may enter in through the gates into the city."

Dear, unconverted friend, you who know not God, and have never passed from death unto life; if the righteous scarcely are saved, where will you appear? for we must all appear before the judgment seat of Christ; and if you only have hope in this life, then are you of all men most miserable. Not the righteous, not the righteous, but sinners Jesus came to call. His invitation is, "Look unto me, and be saved, all ye ends of the earth; for I am God, and there is none else." Jesus died for all, but he lives again, and lives forevermore. The grave could not hold him; he burst the bands of death, he led captivity captive, and has become the first fruits of them that slept. "For since by man came death, by man came also the resurrection of the dead; for as in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive; but every man in his own order; Christ the first fruits; afterward they that are Christ's at his coming. Then cometh the end, when he shall have delivered up the kingdom of God, even the Father; when he shall have put down all rule; and all authority and power, for he must reign till he hath put all enemies under his feet. The last enemy that shall be destroyed is death. . . . . For this corruptible must put on incorruption, and this mortal must put on immortality. So when this corruptible shall have put on incorruption, and this mortal shall have put on immortality, then shall be brought to pass the saying that is written, . . . O, death! where is thy sting? O, grave, where is thy victory? The sting of death is sin, and the strength of sin is the law; but thanks be to God, which giveth us the victory, through our Lord Jesus Christ." Hallelujah! Hallelujah! this is the victory that overcometh the world, and will bring us up in the last day, when that great and innumerable company which John saw, as he stood upon the Isle of Patmos, shall come up out of great tribulation, who have been redeemed out of all nations, and kindred, and people, and tongues; with their robes washed and made white in the blood of the Lamb. Then shall we come forth with them, if we go down to the grave with a good hope in Christ. That will be a blessed company, such as mortal eye hath never seen. Angelic choristers will be there, such as mortal ear hath never heard. Glory to God! I expect, by his grace assisting me, to join that angelic company. I expect with them to sing the song of Moses and the Lamb. If faithful unto death, I expect to sing the song of the hundred and forty and four thousand; then while the angel chorus are crying Glory to the great I AM, I with them would still be crying, Glory! Glory! to the Lamb!

HEAVENLY PLACES IN JESUS.

J. W. THOMAS.

"And hath raised us up together and made us sit together in heavenly places in Christ Jesus."—EPH. 2: 6.

The christian's life is compared to a traveler going from one country to another. The journey is over rough roads, through dark woods, across arid deserts, amid dangers on the right and on the left; but at times there are bright spots where the traveler can halt for a moment, and refresh his weary limbs. An oasis in the desert with its cooling shade, its gushing fountains, its fragrant flowers, and refreshing breezes, fitly illustrates some of those "heavenly places in Christ," which the christian in an especial manner is permitted to enjoy. Who, as he reviews his past experience cannot call to mind many sweet and comforting recollections of blessings received with the people of God, which made the place seem heavenly and divine? Every preacher, who has traveled, and labored with saints and sinners in different localities, can call to mind many places where God has made it heavenly by the outpouring of his Spirit, in the strengthening of his saints and the conversion of sinners. It is true that the christian's pathway should be continually lit up with the light of God's countenance, and he should rejoice in the Lord all the day long; but there are periods when he has special opportunities, special privileges, and when he receives special blessings. These he looks back upon with delight, and draws fresh courage to pursue his journey until he reaches the mount of God.

When those of like precious faith, who have been isolated and separated for long months, are permitted to meet together on some special occasion, is it not a season of joy and delightful intercourse? Among the bright spots in my christian experience, the recent gathering with the saints of God at Springfield is one of the brightest.* Was it not indeed a "heavenly place in Jesus"? Never was I so reluctant to leave a camp-ground before as I was that. Though I did not take such a prominent part in the meetings as many others, yet I did drink richly from the living fountains. The old Tabernacle, can we ever forget it? O how rich and sweet and heavenly and divine were those meetings, where Jesus and holiness of heart was the theme. It seems to me I never loved the dear people of God as I do now. This is just what we need, entire consecration to God. When our hearts are full of the love of Jesus, there is no room for anything else. Hatred, backbiting, evil speaking, envy, and every fruit of the carnal mind must go, and the fruit of the Spirit will be manifest in every thought, word, and action. There is nothing in the Bible too straight or plain for us, when we are entirely given up to God. We love the coming of Jesus better than ever. Surely, if our gathering here for one week in the tented grove is so sweet and heavenly, what will it be when we meet in the paradise of God. O, who can tell what it will be to be there? These "heavenly places in Christ," which we are permitted to enjoy are "earnests" and "foretastes" of that which is to come.

"I have tasted Canaan grapes,
And now I long to go
Where the Lord his vineyard keeps,
And where the clusters grow."
"I am at the fountain drinking."

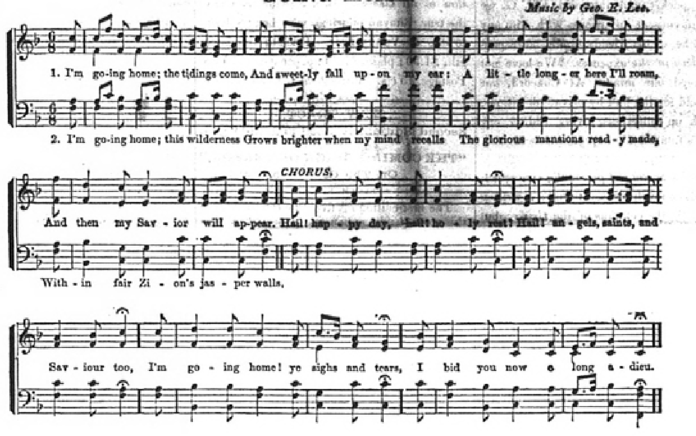
GOING HOME.

Music by Geo. E. Lee.



3. I'm going home, and cold pale death
Has lost its terrors, since I know
My long lost friends shall meet me there,
Where life's fair tree shall ever grow.
Chorus.

4. I'm going home! I'm going home!
My heart leaps high while thus I sing;
O happy day, it soon will come,
And I shall see our glorious King.
Chorus.

THE COMING STRUGGLE,

BETWEEN THE CHURCH AND THE POWERS OF DARKNESS, SHOWING A CONFEDERACY OF SPIRITUALISTS, CATHOLICS, ETC., AT HAND, WITH THE FALSE CHRIST AT THEIR HEAD, AND A PERSECUTION ATTENDING.

I. E. LOMBARD.

NUMBER TWO.

The first passage that I will call attention to is concerning the little horn of Dan. 7. It is there charged against this power that "it spake great words against the Most High," and though his dominion to consume and destroy is taken away some time previous to the end, yet, at the end, the prophet says, "I beheld, then, because of the voice of the great words which the horn spake"; showing, I think, that the horn is to recover its former dominion and influence just before the judgment, and is there to be more haughty and blasphemous than ever before.

If we consult the Apocalypse, we find this idea confirmed in various places. In the seventeenth chapter, we find "the beast," which all Protestant interpreters agree denotes the papacy, represented by an expression of peculiar force and definiteness, in three successive conditions (Rev. 17: 8, 11) as "the beast that was, is not, and yet is"; and in the last of these conditions "shall go into perdition." Hence as sure as the beast here represents the papacy, that power is destined to exhibit in its career these three successive states—first, "it was," then for a time it "is not," then again, it "shall ascend out of the bottomless pit"—"yet is"—and "go into perdition," as in its revived condition. It is in this condition that it goes into the battle of the great day, supported by ten kings, who agree and give their strength unto the beast, till the words of God are fulfilled. It also goes "into perdition," under the eighth head, when it "yet is," called in the eleventh chapter "the beast that ascendeth out of the bottomless pit." But, in the present condition of the papacy, she has no "head"; no nation renders her the least assistance, though helpless, and robbed of the last vestige of her temporal dominion. Therefore, as a "beast," she now "is not," but is simply a church. She is therefore destined to be united with the state again, before the judgment, for it is in such a condition that she goes into perdition. By such a union of the Catholic church with the state again will the beast, which now "is not," ascend "out of the bottomless pit," and "all the world," we read, "shall wonder, when they behold the beast that was, is not, and yet is"; and, I think that some who are persisting that there is to be "no revival of the papacy," and "no future persecution," will wonder too.

But these three successive conditions of the papacy are the most fully presented in the thirteenth chapter of Rev. We there behold it in the first of its three conditions, as a beast with seven heads and ten horns. Our common version gives forty-two months (1260 years) as the time he is "to continue"; but the margin reads, "to make war," and this reading agrees with Doddridge, Wesley, and Whiting, while the Revised reads, "to work"; the Syriac, to operate"; and the Diaglott, "to act." Thus the forty-two months measure the time the beast is to have dominion, and "make war with the saints" in the first stage of his career, or while he "was"; and when, as the result of his deadly wound, he loses his dominion, and goes into captivity, we have the second stage, when he "is not"; and when the deadly wound is healed, and all the world wonder after the beast, we have the third stage—he "yet is," in which state he goes to the judgment.

Several expressions occur in allusion to this power, showing a suspension of its power, followed by a dissolution of church and state for a time, which in some places seem to imply an end of the power, during this dissolution, while other passages seem opposed to this idea. But this difficulty is only in appearance. So far as the idea of "the beast" depends upon the union of church and state, and the continual exercise of its supremacy, it does end; but so far as the continued existence of its living elements—the Catholic church and Catholic states—are concerned, it does not end, and the more so, because it is destined to experience a revival of its supremacy and influence, after a short suspension. This idea seems sufficiently guarded in the allusions made to it. If in one place we read of this power, that it "is not," and again, that it must be killed with the sword, we find it qualified in another, as, "I saw one of his heads as it were wounded to death, and his deadly wound was healed"; and in another still, as "the beast which had the wound by a sword, and did live."

The time when the beast receives the deadly wound, or is killed with the sword, cannot be any time during its supremacy of forty-two months, since such an event would terminate its supremacy. This deadly wound must therefore be what ends his forty-two months dominion, and results in his going into captivity. Thus what Daniel meant by taking "away his dominion," seems here expressed by "the deadly wound," and going into captivity; and in the seventeenth chapter by the time when he "is not." And what might seem intended by Daniel, as a revival of the little horn power, just before the judgment, in the words, "I beheld, then, because of the voice of the great words which the horn spake," seems more definitely expressed in the language, "the deadly wound was healed" (Rev. 13: 30), and more definitely still in "the eighth" head, when the beast "yet is."

The forty-two months supremacy, no doubt, ended in the French Revolution, near the close of the last century. Since that time the pope, as head of the Catholic church, has not presumed to dictate to kings, as he used to, nor even command them, but only entreats. And these entreaties have been for help as a protection from his enemies, rather than for force to subjugate or persecute them. Such pleadings have been listened to in some measure in years past, especially by France; but now there is not a Catholic nation in the world that can give him any assistance, if it would. He still pleads, but in vain. The Catholics everywhere see his humiliation, and feel for him, and talk of a crusade, and other desperate things, but as yet nothing apparently turns in his favor. They hesitate, in suspense and perplexity, but not in despair. They possess all the elements of strength, and are conscious of their power, but as yet no master mind stands forth, as a standard bearer, to direct their energies and turn them to practical account in their cause. Give them and other Hildebrand for a Pope, with some Alexander as a military leader co-operating, and all Europe would tremble at the indignation of two hundred millions of Catholics! With their well-known superiority in numbers, their heartless treachery, their practical experience in Jesuitical craft, and goaded on, too, by the taunts of Protestants, they will be likely to find a leader ere long, and also some wicked work for their willing hands to do, rather than endure the seeming triumph of Protestantism.

But they are not alone in their disaffection. There is a large amount of discontent everywhere. The mass of society in Europe are in a state of restlessness approaching a general ferment, with many ambitious spirits among them, awaiting the favorable hour to strike for liberty, as they call it. Nor is this feeling confined to Europe. We see it in South America, Mexico, and all over the Western Continent, and here in our own country not the least of all. With no common grounds of complaint, they still seem united in a common feeling of restless disaffection toward the rulers and principles which govern society.

Journalists and statesmen behold this tendency of society with uneasiness, and now and then a minister of Christ, with some others, sound the alarm. H. W. Beecher says: "There has grown up in my mind within, perhaps, the last ten years, the consciousness of a great change that was coming over the world. We are advancing into times which are going to be marked. I foresee distinctly trouble and distress of mind. I foresee the reign of philosophies, which will seem to undermine the confidence of men in Christ. Not only in the Scriptures, but in God himself. The tendencies of thought are drifting right toward Atheism."

J. T. Headley, also, in his work entitled, "Luther and Cromwell; or, The Progress of the American Principle," has given in its closing chapter a graphic picture of the dangers of the hour. After tracing this principle, as "the right for every man to govern himself," through the Reformation under Luther, the Puritan supremacy under Cromwell, the French Revolution of 1793, the progress of the government of the United States, etc., he says of the impending future—"At all events, if my position be correct, man is to be let loose on himself, and on his destiny, and the whole structure of human society is to change. In conclusion, I would say that my fears of the issue are stronger than my hopes; that I have but little faith in the wisdom of the masses, and still less in their virtue. I dare not trust my race; or, rather, I dare not trust ignorant men in the hands of reckless demagogues, and under the sway of political factions. It is not with cheering confidence that I trace the progress of the principle I have been discussing; but still the fact is there, and must be looked in the face. The whirlpool will come, and into its vortex we must gaze, whether we are wrecked or saved."—pp. 253–4.

Thus far, this general disaffection in society has taken no aim or method, except in Spiritualism, whose doctrines and principles afford an ample theatre for the indulgence of their disaffection and presumption, with future plans and purposes, as congenial as their principles.

A WORD TO THOSE PROFESSING THE HIGHER WALKS.

"Be true to every inmost thought,
And as thy thought thy speech;
What thou hast not by suffering bought,
Presume thou not to teach."

Bro., sister, you profess to enjoy full salvation, perfect love—how is your daily walk? Circumspect? Do you take Jesus for your pattern? walk as he walked? live as he lived? imitate him in self-denial, cross-bearing, going about doing good, warning the unruly, comforting the feeble-minded, supporting the weak, exercising perfect patience toward all men? not rendering evil for evil toward any man, but ever following that which is good, both among yourselves and to all men? Are you holy, harmless, undefiled, separate from sin and sinners, in thought, word and deed? Are your thoughts, words and actions, passions and appetites brought into sweet and entire subjection to the law of love? Is your will in perfect accord with the will of God? It was meat and drink to the blessed Savior to do the will of his heavenly Father He had meat to eat of which the world knew nothing. Have you respect to all God's commandments and ordinances as Christ had?

Do you love the Lord with all your heart soul and strength, and your neighbor as yourself? All the law was fulfilled in one word, even in this—"thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself." Christ says, "He that loveth me, keepeth my commandments."—"He that saith he abideth in him, ought himself so to walk, even as he walked." 1 John 2: 6.

Here is the standard; do you abide by it, beloved reader? If not, how can you, how dare you, profess what you do not possess? If you do not walk as Jesus walked, how can you consistently say that you abide in him?

"God is love, and he that dwelleth in love, dwelleth in God, and God in him. Herein is our love made perfect, that we may have boldness in the day of judgment; because as he is, so are we in this world. There is no fear in love, but perfect love casteth out fear, because fear hath torment. He that feareth is not made perfect in love." 1 John 4: 16, 17, 18.

"Let us therefore," says Paul, "as many as be perfect, be thus minded. . . . Whereunto we have attained; let us walk by the same rule, let us mind the same thing. Brethren, be followers together of me, and mark them who walk so as ye have us for an ensample—for many walk, of whom I have told you often, and now tell you even weeping, that they are the enemies of the cross of Christ."

"'Tis not a cause of small import
A holy life demands,
But what might fill an angel's heart,
And fill the Savior's hands."

Let us glance at this subject specifically.

1. Are you in very deed what you profess to be?—dead indeed unto sin and alive to God, through our Lord Jesus Christ—sanctified wholly, spirit, soul and body? Can you say, as Paul said, "I am crucified with Christ, nevertheless, I live; yet not I, but Christ liveth in me, and the life I now live in the flesh, I live by the faith of the Son of God, who loved me and gave himself for me?" Gal. 2: 20.

What things were once gain to you, do you now count them loss for Christ?

2. Is the Word of God a lamp to your feet and a light to your path? Is it sweeter to you than honey or the honey comb? Do you meditate in it day and night? Are you, in truth, a Bible christian? Is your holiness verily Bible holiness?

3. Is your family altar burning brightly, morning and evening?

4. Have you a companion for life? Are you observing the marriage covenant in all respects? Eph. 4: 21–25.

5. Is your house orderly, a household of God, an Eden, a paradise, the very gate of heaven? How are your children and servants trained? exclusively for God, in the way they should go? in the fear, wisdom and love of God? Are your little ones, olive plants around your table? ensamples of all that is true, honest, just, pure, lovely, and of good report? This setting our house in order is a question of vast import, christian. Very many honest inquirers after the higher walks are stumbling by seeing the children of parents professing entire sanctification, growing up in unbelief—vain, proud, disobedient,—"lovers of pleasure more than lovers of God." Parents how can you, how dare you profess entire consecratedness to God, while living in open disobedience to a positive command? Read Deut. 6: 6–8. "Wo to the world because of offences, for it must needs be that offences come, but wo to that man by whom the offence cometh!" in the church or out of it—professing holiness or no holiness. By their fruits ye shall know them."

6. Again, are you consciously scrupulous in little things, in meeting your just dues, in owing no man anything but love? In all your business transactions are you sure to act on the Savior's Golden Rule? We are familiar with some professing to love the Lord with all the heart and their neighbor as themselves, that are slack in meeting just dues, vow and pay not, contract debts they are not able to meet at the specified time.

"A little theft, a small deceit, Too often leads to more."

"He that is faithful in that which is least, is faithful also in much; and he that is unjust in the least, is unjust also inmuch."

"Little things—aye, little things,
Make up the sum of life."

7. Are you surety for debts? or do you ever request others to be surety for your debts? "He that hateth suretyship shall be sure." See Proverbs 6: 11–15.

8. Are you economical in your expenditures, temperate in all things? Is your adorning that of a meek and quiet spirit, and not of gold, pearls and costly array? The Savior expects you to eat, drink, dress and spend your time, talents and property, and transact your business with reference to the same objects for which you pray, read your Bible, and worship God. "Whether therefore ye eat or drink, or whatsoever ye do, do all to the glory of God."

9. Do you shun levity, light and trifling conversation, foolish talking and jesting as you would the plague? The command is, "Be sober, be vigilant; let your conversation be to edification, becoming the gospel of Christ." "Let your speech be always with grace, seasoned with salt, that ye may know how ye ought to answer every man."

10. There are those who testify publicly to a wholly sanctified life and meanwhile imitate popish and worldly customs, in raising funds for benevolent purposes in church building, in making God's house a house of merchandise—patronize Sabbath-breaking establishments—a corrupt press—read novels, romances—unite with secret, oath-bound societies.

11. Others, again, profess to triumph in Jesus, to walk in the light as he is in the light, who, nevertheless, wink at popular sins, refuse to expose the follies and fashions of the day, world-conformity in dress and equipage, bow to a popular, man-fearing, time-serving polity. Is this Bible holiness?

12. Again, there are those professing to be holy in thought, word and deed, and, at the same time, are wedded to the poisonous "Indian weed," slaves to a fleshly appetite, and hold on to this lust? Whence this holiness? From the pit?

We may be eloquent, loud in our professions, speak with the tongues of men and of angels, and after all be "as sounding brass, or tinkling cymbal!" How grievously disappointed are we when we see in those making high pretensions to a sanctified heart, the very reverse of what they profess, in their spirit, conversation, and general deportment! Nothing so surely and speedily brings this blessed doctrine into disrepute as the inconsistencies of those professing to enjoy it. "Know ye not that so many of us as were baptized into Christ Jesus were baptized into his death?" Rom. 6: 1. "If Christ be in you the body is dead because of sin; but the spirit is life because of righteousdess."

"Paul died to sin, was crucified with Christ, that the body of sin might be destroyed—that henceforth he should not serve sin. "For he that is dead is freed from sin. Now if we be dead with Christ, we believe that we shall also live with him; knowing that Christ, being raised from the dead, dieth no more; death hath no more dominion over him. For in that he died, he died unto sin once; but in that he liveth, he liveth unto God. Likewise reckon ye also yourselves to be dead indeed unto sin, but alive unto God through Jesus Christ our Lord. Let not sin therefore reign in your mortal body, that ye should obey it in the lusts thereof. Neither yield ye your members as instruments of unrighteousness unto sin; but yield yourselves unto God, as those that are alive from the dead, and your members as instruments of righteousness unto God." Rom. 6: 7–13.

"As he who hath called you is holy, so be ye holy in all manner of conversation, because it is written: "Be ye holy, for I am holy." "Set your affections on things above, not on things on the earth, for ye are dead and your life is hid with Christ in God."

"Rise to a higher, holier life,
Ye that are called the sons of God,
And girded with the Spirit's sword,
Go nobly to the strife."

AN INDWELLING CHRIST.

S. BOYNTON.

As I am not versed in the science of the schools, I shall not expect to use language above criticism, but hope to speak so that the children, yea, babes in Christ, who know the Master's voice, may understand and be fed. Much is written and more said about the doctrines of the Bible; much effort is expended to enlighten men intellectually on these subjects. We do not purpose to interfere in this, but with Paul "show a more excellent way." Set the table as nicely and richly as you may, who cares for all this display; yea who will not turn away in disgust if no nourishing food is found thereon? "Without the Spirit of Christ ye are none of his." No; but says one, "we are begotten by the word." Yea, there was a man killed by a sword, but who used that sword? There is the sword of the Spirit, shall fleshly arm presume to use it? The divine power which inspired that word alone can make it effectual to salvation to those who hear it. "If I go away I will send the Comforter, he shall take of the things of God and shall shew them unto you," this is God's method. We become sons of God by the reception of the Spirit of God, and of Christ, or the Holy Spirit into our hearts, or minds, by which the affections are changed; we love the things we hated before, and we hate what once was lovely to us.

The work of the Spirit on every child of God is as real, and actual, as it was with the prophets, or with the apostles, when "they spake as they were moved by the Holy Ghost." This divine unction is fast leaving the church, but this is not perhaps the most alarming feature in the case! Man's need is made the cause of the utmost skill and effort to supersede this by counterfeit, so "if it were possible, they shall deceive the very elect." But "my sheep hear my voice, and they follow me, and a stranger they will not follow." Here, dear little ones of God's scattered flock, is our only safety. Keep close to the good Shepherd. Feed on the word (bread of life), as the Spirit breaks it for you. Thus we become transformed in the Spirit of our minds, and are Christ's representatives in our lives, or character; being temples of the Holy Ghost, crucified with Christ daily, living epistles, "known and read of all men." We close with one word of warning:—"Grieve not the Holy Spirit, whereby ye are sealed (or made secure) unto the day of redemption."

MINNIE.

E. S. WILLARD.

How sweet her smile of cordial greeting, as she raised her head from the pillow and extended the hand to bid us welcome. It is almost a year since Minnie walked in the sunshine, and now she cannot walk at all, nor stand upon her feet, and yet she smiles and looks happy.

When Minnie could walk, and was quite well, for her, she chose the Lord for her portion, and went forward and obeyed him in baptism, and now when she is upon a bed of pain and weakness, she is at rest. Jesus places a downy pillow beneath her head, and comforts her heart with his love. How it cheered us as we sat beside her bed, and how the words of encouragement welled up; and as the voice of prayer ascended, such a sense of spiritual peace came hovering round, that we felt, truly "the Son of peace" abides here, and this is a daughter of peace. O, it was a blessed season to our souls, and has left a sweet savor of Christ there. Praise his name!

Accompanied by Minnie's father and mother, we now repaired to the place of meeting. At the suggestion of her father the Lord's table was spread in our midst; "and after exhorting "one another, and so much the more as we see the day approaching," we drew around this blessed memorial of our Lord, and he met with us. The chords of christian love tightened about us as we communed one with another, and praised God for all the way in which he had led us, and our faith brightened in view of the glory soon to be revealed to his waiting children.

Haddonfield, N. Y., Apr. 16th, 1872.

— "Oh, sir," said a lean-hearted believer to his pastor, "I have been praying a whole year that I might enjoy the comforts of religion, and yet received no answer to my prayers." "Go home now and pray, 'Father, glorify thyself,' was the reply. "Selfish prayers contain no nutriment."

HOMEWARD-BOUND NOTES.

At Council Bluffs, on the eastern side of the Missouri river, we took the cars on the Chicago and North Western train, en route for Chicago, Friday, 4.45 P. M., April 26th, and arrived in due time, at 4 P. M., Saturday; distance four hundred and ninety-one miles. This road is managed with much energy and success, under the direction of Mr. G. L. Dunlap, and his associates. The road runs through a very fine country. We have seen no rolling prairie that we think surpasses that in the state of Iowa. The preparation for crops is extensive and the prospect promising. As the result of the large corn crop last year, we saw many corn-cribs filled with corn yet unsold. The farming interests in Iowa are of the first class. The soil is rich and easily cultivated. The same is true of Illinois. The season appeared as forward in Nebraska as in Iowa or Illinois. This western country affords a charming sight to farmers.

During the last two days, before reaching Chicago, we had a very interesting conversation with an enterprising business man, residing near Boston, who is a lover of Christ. We gave him the reason of our hope; he saw the light at once, and rejoiced in the truth. He subscribed for the Crisis, and intends to be at our autumn campmeeting. We took much comfort together in christian conversation. He was anxious to know the whole truth as it is taught in the Scriptures. He is one of those who dislike to do things in a half-hearted, sluggish manner.

He had been in the habit of smoking cigars for a number of years. After he began to rejoice more fully in the truth, and to feel anxious to be entirely given up to the Lord, as he came out of the smoking-car, we said to him, "can you smoke to the glory of God?" He honestly confessed that it was doubtful. After talking over the bad effects of tobacco upon the physical, mental and moral faculties of those who use it in any form, he decided to bid it an eternal farewell, and felt the smiles of the Lord were upon him with new brightness. He is one of those men who will not put his light under a bushel. We expect he will be a faithful witness for our dear Lord.

We arrived in Chicago in good trim, after our long journey, and went directly to Bro. A. M. Billings', where we always receive a hearty welcome. We were saddened to find him in poor health. His extensive load of business cares, which were abundant for two men, but which he has managed with great skill and ability for years, is becoming too heavy for him, and has compelled him to stop for repairs. Had he not been a man of very temperate habits, he could not have endured so long. Notwithstanding his faithful attention to his extensive business, he finds time daily for religious contemplation. There are but few men who have a keener relish for conversation upon the deep things of christian experience. After the toils of the day, he will often sit up till near midnight for the sake of talking upon these things. While his heart and hand are wide open to sustain the "pure and undefiled religion," wherever he sees it exhibited, no matter how lowly the possessor, he has no sympathy with that which is but an outside cloak to cover an unclean heart. He has opened his heart wide to assist the church in Chicago.

We spent the last Sabbath in April in Chicago, and had a blessed day in the Lord. We think we saw very bright evidence that this church is taking advanced ground. There is a lively interest in their social meetings. Their convenient and commodious chapel was full of attentive hearers, who seemed anxious to hear the truths that have made us a "peculiar people." The meetings were such as make good people rejoice, and cause sinners to be tired of the sorrows of sin. Several requested prayers in the evening. Bro. F. Burr, their pastor, is throwing his whole energies into the work; going beyond, perhaps, what the laws of health might dictate. He preaches on the south side in a Baptist church, at 8 P. M. each Sabbath. We found an appointment for us at the same place, where we had a good audience and attention, and a free time in speaking on a preparation for the coming of Christ. We enjoyed the occasion. If his strength will permit, Bro. Burr intends to continue to preach in the same place each Sabbath afternoon. They hire the use of the church for these meetings. We think it is a good move.

We met Bro. Sheldon in Chicago. His health has improved since he came home from the South, and he has been drinking the water from the Wakesha springs, Wisconsin, which have a remarkable effect upon kidney difficulties. He is anxious to do more in the vineyard of the Lord, than his strength will admit. He longs to preach the truths of the Bible. Pray for him, that he may regain his health.

Chicago is being built up with wonderful rapidity. It is marvelous to see it rising up again, like the fabled Phœnix from its ashes. When we first saw its ruins, we said it would be rebuilt again in three years, should time continue. The enterprising spirit of the people of Chicago was never more manifest than at present. There is danger of much sickness and wickedness the coming season. We passed one place where the fire is still burning. We were informed it was a pile of wheat. It reminded us of the unquenchable fire, that will not go out till all within its reach is consumed.

Leaving Chicago Monday, April 29th, we passed over the Michigan Central and Great Western railroads, noted for their good management, speed, safety, and the comfort afforded to travelers, and arrived at Suspension Bridge without change of cars. When at this point of wonders, we gazed again at the pouring, thundering cataract, which seemed to be emptying out Lake Erie into the awful chasm below. One is never tired of seeing this sublime waterfall, or of listening to the music of its unceasing roar. The water rebounds from its foaming cauldron, forming a cloudy mist, in which is seen the rainbow, as when painted upon the retreating storm. After the waters have plunged over the cataract, and come hurrying down to the Suspension Bridge, they have a very green look. The Suspension Bridge across the yawning gulf, and the deep running stream below, afford a sight to the passing traveler that might make timid souls rejoice when they were safely across, and no longer suspended between heaven and earth in railroad cars two hundred and fifty-eight feet above a deep, dashing, boiling stream, from whose wates none could hope for a rescue.

From Niagara we had a prosperous trip to Albany, where we change cars for the Boston and Albany road, which is one of the best managed in the country, under the superintendence of Mr. C. O. Russell. Mr. C. W. Chapin, who owns the ground where we hold our National campmeeting at Springfield, is President of the road, possessing the traits of character requisite for a first-class, honorable business man. Those familiar with the past history of this road feel an extra degree of safety on this route, because of the superior care exercised in relation to everything connected with its management. There is the least jolting we have found on any cars between San Francisco and Boston. On some roads we could not write with a pencil so that it could be read, and had to give up the attempt; but on the Boston and Albany road, we could write plainer than on any other. What a change from the old stage ride between Boston and Albany! Then one would be tossed up and down, thrown against his fellow passenger, cold and crowded, day after day, until he was sore, tired, and exhausted; now, we can seat ourselves with friends in the elegant cars, and enjoy pleasant visits as in one's nice parlors at home, no matter how cold or stormy it may be without; and in a few hours we find ourselves at the end of a journey of two hundred and thirty miles, feeling as fresh as when we started. Again we say, what a change! This is an age of wonders.

A DISCUSSION PROPOSED.

Not long since we received from the Editor-in-chief of the World's Crisis the following note for publication:—

"TO DR. J. LITCH:—In the Advent Herald, Jan. 24th, is found the following from your pen: 'For nearly thirty years I have stood prominently before the world as a believer in the plain, scriptural doctrine of the conscious existence of the soul after death, and of the eternal, conscious sufferings of the wicked.'

Bro. Litch, permit me to inquire if you are willing to discuss with me in oral debate one of the following propositions:

Do the Scriptures teach that man has an immortal soul? or,

Do the Scriptures teach that man has a soul which is conscious between death and the resurrection? or,

Do the Scriptures teach that every part of man is wholly mortal, and unconscious between death and the resurrection?

The time, place, and other preliminaries to be mutually arranged. Yours truly,

MILES GRANT."

The week we received this note, the same proposal appeared in the Crisis. We therefore forwarded the paper to Dr. Litch, and awaited his reply, which is as follows:—

"ELDER ORROCK:—I learn through the Crisis (a copy of which you were so kind as to send me), that Elder Miles Grant, editor of that paper, wishes to know if I am willing to discuss with him in oral debate several propositions involving the question of the intermediate state and final punishment of the wicked. Permit me to say to him through your columns that I have once done so, and traversed the entire ground covered by his questions, and that debate is before the world. (1.) With it, and a brief supplement which I gave in the Advent Herald in my expose of the false charge of H. H. Hall, I am content. (2.) Of course I do not blame the Elder for desiring to try it over again, but under the circumstances I am not disposed to accept his proposition. (If he is very anxious for such a tournament, I commend him to my friend Elder R. I. Gates, of Philadelphia, who I know is exceedingly anxious to complete his engagement with him, there being, if I rightly remember, some four or five debates yet remaining, which Elder Grant declined to meet.) (3.) I propose, however, a discussion of the question in writing, through the columns of the World's Crisis. Will Eld. Grant accept? (4.) Permit me further to say that the World's Crisis is not to run away in the smoke of battle from its moral responsibility for the false witness it permitted H. H. Hall to bear against us in its issue of Dec. 6, 1871. (5.)

J. LITCH."

As Elder Grant gave the challenge in his paper with a request that we should give it in ours (which we have done), we shall expect him to copy Dr. Litch's reply entire into the Crisis.—Advent Herald.

We have made five points to notice in the foregoing. (1.) Our former discussion with Dr. Litch was our first effort at public debate on the "life and death question." That debate is now out of print, and the plates are lost. We ask the Dr. if it would not be well to reproduce them by a new debate, as the interest in the subject has greatly increased since 1857, when we had the discussion.

(2) The "expose" of Bro. H. H. Hall does not apply to us. Let us have a talk of our own.

3) As to Elder I. R. Gates, he is not Dr. Litch. We discussed ten evenings with Eld. Gates, in the Concord, N. H., City Hall; and ten evenings in Boston, feeling much pleased with the result in favor of the positions we advocated; but at the close of the Boston debate, we found the expenses were about forty dollars more than receipts. As Elder Gates and his friends refused to pay any part of the deficiency, we paid it out of our own pocket, and informed Eld. G. we should not consent to discuss with him any more, till he, or his friends, would be responsible for half of the expenses. We have not yet changed our mind. At Concord, our friends paid for the hall by private donations, then took up collections, giving Eld. G. one half. We fulfilled all engagements with Eld. Gates.

(4) So far as we are personally concerned, we should be much pleased to have a written discussion in the columns of the Crisis; but the regulations of the Association do not allow their Editor to enter into controversy with our brethren in Christ. We think this is a wise restriction, and most cheerfully submit.

(5) We are not responsible for what others say in "our paper." Each writer is responsible for himself. We very often insert articles containing things that we do not indorse. Ours is the "People's Paper." It is not confined to a set creed, but each writer states his own positions, with his reasons for the same.

In conclusion, Bro. Litch, we see no way so proper and satisfactory, as for us to have another public debate, in some appropriate place, where we can have a thorough talk on this important subject, before a candid audience. You say "the conscious existence of the soul after death" is a "plain, scriptural doctrine, also "the eternal, conscious sufferings of the wicked"; and that "for nearly thirty years" you "have stood prominently before the world as a believer," and, we may add, supporter of these doctrines. Now, with all these "circumstances" before you, can you not consistently change your mind, and be "disposed to accept" our "proposition"?

A GLOOMY PICTURE.

The moral condition of New York, and other large cities, presents an alarming state of things. The following is from a special despatch to the Boston Globe, dated May 14th:—

"DAYS OF BLOOD.—A gloomy picture of metropolitan life is drawn by the Evening Post to-night, under the head, "The Bloody Days." The Post says: The rate at which we are running up a list of murders and assassinations is fearful. Every day brings a new recital more terrible than that of the day before, and no voice of power cries, Hold. Rival lovers settling their dispute with the pistol; women taking the law into their own hands and shooting the men whom they accuse of wrong; thieves, who hesitate not to knock out their victims' brains to obtain their watches, or to shoot them dead to secure their own escape; such is the material of which the criminal calendar is made up. The questions which citizens are asking one another is, Must this lawlessness continue, and what is the remedy? We pay large sums for the support of a police force, and larger sums for court-houses, and we know that there are laws defining and forbidding crimes. Why are we left at the mercy of the desperadoes? Is any man secure? May not the successful slayer of Mr. Rogers or Mr. Nathan, encouraged by his impunity, make our home at any time a slaughter-house? Questions are easily answered; remedies less easily supplied. The presence of dangerous classes in large cities cannot be prevented, unless, indeed, our next President shall issue a mandate ordering their summary removal to the West. Means must therefore be put in force for their restraint. And here we find the great defect in our police system, a lack of prevention."

CALIFORNIA.—We learn by private correspondence that the meetings in Sacramento continue specially interesting, under the care of Dr. Truesdell. Some request prayers in about every meeting. In Vallejo the interest continues, and new ones are seeking the Lord. An infidel has given himself to the Lord since we left, and is now a happy man. There is quite a stir in Nevada, on account of the opposition of the ministers. They will find they are on the wrong side this time. We have not yet heard from San Francisco.

"LIVING BY THE MOMENT."—Those who wish to enjoy "perfect love," "peace," and "joy," that is in store for the true christian, will be well paid for a careful reading of the article in another column, headed, "Living by the Moment." It gives the true way to live in this world, if we wish to be happy.

SR. SARAH VANDAMARK writes from Balla, Bixby Co., Kansas, May 4th, earnestly requesting that some one may visit that section and hold some meetings. Perhaps Bro. J. C. Smith may be able to sound a note of alarm among the careless in that region. Will Bro. Smith, or some other one, correspond with Sr. V.?

LA CROSSE.—Bro. Wm. H. Reese, of La Crosse, Wis., cordially invites preachers to call on him at the Cor. of 12th and Market streets, when passing through the city. They will also find a home with Bro. Brackett.

THE LAWS OF LIFE is a valuable hygienic monthly, edited by Miss Harriet N. Austin, assisted by Dr. James C. Jackson, Dr. James H. Jackson, Mrs. Fanny B. Johnson, and Mrs. Katy Jackson, at Dansville, N. Y. Price, $1.50. This periodical has been enlarged and improved. The June number is at hand containing important facts. It is highly gratifying to notice the increasing interest in hygienic works. Every family should have a health journal.

DIGGING ROOTS, is the title of a new book by Bro. D. F. Newton, 303 West 20th St., New York. This is one of those books that should have a place in every family, specially where there are young folks, because it contains so much reading that is interesting to that class, while it is specially calculated to mould their minds and habits in the direction of a pure christianity. Such works are rare in these last days. Most that is written for the young at the present day is but trashy nonsense, full of moral poison. Bro. Newton is fully awake to this fact, and speaks out plainly and fearlessly against the sins of these last days. The work has a large number of pictorial illustrations, which will help to make it much more charming to the young. It contains thought worthy of the consideration of all classes. Bro. Newton is one of the true Bunyan pilgrims, who has no desire to stop at Vanity Fair. Price of the book, gilt, $1.50; plain, $1.00; paper cover, 75 cts. Postage, 15 cts. For sale at the Crisis office.

NEW TRACT.
Second Edition, Revised and Enlarged,
OF
"THE COMING REIGN OF TERROR," Or, The Communo.
BY WM. N. PILE.

The first edition of five thousand copies of this work being exhausted, a second edition is now published. It contains about twelve pages of entirely new matter, besides retaining all the more important matter of the first edition. The past working of Spiritualism, Infidelity, Socialism, Free-Love, and the Commune, are shown to have produced the "reign of terror" of 1792 in France, and then the analogies between that period and the present are drawn, to show that we are on the verge of another "reign of terror." Special attention is given to the "International Society," and its latest developments shown. This tract is well calculated to awaken an interest in the speedy coming of the Lord. Notwithstanding the increased size, the price is unchanged.

For sale at this office. Price, by mail, single copy, 7 cts.; five copies, 30 cts.; ten copies, 50 cts.; fifty copies, $2.00; one hundred copies, by express, $3.50. AG'T.

Also sold by the author at Springfield, Mass.

☞ IF THE EDITOR can so arrange, he may be expected at the Wisconsin and Iowa campmeetings next month.

☞ OBITUARY notices have been crowded out of late, which we shall publish as there shall be room.

SANCTIFIED IGNORANCE.

There is a species of sanctification much talked of, which has as its basis blind excitement, being both distinct from, and ignorant of, the true gospel of God. Such persons are often honest in heart, but have not had the eyes of their understanding opened. God's system of light is either of some value, or it is worthless; if it is a valuable system, any sanctification outside of it is deficient. There are sincere and devoted Mohammedans, who are wedded to a system of falsehood, and at war with the truth of heaven; but their sanctification is simply sanctified ignorance. It is possible for us to possess a similar sanctification—a sanctification that is blind to the fundamentals of divine truth. While there can be no genuine sanctification without sincerity, there can be an abundance of sincerity without genuine sanctification. That sanctification which comes through the theory of saving disembodied men in an ethereal realm, instead of saving real men in the promised "kingdom under the whole heaven," though it may have entranced the surface stratum of human nature, needs the enlightening rays of truth to reach the understanding.

Jesus prayed—"Sanctify them through thy truth; thy word is truth." Whatever else may pertain to sanctification, this part must not be repudiated. Though we may be long in learning all the minor details of sacred truth, its fundamentals certainly ought to be possessed before we claim sanctification.

It is true that we may intellectually comprehend the theory of revealed truth, and still have unsanctified hearts; so true sanctification involves something more than the enlightening of the intellect through the theory of truth. We are chosen to salvation "through sanctification of the Spirit, and belief of the truth;" for "the Spirit and the word agree." There are three strata of human nature that must be sanctified, or rather consecrated first, and then sanctified, in order to thorough sanctification.

1. The surface stratum, the emotional element, can be reached by a sympathetic current; but if the work goes no further, the subject will soon relax into his former state. Thousands of this class are called backsliders, who really never slid forward far.

2. The understanding, being a lower stratum, must be enlightened, for "he that heareth the word of the kingdom, and understandeth it," has something to hold on to when the excitement passes off.

3. All that is needed in addition to this is to have the affections reached and consecrated by the Holy Spirit, and filled with perfect love. Then our eyes are open to the truth of God, enabling us to know what we believe, and why we believe it, and at the same time to ardently love the divine plan, and its sacred author. This is a sanctification far preferable to a blind feeling, shrouded in ignorance, enlisting the emotions, the judgment, and the affections for Christ. W. S.

"EVERLASTING LIFE."

Everlasting life is not a present life of the soul, but a future life of the person, a life to begin at the resurrection. "Many of them that sleep in the dust of the earth shall awake, some to everlasting life." Dan. 12: 2. Thus the sleep of death must end before everlasting life begins. If it were a present life of the soul, Paul could not have said—"He that soweth to the Spirit shall of the Spirit reap life everlasting." Gal. 6: 8. A man cannot "reap" before harvest comes, and if he already possesses everlasting life, he cannot reap it then.

Those who claim a present everlasting life for the soul, are constantly cutting off their claim to innate immortality, by selecting texts that as strongly deny everlasting life to the wicked, as they ascribe it to the righteous, such as the following:—"He that believeth on the Son hath everlasting life; and he that believeth not the Son shall not see life." John 3: 36. "And this is the record, that God hath given to us eternal life, and this life is in the Son. He that hath the Son hath life; and he that hath not the Son of God hath not life." John 5: 11, 12. (1) If a present everlasting life of the soul is here attributed to the believer, it is just as positively denied to the wicked, which disproves the immortality of souls before conversion. (2) This everlasting life is not yet in us, but is "in his Son." The believer "hath" it, in the same sense in which he "hath the Son," by faith, Christ being the life-giver; for "the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord." It comes through no other channel; hence, he who is allied to Christ "hath" this life in Christ, and will have it in actual possession "when Christ who is our life shall appear," to raise the sleeping saints "to everlasting life." W. S.

WHEN DID DAY and NIGHT BEGIN?

A friend wishes to know how there could have been day and night before the sun, moon and stars existed, which were created on the fourth day? That the sun could not give light before it came into existence is evident; but nevertheless the record assures us that there was "light" on the first day—"And God said, Let there be light; and there was light. And God saw the light, that it was good; and God divided the light from the darkness. And God called the light Day." Gen. 1: 3-5. On this text the Douay version has the following foot note, which well expresses the mind of many Protestant Divines:—"God created, on the first day, light, which being moved from east to west, by its rising and setting, made morning and evening. But on the fourth day he ordered and distributed this light, and made sun, moon, and stars."

Whether this original "light" encircled the globe, revolving with it, except at intervals, when it receded to give place to darkness, as some suppose, thus producing days and nights of great length, or whether, it remained stationary, thus allowing the revolving earth to present one half of its surface to it at a time, making days and nights of the same length we now have, does not change the fact that there was light before it proceeded from the sun, moon, or stars. W. S.

MAGNOLIA MEETING.—Our Magnolia quarterly meeting, though somewhat infringed upon by the rain, was a season of interest and good cheer to the household of faith. Bro. G. Howard, Philo Hitchcock, and G. Button, were present to aid in the services. A goodly number of brethren gathered from various localities to hear the gospel of the kingdom.

At the close of the meeting the lightnings flashed the sad intelligence over the wires that Eld. Thomson's wife was dead, summoning me to preach the funeral sermon. A large congregation convened upon the occasion in the Congregational house in Arena, and listened to a discourse upon the immortal state due when Jesus comes. W. S.

WISCONSIN CAMPMEETING.—We trust that our Wisconsin friends will not only notice the appointment for this meeting, together with the State Conference, but also arrange to attend it en masse. It bids fair to be a meeting of no ordinary interest, if we can judge from present indications. Ministers and people are preparing to come. Let others wake up to the subject at once, and be on hand in time. W. S.

DEATH'S HARVEST.
F. H. BURBANK.

During the past fourteen months, Death has frequently wisited the little Advent churches in Philadelphia and Camden, seizing alike the old and the young, causing many hearts to bleed in sorrow and anguish over the loss of their dear ones who fell victims to the destroyer.

In January, 1871, Sisters Clegg and Ashman were stricken down and borne to the grave. Their deaths were noticed in the Crisis at the time. In July of the same year, brother and Sr. Yunger buried their son George. Several months before his death, while he was confined to his house by sickness, he gave himself wholly to the Savior, so that, while he walked through the valley and shadow of death, he feared no evil, for the staff and the rod of God comforted him. He was a young man, endowed with a gifted mind by nature, and a clean heart by grace. Deacon Reinboth, now nearly eighty years of age, lost a dear son in September. Before his death he assured his anxious friends that he had secured salvation by faith in Christ. Elder Stetler buried a daughter-in-law in October. She found Jesus while suffering from disease, and for several weeks her heart rejoiced in pardoning love, when the "enemy" claimed her for his victim. But six months before her death, a lovely babe was torn from her embrace by the same relentless foe. In October, Sr. Payne lost a son of fifteen years. But he did not without hope, for the blood of the Lamb had been applied to his heart, and every guilty stain purged away. Sister Laws was deprived of a son of fifteen, and a daughter of eleven years. Sister Kendle lost a girl of sixteen years; Sister Smith, of Camden, lost a little grand-daughter of six years. The last four cases died of small pox. Recently the same sister has lost a daughter-in-law by heart disease.

Bro. Baker, of the Philadelphia church, fell a victim to death early in January, the present year. He was nearly threescore years of age at the time of his sudden decease. He died of heart disease. Fifteen minutes before his death he was, to all outward appearance in excellent health and spirits. On New Year's day he expressed his gratitude to God, in the presence of his companion, to whom he had been married scarcely four months, for his goodness and mercy in preserving his life to see the light of 1872. Little did he think that the first week in January would be his last week in this life. Yet he was prepared to enter upon the life which is to come. For many years he had looked for the return of Him who is to destroy death, and in that day when the Conqueror of the "last enemy" comes, we have no doubt that Bro. Baker will be raised up again.

In August I buried my father, and in September my oldest sister. My mother died eight years ago. Thus I can sympathize with all the mourning ones in our midst. Even the present week, my aunt, with whom I board, deposited in the earth a daughter. So death has been at work near myself, and in the midst of all these troubles, the hope of the resurrection from the dead, associated with the promise of God that he will send Jesus Christ to us at the time of the restitution of all things promised, buoys me up, and doubtless the blessed hope cheers all the pilgrim band even while they sorrow. "Yet a little while," and "the Lord himself shall descend from heaven, . . . and the dead in Christ shall rise."

THE TRACT FUND.

The Advent Christian Publication Society, at a meeting on Springfield Camp-ground, August 22d, 1871, voted to raise Two Thousand Dollars for the free distribution of Tracts the ensuing year; and they invite the help and co-operation of all lovers of the Lord and of his truth, in the furtherance of the good cause. The times are ominous of coming events, and admonish us to diligence in the Master's work. The Lord is at the door, and what we do must be done quickly. Let the contributions be prompt, hearty, and liberal. The Lord will reward the liberal giver.

GOOD EFFECTS OF TRUTH.

Truth of itself, without grace, does not always work peace and harmony. It is delightful to go where peace and harmony prevail. Woodstock Valley, Ct., is one of those quiet places where there is not a jarring note. All sing, and all sing in harmony; yet some have different views on some points, but do not bring them into their meetings of worship. Since 1843, I have not seen such harmony in everything. Their influence is good all around. Good, lively singing is a great help in meetings, and there we get it with the Spirit and understanding also. We had one of the best times we have had for twenty-five years in every respect. No difficulty is allowed to go to seed. The whole church are agreed to work together. Women and all feel an interest in keeping down all feelings of jealousy, and love one another, and speak well of each other. The devil will have his match if they keep to this rule, and they will prosper, and all others that adopt it.

Come all, and see if there cannot something be done to promote harmony where it is lacking. How much better it would be for the people and the preachers. I would say here, there are some three or four places for sale at cheap rates in this neighborhood. One good, large house, with one acre of land, for one thousand dollars; another, about the same, with half an acre of land, for about $900. Another with five acres, and some orcharding, all grass land, a one story house (a good, comfortable dwelling), and barn, for $800. All are near the meeting, post-office, and mills. Address Bro. Bancroft, postmaster, Woodstock Valley, Ct. H. MUNGER.

TO FRIENDS.—Many have said to me, "Write me, won't you?" I will say, friends writing to me will direct to Memphis, Tenn. All who wish me to write them will please enclose a stamp when they write me. One letter to me from each of my friends will cost each one of them but one stamp, while one letter from me to each of them would cost me many stamps, which I am not now able to buy. I. I. LESLIE.

HELP THE NEEDY.—I am informed that Nelson Sanborn, of Saco, is sick with consumption, and is needy. His wife worked to support the family while she could leave him, but now is unable to do so. Let us cast a few dollars in that direction, and give temporary relief. He is a good and worthy brother. "I was sick, and ye assisted me" (Diaglott). Address Nelson Sanborn, Saco, Maine, Box 795. J. ALBERT LIBBY.

PERSONAL.—Sister Mary Locke, of East Weare, N. H., widow of the late Eld. Benjamin Locke, is very sick, suffering from a cancer, and is not expected to live. Remember the widow.

QUERY.—Will the Bro. who wrote an article on the Sabbath, and stated that every day in the week was kept for Sabbath by some nation, please state what nations keep the different days, and oblige F. BATES, JR.

REPORT

PREACHERS—A. W. Sibley, Richard Mosher, Sandy Hill, N. Y.; H. K. Flagg, Savoy, Mass.; S. G. Mathewson, Castleton, Vt.; J. L. Knapp, Saratoga, N. Y.; Jabob Wilbur, No. Easton, N. Y.; C. W. Baker, Pawling, N. Y.; J. L. Wood, New Milford, Ct.; and James Ferris, Buchanan, Mich.

DELEGATES—Jacob Pike, N. W. Waite, and Dea. J. Pike, Sandy Hill, N. Y.; C. H. Johnson, Saratoga, N. Y.; Geo. E. Whipple, Ft. Edward, N. Y.; Wm. O. Munson and David W. Lincoln, Hebron, N. Y.; John B. White, Hoosic Falls, N. Y., and Charles H. Friar, No. Easton, N. Y.

By vote, Brn. Matthewson, Ferris, Wood and Baker were invited to sit with us and participate in the deliberations of this conference. The reports of preachers and delegates were of a cheering character, God having abundantly blessed the labors of his servants since our last quarterly session.

Voted, That Brn. Wood and Baker become members of this conference.

Voted, That we do not think it advisable for this conference to hold a campmeeting this year. The following resolution was unanimously passed:—

Resolved, That we appreciate the courtesy extended to us by the N. Y. State A. C. Conference, with reference to uniting with them in a State campmeeting.

Voted, That this conference procure a tent, in which to hold meetings as the Lord may direct. Brn. A. W. Sibley, S. G. Mathewson, and H. K. Flagg, were chosen a committee to procure the tent and serve in the use of the same.

Receipts, in pledges and money, were more than one half the required amount for the purchase of the tent. All who feel it a privilege to contribute to this object are requested to do so now, as willing and obedient stewards.

A vote of thanks was cordially extended to the brethren of Sandy Hill and vicinity, for their kind and courteous reception and hospitable care shown us while providentially we were permitted to be with them. May the blessing of God abide with them.

Voted, That a report of the proceedings of this conference be sent for publication to the World's Crisis, and also to the Advent Christian Times. By vote, the meeting stands adjourned sine die. A. P. BUMP, Sec.

Correspondence.

From Bro. I. I. Leslie.

DEAR FRIENDS OF JESUS:—In the providence of God I am again in the South. Not, however, expecting to remain long, I have laid out but little missionary work, though already I find it pressing upon me as formerly. I am here by the direction of the A. A. Mission Society, to erect a chapel for the Advent church in this city, to take the place of the one which has been sold. This is my old battle-ground, where I have fought the enemy long and hard, and where, too, I gained many victories over him and myself. Here I helped to plant the standard of truth and righteousness amidst error and sin on every hand. I find the standard still up, though somewhat shattered by the attacks of the enemies of God and his word. It still waves, and some are clinging to it, endeavoring to raise it higher.

The church has passed through severe trials during the last three years. Satan has done all he could to uproot the wheat which is here growing among the tares, but it still remains rooted in the "good ground" in which the seed fell.

My coming again was the occasion of much rejoicing on the part of about a hundred souls; and their continued joy makes me more willing to forego the comforts of home, and the society of dear brethren and sisters in Christ where I have lived in the East. I hope to be able to report an advance in the cause of truth here, and the turning of some from the way of death, with an addition to the number of waiting ones.
